When United States Attorney Tuttle of New York declares that he is making a study of the testimony of the senior surviving officer of the Vestris before the British board of inquiry concerning the sinking of that vessel, he has evidently been stirred by the difference between the testimony given in this country and that being obtained in England. There the statement has been made that facts were kept from the New York investigators concerning the overloading of the ship.

Just what can be done if it is found that the surviving chief officer testified falsely in this country is at present uncertain, but if such is the case it throws new light upon the conditions aboard that vessel when it sailed from New York and offers an additional explanation of the conditions that prevailed aboard the ship before and while foundering.

But what is also serious is the fact that this officer, and perhaps others, were ready to testify to one thing in this country and something different in London. Was it because they had less respect for the inquiry as conducted in this country or more respect for the penalty in case of perjury in England?

Because it was delayed isn't interfering anyway in the thoroughness of the inquiry that is being made in London, but in view of the alleged concealment of facts or suppression of truth relative to the Vestris in this country perhaps we have reason to take a lesson from the methods employed in such inquiries abroad quite the same as we have opportunity to do in the matter of law enforcement from time to time. It causes us to stop and think as to whether we are a bit too easy in such serious matters.

FIREPROOF STRUCTURES—NEEDED.

New Jersey has been housing 4,000 in an insane hospital at Greystone, in a building that was begun over 50 years ago and to which many additions have been made. When fire broke out in the main building it was necessary to move 1400 patients and so well organized had been the attendants that others would have been moved in safety had it been necessary. But before the fire was checked it had caused a million dollars damage.

Without a doubt that state has had a demonstration in the importance of fireproof buildings for such an institution. Fortunately there was no loss of life but it indicates the possibilities of a much worse situation had the fire developed under less favorable circumstances.

When it comes to the replacement of the burned building it will be surprising if there is not an insistence upon the erection of fireproof buildings where the menace to the inmates through fire will be overcome. This does not necessarily mean that buildings which are fit for use, even though not fireproof, should be abandoned, but when it comes to building new structures they should be built with the idea of avoiding the fire menace in the future.

This is an important requirement at any institution where there are many lives at stake, whether they happen to be children, adults, sick or insane. The fireproof buildings involve additional expense but it is preferable to the danger of a frightful loss of life under horrible conditions.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: The fellow who carries umbrella and rubbers when the sun shines evidently looks upon life as a rainy season.

Concerning legislative action a headline says, "If New England wants anything in Washington it must speak out." But we hope it will not have to be a la LaGuardia.

Bricklayers are reported as backing another transatlantic flight, which probably will be sufficient ground for seeking a reduction in hours and increase in wages.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, May 6—The republican floor leader, Col. John C. Tilson, of Connecticut, has a method of leadership that differs materially from those of former leaders of the house. Tilson had been a close observer of the methods of the late James R. Mann, and although admiring Mann, he believed the policy could be changed to give more responsibility to members qualified to assume it. Mr. Mann not only led, but he carried the whole load of responsibility on his own shoulders. He was entirely capable of doing so, but Tilson believes each member of the house has a personal responsibility beyond merely casting a vote. When Tilson was elected leader some years ago he began immediately to call into conference men who, though not holding chairmanships, were "natural leaders" as he expresses it. He insists chairmen and such natural leaders share responsibility with him and take a hand in the actual work of keeping the legislative program moving in the right direction. "There are many natural leaders in the house," said Tilson to this correspondent, "and they are very valuable in getting work done and a legislative program carried out." Col. Tilson regards floor leadership as including diplomacy as well as directing and the framing of programs. It is a matter of handling men as well as measures, if the best results are to be obtained and the splendid ability brought out, that often lurks in the background. Col. Tilson believes, and acts on the belief that others than the chosen floor leader must feel a personal responsibility, and that congress and the nation will benefit by that course.

Tilson keeps his hand firmly on the leadership lever, but he expects others to feel a keen sense of cooperation and responsibility. Congress, regardless of partisanship, respects and admires Tilson, for he has never broken faith; never "passed the buck" and always played fair with both political friend and adversary, during his long and prominent congressional career.

In this connection it is well to cite that it has just come to light here that one of the pleasantest incidents of the Yale '91 banquet in New York last Saturday where Col. John Q. Tilson of New Haven was the honor guest, a letter from former President Coolidge to John H. Buck, president of the club was read and won great applause for its euloristic comments of Col. Tilson. The letter is as follows, and is addressed to Mr. Buck as president of the class association:

"Your invitation to attend the dinner given to Col. John Q. Tilson has been received. It would certainly be very agreeable to take any action signifying my appreciation of Col. Tilson and the important services he has rendered to the nation. As floor leader of the house I came to rely on him very much in the conduct of legislation. His ability and sincerity have given him a very great influence in shaping legislation and in the conduct of national campaigns. I should be much pleased if you will assure him of my constant regard and every good wish for his future.

Very truly,
(signed) CALVIN COOLIDGE."

Senator Walcott presided over the senate one day this week the farm relief bill was up for debate. And he presided ably, and with the ease of an experienced presiding officer.

Mr. Walcott has been host to many Connecticut delegations this week, including men attending the national chamber of commerce conference, schools, including those of Rockville and other Connecticut cities and towns which were making educational visits to the capitol.

Senator Walcott has also been in attendance at the agricultural committee meetings which have had matters of national agricultural interests before them this week.

One of the most amusing things that occurred in connection with the daily tirades of Senator Heflin, was the day following the taking of the vote by which Mr. Heflin was overwhelmingly rebuked by the state for his insistence in bringing up religious controversy in that body.

Senator Bingham is so constant in his attendance at senate sessions that for the first time, he had consented to a "general pair," with Senator Glass of Virginia, who had previously had Senator McLean as his colleague in a general pair. Under circumstances where both senators would vote on the same side of the question, the senate rules permit the pair to be broken and the senator present can cast his vote. Senator Glass and Senator Bingham were both determined to vote against the Heflin resolution, so when his name was called Senator Bingham voted "No". Later he was chided by Glass that he failed to announce the pair. So Bingham rose and explained. Whereupon Heflin vehemently expressed incredulity, then launched into another tirade against senators voting against him, and also denounced newspapers and their press gallery correspondents, as "squirrel-heads". He was called to order by the chair a number of times.

Each of the eight congresswomen, have been presented with a statue of the Winged Victory of Samothrace. The gift is from the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs. The ladies have placed the statues in conspicuous places in their offices in the great white marble office building, just across the street from the capitol.

The federation uses the Winged Victory as the central figure on the emblem of that organization and felt the gift to the eight women members of congress is especially fitting as seven of them are members of clubs affiliated with the federation.

Even the aspiration of "Darius Green and his Flying Machine" never reached the point the post office department announces has been achieved by the government air mail service. Thirty two hours from New York to San Francisco will be the flying time of the service to be inaugurated May 1st. That means two nights and one day in transit. It will be called the "Night Transcontinental". The department compares flying as a means of transportation as against early methods, by giving statistics of the past 70 years. In 1850 it took 21 days by stage coach and two by rail to make the trip, or 23 in all; ten years later a pony express made the trip in 12 1-2 days, of which 10 were made by the messengers on horseback and 2 1-2 days by rail; in 1876 an all rail route was started and the trip made in 100 hours, which was regarded as a wonderful spurt of speed; now 1929 sees the air mail covering the distance in 32 hours, instead of 100 hours, and with a twice a day schedule.

All this record breaking speed service can be obtained by merely sticking on the letter one of those attractive air-mail five-cent stamps. Some country, this! Even if now and then a postage stamp doesn't stick as fast "as it orter".

The post office at North Stonington has been advanced from the 4th class to the presidential grade, the change to take effect July 1st. The salary will be $1100.

The bear is a shifty-eyed creature and will not look straight at a man, says Harold Tupper, a hunter of Hickley, Me.

HUNTING ROMANCE

"This," said the girl in the new black hat which looked precisely like a skull cap with ear flappers, "has been an utterly wasted summer for me. That is, almost!"

"I told you that before you went," consoled her friend who was wrapping a near-silver-fox about her neck. "The idea of wasting two months up at that no-account lake!"

"I've no complaint to make of Apricot lake as a lake," remonstrated the girl in the new hat. "It was just that my carefully thought-out ideas didn't work. I had decided that here in town there just isn't a minute in which to—er—that is, what chance has a girl to convince a man that if he loses her he might as well call it a day and quit everything? Why, the poor things haven't an instant to discover how appealing we are or how we would lighten up the little home corner, as it were!"

"I can't blame you for worrying," agreed her friend. "We've all said that Durant certainly was hanging on for a long time and we wondered why you put up with it—"

"Really!" snapped the girl with the new hat. "How about your being in the same boat with Charlie? Three years, isn't it, since you met him? Well, it occurred to me that if a man came up for the week end at a quiet place where there was nothing but nature and scenery and dew and tree-frogs, something might be done to alter circumstances."

"You're wasted!" breathed her friend admiringly. "You ought to be in the league of nations cabinet or something."

"From Saturday morning to Monday with no interruptions," pursued the first girl with a sigh, "seems a gift from heaven, and when Durant arrived I looked upon him with an eye you might have called proprietary.

"He seemed glad to see me, too, and spent an hour on our porch after breakfast explaining how much he had missed me. So I took him for a stroll down a secluded road through the woods—whispering trees, cooing birds and all that sort of thing on both sides of us. Nothing to distract.

"At the precise moment when I was mentally trying to decide between calla lilies and gladioli for the pewends, a dark shadow came over our shoulders—we were strolling hand in hand—and after one startled glance Durant yelled, I shrieked and we made one leap into the shrubbery on either side of the road. The monster about to attack us turned out to be a horseback rider who had approached silently down the soft dirt road.

"Durant and I stuck our heads out from the bushes and surveyed one another. It was prickly raspberries I was among and only too soon Durant learned that he had nested amid poison ivy. He was so busy after that we didn't resume the conversation.

"We should have been hopelessly hampered anyhow by the constant callers in regard to the beach picnic, the hotel charades and the moonlight launch ride everybody was to join. I never met such a complete lack of solitude in my life. We were about as much alone as though we had been at a national convention, and my desperate little scheme of taking him down to the lake to the train when he left—via canoe—was wrecked.

"In place of the splash of the waves against our frail craft, bearing just us two alone down the moon's path over the waters, was the zip of the Mixers' expensive speed boat in which it is considered an honor to ride. When you have an invitation like a royal command handed you, it takes something more than mere cold courage to decline it, and I haven't got it.

"I did try it once more later on—and meeting Durant at the station in the runabout for two. Sally White begged a lift with us back to the resort; then the Maymes twins, who are friendly souls, accompanied us on our walk ostensibly after mushrooms, all the family ate luncheon with us, we got roped into the crowd at the afternoon tennis tournament, somebody gave a beach picnic that night, and on Sunday somebody else got Durant into a golf game.

"It was worse than any two days with the crowd in Chicago would have been. I would die an old maid, and who could help it! And the day after I got back here, I ran into Durant downtown and at the corner of State and Madison, in the midst of several thousand surging people, Durant asked me to marry him, and I said yes."

"Well!" ejaculated the girl with the near-silver-fox.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fine Trip Through the Country

Mr. Editor: Who is there among us that doesn't look forward to the coming of spring, to the real days of spring. Who can describe the feeling of freedom, the delight and the pleasure we feel in the balmy air of a real day in spring? We see all around us the wondrous works of nature. The blossoming trees cast their fragrance on the air, and there is a charm in the balmy air of the green hills and woods of the many places we see as we are whirled along in a motor car. One of the real good routes is to go up Main street across the Preston bridge and so on out through Corning town and then out toward Preston City. All along this beautiful drive one can see many things that are interesting and worth-while. Just before you get to Long Society you can see an old school house, an old-fashioned one-story building; at least, it was there when last I went that way. Although the swing of the pendulum through the arch of years may have seen this pass on, as we have seen many other things that are now only recalled, still there is a something that draws our attention. There are many interesting places along the way. Notice the old town house opposite to this little old school. This has weathered the storms of many years. About 112 years ago this building was erected, and in the old cemetery there are inscriptions showing where some are sleeping since the year 1727, or 202 years. You may not be interested in this but at least it shows the antiquity of the place. All these haunt the recess of the memory. And you seem to gaze dimly through the mists of the years that are past, and you see those hardy people who trudged along with their staff to this, which was their place of worship, stern and unbending. I have often thought what would those early settlers say if they were to come back and see what is going on today.

We move along, past the old Bates house on the right, and this old house is about 150 years old. All this is from memory and I may be wrong. Note the small panes of glass in the windows, and if you have ever been into the white house in Washington, D. C., you will note the panes of glass are about the same size. You move on and as you come to the forks of the road you keep to the right and nearby, many years ago, there was an old house that was occupied by a family named Blakes. At this season of the year almost opposite you will see great clumps of marsh marigolds, or as we knew them, cowslips. This was a vast swamp at one time and here we would come in the season for cranberries, for there was at one time many to be secured here. We move on across Preston plains and here I noted many beautiful homes and one can get a beautiful view. Here and there I could see the farmers working in the fields, and those historic words of Thomas Jefferson are recalled: "Let the farmer forevermore be honored in his calling; for they who labor in the earth are the chosen people of God."

Soon we arrive at Preston City, quiet and peaceful. In this section there are many small lakes or ponds that can be seen as you move on, and I have an idea they are all teeming with fish as they were when the Indians roamed here in those early days and lived a life of freedom. Always when I have been in Preston City I have thought here at last is an ideal place, free from the noise and turmoil of the city for the country life is to be preferred. There we see the works of the Great Ruler of the universe. The country is all nature's work. Here you breathe the air free from the poisons, the dirt and grime of the city. It is nature's library, a vast book in which you read and contemplate the wisdom and the glorious works that speak in no uncertain words.

But we move along and we leave the fine state road and for a short time we may have to put up with a road that is not so bad, for it could be worse, and still it is not so comfortable as the fine smooth road we have left. Yet we are repaid for the many interesting things we see and we soon reach Voluntown, with many fine homes which tells us here is happiness and prosperity. But, somehow, I feel as I enter here, that I am a stranger in a strange land. Yet many years ago I had many dear friends here, but where can I look for them now? We move along on a fine road, back again to Jewett City and down the Main street and we stop at "Charlie's Diner" for a bite to eat. Then away again, out through Sylvandale, down the Quinebaug-Mohegan trail into Blissville, out into the road that leads to Greeneville, down North Main street into Main street, from where we started. Say, reader, that was a pretty nice trip, wasn't it, or didn't you follow me as we went along? In any event this is only one of the many fine drives that are to be found near to the Rose of New England.

I noted as I went along here and there churches that seemed to have had their day, and they looked to me desolate and going into decay. What is the answer? Are we getting away from religion? What is the remedy? Who can give a reason? This case rests in the hands of the people. Who can give a correct answer? I admit I cannot.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 6—The aftermath of American concessions at Geneva, regarding naval limitations deadlocks before the preparatory commission on disarmament, naturally produced suggestions that a new effort to round out the five-power Washington naval treaty now might be in order.

It is noteworthy, however, that these suggestions materialized wholly at Geneva, not in Washington. And informal expressions of view by Ambassador Gibson or others of the American delegation at Geneva, so far as such expressions were discernible in press reports from that city, did not seem to imply American willingness to take the initiative toward calling a new five-power conference.

As a matter of fact, the best available information in Washington as to what President Hoover has in mind indicates that he sees no prospect of such a conference before that required in 1932 under terms of the Washington treaty itself.

There will have been ample time before then for all aspects of the new American proposals to have been explored completely by every admiralty concerned. Whether Mr. Hoover would accede to a request from other signatory powers to the Washington treaty that the 1932 meeting be expedited is another matter. It is generally believed, nevertheless, that he does not intend to take the initiative.

Difficulties

And the suggestion of Ambassador Gibson for an "equivalent tonnage" yardstick obviously is willed with difficulties.

What the American group has to suggest has not been revealed, although there are many hints that their plan is based on a formula providing a point system of determining battle power of individual war vessels.

Say, for instance, that a new 10,000-ton, eight-inch gun cruiser be regarded as the maximum battle power unit for cruisers, it might be set a point value of 100.

Every other cruiser's value then would be computed in comparison to that 100-point standard.

Smaller size, smaller guns, greater age, lower speed, less armor, reduced cruising radius and other essential military differences would be assessed in terms of points off the 100-point scale.

A small, old cruiser then might be given a point rating of, say, as low as 10 compared to the 100 of the 10,000-tonner.

What History Shows

That looks mathematically reasonable; but here is the difficulty: The British cruiser fleet of Admiral Craddock, utterly destroyed during the World war by two superior German cruisers, would have had some point value under such a formula of determining relative strength.

In actual combat with the superior German ships, however, there was no comparison. The British ships were destroyed without scoring a hit, just as the German cruisers later were obliterated by British battle cruisers without landing a shell.

What was the point scale value of the inferior cruisers in these two cases of actual combat? It seems to have been zero, and that will not be forgotten when the American "equivalent tonnage" suggestions come to be tested by other naval experts.

Blind Abscesses Cause Body Ailments—Discernible Only by X-Ray

By Manuel Leo Adler, D. D. S., New York City.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The dentist can see only the parts of the teeth that are above the gum. But the X-ray finds out what the eye cannot see; it gives a clear picture of the underlying structures.

It is in the finding of infected teeth, the so-called "blind" abscesses, that makes the X-ray the invaluable right hand of dentistry. These abscesses exist for a long time, do not pain, and, because they do not burst through the gums, are called "blind" abscesses. In the meantime the poisons from the abscesses drain throughout the system, causing body ailments.

Little did William Conrad Roentgen, a German scientist, when he discovered the X-ray in 1895, realize what an important place the X-ray would occupy in medicine, dentistry and science. Dentistry has reached the scientific stage it occupies today chiefly due to the X-ray, which has thrown much light on the practices of years ago.

Those who are suffering from rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago and other body ailments should have their teeth X-rayed in spite of the fact that their gums and teeth appear healthy. Infection of the teeth and jawbone may still exist. Such X-ray examination often discloses some condition of the mouth that could not otherwise have been discovered and that is responsible for the bodily ailment. Any disease that is caused by pus may develop from the teeth. The X-ray is the connecting link between medicine and dentistry.

In the extraction of teeth, the X-ray aids by giving a picture of the location, shape and direction of the roots. Points of decay on the "in between" surfaces of the teeth that cannot easily be found by the dentist with his explorer instrument may be revealed by the X-ray.

Wherever there is extensive dental repair of long standing in the mouth—capped teeth, those with nerves killed and heavily filled teeth—an X-ray examination of the entire mouth should be made.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Mrs. Wood Duck is a Busy Mother

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

What to do and where to go
Somehow mothers always know.
—Old Mother Nature.

It certainly was a queer sight that Peter Rabbit saw. When he got home to the dear Old Briar-patch he told Mrs. Peter that it was the queerest sight he had ever seen or ever expected to see. Probably he will say the same thing the next queer sight he sees. But it was queer, there's no denying that.

Peter was in his favorite place under a certain little hemlock tree, where he was quite hidden himself, but could watch the home of the Wood Ducks. This was, as you know, a hole high up in the dead tree. Peter at the time was half asleep. It was early in the morning and Peter had been out and about most of the night. He awoke fully, however, when he saw Mrs. Wood Duck poke her head out of that hole and look sharply this way and that. Then her head was withdrawn. Peter had just started to yawn when that head reappeared, and this time there was something in the bill.

Away she whirred on stout wings

"Gracious!" exclaimed Peter under his breath, and his eyes were very wide open indeed. What do you think was in that bill? A Duckling! Yes, sir, Mrs. Wood Duck was holding one of her babies in her bill. In a twinkling she was out of that hole and away she shot straight off toward the pond of Paddy the Beaver. "Gracious!" exclaimed Peter again. "Did I see that or did I dream it? I wonder if she'll take any more that way."

Peter didn't wonder very long. In a surprisingly short time Mrs. Wood Duck was back and had disappeared in that hole way up in the dead tree. She was working fast, was Mrs. Wood Duck, for it seemed to Peter that hardly had her tail disappeared in that hole when her head appeared coming out and in her bill was another Duckling. Away she whirred on stout wings and again disappeared in the direction of Paddy the Beaver.

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed Peter. "I wish there were two of me. I mean, I wish I could be in two places at the same time. I wish I could be here and there. But if I'm here I can't be there and if I'm there I can't be here. If I could run as fast as Mrs. Wood Duck can fly I might be able to do it. I want to see her take all of those babies out of that hole, but I want to see her hide them all at the pond of Paddy the Beaver, and I can't do it. Oh, dear, I wish I were two instead of one!"

Peter was quite undecided whether to remain where he was or to be satisfied with what he had seen there and go over to the pond and see where Mrs. Wood Duck was leaving her babies. He was still thinking about it, still undecided, when again Mrs. Wood Duck took a baby in her bill and flew away with it.

"If I go over there I may not be able to find them," thought Peter, "and I'll miss out both ways. I guess I'll stay right here and see her carry the last one. Then I'll go over there to Paddy's pond. I'll probably have more chance of finding them."

This was very sensible of Peter. He tried to keep count as Mrs. Wood Duck came and went, but it wasn't long before he was all mixed up. "I won't know when she gets the last one," said he forlornly. "Hello! She isn't taking this one in her bill. It must be she isn't taking any this time. I wonder if it can be that she has them all over to the water and has just come back to make sure."

Mrs. Wood Duck left the tree with her usual swift flight. And then Peter saw something that made him rejoice that he had stayed right where he was. It was a Duckling peeping out of the hole Mrs. Wood Duck had just left. A few moments later Mrs. Wood Duck was back. This time she didn't enter the hole, but clung to the edge of it, and that Duckling scrambled right up on her back. And away she went! And Peter knew then that she must have carried one in the same way on her previous trip, for he had seen none in her bill.

MASONS TO CONDUCT FURTHER FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN

Members of the Masonic fraternity in this city have just been notified by a letter from President Howard L. Stanton of the Masonic Temple corporation of the need of $50,000 more to care for the total expenditures in erecting the magnificent new temple on Washington street, and the announcement is made that a campaign is to be started May 13 to secure this amount.

The campaign committee is to consist of Howard L. Stanton, honorary chairman, Arthur M. Brown, chairman, Herbert M. Lerou, E. Allen Bidwell, Guy B. Dolbeare, John A. Ferguson, George A. Keppler, Roy D Judd, with James L. Case as campaign director.

President Stanton's letter which is addressed to members and friends in the Masonic fraternity is as follows:

Our new temple is rapidly nearing completion, and at an early date will be ready for occupancy by our several Masonic bodies.

Most of you have seen the building from the outside, and many have visited the property and seen for yourselves the excellent arrangement of the auditorium, lodge rooms and social rooms.

All who have done so, have expressed their hearty approval of the plans, and when completed, we shall have one of the most conveniently arranged temples to be found in the country.

Our contractors have done their work well, and the cost of the building will be far below the price paid by many other Masonic bodies in the erection of their permanent homes.

In our campaign in July 1927, we raised funds sufficient to begin our building operations, and now that the work is practically completed, we find that we shall need approximately $50,000 additional to care for the total expenditures.

I am taking this opportunity of bringing this matter to your attention believing that when, in the near future, an opportunity is given to you to render further financial assistance, you will cheerfully respond to the call, and, thereby help to meet all of our financial obligations.

In due course detailed plans of the campaign will be submitted to you.

May I urge those who have not inspected the temple to do so, in order that you may see for yourself just what has been done, as well as what is contemplated.

Mrs. Mabel Hill and son, Frank, of Boston, were callers Sunday at the home of William Partridge of Geer avenue.

FUNERAL
Miss Annie M. Foley

At 8:30 o'clock Monday morning the funeral of Miss Annie M. Foley was held at her late home, No. 89 Oneco street, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. At 9 o'clock there was a solemn high mass at St. Patrick's church, Rev. Myles P. Galvin was celebrant of the mass, Rev. John J. Reilly was deacon and Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May was subdeacon. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ and at the offertory Roderick F. Sullivan sang De Profundis and as the waiting hymn, Jesus, Lover of My Soul. At the recessional Mr. LaFontaine played Abide With Me, with the chimes accompaniment. Mrs. Bernard F. Coyle was soloist of the mass.

The bearers were Frank Donahue, John Donahue, Edward Campbell, nephews, of Bridgeport, John J. Sweeney, Walter Morgan and Bertrand Smith of this city. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Rt. Rev. Msgr. May conducting the committal service. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends, including people from Unionville, Bridgeport and Fitchville. Hourigan Bros. had charge of the funeral arrangements.

PROPOSES THAT COUNTY COM. BUY FAIRGROUNDS

Patrick T. Connell, who is one of the representatives from Norwich in the legislature, was engaged Monday while at the legislative session at Hartford, in sounding out a number of the New London county representatives upon the suggestion that the county commissioners buy the county fair grounds at East Great Plain for a site for the new county home that is to be erected to replace the present county home and school building on Smith avenue.

Mr. Connell found considerable favorable sentiment towards the idea that he advanced and intends to pursue the subject with other legislators and with the county commissioners whom he was not able to see Monday.

The Norwich man is earnestly desirous that the new county home building may be located on a site in Norwich and he is likewise much interested in keeping the fair grounds for future county fairs. He made the suggestion that purchase of the fair grounds by the county commissioners might solve both these problems which are before Norwich now. The 29 acre plot of land at the fairgrounds would provide ample room for the requirements of the county home and may still leave enough space for holding county fairs, in his opinion. Ownership by the county of this plot of land would insure its retention for holding the annual county fair and at the same time provide adequate room for the county home, with the requisite modern conveniences such as electric light, water, sewer facilities and trolley transportation within easy reach.

OBITUARY.
John Henry Liepold.

After a long period of ill health, John Henry Liepold, 71, former state president of the Sons of Hermann, died shortly after 4 o'clock Monday morning at his home, No. 78 Chestnut street. He had been in ill health for several years and was seriously ill since last February.

Mr. Liepold was born in Bavaria, Germany, July 21, 1858 and in his native country learned the trade of a cabinet maker. He came to the United States in 1883, locating in Baltic. He was married there, April 18, 1884. For the last 42 years he has made his home in this city and for years he was employed as a cabinet maker by the Gilbert Furniture Co., afterwards entering business for himself.

Mr. Liepold was a charter member of Germania lodge, No. 12, Sons of Hermann, and for the last 36 years served as its treasurer. For two years he was president of the state organizations of the Sons of Hermann and two years ago was instrumental in bringing the state convention to this city.

Mr. Liepold was also a member of the Maennerchor club of Taftville, the Schuetzen-Verein in Lisbon and attended the First Evangelical Lutheran church on Franklin street.

One of the most prominent German residents of the community, Mr. Liepold was widely known and universally liked by his numerous friends who learned of his death with deep regret. Surviving are his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Annie Mowry, at home, and Mrs. Earl Gasse of Brooklyn, N. Y.; two sons, George C. Liepold and Christian H. Liepold, both of this city, a sister, Mrs. John Seidel of Taftville, and another sister in Germany. A daughter, Mrs. Irving Drake, died about 12 years ago.

Mrs. John T. Rice

After an illness of several weeks Mrs Ann E. Rice, wife of John T. Rice of 201 Franklin street, this city, died last Saturday morning in New London.

Mrs. Rice is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. August Ernest and Miss Gladys H. Rice, all of this city, one son, Robert L. Rice of Dallas, Texas and one grandchild. She was a member of the Central Baptist church.

Albie L. Hale

Albie L. Hale, prominent resident of Norwich Town for a half century, or more, died Monday morning about four o'clock, at his home on Lathrop avenue, after critical illness of over a week. Previously Mr. Hale had been in failing health for some time.

He was born in Lebanon, the son of Calvin and Rebecca Loomis Hale. In Scotland, Conn., April 4th, 1870, Mr. Hale was united in marriage with Addie Goodenough, daughter of Danford and Anna Goodenough, the ceremony being performed by Rev. L. B. Rookwood. Mr. and Mrs. Hale celebrated their golden wedding with a family reunion Easter Sunday, April 4th, 1920.

In politics Mr. Hale was a staunch republican. Up to about eight years ago, he had served on the town committee thirty-six years; and had been a registrar of voters for twenty-six years. He was assistant postmaster at Norwich Town for sixteen years, and served as assessor for the town for two or more terms. He was a member of the First Congregational church, having united five years ago, with the largest class in the history of this church.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, Frank Gardner Hale, master craftsman, of Boston, who has been at his father's bedside since Friday last and Arthur D. Hale, of Ellington, who was with his parents Sunday and again on Monday. The eldest son, Bert Hale, died a number of years ago. There survives also two granddaughters, Miss Dorothy Hale of Ellington and Mrs. Timothy Parker Lathrop (Cecile Walton Hale) of New Haven and two great granddaughters, Alice and Borodelle Lathrop of New Haven.

Mr. Hale was of pleasing personality, a man who had made many friends in political life as well as in the town where he had resided for so many years. All feel a sense of sorrow for his passing and sympathy for the bereaved family.

PROPOSE ORDINANCE TO STOP SALE OF GAS AND ELECTRIC APPLIANCES

At one of the longest council meetings on record, the court of common council, at its regular May meeting Monday night, in the council chamber, after listening to the report of its special committee, named to investigate the sales of appliances by the gas and electric department, named the evening of June 17th as the date for a hearing in the town hall on a proposed city ordinance having for its object the stopping of appliance sales by the G. and E. department. The proposed ordnance directs the board of G. and E. commissioners to discontinue the sale of all gas and electric appliances, directs them not to purchase any such appliances for resale and authorizes them to sell to the best advantage of the city all appliances now owned by the department on which it is legally obligated to accept and pay for.

The council also voted not to proceed with the construction of the Summer street sewer for which an appropriation of $3,000 was authorized at the city meeting last June. Opposition by practically all residents of the street, who have private drains, was responsible for the council's action on the sewer matter.

A number of hearings were held on petitions asking changes in the names of about a score of streets. Several petitions were opposed either by opposition voiced in the council chamber or by counter petitions. Changes in the names of a number of streets were voted later in the evening.

The council convened shortly after 8 o'clock, recessed about 8:45 o'clock, reconvened at 11:55 o'clock, and finally adjourned at 1 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning.

The minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading. Mayor Robbins declared the traffic ordinance hearing open. No one was present who wished to be heard and the hearing was closed. This ordinance gives the police commissioners power to regulate parking in six hour parking territory.

License Fee For Vendors.

The next hearing was on the ordinance increasing the license fees for out of town vendors. William H. Shields, Jr., former corporation counsel, spoke in opposition, declaring that the proposed ordinance and present ordinance are both unconstitutional. He said that during Mayor Waters' administration, several local people requested that a larger fee be required of out of town vendors. He looked into the matter and advised Mayor Waters that it would be unconstitutional. I think that the council ought to obey the constitution, he said. Mr. Shields suggested that the present ordinance be repealed and a new one, that would be constitutional, be drawn up. He said it might be possible to prohibit wholesale peddling from trucks.

Maor Robbins stated that the present ordinance was passed in 1913 and called attention to the fact that motor trucks have greatly increased in size, from one or two ton trucks, to eight and even 10 tons, and great quantities of merchandise can be brought into the city in trucks by vendors.

Corporation Counsel E. W. Perkins stated that some of the local produce dealers had gone to the mayor and him and requested the change in fees. He drew up the proposed ordinance, merely changing the license fees. He had since looked into the matter and stated that he agreed with Mr. Shields, that the ordinance was unconstitutional, and that, of course, the proposed ordinance would be unconstitutional. He asked the council to withhold action on the proposed amendment. The hearing was then closed by the mayor.

Changes In Street Names.

The hearings on the proposed changes on the names of nearly a score of streets. The hearings resulted as follows:

To change Hamlin street to Hawthorne street. No opposition.

Pleasant street to Hillcrest street. No opposition.

White to Warsaw street. Mayor Robbins announced that there was a petition before the council opposing the change. The Norwich Plumbing Supply Co. withdrew its name from the original petition and asked that it be placed on the petition in opposition.

Williams avenue to Chelsea Parade, south. No opposition.

Newcomb street to Thames Terrace. Frank A. Bill opposed the change, and spoke of the history connected with that locality and stated that Newcomb street was named after Newcomb Kinney. The Kinney family, he said, have taken great pride in the name of Newcomb Kinney. I hope the council will make no change, he concluded. You understand, the existing confusion between Newcomb and Newton street? inquired the mayor.

I don't think there is any confusion between Newcomb and Newton street, was Mr. Bill's answer.

Do you own any property on Newcomb street? asked the mayor. I do not, answered Mr. Bill.

Meyers avenue to Scott avenue. No opposition. Mayor Robbins said he understood the petitioners want the change to read Scott street instead of avenue.

Joseph street to Flemming street. No opposition.

Palmer avenue to Woodside avenue. No opposition.

Howard avenue to Hoover avenue. No opposition.

Carter avenue to Preston avenue. The mayor announced that there was an extensive petition in opposition.

Lincoln court to McKinley court. No opposition.

Elm street to Arcadia street. No opposition.

Alice to Adair street. No opposition.

Depham to Casper street. Mayor Robbins stated that he also had a request to change the name to Friendship street. No opposition to either change.

Rose place to City Landing. No opposition.

Stockwell Place to Spring Place. No opposition.

Bushnell road to Quinebaug road. No opposition.

Summer Street Sewer.

The street hearings were then closed and the Summer street sewer hearing opened. The city meeting last year appropriated $3,000 for the sewer. Since then practically all the residents on the street have raised objections. Mr. Wibberly, a resident of the street, asked how the sewer matter originally came up.

John T. Donovan, a former street commissioner, said it came to the attention of the council by petition with 20 or 21 signers, not all residents of the street.

Mr. Wibberly said there is one house that needs a sewer. All of the others have private sewers.

D. J. Hinchey spoke in opposition, stating that the residents there are all ready taken care of by private sewers. Mr. Wuttkey, a property holder, voiced opposition.

Alderman Harold C. Dahl said that Mr. Trachtenberg could connect into one of the private drains. He said he understood they wouldn't let him do it. It would cost more than $3000 to build the sewer, he said.

Mr. Lincoln another resident, said the sewer was unnecessary and uncalled for. It would benefit but one house.

Mr. Donovan said he understood there was a controversy over the securing of a right of way which Mr. Thachtenberg could use to connect with one of the private drains.

Mr. Wibberly said there should be little trouble to convince Mr Trotsky to allow Mr Trachtenberg the privilege of hooking up with the old sewer which they are all using.

Mr. Hartle another resident of the street, was the final speaker, voicing objection to the sewer. The hearing was closed and at 8.45 o'clock the council recessed.

The council reconvened at 11:55 o'clock. Alderman Gregson introduced the following resolution: That the following street names be changed;

Hamlin street to Hawthorne street; Pleasant street to Hillcrest street; Williams avenue to Chesea Parade South; Myers avenue to Scott street; Joseph street to Flemming street; Palmer avenue to Woodside avenue; Howard avenue to Hoover avenue; Lincoln court to McKinley court; Elm street to Arcadia street; Alice street to Adair street; Denham street to Friendship street; Rose place to City Landing; Stockwell place to Spring place; Bushnell road to Quinebaug road.

The council then adopted the traffic ordinance on which there was a hearing earlier in the evening and rejected the proposed ordinance increasing the license fees for out-of-town vendors.

Alderman Dahl, with reference to the Summer street sewer project, stated that the public works committee do not feel it wise to proceed with the construction of the sewer. The alderman moved that the sewer be not built. Motion was adopted.

Petitions Received

Petitions were received and acted on as follows:

From James Sullivan, 40 Tenth street, to have trees trimmed. Referred to public works committee with power.

From Benjamin Leverwitz, to recondition a section of Hinckley street. Referred to public works committee.

From William LaRochelle, Jr., et al., asking the widening of Elizabeth street from the Elizabeth street school to Whipple street. Referred to public works committee.

From the Plumbers and Steamfitters local, 267, informing the council that the local is opposed to the sale of gas and hot water heating appliances. Referred to the council's special committee on the G. and E. question.

From Jacob Prykop, et al., asking the improvement of Hickory street. Referred to the public works committee.

From John A. Rockwell, et al., asking the improvement of Rockwell street from the Sheltering Arms to Mohegan Park entrance. Referred to the public works committee.

From John L. Counihan, et al., asking the removal of a rock ledge opposite 30 Spruce street. Referred to the public works committee.

From Mrs. Max Goldberg, asking the removal of a tree on Mechanic street. Referred to the public works committee with power.

From the Woman's City club, asking that the annual appropriation for the care of parks and trees be increased $1,500 to $5,500. Referred to the finance committee.

To Protect School Children

The welfare committee of the Norwich lodge of Elks petitioned for the stationing of police officers in front of schools to protect the children entering and leaving the schools. The committee also petitioned for a motorcycle officer. Referred to the finance committee.

Alderman Gregson said that brings to mind the need of extra men on the police force and also the need of a motorcycle officer.

A petition from Henry Gebrath for the improvement of Talman street from Laurel Hill bridge to Preston bridge was referred to the public works committee.

From Margaret Ahearn, et al asking the removal of two trees in front of the Ahearn property on John street was referred to the public works committee with power.

From Mary Glinsky asking the removal of a tree in front of No. 44 Second street. Referred to the public works committee with power.

From P. J. Desmond, et al., asking for a bug light on Beech street. Referred to the police committee.

From John Way, et al., asking for a fire hydrant on Meyers avenue. Referred to the council's member on the water board.

The council adopted a resolution appropriating a sum not to exceed $60,000 to meet the expenses of the city until after the annual city meeting in June. This appropriation was authorized at the recent city meeting.

Paying Claims Against City.

By adopting resolutions the council voted to pay the following claims against the city:

W. W. Backus hospital, $300 for services in diphtheria cases in 1922.

Louise W. Haskell, $200 for personal injuries received in a fall on an icy street last January.

John F. O'Connell, $300 for a broken leg received in a fall on an icy street February.

Charles E. Anderson, $400 for a fractured leg received in a fall on an icy street in January.

The council adopted a resolution disallowing the claim of Benjamin Yoselevsky for property damage, the claim of Aleck Silverman for property damage and the claim of John Jordan for rebate of taxes.

Archibald Torrance Appointed.

Mayor Robbins announced his appointment of Archibald Torrance as a member of the board of gas and electrical commissioners to succeed Jeremiah A. Desmond, whose term expires May 15th and who did not care for re-appointment. In making the announcement, Mayor Robbins said that Mr. Torrance bears the confidence of the public and is a man of very sound business judgment. The appointment was approved by the council.

Invitations from Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., to attend the Memorial day parade and from the Dawell Athletic club to witness the 4th annual road race to be held by the club on Memorial day afternoon were accepted.

An appropriation of $300 to help defray the expenses of the Memorial day observance of Sedgwick post and an appropriation of $100 to help defray the expenses of the United Spanish War Veterans in decorating the graves of their comrades, were voted. Councilman Hagberg moved the appropriation of the $300 for Sedgwick post and Councilman Looby moved the appropriation of the $100 for the Spanish War Veterans.

Alderman Paul H. Zahn reported that the building code committee has formed the code and moved that $1,500 be included in the estimates to defray the cost of enacting the code. Motion was adopted.

Alderman Gregson reported that the police committee had authorized a bug light for Beech street, the relocation of a bug light on Ripley Hill, the relocation of an arc light at the corner of Main and Talman street extension and a new arc light at the corner of Main and Talman street. He also reported that the committee has authorized the placing of a white way light in the center of the safety zone on Franklin square and a similar light at Washington square. The report was accepted.

Mayor Robbins then called on the council's special committee appointed to investigate the sales of appliances by the Norwich gas and electric department.

Your committee reports as follows:

We have investigated the sales of appliances by the gas and electric department and submit herewith a report of the public accountant.

We have met with the commissioners three times and have conferred with them upon the sales of appliances, the possibility of practicing economies, to further reduce the base rates and the early elimination of motor charges on appliances and submit a report made to us by the commissioners on these subjects. Respectfully submitted, Richard P Gregson, Charles A. Hagberg, Emil Brosofske, special committee.

The above mentioned report made to the special committee, follows:

Alderman Richard Gregson, Chairman, Committee from the Court of Common Council, Norwich, Connecticut.

Dear Sir:

In compliance with your request, we submit the following report on the conference held with your committee at the meeting May 3rd.

First, Elimination of the small motor charge. This charge should be maintained for the following reasons:

(a) The elimination of this charge will automatically place a burden on a group of customers who can least afford it, i. e., those who can not afford motor driven appliances.

(b) Its elimination makes this class of business unattractive and the development of it unwarranted. A reasonable profit is all that is expected from any class of customers. The rate established for this class of business makes this profit possible from this particular class of customers.

(c) The continuation of this charge we believe will automatically act to safeguard the customers from overloaded motors. This statement is based upon our observation of equipment we have tested for consumers and found carrying loads that would in time materially lessen the life of the motor and eventually burn it out. Proper adjustment of its load will prevent this loss to the consumer.

(d) Refrigerator customers have no legitimate complaint against the use of the fixed charge as long as the new rate offers them a reduction below which was formerly paid.

The suggestion made that a change be made in the residential rate schedule meets with our approval, i. e., that the Kva step be increased from 500 volt amperes to 600, thereby increasing the number of motors that will take the minimum charge. This change will in our opinion place over 90 per cent of the motors of one-fourth horsepower and under in the same class. Those of one-fourth horsepower that are taking in excess of 600 volt ampere should be corrected, and this can be done. We trust that this modification will meet with your approval.

Second. Commenting on the report as submitted by your auditor, the differences which appear between our statements and those submitted are occasioned by a difference in opinion as to classification or allocation of charges, our interpretation being that of the usual public utility company and is that of the ordinary business enterprise. Merchandising by utility companies is conducted but for one purpose—to increase the use of gas and electricity. We are glad to notice that the item of advertising is responsible for the major portion of this difference as shown. The benefits of this expenditure have surely accrued to those who deal in appliances as well as to this department. As a matter of information, we have investigated the practice of other utilities in this state as to expenditures for new business and find it wide spread, the gas companies in particular varying from the maximum of $60,000 to the minimum of $3,000. Norwich is the third lowest having spent $4,400. In our opinion this expenditure should be increased, and that in so doing the consumers would all benefit thereby.

We call your attention to the co-operative sales plan inaugurated with the plumbers about two years ago. This plan is outlined in our report to you on the date of April 11. A copy of a letter from the plumbers' trade journal comments favorably on the co-operation given the plumbers by this department. We believe that a co-operative plan of advertising between the dealers and this department could be worked out which would be of material benefit to both parties. Further we have in mind that a commission be paid for appliances sold by dealers, this commission to be based upon the load building qualities of each particular appliance. These are matters which we should be glad to discuss with your committee, and in any detail you think it would be advisable to go into.

In the matter of sales credits, we have used the plan most commonly used in this business, knowing that in so doing we were extending to users of gas and electricity the same opportunity as would be given them if they lived in any other community, i. e., to enjoy the use of modern appliances while they were paying for them. We know that this service has been appreciated by purchasers of merchandise. However, if your committee feels that the interest of the users of gas and electricity can be best served by modifying or changing this plan, we should be glad to consider it.

As stated to you, we feel that the next reduction in the department's gross income should be made by the application of a prompt payment discount. This discount will apply to all classes of electrical consumers, this change to be put into effect, at the earliest possible date at which the department's revenue would warrant.

We fully recognize that your request for the change in the residential rate schedule is made in good faith, while we as commissioners wish it were possible to meet this request without complication arising. Our duty is to the consumers as a whole and not to the limited group which would derive the benefit by complying.

We call your attention to the revision in the residential schedule which is now effective on this month's billing. This change alone will save this class of consumer $15,000 during this year. Bear in mind that this is in addition to the reduction made in October of $20,000 annually.

We submit the following proposals:

First. A change in the volt ampere charge as previously noted for residential power consumers.

Second. A plan of co-operative advertising which will benefit all appliance dealers be adopted.

Third. The payment of a load building commission to all recognized dealers in major electric appliances.

Fourth. The adoption of a prompt payment discount on bills of electrical consumers at the earliest date which is warranted by the department's income.

Fifth. Accounting of retail merchandise sales will be reported in the future as gross sales and total expense, and not as now shown net (according to public utility commission requests). This account will then be cleared through the new business account to profit and loss according to public utility practice.

Sixth. The method of cash disbursements and recovery as now handled by the department's cashier under the term petty cash will be handled as follows: The usual course of approval will follow i. e., check by accounts payable clerk, approved by manager, approved by a designated member of the commission, and an order on city treasurer signed by him for payment. The city treasurer will then make payment, entering the same in his records as a disbursement to the proper accounts for which the expenditures were made. A final check is then made by the department's auditor. This procedure will be adopted at once, and we trust will eliminate the criticism that has prevailed.

We take this opportunity of expressing to your committee our appreciation of the helpful suggestions made during our conferences with you.

Respectfully submitted,
Board of Gas and Electrical Commissioners.
By Secretary.

Councilman Looby then submitted the proposed ordinance calling on the board of gas and electrical commissioners to discontinue the sale of appliances.

The proposed ordinance was accepted, by the council and June 17th set as the date for a hearing.

Alderman Gregson stated that the committee had investigated various rumors regarding certain sales of appliances by the G. and E. department and had found them unfounded.

Mayor Speaks on Report

Mayor Robbins, remarking on the committee's report, said:

Your report satisfies me and I believe it convinces this council and will show all other citizens, that the condition existing in the appliance branch of the gas and electric department is subject to just criticism.

You will remember in their last communication to me the commissioners claimed that this branch of the business was kept track of separately and that anyone familiar with books could readily ascertain its standing. The assertion was also made that the sales of appliances had never been conducted at a substantial loss although some years had shown a slight loss and others a small profit.

The report made to you by Mr. Cohen and incorporated in your report establishes facts which flatly contradict all these assertions.

A city meeting having voted to discontinue the sale of appliances and the gas and electrical commissioners having failed to offer any solution of the situation it is obvious that we must take action on this subject.

Department bills were approved as follows: Recreation dept., $53.60; police dept., $6,713.41; fire dept., $8,745.34; park dept., $224.35; gas and electric dept., $46,702.37; public works, $11,422.70; finance, $89,816.21; water dept., $6,541.08; cemetery dept., $482.41; Deep River reservoir, $1,192.

The council adjourned at 1 o'clock.

Picture of Ex-President Taft

Saul Goldberg of the Blue Ribbon Tire Shop on Thames street has in his possession a large picture of former President Howard Taft, riding in a four-horse carriage then owned by the late Winslow T. Williams. The picture was taken at Union square on the occasion of President Taft's visit to Norwich during the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of Norwich, in 1909, just 20 years ago.

Mr. Goldberg has also received a postcard view of Wien Straatsoper, Austria, from Dr. Boris J. Sohn, who is on a visit to that country.

Fined in Preston Court

John Muckenstrum of Norwich Town and Frank Durst of the state hospital were each fined $10 and costs on two counts when presented Monday night in a justice's court in Preston with Justice of the Peace Walter S. Tarbox presiding.

Always Safe

When your Children Cry for It

Here's relief and comfort for crying, fretful, feverish babies or children that you don't need to urge or command them to take. They love the delicious taste of Fletcher's Castoria. Your doctor will tell you it's absolutely safe, so you can give it as freely and as often as needed to keep your children happy and well. A few drops is all it takes to quiet fretful, feverish, colicky babies; relieve their biliousness, gas on stomach, constipation, etc.; soothe them to sleep in a jiffy. BULKELEY DEFEATS N. F. A. IN ANNUAL TRACK MEET STAGED AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 6—Bulkeley high downed its ancient rival, Norwich Free Academy, in their annual track meet at Morgan park this afternoon, 63 2-3 to 49 1-3. The meet was run under ideal conditions and remarkably fast times were recorded. Each had six first places.

The best performances of the day were turned in by Capt. Eddie Lyons of Norwich in the 220 yard dash with 24 3-5 seconds, by Clint Robinson of Norwich and Dunn of Bulkeley in the broad jump with 19 feet, 7 inches, by Wetmore of Bulkeley in the quarter mile with the exceedingly fast time of 54 2-5 seconds and by Prokop of Norwich in the discus throw with 97 feet, 2 3-4 inches.

Bulkeley defeated the Norwich half-mile relay team by about three yards, but the visitors were minus one of their stars, Clint Robinson. Saturday at Brown, N. F. A. beat Bulkeley in this event, when Robinson was in action. A. Taylor, Bulkeley freshman, sprung a surprise by winning the high jump with five feet, five inches. Lyons of Norwich won the century dash.

Summary:

100 yd. dash—Lyons (N), Robinson (N), Morrissey (B); 11 sec.

Mile run—Gaznon (B), Brock (N), Jones (B); 5 min. 12 1-5 sec.

Shot put—Barber (N), Chapman (B), Donahue (B); 36 feet, 1 inch.

880 yd. run—Wetmore (B), Taylor (N), D. Callaghan (B); 2 min. 19 1-5 sec.

High jump—A. Taylor (B) tie for second betwgen Robinson (N), Dunn (B), Wetmore (B); 5 ft. 5 in.

220 yd. dash—Lyons (N), Robinson (N), Priolo (B); 24 3-5 sec.

Javelin throw—Chapman (B), Donahue (B), Prokop (N); 121 ft. 8 in.

220 yd. hurdles—Berkman (N), Taylor (N), Nibbs (B); 29 7-10 sec.

440 yd. run—Wetmore (B), Lyons (N), Davidson (B); 54 3-5 sec.

Broad jump—Tie for first between Robinson (N) and Dunn (B), Butson (B); 19 ft. 7 in.

Pole vault—Hedden (B), Montrello (B), Edgar (B); 9 ft. 6 in.

Discus throw—Prokop (N), Lubchansky (B), Chapman (B); 97 ft. 2 3-4 in.

One half mile relay—(B), Priolo, Morrissey, Chapman, Wetmore; (N), Harvey, Agnew, Berkman, Lyons; time one min. 41 1-5 sec.

TWO HOMERS BY HEILMANN FEATURES TIGERS' VICTORY

DETROIT, May 6—(AP)—The Gaston brother act of the Boston Red Sox was a complete flop here today and the Detroit Tigers won their third straight victory from Bill Carrigan's men, 8 to 4. A pair of home runs by Harry Heilmann, big Detroit right fielder, played a considerable part in the downfall of Milton Gaston, pitching half of the Hub city's family battery.

MEUSEL'S HOMER WITH BASES LOADED TRIMS SOX

CHICAGO, May 6—(AP)—The Yankees pounded out their third straight victory over the White Sox today, 7 to 6, after a torrid ten-inning battle. Bob Meusel's homer in the tenth with the bases full was the deciding factor of the duel between Fred Heimach and Bob Welland.

Tony Lazerri also got a homer for the Yanks, his second of the season. Score:

DEEP RIVER PLAY AT NEW LONDON TONIGHT

Deep River high, without Walter Linder in the pitching role, will be given a test at New London this evening, when they oppose Chapman Tech at Mercer field. This is a twilight game, starting at 6 o'clock. Linder, who went twelve innings in losing to the Academy Saturday will probably be in center field and either Tourville or Hagen look like the starting flinger. Capt. Geer will probably pitch for Tech.

FINAL LEG OF 20-STRING MATCH AT DANIELSON TUES.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 6—Trailing behind by a margin of 60 pins the two-man team, Frankie Barber of Danielson and Jack White of New Haven, will take on the Boston duo, Archie Capesto and Joe Bonighi, in the second leg of their 20-string match, here tomorrow evening. The match will be rolled at the Casino and is the final leg, the Danielson boys having come out on the short end in the first go at Boston last week by a 2273 to 2213 score. Rolling on their own alleys, a fact that is, as a general rule, a decided factor, the local boys are expected to overcome the slight advantage of the Boston bowlers and come out winners.

PLAYING OF WANER BROS. HELPS PIRATES SCORE WIN

BOSTON, May 6—(AP)—Largely through the efforts of Paul and Lloyd Waner, who proved equally effective in offensive and defensive play, the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Braves, 4 to 3, in the last game of the series here today. The victory gave the Pirates the series, two games to one.

TWO LEAGUE GAMES FOR ACADEMY TEAM THIS WEEK

The Academy was back hard at work Monday afternoon making ready for two league games this week, Wednesday the Wildcats go to Westerly for the first of their two-game series with Joe Sherman's boys and then Saturday at the campus the home league season of the champs opens with Windham high.

Pitching choices are undecided as yet but it is probable that Butsy Weisgraber, who pitched in and won three games in eight days up to last Saturday, in two of these games working in the relief role, will be given a rest and saved for the league inaugural on the home lot Saturday. Red Fagan and Louie Green stand out as leading candidates for the Wednesday game. Capt. Jack Marks is expected back this week after a three weeks layoff due to an injured ankle and his presence should add considerable strength to the now very strong offensive power of the twice state champs and four time league titleholders.

JUNIOR TWILIGHT LEAGUE MEETING THURSDAY NIGHT

The first move towards the reorganization of the Junior Twilight league will be taken at a meeting of managers and representatives of teams interested in the circuit to be held at the Duwell club Thursday night. At that time it is expected that a decision will be reached as to the number of teams to be allowed in the circuit and arrangements made for the opening of the league season on or about May 27.

It is expected that all of the teams connected with the league a year ago and several other interested organizations will be represented at the Thursday meeting. The organizations represented last year were: American Legion, Taftville; Rotary club, American Legion, Jewett City; Y. M. C. A., Elks and Duwell A. A.

St. Mary's Win.

The St. Mary's school team defeated the Sacred Heart team Thursday at the Providence street grounds by a score of 13-16. The game was a slugging match all the way through. Hartnett and Roberts and L. Anzelone played well for the winners, while Nevins and Cappiet showed up well for the losers. The lineup for the winners was: L. Anzelone c, J. Hartnett, 3b, 1b, J Lyons p, J. Leary lf, W. Roberts 1b, 3b, Fitzgerald cf E. Anzelone 2b, W. Casey rf, W. Sheridan ss.

Troop 10 Scouts Win

The Boy Scouts of Troop 10 defeated Eccleston's All Stars at the Norwich Town Green last week by the score of 10 to 8. Mara starred at bat for the winners and Ryan was their best bet in the field. The score was tied until the last of the seventh, which was the final inning, when, with two on base Mara singled, breaking the deadlock. McGill and Cormier pitched and Mara caught for the winners, while Fritz pitched and Mullen caught for the losers.

Susie Says

Went down to New Haven last night with the boy friends to see the Day-Glick fight. Some fight—and how!

If Joe Glick is a top notch lightweight, then I'm Julius Caesar and all the Romans. Joe thought he had a setup and found a tartar.

Day without doubt fought the best fight of his career. Why shouldn't he, he had everything to gain and nothing to lose. Referee Watson's decision was popular in some sections of the arena and not so hot in others.

Al "Peasoup" Beauregard, Taftville boy, showed a brilliant attack against DeGrasse in the eight round semi-final. Peasoup looked like a second edition of Kid Kaplan.

Beauregard gave DeGrasse a neat lacing from round to round and looked mighty good against one of the tastest boys in the game.

The other bouts weren't so hot although Hughie Devlin of New London should have been given a decision over Gelbert in his bout. Hughie is a fast kid.

The greatest kick we got outa the bouts was the aftermath. There were several real good impromptu bouts on the floor of the arena.

One supporter of Day took exception to some remark and started to work on another spectator. The last we saw of him was when two cops were leading him up the street and paddling him with their clubs.

Well anyway we had a good time, thanks to Harry, Penny, Doc and the Wilson boys.

AMATEUR BOUTS TO BE OF THREE-MINUTE ROUNDS

NEW HAVEN, May 6—(AP)—State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue, is of the opinion that two minute rounds have been tested sufficiently to prove that amateur boxers and enthusiasts of the sport favor a change back to the ordinary time limit and has consented to drop his experiment.

In acting as he did when the state took control of amateur boxing April 15, Commissioner Donohue said he favored the curtailment as a protection to the boxers. However, the boxers, who feel that their time spent in the simon pure ranks is only a stepping stone to a professional career, took the stand that the two minute rounds would jeopardize their chances when they stepped out to battle in the paid ranks.

Hereafter only novices will participate in the two minute rounds and will advance to the three minute rounds when they have engaged in six bouts. The consequence of the ruling in this city has been a decided dropping off in attendance.

The first show staged here under the old rules brought back again, will be Thursday night with Buddy Howard, of this city, engaging Jack Johnson, former world's heavyweight champion, in a three round exhibition.

MAYS AND CURCIO IN MAIN BOUT AT NEW LONDON SHOW TONIGHT

A scintillating card of bouts including the so-much talked of Bobby Mays and Frankie Curcio setto is offered by Promoter Ernest Fakourey for the opening show of the New London outdoor arena this evening. Mays, New London holder of the state lightweight championship, is scheduled to go ten rounds with Curcio, who, incidentally, is state champion of little Rhody. No title is at stake in this bout, but a victory for either man will be a feather in his cap.

Mays completed his training on Sunday afternoon, and after the workout, in which he sparred four gruelling rounds with James Arthur (Sonny) Suggs, who is also carded for this evening with Mickey Genaro of Waterbury in the eight round semi-final, he was weighed in. Mays tipped the scales at 134 1-2. Suggs has been working with Mays for over a week, using the same style of fighting that Curcio is expected to put in prctice against the New London lad. He is of the boring in type.

Although the Rhode Island champion knocked out Young Al Conley last September, Mays is confident that he can take him, and by the knockout route at that. He has this to offer. "I believe I can outhit and outbox Curcio," he said. "Curcio may have knocked out Conley, but he'll be too busy protecting his own chin Tuesday night. If anybody is knocked out Tuesday, it won't be me."

Besides the main bout and semi-final scheduled for tonight the fans will view two six-rounders and two four round preliminaries. These include: Kid Wagner vs K. O. Brown and Joe Russo vs Vic Morley, and Gene Pecheent vs. Joey Duggan and Johnny Bedell vs Young Tauff, four rounds.

The boxers are to be weighed in this afternoon at 2 o'clock in Harold Finnell's gymnasium.

The card is to be run off Wednesday night in the event that tonight's weather is unfavorable.

BULKELEY SECOND TEAM BEAT BACON ACADEMY

Bacon academy baseball team was defeated by the second team from Bulkeley high school of New London by a score of 6-2 in a well-played game on the local park ball diamond, Monday afternoon. Although the New London boys showed a slight superiority in training, the Bacon academy players made a good showing considering their limited practice during the past few weeks. The Bacon boys state that they are not disheartened over the defeat but will immediately renew their training activities so as to turn the tables on the Bulkeley boys when the return game is played in New London on May 19. Coach Goodrich believes that this year's Bacon team will develop into one of the strongest outfits in several years and it will be interesting to see what the next few weeks' intensive training will bring forth.

JUNIOR HOLY NAME TEAM OF JEWETT CITY ORGANIZED

The Junior Holy Name society baseball team of Jewett City has reorganized for the coming season and is ready for games with any team in the state averaging 18 years of age. This team is well known throughout this section of the state as they have been playing together for several seasons. Last year they represented the American Legion, and were runners-up to the winners of the Norwich Junior Twilight league and furnished plenty of opposition to the various teams in this league. In fact they were the only team in the league to conquer Taftville, who finished in first place.

The Jewett City Boys have the same players as performed for them last year. Starting the season, however, they suffer the loss of their star shortstop, Willemsky, who has been through a surgical operation and will be unable to play until later in the season, possibly in July. As usual, the catching will be taken care of by Pizzo, who, during last season proved to be one of the best in the Twilight league. Their same pitching staff is available, Bernal, Vachon and Liberty. For infielders they have Perry, Bush, Kusek, Gaska and Salonski. In the outfield A. Vachon, Wilkowsky and Beaulieu. The last named led the batting for the entire Twilight league last season and the Jewett City team held first place in the league in this respect. These boys are hoping to enter the league this year in event such a league is formed.

The H. N. S. are equipped with new uniforms this season and sure expect to keep their home town on the map in the matter of amateur baseball. Any team desiring to schedule games with the H. N. S will please write either Captain Francis Liberty or phone their coach, U. E. Jodoin, at Jewett City 176.

Sonnenberg to Meet DeVito.

BOSTON, May 6—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight wrestling champion, has agreed to give Joe DeVito, Providence Italian grappler, a shot at his title, according to an announcement made yesterday by Paul Bowser, Boston promoter. Both men signed for a bout here on May 16.

BOSTON PILGRIMS SPENT LAST FULL DAY IN ROME

ROME, May 6—(AP)—The Boston pilgrims, Cardinal O'Connell having driven to Naples early this morning, spent their last full day in Rome in sightseeing and purchasing gifts to carry home to their families and friends. Some made airplane flights over the Seve Hills and the surrounding country while others contented themselves with automobiles, and old horse-drawn victorias, reminiscent of Boston of the "mauve decade" but still in active service here.

The party will entrain tomorrow afternoon for Naples and will board their liner that evening. They are due home on May 19.

DAY GETS DECISION OVER GLICK; BEAUREGARD WINS

NEW HAVEN, May 6—(AP)—Georgie Day, of New Haven defeated Joe Glick of Brooklyn, in a 10-round bout at the arena tonight. Day weighed 135 1-4 pounds and Glick 136. The sporting fraternity made Glick a decided favorite.

According to the referee's score sheet, Day won the first, fourth, sixth, seventh, eighth and tenth rounds, and Glick received the second, fifth and ninth while the third round was even. The total points were Day 47 and Glick 43.

The decision was cheered loudly in some sections and very unpopular in another part of the arena.

Referee Watson, of Hartford received a blow from a spectator while he was leaving the arena, accompanied by a policeman. This almost started a riot, but reluforcements ob police arrived and the spectator was arrested.

In the semi-final, Al Beauregard, of Taftville, Conn., won from Pete DeGrasse, New York, in an eight round bout. Beauregard weighed 119 1-4; DeGrasse 116.

Sammy Gelber, New York, beat Hughie Devlin, New Bedford, in 8 rounds. Gelber weighed 119 1-2; Devlin 122 1-2.

Leo Larrivee, of Waterbury, who has yet to lose a professional bout, won

WESTERLY

COUNCIL FAVORS TREES REMOVAL FROM P. O. LAND

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 6—Members of the Westerly town council Monday morning visited the site in front of the Westerly post office on which the police committee plans to place the police traffic control booth. The booth is now located at the northwest corner of the site of the destroyed Rhode Island hotel block and near the entrance to the Washington Trust building. The Westerly highway commission plans shortly to take off a number of feet from the sidewalk in front of the hotel site and put it into the highway in a manner similar to work being done on both sides of the east end of Broad street, consequently there will be no room for the booth.

The matter was taken up with the Westerly post office and the federal authorities to ascertain if there would be any objection on the part of the government. The Westerly highway department, A. L. Leon, engineer, had the curbing relaid to a new set-back line and left a log in the sidewalk at the entrance to the post office driveway, being under the impression that the land belonged to the federal government. The reply received by Councilman Rogers E. Trainer of the council police committee stated that the property did not belong to the federal government and that it had no objection to a re-location of the traffic control booth at this point provided the government was not put to any expense. The council named a committee to meet with the highway commissioners at their regular session late in the afternoon. The councilmen in session, before adjournment expressed themselves as being in favor of having the large trees in front of the post office building and now standing within the 13 feet six inches strip of land owned by the town, cut down and removed, it being only a question of time when the trees would die as the result of the pavement about them. The council also made aninterior inspection when they went to the auditorium of the town hall on the second floor where the work of taking out the echoes has been accomplished by putting up porous material in the beamed ceiling panels.

Against A. & P. Addition.

At the opening of the council meeting Attorney John F. Gallagher, representing Abraham Leibovitz and sons came before the council to ask for a special permit to construct an addition to the rear of their building at 69 High street occupied by the A & P. Store. The permit requested an addition, 22 by 30 feet. The council voted not to grant the application.

The application of the Turner Center System, Inc., of Harris avenue, Providence, for a milk license was tabled on the motion of Councilman George E. Broughton. The application had been recommended by Milk Inspector Dr. Thomas E. Robinson. The application was finally referred back to the milk inspector.

The other applications granted were: Peter Panciera, James A Saunders, Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, Henry H. Blackler, Charles H. Nichols, James Schofield, John E. Dumphy, Edwin Barber, Jr., Sheffield Greene, Jr., and Speras & Tramis.

Upon recommendation of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and the members of the police committee, Charles E. Button of 86 Elm street was appointed a police constable with pay and will become a member of the regular force.

Bills amounting to $156 for damage done by dogs in Westerly by killing turkeys and poultry were voted paid by the council.

Fraser for Fire Marshal.

Councilman Joseph Fraser was voted Westerly fire marshal, it being his duty to ascertain the causes of all fires and to have his investigations reduced to writing. Councilman Fraser was administered the oath of office by Clerk Col. E. E. Whipple. The council has the authority to fix the amount of his compensation, and he was instructed by the council to render his bill for services performed.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown reported six arrests for April: Non-support 1, no driving license 2, intoxication 1, possession of narcotics 1, larceny 1.

Dr. Samuel C. Webster, health officer, reported one case of measles and one case of whooping cough during the past month.

Building Inspector Thomas Wills reported that 40 applications were received in April, nine for frame buildings, one for stone, 29 for additions and one for hollow tile. Forty permits were granted and 57 inspections were made.

A bill for fighting fires from Forest Fire Warden Sheffield, amounting to $22.05 was voted paid out of the miscellaneous funds.

Tavern licenses were voted to Fabiana DeMarseon, Main street and Nonie Armour for the boarding house on Main street, White Rock.

Victualizing licenses were voted to Catherine Smith, near Weekapaug breachway; Spieros Tramis, Bay street, Watch Hill and John W. Neild, Jr., for two sites one near the Atlantic Beach casino and a second near the Terminal, Misquamicut.

JUSTICE HAHN FINDS NO CASES READY FOR TRIAL

Associate Justice J. Jerome Hahn of Providence opened the session of Washington county superior court in Westerly Monday morning at 11.15 with petit jurors in attendance. When Judge Hahn called the first case, set down from the Kingston session by Judge Capotosto, Francis A. Kenyon vs. The United Electric Railway company, it was found that attorneys in the case were not all present. Attorney A. T. L. Ledwidge suggested that Judge Hahn again call the calendar which Judge Charles A. Walsh had taken up last Thursday. It was found that there were no cases ready and Judge Hahn adjourned court to Thursday next at which time petit jurors are again to report and the traction company case will be the first taken up.

Judgment was entered by agreement of counsel in the case of Attorney Clarence E. Roche vs. William M. Champlin, the amount agreed upon by Attorney Ledwidge, representing Champlin, for attorney's fees of Mr. Roche being $154.15.

Marked as ready for Thursday next was the case of Lloyd Cheseborough vs. A. Matarese. Mr. Gallagher stating that he would be engaged in New London county superior court up to that time.

In the case of Kenyon vs. United Electric Railway, Judge Hahn said that he could not sit in traction company cases unless it was agreed upon by both parties, but on Thursday he expected Judge Antonio A. Capotosto kept out of court by the death of his son, would return and try the Westerly cases.

Assigned for Thursday is the suit of Fred T. Baker vs. John K. Armstrong and following this George E. Money, admr. vs. Thomas H Barber, John Gabrielle vs. Frank Brocato. In the action at law, Annunziato Vuono vs. Frank Capalbo, the bill of particulars ordered by Judge Capotosto for Saturday last had not been filed and the case was marked passed, as was also that of Henry E. Brown vs. Diadema F. Sherman.

OBITUARY

JOHN E. MICHAEL OF NARRAGANSETT TRIBE

One of the last of the Narragansett tribe of Indians died late Sunday night, a well-known Westerly stone mason, John Edgar Michael. He passed away at his home, 3 Crafts court following an illness which had confined him to his home for several weeks. Mr. Michael was a native of Charlestown, R. I., born October 25 1859, the son of Brewster and Mary Ann Champlin Michael. He came to Westerly about 50 years ago. For many years he was employed by Tristam D Babcock of Avondale. December 19, 1879, he was united in marriage with Ada Frances Noka of Charlestown. She died three years ago. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Harry McNally of Englewood, Cal., Mrs. Charles Davis of Covington Ky., Mrs. Elsie Champlin of Fall River, Mass., and Mrs. Hazel Hamilton of Westerly, a sister, Miss Jane Michael of Peacedale, and two brothers, Edward Michael of Providence and Brewster Michael of Wakefield. There are seven grandchildren.

Sunday morning a class of thirty-two candidates were confirmed at the 10.30 o'clock services at Christ Episcopal church, the rite being performed by Bishop James DeWolfe Perry of Providence. The bishop also preached the sermon, Rev G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ church, assisted the bishop in the ceremony, and special music was rendered by the choir, under direction of Mrs. Charles Larkin. Delegates to the convocation of the Episcopal church, to be held Thursday at St. Peter's-by-the-Sea, Narragansett, were also announced. They are: Mrs. Frederick Lueck, Mrs John Holland, Mrs. Walter Krebs Mrs. David A. Lowry and Walter Havens. Alternates are: Mr. and Mrs F. W. Taylor, Mrs. G. Edgar Tobin, John Holland and David A Lowry.

St. Michael's council, No. 2497, Knights of Columbus, of Pawcatuck, held a special meeting on Sunday afternoon when the third degree was worked upon a class of twenty candidates.

The degree work was in charge of District Deputy George McKenna of Mystic and District Deputy John F. Hennon of Jewett City, Conn. Following the degree, a collation was served for the candidates and members of the degree team. Sunday was communion Sunday for St. Michael's council, and the members received the sacrament in a body at the 8 o'clock mass. A communion breakfast was served following the service at St. Michael's community house, the arrangements being made by the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women.

Geissler in city court Saturday morning will reach trial Tuesday when a bench warrant is drawn to bring the prisoner to trial.

OBITUARY

Marie Houle

Marie Houle, a lifelong resident of North Grosvenordale, died at her home there late last evening at the age of 30. Mrs. Houle had been ill of a chronic disease for many months and her death was not wholly unexpected, although her passing is mourned by those of the village who knew her. Mrs. Houle was born in Canada, but came, with her parents, to this country when an infant and has since resided here. She is survived by three children.

Health Officer Peter A. Gardner said this afternoon that no new cases of communicable diseases were reported in Putnam during the past week. The clean slate tendered by Officer Gardner to the state health commission on Saturday is indeed a record for this community, as previous reports of the health standing have always been more or less lengthy compared with those submitted by other communities in the state of the size of Putnam.

A "Martha Washington" tea table, whose antiquity dates back to the colonial era of American history, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley F. Bacon of 22 Farrows street, was today awarded a berth in the collection of articles of the George Washington period, in the new Yale university museum in New Haven. A representative of the university agency finally induced Mr. and Mrs. Bacon to part with the treasured object, which has been in the family collection for a number of years. Mr. Bacon said this afternoon that the Martha Washington table taken by the college gentleman today is one of the few tables of this particular design made at the time and only a few others like it have been secured by the university authorities for the Yale collection.

The table is of a hard wood and the contrast between the antique and the modern furniture is sufficient to substantiate the year of its origin. Mr. Bacon intimated that for the past few years antique lovers who learned of the article being in his possession viewed it and praised it. Several offers from individuals were made to purchase the table, but it was not until Mr. and Mrs. Bacon were promised that their valued dining room furnishing would rest in a permanent institution that they consented to its sale. The price obtained was not disclosed by Mr. Bacon.

Dog Warden Ernest L. Chandler said this afternoon that a possibility now exists whereby the quarantine on dogs now in effect will be lifted by May 15. While Warden Chandler was unable to state definitely as to when dogs would be released from quarantine, he said that the circumstances now existing were sufficiently strong enough to warrant the commissioner of domestic animals to order a release at an immediate date.

More than 600 attended a prize drill of grade drill teams held in North Grosvenordale Friday evening. The Garde Foch of this city under the command of Capt. David Breault took fifth prize in the competitive drills, in which over 12 teams took part.

The monthly meeting of the American Legion auxiliaries of the fourth district took place in North Grosvenordale yesterday. A delegation of members of the auxiliary of the Anslem Mayotte post attended the meet.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kenyon of Grove street have removed to a tenement on Fremont street.

Miss Edith Child, a student at Simmons college in Boston, spent the week-end at the home of her mother, Mrs. Annie C. Child, of South Main street.

Miss Marjorie Bradford and Miss Myra Ellis of this city were in Hartford Sunday.

RESUMPTION OF BULL CAMPAIGN IN MARKET HALTED BY 14 P. C. CALL MONEY

NEW YORK, May 6—(AP)—Just as the resumed bull campaign on the stock market was expecting to find fairly clear sailing, it ran into another shoal of tight money today. The market headed upward during the morning, but developed increasing heaviness as call money renewed at 10 per cent, and was stepped up to 12 and then to 14 during the afternoon.

Liquidation, however, was held to a moderate volume, trading slowing up on the decline, and total sales fell under 4,000,000 shares. The Associated Press price indices indicated that the day's losses little more than cancelled Saturday's gains. The flurry in call money came as complete surprise to most traders, as credit had generally been expected to improve somewhat this week, with the month end settlements out of the way. Calling of loans was nominal, indicating that the money market remains hypersensitive.

There appeared no other occasion for the flurry than the mid-weekly settlement of member bank balances at the Federal Reserve. Some funds were believed to have been withdrawn by western interests with the increase of the Kansas City Reserve banks rediscount rate from 4 1-2 to 5 per cent, but such withdrawals were understood to have been small.

There was little in the day's news to influence the market. A few more favorable earnings statements drifted in. Willys Overland reported 50 cents a share in the first quarter against 45 cents a year ago. It was estimated in steel trade circles that the U. S. Steel report of unfilled orders as of April 30 will show another gain, despite capacity operations during the month.

The oil stocks as a group were well supported, with further talk of mergers and optimistic earnings estimates. It was reported that the industry is considering a new code of ethics which will tend to eliminate price cutting wars and wasteful practices. Atlantic Refining reached a new top at 71. Earnings for the first quarter were reported at $1.77, and those for April alone at 81. Standards of New Jersey and California both reached new highs in small gains.

Aviation shares and some of the motor accessory and parts issues made good headway. Sparks Withington jumped more than 8 points to a new top, and Timken Roller Bearing reached a new peak at 89. Wright Aero soared about 11 points to 149, a record for the present stock, and United Aircraft came back about 8 points.

General Electric and Westinghouse Electric were both strong, making extreme gains of about 5 points. Youngstown Sheet & Tube made a like gain. International Telephone again attracted powerful support, sending it up 8 points to 172. By-Products Coke touched a new peak above 130.

Electric Auto Lite sold near its record price on an estimate by the management that its earnings will approximate $15 a share this year, and that it will realize a like amount from its holdings of Bendix Aviation. Tobacco stocks failed to respond to talk of higher cigaret prices and ending of the price-cutting war. Foundation company improved with the return of the Doty interests to control.

Some of the high-priced issues broke sharply. Adams Express tumbled about 50 points to 680, and Case Threshing 16 points. Advance Rumely issues sagged still further, the common losing 6 and the preferred 7 points. Commercial Solvents, which has just had a sharp rise, fell back about 9 points. Most of the copper shares lost a point or two and such issues as American Telephone, Borg Warner, Canadian Pacific, Union Carbide, Warner Brothers, International Harvester, Goodyear Tire, Montgomery Ward, and Radio lost 2 to 4 points. U. S. Steel sagged a point.

Leading commodities were weak. Wheat broke 2 to 3 cents a bushel to new lows for the season on good weather and large Canadian and Argentine offerings for export. Cotton broke more than $1 a bale on good weather and a decline at Liverpool.

Foreign exchanges were dull and barely steady. Sterling cables were a shade lower at $4.85 9-32, and the Spanish peseta sagged to another new 1929 low at 14.13 cents.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

A Boy and His Dog

A boy and his dog make a glorious pair;
No better friendship is found anywhere,
For they talk and they walk and they run and they play,
And they have their deep secrets for many a day;
And that boy has a comrade who thinks and who feels,
Wha walks down the road with a dog at his heels.

He may go where he will and his dog will be there,
May revel in mud and his dog will not care;
Faithful he'll stay for the slightest command
And bark with delight at the touch of his hand;
Oh, he owns a treasure which nobody steals,
Who walks down the road with a dog at his heels.

No other can lure him away from his side;
He's proof against riches and station and pride;
Fine dress does not charm him, and flattery's breath
Is lost on the dog, for he's faithful to death;
He sees the great soul which the body conceals—
Oh, it's great to be young with a dog at your heels!

A correspondent writes: "To my knowledge, there has not been a copy of Our Dumb Animals destroyed during the 34 years we have been receiving it. I shall continue to pass it along to help guide and instruct the younger generation in the right way."
—Edgar A. Guest in "When Day is Done."

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES

This is the season of the year when the familiar toad makes his appearance for the spring, summer and early fall months. Nearly everyone is acquainted with the tadpoles of frogs, and toads have a similar life history. In the spring the toads lay eggs in stagnant water in strings of a jelly-like substance, instead of in clusters as do frogs. After five to ten days the eggs hatch into wriggling tadpoles which swim about in the water. Their food is mainly microscopic plants. Swimming is accomplished by means of a tail. Breathing is carried on by means of outside and inside gills. As the tadpole grows these gills are absorbed by the body, and lungs develop. The tadpole soon finds difficulty in breathing so he comes to the surface of the water to fill his lungs with air. Slowly feet appear, the tail is lost, and a tiny toad is seen swimming about.

During July he matures and takes to the banks of the pond or stream. Many other small toads are already there. After a certain number, usually several dozen or more, have gathered, a general movement or migration begins. Many farmers have seen these migrations. Often the toads will follow a ravine or cross a road, thus exposing themselves to great danger from birds and man. Crows are said to be the chief enemy of the young toad. The few that do finally reach a suitable environment, such as a garden, soon busy themselves in catching their weight in insects.

Although there are several kinds of toads found in the United States, only one species (Bufo americanus) is at all common. This species inhabits gardens in particular. During the day they remain concealed in some dark corner, or beneath a stone or other object where moisture is plentiful, and at night sally forth to feed upon snails, slugs and insects, which they capture with the aid of a sticky tongue as in the case of the frog. Their tongue is fastened near the outer edge of the lower jaw and the free end lies back in the mouth toward the throat. When an insect comes near the tongue is thrown out and laps around the morsel. The sticky secretion holds the insect until it can be returned to the mouth. Thus he may capture fast-moving objects. Frogs and toads both have sharp eyesight for moving objects, and it is doubtful if they see still objects very distinctly.

LETTERS OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT

William C. O'Neill, Norwich—I wish to thank you for the lovely book I received from you. I have read it and found it very interesting.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

Jane's Disobedience

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you a story which I made up and I hope you and the Wide-Awakes will enjoy it.

Jane Green had the habit of crossing the street without looking if any automobiles were in sight.

One day when Jane was playing in the yard she heard her mother calling. Jane went into the house and when she saw her mother she said: "Mother do you need me?" Her mother replied: "Yes, Jane, I want you to go to the store and get a loaf of bread for me."

Jane put her coat and hat on and opened the door, but just then her mother stopped her and said: "Please be careful and watch out for automobiles, dear." Jane said she would, and started off.

No sooner had she crossed the road when an automobile came along and knocked her down. When the driver of the auto saw her he got out of the car and picked her up. Jane had her face and hands badly scratched. The driver took her home and called a doctor to attend Jane.

After the doctor had gone Jane said to her mother: "Mother, I disobeyed you very much and I hope you will forgive me."

Jane's mother said she would forgive Jane.

Later Jane promised her mother that she would watch out for automobiles any time she crossed the stret.

A Trip to Africa

Dear Uncle Jed and the Wide-Awakes: We are going on an imaginary trip to an African village. We are in the African village.

The people around us have dark skins and little clothing. The houses are made of grass. The climate is very hot and wet. It rains nearly every day. The village is in the midst of a jungle. Today some of the men went out and shot a lion.

Last week the natives went out on a lion hunt. The lion had been attacking the village we are now in, so we are told.

The men painted theier faces. When they got to the place where the lion was they made a circle around him. The lion tried to escape. But one of the men threw his spear and wounded him. Then the rest killed him. There was great excitement when they returned. We will say goodby and start for home.

The Club I Belong To.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about a club I am in. The name of it is the 4-H club. It doesn't cost anything to join it but you must have some animal or fowl. It is to make agriculture better known. You have to be over ten years old and under twenty years old. The name of ours is the "Killingly Klimbers." I have ten white leghorns. They are laying very well now. I got a red ribbon last year in the month of December. That means that my hens laid up to second place in the whole state of Connecticut.

Henny White Feather.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my hen. I call her Henny White Feather because she is white. My aunt gave it to me when she was a little baby chicken. She gave me some more too. When they were little chickens we put them in a box and put them in the car and took them over to my grandfather's house. I wanted to show my grandfather and grandmother. I tried to take the little white chicken up and the toe was caught and it broke. After a while it came off. Now she has only two toes on one foot. When she got big I let her hatch some chickens. I had two red roosters. I sold one. I called the other rooster Red Wing. Now I have quite a lot of hens.

A Disastrous Ride.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide-Awakes will like my story.

One evening after school my father, my little brother and I were going to the city in the car. It was in the winter time and the big pond was frozen hard. Our pond was safe enough to run on cars. We jumped into the Buick and drove across the big pond and that was safe.

As we came near the corner there was a frog pond. My father said "I think I will try to cross this pond, because the ruts are so deep and I don't want to get stuck."

So we started on it, at first we were airight. But when we got further on the pond began to crack and the rear wheels went in. We thought that we could get it out, but the more we tried the worse it was. Seeing we might get wet we hurried out of the car and across to land. The pond was still cracking. At last the front wheels went in. The pond gave one more groan and the car went in as high as the top of the radiator. It stayed there two days before he got it out.

Finally we had to wreck it because it wouldn't run. Never again do I want to go for a ride like that.

"Fishing."

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing a story entitled "Fishing," which I hope you and all the Wide-Awakes will enjoy. Saturday morning I started on my favorite sport, fishing. For a pole I used a small black birch tree and a string for a line and a real hook. I had a few worms for bait.

When I reached the brook about a mile from my house I threw in my baited hook. I waited patiently for some time, then, I had a bite! But to my disappointment it was only a shiner so small that it could not wallow the hook, but avariciously ate the worm.

My disappointment wasn't so great as to thoroughly discourage me. I again threw in my rebaited hook, but in vain. My patience now was very much disturbed. Once more I baited my hook and threw it in. In a very short time I had a fish, a trout, on my hook, struggling for its life!

I immediately drew it from the water, but so great was my surprise, I ran home with it on my hook.

I had a terrible time getting the hook out of its mouth.

Now let me tell you that trout was seven and a half inches long. I wish that you all will be as successful as I was if you haven't ever caught one.

Visited Boston.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first story to the Wide-Awakes. Hope they will be interested in it. Last summer while visiting Boston I also visited Franklin park. The flowers were in bloom and looked very pretty. I saw many different animals. There were two elephants given by the school children of Boston and many birds of various colors. I also saw the Old North church and Bunker Hill monument, which I was interested in, having studied about them.

A Trip to Providence.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide-Awakes. I wish to tell you of our trip to Providence, one cold day. We started from our house about 10 o'clock. Before we went we packed a lunch to eat on the way. My brother owns a roadster with a rumble seat. My sister and I sat in the rumble seat. It was cold and we nearly froze. My sister was eating a sandwich when suddenly a gust of wind came along and blew the sandwich right out of her hand. We covered our heads with the covers and were quite warm. After a long ride we reached Providence. I wish to join the Wide-Awakes.

The Mourning Dove

Dear Uncle Jed: When mating time is on, the coo of the mourning dove is to be heard over a great area of the United States. It swells melodiously, mournfully, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Canada to the gulf, and down to the continent of Central America.

The dove has very short legs, yet they run quite busily on those legs. They feed on seeds, while all the other birds feed on insects and other living creatures.

Mourning doves do not crowd together to roost, but scatter out in the dry grass or leaves on the ground. The task of nest building belongs to the female, for the women usually do the work in birdland. She is in the first place very careless about where she puts her nest. Any tree crotch or flat place, even a fence rail or stone wall, will do. The nest is made of twigs, and grass to soften it.

But the dove husband does not quarrel with his wife on the score of her careless housekeeping. Instead he seems quite proud of what she is doing.

It is a while ago since I have written, but I hope as this is my last story to you that the entire Wide-Awake group will not forget to read my story and of course enjoy it.

Setting a Hen

Dear Uncle Jed: One day early in April I decided to set a hen. The first hen I tried wouldn't go on the nest. When night came she stayed on top of the box. Then I put the hen back in the henhouse and took another hen. The second one did not set well either. First she broke an egg and ate it up. My mother said maybe I didn't feed her enough, so I gave her more feed than before. But she didn't set even then.

I put her back in the henhouse and got another one. This time I got a good one. She stayed on the nest almost all the time; she only went off the nest to eat and drink. My mother gave her fifteen eggs and took out the three eggs she put under her to see if she would set well. Three weeks later when I went to feed her I heard some chickens peep and I saw three heads sticking out from under the hen. When the hen went off the nest to eat, five chickens followed her and seven little chickens stayed in the nest. And besides the seven chickens in the nest there were three bad eggs. The chickens grew very fast and were soon getting their feathers.

My Pigeons.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I ever wrote to you. I am going to tell you about some pigeons. Two are white and two are blue and white. The other color is a reddish blue color. I like them very much. I feed them every day. They know me now. They come and eat out of my hands. Two pair have some squabs. They are cunning little fellows. I like them very much. They are nearly ready to fly. I have to keep them shut up now, because there is a hawk around. He got one of my biggest and the one I liked best. I don't want to let him get my other five. I stay with them for hours watching them.

A Pet Squirrel.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you about a pet squirrel I have. This is the first time I have written to you. I have a pet squirrel at home I want to tell you about it.

It used to come and meet me. I used to have some acorns for him when he came.

My Kittens.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written you and the Wide-Awakes. I hope you will take pleasure in reading the story of my kittens.

My pet cat has twins! Twins, and I didn't even know it until I happened to go down to the celler the other day and came upon the little kittens, two of the cutest kittens I ever saw. Double paws and plume. I named them according to their colors. They being both alike, a mixture of gray and white, I decided to call one Spotty and the other Whitie. I'll take great pride in watching my kittens grow up.

At 12:18 the house adjourned till 10:15 standard time on Tuesday.

SENATE

The senate was called to order at 10:25, standard time, by Lieutenant-Governor Rogers. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Hudson.

Under suspension of rules, the senate adopted Senate Bill No. 141, making the board of appeals of the zoning commission of towns and cities authorities for the issuance of permits for gasoline stations. An amendment was adopted exempting New Haven from the act.

Senate Bill No. 391, was also adopted under suspension of rules. It provides for the establishment of a retirement fund for custodians and engineers in public schools, not less than $600 or more than $1,000.

The senate today paved the way for Connecticut to become the first state in the county to administer a merit rating plan for motor vehicle operators as an accident prevention measure by adopting Senate Bill No. 534. This bill, approved by insurance companies and sponsored by the Motor Vehicles Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel, is in effect an extension of the present financial responsibility act and was drawn by the committee on motor vehicles as a substitute for a compulsory financial responsibility act proposed by Senator David Goldstein of Bridgeport, democrat.

"Connecticut is the only state in the country putting through such a plan," declared Senator Albert S. Lavery of Fairfield, chairman of the committee in urging its passage. "This law can be administered only because of the exhaustive accident records compiled by Mr. Stoeckel which no other state has on such a comprehensive scale."

The bill establishes four classifications of motor vehicle operators according to their accident records, these risks to be rated by the motor vehicles commissioner. Drivers who hve had no accidents within one year, shall be a preferred class paying a basic rate of auto liability insurance. Those involved in minor accidents are to be penalized by an increase of 10 per cent in rate. Those having more than one accident and are convicted of operating while intoxicated must pay an additional rate of 25 per cent, and the third class who are persistent violators.

The bill was adopted with no opposition. Senator Thomas J. Conroy, although approving the bill as far as it went, felt the state should pass a compulsory insurance law as protection to innocent drivers who now cannot collect in many cases because of insufficient number of insured drivers. Senator Lavery replied the bill places the burden of responsibility on offending drivers.

The senate adjourned until 11:15 tomorrow morning.

COLCHESTER

D. A. R. CHAPTER MEETING PLANNED FOR WEDNESDAY

Colonel Henry Champion chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution is to hold its May meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Nathaniel Foote chapter house.

Mrs. Murray Cohen and daughters, Misses Beverly and Roslyn returned Sunday afternoon to their home in Bridgeport after several days' visit with relatives on South Main street.

Carpenters have finished shingling the south roof on the Congregational church and have commenced on the north roof. The seats in the interior of the church are being removed preparatory to making alterations and improvements to the inside of the building.

To Present Play

The Senior class of Bacon academy is making plans for the presentation of a three-act play, the proceeds to revert to the class treasury.

Miss Clara Park, domestic science instructor in Danbury schools, spent the week end at her home on South Main street.

Theodore W. Doberentz of Marlborough was a business visitor here Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Riley took a motor trip to points of interest in Maine, over the week end.

Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Lonsdale of New York were at their summer home on North Main street, Monday.

Burial of John P. Egan

The body of John P. Egan, 48, who died at his home in Willimantic, Saturday afternoon was laid to rest in the family lot in St. Andrews' cemetery, Colchester, Monday morning, a large number of friends as dreiatives being in attendance. Mr. Egan was a native of Colchester, having left here with his parents about 35 years ago.

THREE AUTOMOBILES BURNED IN SCHOOL STREET FIRE

Three machines and a story and a half frame garage, on School street, near John street, were destroyed in a fire which was discovered a few minutes after 4 o'clock Monday morning. Two firemen were slightly burned while hitching a line of hose to a hydrant within a few feet of the burning structure. They were Firemen George Maloney and William Confrey.

The department was called out at 4.08 o'clock and on arriving at the scene Acting Deputy Chief D. J. Brennan sent in a bell alarm from box 85 as the structure was a mass of flames. Two water lines were used on the blaze. A nearby garage owned by Mrs. Annie Riley received some damage to the roof.

The cause of the fire is not known, but it is believed to have started around one of the automobiles. The destroyed machines are a new Ford, delivered Sunday, owned by Michael Shea of No. 68 School street; a Chevrolet owned by Paul W. Rizney of No. 60 School street and a Chevrolet owned by Richard Belil of School street. The burned structure is owned by Mrs. Yetta Cohn. The total damage is estimated at about $2,500.

REAL FRO-JOY ICE CREAM

in a cup 5¢

CROWD around while I whistle the patter on a swell new stunt. A nickel is all it's gonna cost now to get the most elegant ice cream that ever slid over a regular guy's tongue. I've fixed it up with the Fro-joy fellers to put it in cups with my picture on 'em, so you can't go wrong. And every friend of mine is goin' to collect the lids, that have different pictures of me with Uncle Louie's Nephew and a bunch of other straight little shooters. Grab a nickel off of somebody quick, and hunt up a store that sells 'em.

Yours for less belittlin'.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 6—(AP)—With the 1929 United States wheat harvest expected to commence inside of two weeks, all wheat future deliveries in Chicago dropped today to a new low-price record for the season. The chief immediate cause assigned was an unexpectedly sharp break in wheat quotations at Liverpool, where reduced rail rates in the United States were reported to have brought about increased cheaper offerings of wheat both from Canada and Argentina. Corn and rye as well as wheat outdid in some cases here the season's previous bottom figures.

Wheat in Chicago closed nervous, 1 7-8 to 3 1-4c a bushel net lower. Corn finished 1 7-8 to 2 7-8c down, oats 3-8 to 1 1-4c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 50c.

Downturns in wheat values today were in the face of a big decrease of the United States wheat visible supply total and notwithstanding a cold wave in Canada. Traders' eyes appeared to be glued to blackboard figures showing that the Liverpool market was much lower than had been looked for, and that keener competition from Canada and Argentina was in evidence. Under such circumstances, Chicago traders flocked to the selling side of the market, and buying was largely confined to previous sellers collecting profits. On the ensuing downward swing of the market, many standing orders to let go of holdings were forced into execution at various price boundaries which had been pre-arranged as a limit to losses.

Adding to the momentum of the fall in wheat values was a comprehensive crop report from railroad sources indicating that cutting of wheat in southern Texas will start within a fortnight, and that expectations are for good yield. This is the first wheat to be harvested from the 1929 domestic crop. The report added that an early heavy movement of the crop is looked for, and that the condition of wheat is generally good all over the southwest except in the region just south of Amarillo, Texas.

In view of such bearish advices, little attention was given to word that the domestic wheat visible supply today had fallen off 2,103,000 bushels compared with a week ago, the total supply being still nearly double the aggregate at this time last year. Curtailment of wheat supplies on ocean passage was also practically ignored on account of large surplus stocks both in the United States and Canada, with European call for North American wheat today reported slack and cheapness of some grades of Canadian wheat so pronounced as to make even would-be buyers of corn slow to purchase.

Corn, rye and oats were pulled down by wheat weakness. Wet weather unfavorable for corn planting and for oats progress had but little influence as a market counterbalance.

Provisions were bearishly affected by action both of grain and of hogs.

DR. CARLISLE F. FERRIN, NEW LONDON, DIES SUDDENLY MONDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 6— Dr. Carlisle F. Ferrin, 61, one of the best known practicing physicians in New London county, died suddenly from angina pectoris at his residence, 215 Glenwood avenue this morning. The death of the physician was a profound shock to his acquaintances, who, generally were not aware that the physician's heart was in a weakened condition. Dr. Ferrin was born in St. Johnsbury, Vt., April 22, 1868 and had been a resident of New London about 25 years, during the greater part of which time he was on the medical staff of Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

Dr. Ferrin was stricken about 2 o'clock this morning while attending a maternity case. His condition became such that Dr. George P. Cheney was summoned and prescribed for the physician and whe his condition improved slightly. Dr. Ferrin was taken to his home. About 6 o'clock Dr. Ferrin suffered anothe attack and although Dr. Cheney was in attendance and administered to the physician, Dr. Ferrin expired within a short time.

He is survived by his wife who was Winifred Douglas and whom he married at Reno several months ago, by his father, Dr. Chester M. Ferrin of Burlington; two sisters, Miss Carline Ferrin, Burlington; and Mrs. Lena Williams of Stamford; a niece, Miss Gladys Baker of Hartford and two nephews, Carlisle and Chester Graves, both of Stamford. He was a member of Jared R. Avery camp, No. 20, Sons of Veterans; Brainard lodge, No. 102, A. F. and A. M.; and the Thames club. He attended the Second Congregational church.

Dr. Ferrin's first wife was Blanche Eggleston, daughter of the late Julius and Catherine Eggleston, whom he married in this city June 2, 1926.

Dr. Ferrin was an ex-president of the New London City Medical society and of the New London County Medical society. He was a member of the Connecticut State Medical society and of the American Medical association. He was a republican in politics. For eight years he served as a member of the local school board. He opened offices here in 1895 shortly after having been graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia university. In 1891 he obtained his degree as master of arts from the University of Vermont.

CITY COURT CONSIDERS OVER HALF HUNDRED CASES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 6— A great number of cases claimed the attention of the police court this morning when that tribunal convened for there were over 50 cases to be disposed of, chiefly for violation of the city's parking ordinance, breach of the peace and intoxication.

Henry J. Kroth, submarine base sailor, was charged with driving while under influence of liquor, but the charge was amended to reckless driving and Kroth was fined $50 and costs.

Albertus Mather, Waterford, charged with reckless driving, was fined $10 and costs. Mather was driving his automobile on Bank street last Thursday night and when the car reached the intersection of Coleman street, it crashed against an auto driven by Douglas Wilbur, of Groton, the latter's automobile being overturned and the occupant thrown out.

Three cases of non-support were tried. The accused were Albert Saunders, Lester Perry and Frank Larkie. Saunders' case was nolled for he has arranged to contribute to his wife's support. The cases of Perry and Larkie were continued to Wednesday.

War Record Saved Him

Alex Young, North Bank street resident who attempted to beat Patrolman Dennis Murphy, Sunday, was charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. He was fined $10 on the first offense and a fine of $5 was imposed on the latter charge. A more severe penalty would have been imposed but from the fact that Young is a war veteran and has been gassed.

Stephen Korzak, U. S. Coast Guard, charged with breach of the peace, was fined $10. Korzak was on State street Saturday night and quarreled with W. L. Wilhelm, submarine base.

John Sullivan, Norwood, R. I., and Alfred Thereaux, Ashton, R. I., were charged with breach of the peace, the pair having engaged in a fight on Potter street Saturday night. Sullivan was sentenced to 10 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Thereaux was sentenced to 30 days in jail and his sentence, also was suspended.

Each Forfeited Bond

Harry A. Cook, 50 Faire Harbour place; Alonzo B. Nichols, 835 Bank street; Stuart Cruickshank, Bradford, R. I.; Gilbert Fahey, 284 Crystal avenue; Margaret Connors, 21 Berkley avenue; Michael Murawsky, Lyme; Augustus C. Stearns, Quaker Hill; Ernest T. Saunders, 26 Masonic street; Nicholas Kinasz, 60 Federal street; Theodore Gelinas, Moosup; Reginald M. Rowland, 31 Thames street; R. F. Shackleford, this city; Alexander Gamola, R. F. D. No. 2, Waterford; J. Einar Anderson, 16 Poquonoc road, Groton; J. Warren Kane, 337 Main street; Joseph Barone, 30 Montauk avenue; Max Fern, 1110 Ocean avenue; charged with parking overtime, failed to present themselves in court and their respective bonds of $2 were declared forfeited. Joseph Fatcato, West Hartford, charged with passing an automatic danger signal on Bank street, also failed to appear in court and forfeited his bond of $15. Frank Hedden, Bank street, charged with driving without a license in his possession, was discharged. A big batch of drunks drew penalties, the fines imposed ranging from $5 to $15. One man arrested failed to appear in court and his bond of $25 was forfeited.

Too Speedy For Lyme

John Hambro, 21 East 52nd street, New York and John E. Beery, 550 Lafayette street, Bridgeport, were arrested Sunday by State Police Officer John Smith, charged with reckless driving. Hambro was arrested in Lyme when he was driving at a speed of 55 miles an hour and crowding other autoists off the highway. He furnished a bond of $50 for his appearance in the Lyme justice court Wednesday night. Beery was also driving at a speed greater than 50 miles an hour when he was arrested in Waterford. He will be in that court Monday next.

One hundred and twenty school boys of Brooklyn, N. Y., arrived here this afternoon on one of the U. S. Coast Guard destroyers and will remain here a week for the purpose of receiving general instructions in coast guard routine.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Charles E. Chapel

Mrs. Ellen Melissa Chapel, 90, wife of Charles E. Chapel, died Sunday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Daisy Maher, 376 Bank street, after a long illness caused by infirmities attending her advanced years. Besides her husband and daughter, Mrs. Chapel is survived by three sons, Representative Fred I. Phillips, Montville; Wallace A. Phillips, also of Montville, and Dwight A. Phillips, New York. Mrs. Chapel was born in Waterford, June 16, 1838, the daughter of the late Gurdon and Eunice Haynes. She was twice married. Her first husband was Chester A. Phillips. Mrs. Phillips married Mr. Chapel July 22, 1903. She was a member of the Montville Baptist church.

Mrs. George E. Bitgood

Mrs. Lucy A. Bitgood, 48, wife of George E. Bitgood, died Sunday at her home, 244 Willets avenue. She had long been ill. Mrs. Bitgood is survived, besides her husband, by a son, George E. Bitgood, Jr.; a daughter, Lucille M. Bitgood and mother, Mrs. Laura Chapman, Mystic. Mrs. Bitgood was born in Plain Township, Ohio, the daughter of Laura L. Low and the late Martin W. Chapman. She was a member of the First Baptist church.

COAST GUARDSMAN'S CASE GOES OVER TO WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 6—Joseph C. Pazeratsky, U. S. Coast Guard, was in Waterford town court this morning charged with keeping a disorderly house, together with Max Roethlisburger, W. L. Matthews, Floyd Merker, Gilbert Noybre, George A. Smith, Ralph Collanzo and Orazi Garrien, the last named a woman and a resident of Shaw street, this city, all charged with frequenting. The case was continued to Wednesday next. Pazeratsky recently rented a house on the Boston Post road for the sole purpose of providing recreation for his friends. The nature of the business conducted by the coast guarder became known to the state police Saturday, three days after Pazeratsky had taken possession of the premises. When a gang of the sailors and the woman were known to be in the house, State Police Officers John Smith, Arthur Johnson and Peter Busch raided the resort and arrested all found there.

JAIL FOR TAXI DRIVER— WOMAN ORDERED TO LEAVE

Adrain VanYsseldyk, New London taxicab driver, charged with adultery and conducting a disorderly house; Mrs. Anna Langway, charged with adultery and Robert Champion, local restaurant waiter, charged with frequenting were presented. VanYsseldyk was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to six months in jail, but execution of the jail sentence was suspended. VanYsseldyk however, went to jail for he was unable to pay the fine and costs of the court. Mrs. Langway was sentenced to six months in jail but execution of the sentence was suspended upon the woman's promise to get out of Waterford. The charge against Champion was nolled.

The case of Joseph Naples, proprietor of a house at Woodland Grove, Waterford, charged with violation of the liquor law and the charges of frequenting against Mrs. Naples, Thomas Murphy, Douglas Helm, Henry Nessick, Joseph Nelson, 29 Kimberly avenue, New Haven and Marjorie Sandora, Station 7, Waterford, were continued a week. Naples and the frequenters were arrested last Wednesday night when state police officers raided the house, which had long been suspected of being a place where liquor was sold. Much evidence was obtained in the raid for a quantity of alcohol and many glasses, whiskey and beer, were seized by the raiding force.

COUNCIL TO ACQUIRE PAYNE PROPERTY BY LAW

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 6—At the city council meeting this evening it was voted to proceed with condemnation proceedings to acquire the Payne property for Coats Guard Academy purposes. The Payne estate demands a price of $50,000 for the land and the city committee offered $40,000. The offer was rejected. A committee of appraisers valued the property at $20,000. The committee representing the city later raised the offer to $25,000 which was rejected and then went to $40,000 which also was rejected. There is no contest over the Allyn property wanted for the same purpose, at $50,000. It was represented that the Coast Guard academy property would be worth a couple of million dollars and perhaps five or ten eventually.

The building zone ordinance was amended to permit the erection of an apartment house on Huntington street on the Stanton property and to permit the erection of houses and garages on Booth street. The amendment provides for a setback of 15 instead of 25 feet as the ordinance requires.

Sidewalks were petitioned for which will cost some $18,000, the city to pay half, the owners the other half. Money was provided to meet the expense of the city from the public bond issue No. 4.

A right of way was acquired over Mercer field for drainage purposes.

A petition for a sewer on Cedar Grove avenue from Ledyard street was asked for and the ordinance read the first time.

The sum of $2,400 was apportioned for the provision of a sub-police station at Ocean Beach.

The tax collector presented his report for the year, showing that his fees were $25,000 out of which he paid $2,500 for office help.

The council voted $1,000 for land at Green's harbor beach, which it acquired from Lawrence-Memorial hospital under agreement.

Roberts-Frink Co. sought lease of property on Jefferson avenue, formerly occupied by Columbia Leather Co. for the manufacture of chocolate candy, at $50 a month, for two years.

The city voted to buy coal from the various dealers.

George H. Crandall and James H. Burns petitioned for the franchise to run a motor boat instead of the ferry that has been running. They proposed to run the boat until Oct. 15, leaving New London at 6:30 in the morning for the first trip and Groton at 9:30 at night on the last trip. Referred to committee.

Applications to erect more than a score of buildings were acted upon. They included dwellings, garages, etc.

The need of a federal building in New London to accommodate all government offices was brought before the council. Councilman Fox was appointed a committee of one to represent the council in the matter. The necessity for such a building was very forcefully demonstrated but it was shown that all the facts were in possession of the government and had been for years. The demand for public buildings comes to the government from all cities in the country and the best favor New London could hope for would be to be put on the preferred list, on which now there are 200 names.

Representative Fox declared that the taking of the mayor and governor from the rivers-harbors and bridges commission was brought about by a scheme on the part of two New Londoners. He has moved in the legislature for the recalling of that measure and it will be before the legislature tomorrow. He said the mayor of this city has been a member of the commission for 18 years, since it was established, and that in fairness he and the governor should still be on the commission, since the opportunities of New London during the next two years will be greater than ever before.

KILLINGLY, OLD LYME, DRIVERS JOIN THE LIST

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 6—Several more violators of the city's parking laws were arrested this afternoon and evening, all being charged with parking overtime. They are S. G. Brown, Old Lyme; Harry Beaman, Killingly; Louis Alderman, New Haven; Nathan Morris, 500 Ocean avenue and William G. Griswold, 210 Huntington street. Each posted a bond of $2 for his court appearance tomorrow.

D. A. R. CHAPTER LUNCHEON— PRESIDENT-GENERAL GUEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 6—The annual spring luncheon of Lucretia Shaw chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution was held today at the Hotel Mohican. The affair was opened with a reception at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Fletcher Hobart, president-general of the organization, was the guest of honor and the principal speaker. The guests numbered 212 and came from Norwich, Hartford, West Hartford, New Haven, Derby, Groton, Mystic and Colchester.

The Goshen minstrels plan a performance at Bulkeley auditorium for the benefit of the Italian Ladies' Aid society. The production will be under the direction of M. Charles Rovetti.

The sale of two lots owned by Paoli Peroni of Groton, has been postponed. The owner has assured Tax Collector Henry E. Marquardt, that the amount due the borough will be paid.

GERTRUDE W. MANWARING LEFT NUMBER OF BEQUESTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 6—The will of Gertrude W. Manwaring, late of Waterford, was admitted to probate today by Judge Prince, and bequests of $8,250 were made. Testator bequeaths to the First Baptist church of Waterford $3,000 in trust to be used as necessary for the upkeep and care of the institution and the maintenance of a burial lot where many members of the family are interred. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Patrons of the Palace theatre have a treat in store for them. "The Shakedown," an unusual screen play of widely heralded excellence, will be shown on the Palace's screen beginning today. It was made by Universal with James Murray and Barbara Kent in the featured roles.

The story, written by the veteran newspaper and screen writer, Charles A. Logue, is built around the crooked fight racket. It discloses how unscrupulous boxing managers stage fake fights with "set-ups" in order to milk the unsuspecting public with "sure" bets. There is a delightful love story and a succession of human interest touches which give the picture great appeal.

James Murray, remembered for his work in "The Crowd," "The Big City" and "In Old Kentucky," plays the part of a young oil well rigger in "The Shakedown." His character undergoes a surprising development that adds great interest to the story. Miss Kent, the heroine, is the girl who played in "Lonesome," in "Flesh and the Devil," "The Drop Kick," "The Small Bachelor," "That's My Daddy" and "Stop That Man."

On the same program, Hoot Gibson, the daredevil western star, hero of a thousand and one thrills, will return here for another engagement of furious, fast-riding fun with the opening of "The Danger Rider," his latest picture for Universal.

Gibson's career of daring on the screen is not all that has won him fame with the public, it is said. There is something in the cowboy's personality, an interesting mixture of romance, comedy and adventure, that has helped make him one of the screen's most popular western stars.

In "The Danger Rider" Hoot's personality is said to be more likeable than ever.

The story depicts the star as the son of a prison warden who poses as a notorious criminal to win the heart of a girl whom he has never seen but with whose photograph he has fallen in love.

Breed Theatre

Scoring an emphatic hit, the new Pathe picture, "Show Folks," a backstage love romance will be shown today for the last times at the Breed theatre. The production, directed by Paul L. Stein and featuring Eddie Quillan, Lina Basquette, Robert Armstrong, Bessie Barriscale and Carol Lombard, is beyond doubt the best exemplar of theatrical life seen here this season.

The story deals with the doings of several vaudeville players known as the hoofer, the feeder, the old trouper, the talent scout, the baby-doll vamp and the like familiar to every professional stage performer. Eddie Quillan as the hoofer provided much enjoyable comedy and the dancing of Miss Basquette as the feeder was quite artistic. Robert Armstrong was excellent in his portrayal of a manager. Miss Barriscale, who returns to the screen after years of retirement, and Miss Lombard as the baby-doll vamp were fully up to standard. The direction was all that could be asked for.

No one can see "Show Folks" without thorough enjoyment. It has snap all the way through and the various situations have been cleverly handled. The photography by Peverell Marley and David Abel was eminently satisfactory.

Broadway Theatre

The most substantial defiance yet thrown at the scoffers who said of the talking motion picture "it will never become as effective as the stage" was projected on the audible screen at the Broadway theatre Sunday night.

"Nothing But the Truth" is the funniest screen play the silversheet has given us in many a long day—and it doesn't depend upon slap-stick for its laughs. It is "Look and Listen" entertainment of the highest type and Richard Dix's voice is an excellent one for the talking screen.

The play deals with a young man who makes a wager of $10,000 that he can tell the truth for 24 hours. The farce situations arising from the bet are seemingly endless. In order to win the bet he finds himself telling his sweetheart that he was in love once before with a weight-lifting woman of the circus, telling his boss that he is an unscrupulous businessman and a "night-life hound," telling a beautiful singer at a house party that he thinks her singing is terrible, and getting himself into all kinds of laugh-evoking jams.

Richard Dix proves to have a superior capacity for the requirements of the role of the truth-teller. He gives a fine comedy portrayal without recourse to buffoonery. Helen Kane as a member of a singing sister-act, is winsome, appealing, and excruciatingly funny. Her baby-talk songs are a big part of the show.

Louis John Bartels, Ned Sparks and Berton Churchill, as the friends who make the wager with Dix, are excellent, as are the others in the cast.

Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission

A Revelation Even to Expert Drivers —Indispensable to the Inexperienced

NO other car gives you this protection and handling ease . . . Eliminates all gear-shifting annoyances. Quick, quiet, clashless.

Here—in Cadillac and La Salle—is a transmission which literally thrills the driver with its responsiveness and ease of operation.

Men who have been driving for years have commented that it is "almost uncanny" in its accomplishments. And women are regarding it as such an amazing advantage in shifting and handling-ease that they cannot afford to dispense with it.

With this transmission—the Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh—you can actually shift gears at any speed without any hesitancy. With your finger tips you make just one gentle movement from gear to gear with the lever.

There is never the slightest suggestion of clashing gears. The operation is positively silent.

Gear shifting with this transmission is so much easier and simpler that, in these days of high speed and congested traffic, the Syncro-Mesh is nothing less than a transforming contribution to greater handling ease and safety.

No matter how well satisfied you may be with your own transmission, or what your experience as a driver may be, we urge you to try the Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission. It is found only in Cadillac-La Salle cars.

And while you are trying it, by all means give the Cadillac-La Salle Brakes a thoroughgoing test. These Duplex-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes are as great an advance as the Transmission—more powerful, yet completely responsive to the slightest pressure on the brake pedal—a real contribution to masterful control and greater safety.

A thorough examination would reveal also that when the brake pedal is released there is never that unconscious drag to the brakes—the cause of much needless friction and wear in cars not so equipped. These brakes, too, are found only in Cadillac-La Salle cars.

You will find still another indispensable factor of safety in Cadillac-La Salle—Non-Shatterable Security-Plate Glass. It is in all windows, doors and windshields and gives you and your family full protection from the danger of flying glass.

These invaluable advantages are standard equipment in all Cadillac-La Salle cars and are offered with no extra charge whatever.

. . . Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values. Cadillac-La Salle delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing.

808

LA SALLE—$2295. La Salle is just as easy to purchase as many cars of far less value and far less prestige. And it is far more economical to operate. It is priced from $2295 to $2875. Cadillac $3295 to $3995. All prices f. o. b. Detroit. The General Motors Deferred Payment Plan makes it possible for you to enjoy your Cadillac or La Salle at once and pay out of income.

CHILDREN TO RECEIVE FIRST COMMUNION ASCENSION DAY

At St. Mary's Memorial church the following announcements were made by the pastor, Rev. William A. Keefe: Confessions will be heard on Wednesday afternoon and evening. Thursday being the Feast of the Ascension of Our Lord into heaven, a holy day of obligation; it will also be the annual day set apart for the first holy communion class. About 80 children have entered a three days retreat beginning Monday morning to prepare for the ceremony. The retreat is being given by Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor.

Mrs. Michael Shea has returned to her home on North Main street after spending a week at the home of her sister at Taftville.

WEDDING.

Bujnowski-Dombrowski.

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Joseph's church Monday morning at 8 o'clock when Miss Genevieve Dombrowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Dombrowski of Versailles, was united in marriage by Rev. S. A. Iclek to Zygmont Bujnowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bujnowski of 760 Boswell avenue. The church was prettily decorated with palms and choice flowers. The bride was charmingly attired in a white satin gown with shadow lace, wore a tulle veil, caught up with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Blanche Bujnowski, a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and she was prettily attired in a gown of orchid crepe trimmed with maline and her bouquet consisted of roses and sweet peas. Miss Anna Lorello and Wandea Simkowski were maids of honor, gowned in pink georgette with picture hats to match. Arthur Dombrowski of New Jersey, a brother of the groom, acted as best man. The ushers were Joseph Grabowski and Thomas Toomey, Jr. Miss Helen Poyerd was flower girl and Frank Konikowski was ringbearer. After the church ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents with 200 guests present from New Britain, New Jersey, Providence, Fall River and Norwich. During the afternoon and evening dancing was enjoyed until a late hour at the Versailles Community hall with the music being furnished by Kapp's Syncopators. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts, including gold, silverware, pieces of furniture, linen and checks for substantial amounts. Mr. and Mrs. Bujnowski left for a two weeks' honeymoon trip to New York city, Atlantic City and Pittsburgh. The bride presented to the groom a beautiful stick pin while in return he presented the bride a beautiful string of pearls. The bride's present to the bridesmaid and maid of honor was a beautiful set of pearl rosary beads. The groom gave to the best man and ushers a set of gold cuff links. The newly married couple have a large circle of friends in this vicinity who wish them happiness and prosperity in their newly married life.

Requiem Masses Offered.

Requiem masses offered at St. Mary's Memorial church this past week were as follows: On Monday morning at 7 o'clock, a memorial mass for the soul of Miss Marie Josephine White, requested by the Young Ladies' Sodality of which the deceased was a member. On Tuesday morning at 7.30 a month's mind for Edward C. McDionough. Both of these masses were offered by the pastor, Rev. William A. Keefe. Relatives and family friends were present at the services. The musical program of the masses were in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, organist.

Peter Mitchell of White Plains, N. Y., is spending a few days at the home of his sister, Mrs. Timothy Brennan on Boswell avenue.

Thomas Mitchell of Ware, Mass., is spending a few days at the home of his brother, Patrick Mitchell, on Boswell avenue.

NET GRAND LIST OF CITY FOR TAXATION PURPOSES IS $36,078,821

The three city assessors, Alderman Harold Dahl, Councilman Charles A. Hagberg and Tax Collector Harold T. Robinson, have just completed their work by signing the abstract book which has been completed by Registrar Tyler D. Guy.

The completed figures show that the net grand list of the city for purposes of taxation is $36,078,821. The gross list was $36,322,401, from which there were exemptions of $243,580 to be deducted, leaving the net list at the figure stated.

The preparation and completion of the abstract book by Registrar Guy has been a work calling for the careful assembling of a mass of figures, which are separated into different classifications. This has all been done very expeditiously by Mr. Guy and the completed abstract book is a very creditable piece of work.

The following shows the number of pieces and the valuations under the different classes of property:

	No.	Valuation
Dwelling houses	3,721 1-2	$13,113,177
Sheds, barns, garages	2,596 1-2	725,805

SHOP MEETING TALK ON "FREEDOM OF THOUGHT"

At noon Monday under Y. M. C. A. auspices at the Richmond Radiator Co., another interesting meeting was held.

Rev. C. H. Ricketts was the speaker, and he announced as his topic, "Freedom of Thought." Mr. Ricketts stated that the topic was suggested to his mind by the unfortunate occurrence at the union meeting under Y. M. C. A. auspices with the churches uniting on a recent Sunday evening when Margaret Slattery was the speaker.

The "Y" representatives, the ministers and Judge Libby all manifested a lenient spirit, but the intruder who disturbed the meeting was given to understand by the judge that such actions would not be tolerated in the future. Our constitution grants the right for individuals to "worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences," and this is as it should be. The Apostles did not all agree in everything, but they were big enough men to co-operate with each other for the good of all. This young man evidently thinks that unless everybody swings into line with his particular beliefs, they will be damned. The question is, shall we work in harmony or shall we develop discord with others in the work of the Kingdom? My father was a Methodist; my mother was an Episcopalian; my sister was a Baptist, and I am a Congregationalist, but this caused no discord in our family life. So long as we all believe in the one great Master, that is the essential thing. We must all have charity for others, even though we may differ with them at times, declared Rev. Mr. Ricketts.

COUNTY DELEGATION AT LUNCHEON AT MIDDLETOWN

New London county was represented by a good sized delegation in Middletown Monday to attend the annual luncheon of the Connecticut Girls' Protective council, at which Miss Henrietta Addison of New York was the principal speaker. Her subject was "A Programme for Protective Measures for Towns and Small Cities."

The New London county delegation included: Mrs. William G. Park, Hanover; Miss Abby G. Willard, Colchester; Mrs. Alice Hunt, Niantic; Miss Alice R. Ramage, Uncasville; Mrs. Sadie D. Harrison, New London; Mrs. Emma Harding, Norwich; Mrs. Daniel Polsky, Norwich; Mrs. Hubert Dart, Oakdale; Mrs. Albert Avery, Uncasville; Mrs. J. Y. Miller, Uncasville; Mrs. Jacob Wechsler, Jewett City; Mrs. Edward Caroline, Norwich; Mrs. Marion Phillips, New London; Miss Della Moroney, New London; Mrs. Jane Cassidy, New London; Mrs. Stanley Davis, Lyme; Mrs. Witter K. Tingley, Norwich. Betsey Mitchell is chairman for New London county.

Continuance in Snurkowski Case

Testimony was taken in the city court Monday morning from Elmer M. Wright of Plainfield, N. J., with whose automobile a machine driven by John Snurkowski of 19 Prospect park was in collision Saturday night in the Thamesville section below the city line. Snurkowski is charged with driving under the influence of liquor and the case was continued till Wednesday to allow him to summon more witnesses.

Given Miscellaneous Shower

Many Norwich guests attended a miscellaneous shower given Sunday afternoon in the Willimantic synagogue for Miss Mingie Bycel of Brooklyn, N. Y., formerly of Willimantic, who is to be married in Brooklyn on June 9 to Max Sugerman.

Mr. Sugerman was formerly with the A. Werman & Son Inc. shoe factory in this city and is now at their New York factory.

Young Burglars Caught

Two boys, 7 and 10 years old, were arrested by the police Monday morning and from them were recovered the articles they had stolen Sunday afternoon from the Harley-Davidson Motorcycle company place at 167 North Main street. These consisted of a watch valued at $9, a motor helmet, two boxes of electric bulbs and two pair of driving gloves. The boys got in through a cellar door. They live not far from the motor cycle store.

HIT AND RUN DRIVER SMASHED INTO WAGON

A hit and run driver in an automobile struck and demolished the horse-drawn wagon of George Strong, colored, of 103 High street on the Norwich-New London road near the Uncas-on-Thames entrance about 9:30 Monday night. Strong was thrown into the highway and was found lying there by two taxi drivers named Mills and Redhead who brought him to police headquarters. They secured the registration numbers of a machine which drove off in the direction of New London as they came up, but it was later found by the police that this was not the car that hit Strong's wagon.

State Policeman Arthur Whitmarsh is investigating the case.

Strong suffered a bad bruise on the top of his head, but it is believed was not otherwise injured.

PAID $200 FINE FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

In the city court Monday morning, Ralph Cloutier, 40, of Boston was fined $200 and costs on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and a continuance of six months was granted in the case of his wife, Roxanna Cloutier, of Taftville, on an intoxication charge. They were arrested in Thames street Sunday night where Cloutier was driving a machine with Massachusetts registration.

Cloutier sold the automobile Monday afternoon to Officer Clifford Crary and with the money raised that way and the help of his wife was able to pay his fine and costs amounting to $213.36.

TO ANSWER SPEEDING CHARGE IN WORCESTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., May 5—Robert H. Blanchard, 25, of Norwich, Conn., who gave his occupation as manager, was booked on an automobile law charge for appearance Monday morning in court after being arrested in Auburn on the Putnam-Norwich state road.

Blanchard was charged by State Patrolman Hazeltine with failing to slow down at Drury Square, Auburn, a central intersection, where the officer claimed that the Norwich man was driving at an excessive speed.

The arrest was one of more than 200 in the past few days in an automobile law enforcement drive.

Sunday Meeting at the Y. M. C. A.

On Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building a very interesting service with moving pictures was held.

The picture shown was the first half of James K. Shields' fine production, "A Maker of Men." During the service General Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk and spoke in part as follows: "This story, 'A Maker of Men,' suggests the building of manhood. While we all know there are many splendid men and women in our land, yet we also know that one of America's greatest needs is that we build more manhood and yet more. How can we develop true and noble manhood and womanhood? It is not an easy thing to do; it means sacrifices. It takes very strong will power. Yes, one must have a strong determined will if he is to build successfully true and noble manhood, but he must have something else besides; he must have the help of God Almighty in his struggle for the highest and the best. Alone you cannot achieve in this realm. It takes all the grit and will power you have, plus the gracious help of the Omnipotent One."

A Correction in W. R. C. Honors

A mistake and omission in the honors conferred on Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps, No. 16, was made in the report given The Bulletin regarding the Woman's Relief Corps department convention at New London. Honors received were: Mrs. Jayne Seed, first member of the executive board of the department of Connecticut W. R. C., and Mrs. D. Louise Atterbury as second member of the board.

At the G. A. R. campfire Thursday night, Mrs. Atterbury, who is department patriotic instructor, presented a handsome flag to Rev. Chester J. Armstrong, pastor of the Danielson Baptist church, also a bronze tablet of Lincoln's Gettysburg address to the First Baptist church of New London, which was accepted by Rev. Chester H. Howe.

Near the close of the convention, Mrs. Althea Brown, president of Sedgwick corps, No. 16, presented Mrs. Atterbury with a gift on behalf of the corps.

Fined in City Court

In the city court Monday morning John F. Jones of Canterbury turnpike, was fined $5 and costs for driving a motor vehicle without a license. He was arrested Saturday night by Constable Louis Paquette, after an accident Saturday night on Norwich avenue, Taftville. Jones stopped his machine behind a trolley car which had stopped and an automobile owned by Charles Tatro ran into the right side of his car.

DANBURY WILL ENTERTAIN K. OF C. STATE CONVENTION

McGivney Council, No. 29, of Danbury, has made arrangements for the annual state convention of the Knights of Columbus which will be held May 13 and 14. State Deputy M. Edward Haggerty of Greenwich, who has made visits to every district during the year, will preside at the convention and his report will show that in membership Connecticut ranks ninth out of a total of 61 jurisdictions. Some of the largest jurisdictions during the year fell off materially in the amount of money collected and remitted to the home office, but Connecticut increased the amount sent to the home office during the year by over 10 per cent over the previous year and in this respect ranks third among all the jurisdictions. About 1,000 members were received into the Order up to April first and by the end of the fiscal year, July first, it is anticipated that this number will be increased to at least 1,500.

LECTURED ON DAIRYING BEFORE STONINGTON GRANGE

Stonington grange held an open meeting at the hall in the road district Friday evening to afford the dairymen in this vicinity the opportunity to hear the lecture on Dairying by Professor A. R. Merrill, a prominent authority on this subject and from the Department of Dairy Husbandry at Connecticut Agricultural college.

Professor Merrill's talk was thoroughly interesting and most instructive, comprising all the divisions of successful dairying. A good sized attendance also enjoyed a musical program, as follows:

Song, "America, the Beautiful," by the grange members. Violin solo, "In the Springtime," with encore by Pheobe Denison, piano accompaniment by Mrs. Joseph P. Noyes. Vocal solo, "Virginia," "Carolina Moon," by Mrs. Grace Cronin, also accompanied by Mrs. Joseph P. Noyes. Harmonica solo, with encore by Mr. Charles Mell. Vocal solos, "I Love a Little Cottage," "Smiling Through," by Miss Catherine Scott, piano accompaniment by Mrs. William Scott. Finale, song by the grange members.

Coffee and cakes were then served for refreshments, followed by dancing in both round and square sets.

Trout In Baltic

A young Baltic lad showed an old timer how to hook a wary trout in a stream that runs under Main street, Baltic, over the weekend. The old timer had fished in the pool under the dam for an hour, when the lad made his appearance and tried his luck. In a short time he landed a 13-inch trout.

WEDDING

Dupuis-Fournier

Before an attractively decorated altar and in the presence of a large gathering of guests, many who came from Providence, R. I., Lowell, Mass., Boston, Mass., and Stafford, Miss Blanche E. Fournier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fournier of Providence street, became the bride of William T. Dupuis, son of Arthur Dupuis of lower Norwich avenue, at a nuptial high mass celebrated at Sacred Heart church Monday morning at 8 o'clock by Rev. Francis X. Chicoine, assistant pastor, who also performed the marriage ceremony which preceded it. Miss Alice Frechette, organist at the church, was at the organ, and as the wedding party entered the church played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. The bride was most attractive in a gown of white satin trimmed with Spanish lace. She wore a bridal veil of tulle and carried a bouquet of white roses with a shower of lilies-of-the-valley. She was attended as maid-of-honor by Miss Rita Faucher, who wore peach georgette with hat to match and carried tea roses. The best man was Anthony Fournier, brother of the bride.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fournier a wedding breakfast and reception was held after the nuptials at the church, and many relatives and friends were in attendance. The display of gifts was lavish. During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Dupuis, who are well known among the younger set of the village, left on a wedding trip in their automobile to Vermont and New Hampshire, and when they return they will reside on Providence street.

TILSON SAYS TARIFF BILL IS GOOD FOR NEW ENGLAND

Republican Leader in the House Declares the New Bill, With a Few Exceptions, is a Satisfactory One—Advances in Duties is Proposed in the Case of Cotton Goods, Particularly Those of the Finer Grades—Mr. Tilson Avers That the Bill Keeps Entire Faith With the Promise Made in the Republican National Platform.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, May 7—Representative Tilson, commenting on the tariff bill and its effect on New England today, said: "I think the bill as a whole has done all it could for the industries of New England, and is, on the whole, an excellent measure. Some of the tariff rates are raised more than I should have personally advised, had I been a member of the committee. That is especially true of certain lumber and sugar. But the republican tariff has made a prosperous country in the past and I believe the new bill, with few exceptions, is a satisfactory one. It has done much for the farmers and in my opinion keeps entire faith with the promise made in the republican national platform."

VOLUMINOUS TARIFF BILL PRESENTED IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—A readjustment of the protective tariff structure set up seven years ago after the republicans took control of the government was proposed by the majority members of the ways and means committee in a voluminous bill presented today to the house and designed to replace the Fordney-McCumber law of 1922.

Substantial increases in rates designed to afford greater protection to American farmers, sugar producers, wool growers and many manufacturing industries were recommended, although some schedules, notably those dealing with tobacco and spirits, were left unchanged. Few alterations were proposed in other schedules, dealing with books and paper, and iron and steel.

The increases generally accredited on Capitol Hill with being of the greatest moment to the people, were 64 one-hundredths of a cent a pound on Cuban raw sugar, with the new rate 2.40 cents a pound, and three cents a pound on raw wool, with the new rate 34 cents.

Compensatory increases in practically all manufactures of wool, including clothing, blankets, and the like, were proposed, with like increases effecting molasses, maple sugar, syrups and sugars.

Although raw cotton would be left on the free list by the bill, substantial advances in duties were proposed in the case of cotton goods, more particularly those of the finer grades, with the explanation that the purpose is to improve conditions in the New England textile industry as far as may be possible by means of the tariff.

The bill proposes no change in the rate on pig iron.

Long staple cotton would be left on the free list.

No limitation would be placed on the present free importation of sugar from the Philippine Islands.

A three cents per pound increase on raw wool imports would be provided.

The bill would practically double existing rates of beef imports.

An increase from 15 cents to 25 cents per bushel was recommended on corn imports.

There would be no change in the rate on oats, rye, wheat and flour.

Changes proposed on other articles compared with the existing rates included:

Raw wool (clean content) bill rate 34c pound; present rate 31c. Fresh beef and veal, 6c pound, 3c. Fresh lamb 7c pound, 4c. Fresh pork 2 1-2c pound, 1-4c. Cream, 45c gallon, 2 1-2c. Sweetened condensed milk, 2 1-4c pound, 1 1-2c. Oleomargarine, 12c pound, 8c. Cheese, 7c pound, 5c. Rice (brown), 1 1-2c pound, 1 1-4c. Cherries (sulphured, with stems and tips) 3 1-2c pound and no comparison. Maraschino cherries 5 1-2c and 40 per cent. Cherries (stems tied and pits removed) 9 1-2c pound and no comparison.

No change was suggested in the tariff on cattle on the hoof.

The new bill would make no changes in the rates on apples, cherries, and fish.

The bill would make no change in the present rate of 50 cents per ton on sugar beets.

The rate changes proposed in the tariff measure were agreed upon by republican members of the house ways and means committee. These members met in executive session for weeks and democrats were not permitted to be present.

The bill now must be referred back to the committee for formal approval. At that time democrats will be present but as republicans have a majority on the committee against protests the minority members might make are expected to be voted down.

A conference of republicans to determine the procedure under which the bill will be considered in the house probably will be called Thursday.

Other changes would be:

Commodity, peanuts (unshelled); bill rate, 4 1-4 cents a pound; present rate, 3 cents.

Commodity, peanuts (shelled); bill rate, 6 cents a pound; present rate, 4 cents.

Commodity, beans (dried); bill rate, 1 1-2 cents a pound; present rate, 1 1-4 cents.

Commodity, beans (green or unripe) bill rate, 2 1-2 cents a pound; present rate, 1-2 cent.

Commodity, soy beans; bill rate, 3 cents a pound; present rate, 1-2 cent.

Commodity, flaxseed; bill rate, 54 cents per bushel; present rate, 40 cents.

Commodity, onions; bill rate, 1 1-4 cents a pound; present rate, 1 cent.

Commodity, tomatoes; bill rate, 2 cents a pound; present rate 1-2 cent.

Commodity, mushrooms; bill rate, 60 per cent advalorem; present rate, 45 per cent.

Commodity, almonds (unshelled); bill rate, 5 1-2 cents a pound; present rate, 4 3-4 cents.

Commodity, almonds (shelled); bill rate, 16 1-2 cents a pound; present rate, 14 cents.

The bill would provide for no change in jute, now on the free list. No change would be made in any tobacco products.

Shingles, now on the free list, would bear a duty of 25 per cent ad valorem.

Turpentine and rosin would remain on the free list.

Hides and leather would be left on the free list and no duty would be placed on boots and shoes which now are also on the free list.

A one-half cent increase per pound would be provided for grape fruit.

No changes were proposed in the rates on white potatoes, oranges, lemons, raisins, peaches and peas.

The rate on hydraulic cement, now on the free list, would be placed at eight cents per hundred pounds.

Besides being no change in the sugar beet rate, no change was proposed for other beets.

The duty on brown rice was stepped up from 1 1-4 cents a pound to 1 1-2 cents a pound, with a quarter of a cent a pound added to the duty on rough rice, fixing the rate at 1 1-4 cents a pound.

Rate on butter is placed at 12 cents a pound as at present under the operation of the flexible tariff, with the same duty proposed on oleomargarine and other substitutes.

The duty on fresh milk would be doubled with the rate at five cents a gallon, while the rate on cream would be advanced from 20 cents a gallon to 48 cents a gallon.

Among the manufactured cotton rate changes, for which no comparative figures were immediately available were the following:

Cotton yarn (not bleached) of numbers not exceeding number 90, 5 per cent ad valorem and in addition thereto for each number, 3-10 of one per cent; exceeding number 90, 32 per cent ad valorem.

Cotton yarn (bleached), of numbers not exceeding number 90, ten cent ad valorem and in addition thereto for each number 3-10 of one per cent; exceeding number 90, 37 per cent ad valorem.

No change in cotton sewing thread.

Crochet, embroidery, darning and knitting cottons put up for handwork in lengths not exceeding 840 yards 25 per cent ad valorem.

Cotton cloth (not bleached) containing yarns the average number of which does not exceed number 90, ten per cent ad valorem and of one per cent ad valorem; exceeding number 90, 41 1-2 per cent ad valorem.

Cotton cloth (bleached) containing yarns not exceeding number 90, 13 per cent ad valorem and in addition for each number 35-100 of one per cent; exceeding number 90 44 1-2 per cent ad valorem.

Cotton cloth, printed, dyed or colored, containing yarns the average number of which does not exceed number 90, 16 per cent ad valorem and in addition for each number 35-100 of one per cent ad valorem; exceeding number 90, 47 1-2 per cent.

Common battern pile fabrics, if velveteens, 62 1-2 per cent ad valorem; if corduroys, plushes or chenilles 50 per cent; if terry woven 60 per cent.

NOTHING NEW IN THE REPARATIONS NEGOTIATIONS

PARIS, May 7—(AP)—Private conversations between the heads of the different expert delegations today developed nothing new in the reparations settlement negotiations except that the British are now indisposed toward the plan suggested by Owen D. Young because it changes the percentages under which it was decided in the original Spa meeting to divide the reparations receipts among the creditors.

There has been a notable change in tone on the part of the French press concerning Mr. Young's proposal. Careful computation seems to have convinced financial writers that his plan would give France something like 43,000,000,000 francs (approximately $1,720,000,000) for the purpose of reducing her internal debt.

The debt situation is still surrounded with confusion and uncertainty, however, because the Germans are withholding their conditions.

Statement of these is promised for tomorrow and the question of failure or success for the conference may take definite shape before tomorrow night.

RULE WOULD REGULATE MOTION PICTURE BOOKINGS

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—Drastic regulation of motion picture bookings was proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa.

Altered in some respects from a similar measure he sponsored previously, Brookhart said the bill was designed to "outlaw blind booking, block booking and arbitrary allocation of films" and to give the small theatre owner the right of choosing what pictures to buy. It would make unlawful "unfair and oppressive measures employed by the great producers and distributors in their competitive warfare against independent producers."

Brookhart said he had assurances the bill would receive favorable consideration in the interstate commerce committee, to which it was referred, and that it would be reported out of the committee in time for action at this session of congress.

YALE SENIOR WAS ARRESTED FOR SPEEDING

NEW HAVEN, May 7—(AP)—Kenrick Samson Gillespie, 22, Morristown, N. J., Yale college senior, will appear in city court tomorrow to answer two charges of violation of the motor vehicle laws following his arrest tonight for speeding and being without proper operator's license.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BERLIN, May 7—(AP)—Official police figures state that 24 persons, of whom five were women, were killed during the last week's May day riots.

RIGA, Lithuania, May 7—(AP)—The young nephew of Premier Waldemaras, wounded last night during an attempt to assassinate his uncle, died this afternoon.

NAPLES, Italy, May 7—(AP)—The body of Mrs. Annie T. Young of Boston, who died at Sorrento on April 30, was sent to the United States yesterday on the steamship Giulia.

LONDON, May 7—(AP)—The social career of Helen Wills, who will be presented at court on Thursday, meant less to her yesterday than her practice game at the London Tennis club.

HOOVER PLEASED WITH DISARMAMENT PROSPECTS

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—Greatly pleased by the results of the recent session of the preparatory disarmament conference at Geneva, President Hoover contemplates prompt action to determine the manner in which further discussions can be initiated.

The chief executive today expressed his gratification at "the promising character" of the negotiations just concluded at Geneva. He was particularly pleased that the principal naval powers, as he saw the situation, had adhered to the suggestions of Ambassador Hugh Gibson, who led the American delegation.

The president regards as one of the most pleasing factors of the conference what he considers a general agreement upon the American conception of reduction of naval strength rather than mere limitation and he is encouraged by what he interprets as a desire for a full and frank discussion of the problems presented and the development of Ambassador Gibson's suggestion into a practical step.

The question of replacing the term "limitation" by "reduction" was emphasized by Hoover before the Geneva session began and occupied a prominent place in the speech which Gibson made in outlining American ideas. President Hoover regards the essential question of naval reduction as the determination of a basis for revaluating fighting strength. This, he believes, is not a question of tonnage alone but includes speed, arms, armament, age and other factors in connection with any vessels under consideration.

CONTRIBUTORY CAUSES TO SINKING OF VESTRIS

LONDON, May 7—(AP)—Stormy weather and inflow of water from an unknown source were suggested today as probable contributory causes in the sinking of the liner Vestris last November by witnesses before the board of trade court inquiry.

Third Officer Welland expressed the belief that the pressure of wind on her quarter prevented the vessel from keeping her course. He described the tumultuous seas then running and particularly one great wave which struck the Vestris with full force and caused her to lurch heavily.

The ship never recovered from this blow, he said. It displaced life boats, smashed the lee rails and hurled some of the motor cars in the cargo through a bulkhead.

Captain Carey, drowned master of the ship, had sent him to seek the source of the inflowing water. Welland was unable to get down through the hatches but heard no sound of water in the holds.

When counsel suggested that this inflow of water which had never been located, might have been the cause of the vessel's sinking, Welland replied that he thought so too.

TO INVESTIGATE CHARGES AGAINST MEXICAN REBELS

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—The federal grand jury that will sit during the morning hours of this month was convened today and at once began investigation of charges of a conspiracy to effect the departure to Europe of a fugitive rebel from Mexico.

The alleged fugitive is Salvador Ateca, former rebel paymaster and gambling concessionaire who was arrested in possession of a black bag containing about three quarters of a million dollars. Mexican officials charged was looted from Mexican banks and the treasury of the state of Chihuahua.

With Ateca were arrested his secretary, Antoneo Maquero; Russell Mathews, assistant director of immigration for the El Paso, Texas, district; and W. H. Fryer, former assistant United States attorney at El Paso.

Ateca and Maquero are held without bail; Matthews and Fryer are at liberty under bail of $2,500 each. Mathews was in Washington today conferring with officials of the labor department, which he asserted on his arrest had ordered him to accompany Ateca from Texas to New York to see that he got out of the country. Fryer said he accompanied Ateca as his counsel.

SLAYER OF SON-IN-LAW AWAITS JURY ACTION

AMARILLO, Tex., May 7—(AP)—A. R. H. Hamilton, prominent attorney, awaited action by the grand jury here for the killing of Tom Walton, Jr., 21, who secretly married Hamilton's 19 year old daughter, Theresa. The body of the slain youth was buried today at McAlester, Okla.

The funeral was conducted by the order of Demolay, to which Walton belonged. Mrs. Grace Walton accompanied her son's body to McAlester, where the family formerly lived. She was prostrated by grief and physicians said her condition was serious.

Walton's young widow remained in Austin, Tex., in the care of her mother and an elder sister, Helen.

She would not discuss her attitude toward her father, who shot Walton to death at his law office here Saturday when the youth called to announce the secret wedding which took place last February.

HARRY F. SINCLAIR IN DRUG ROOM OF JAIL

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—Harry F. Sinclair, accustomed to operations in the oil industry involving huge sums, today assisted the physician of the Washington jail to perform a minor surgical operation on one of the inmates in his new role as pharmacist at that institution.

Beginning the first full day of his three months sentence for refusing to answer questions put to him by a senate committee, the oil man was assigned to the drug room because of being a registered pharmacist. He followed that profession for several years, having studied pharmacy at the University of Kansas in 1897, and that

Balloonists Tell Story Of Hardships

Had Fought Two Days Against Snow, Forest Cold and Partial Starvation.

NEWCOMB, N. Y., May 7—(AP)—Two aeronauts, occupants of the missing balloon entered by the Detroit Times in the National elimination balloon race, came from the woods today into this Adirondack mountain village three days after they disappeared into the air above Pittsburgh.

The balloonists, E. J. Hill and Arthur G. Schlosser, brought with them from the woods a story of a two day fight against dense forest, cold and partial starvation. They landed near Moose pond, 15 miles northwest of here, two hours after daybreak Sunday. They had drifted from the comparatively warm air of a few thousand feet into the bitter cold of a 14,000 foot altitude.

Schlosser related his experience to The Associated Press a few hours after he and Hill emerged from the woods and hailed workers on the state highway near Newcomb. His account follows:

"We landed Sunday morning at 7:15 o'clock in a heavy rain.

"The balloon came down out of the clouds so fast that we had little chance to see the lay of the land under us. We did notice the country was heavily wooded, however, so we threw overboard our food and some equipment, hoping to get out of that section and into open country. We were unable to rise again, however, and landed near a lake (Moose pond).

"We decided a lake of this size must have a habitation of some kind, so we inflated a collapsible boat which we carried in the balloon and rowed around the lake. We found no sign of a house and went back to the balloon.

"We were pretty discouraged — soaked to the skin, the weather cold and no food. We built a fire and dried our clothes as much as possible. We stayed near the balloon and the fire Sunday night.

"Monday morning we started out, intending to get to a habitation, but with no idea of direction. We pushed through the woods for some hours, getting hungrier all the time. Finally, we climbed a mountain to make an observation. Way off to the southwest we could see signs of habitation. We started off in that direction, but couldn't make it before dark, so we built another fire and camped out again, finishing the rest of the trip today.

"It was stormy all the way from Pittsburgh, with the temperature about 16 degrees above zero. When we went down to the lower altitudes our clothing was soaked with rain and snow and when we went up the clothes froze stiff.

"At 11:30 Saturday night we were about 60 miles east of Pittsburgh and figured we were being carried eastward toward the ocean. Here the rain was accompanied by lightning and to avoid that hazard and the eastward drift we ascended to 10,000 feet. At four a. m., Sunday we came down a little and got a glimpse of the ground, but the clouds closed in and shut off this view. The next time we saw the ground was when we came down up here."

The balloonists intended trying to go back to their craft tonight to study the best method of bringing it from the woods tomorrow.

NAVY BALLOON NO. 1 WON THE ELIMINATION BALLOON RACE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 7—(AP)—The navy balloon No. 1 tonight was credited with winning the 1929 National Elimination Balloon race. The crew of the Detroit Times entry, last of the bags to report, advised race headquarters late today that they had landed near Newcomb, N. Y., and that all was well despite discomforts experienced in landing in an isolated district. E. J. Hill piloted the "Times" entry and Arthur Schlosser was his aide.

The flights of the 12 race entries must be checked by the National Aeronautical association before the winner is declared officially. The Navy No. 1, piloted by Lieut. T. G. W. Settle, came down near Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, traveling a distance estimated unofficially at 900 miles. The bag was in the air 44 hours.

LAW STUDENTS OF MEXICO UNIVERSITY GO ON STRIKE

MEXICO CITY, May 7—(AP)—Law students of the National university of Mexico, one of the oldest schools on the American continents, have gone on a strike in protest at the professorial innovation of monthly written examinations. It is their contention that term examinations are quite sufficient.

Two students who refused to obey the strike edict yesterday were stripped, ducked in a pond on the campus, and ridden through the university section on a rail.

AN UNUSUAL NUMBER OF HUGE ICEBERGS

HALIFAX, N. S., May 7—(AP)—Considerable ice south of the Grand Banks, and an unusually large number of huge bergs on the banks were reported by officers of the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Modoc on her arrival here from ice patrol duty.

Two Members Navy Hos. Corps Killed

Car Overturned Near Ridgefield, S. C. — Bridgeport Man One of the Victims.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 7—(AP)—Two members of the navy hospital corps were killed and two others injured today in an automobile accident near Ridgeland, S. C. Their automobile overturned as they were en route from Savannah to the marine barracks at Parris Island, S. C.

The dead were Raymond L. Farrington of Bridgeport, Conn., and James A. Ross of Saltillo, Tenn. Both were pharmacists' mates, third class. The four men had been on leave in Savannah.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN FARMING METHODS

STORRS, May 7—(AP)—A chance to study the latest developments in farming methods and farm business practices, will be offered at the young farmers' conference, which will be one of the features of farm and home week, at Connecticut Agricultural college, in August.

At the same time inspiring courses for women will be held and children will be cared for during the day.

The courses that will be open for election by the farmers will include dairying, poultry raising, vegetable gardening, fruit growing, potato raising, soil fertility and farm management. The four-day course is planned for any enterprising farmer who wants to catch up with the rush of agricultural science and at the same time to gain inspiration, direction, renewed courage and fresh determination for his attack on the problems of his business and his community.

ORGAN KEYBOARD MADE FROM ODDS AND ENDS

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Music from seven keyboards may be broadcast simultaneously from KVOO.

A small three-board console was made by Wade Hamilton, a Tulsa theater organist, and was attached to a larger 4-board organ by more than 25,000 feet of wire.

When the Hamilton brothers, Wade and Howard, played this combination over KVOO, music from the seven keyboards was heard as far away as New Zealand.

Hamilton calls his home-made organ a "junk console." It includes parts of washing machines, vacuum sweepers, typewriters, old theater seats, a parasol and part of an Osage Indian's "five gallon" hat. Parts of a sewing machine and an electric sign flasher also were used.

DUCK HELD UP TRAFFIC TO LEAD BROOD ACROSS ROAD

MANCHESTER, May 7—(AP)—The story of the pig that went to market has nothing on the tale of a wild duck, which early today held up traffic here to lead her brood of ten ducklings across a road. Deputy Game Warden Walter E. Luettgens was startled while driving along the highway shortly after 6 o'clock this morning to see the mother duck walking slowly ahead of her flock onto the traffic artery. Other motorists drove up to within a few feet of the birds and waited patiently until the mother guided all the brood safely across and disappeared with them in woods.

BOSTONIANS END THEIR PILGRIMAGE TO ROME

NAPLES, Italy, May 7—(AP)—The liner President Wilson sailed tonight with 112 pilgrims going home to Boston after a week in Rome. A special train brought them here after a fast ride over the new route across the Pontine Marches. They received the courtesy of the port so that they were not obliged to pass the usual examination by emigration officials.

United States Consel General Byington called on Cardinal O'Connell just before sailing time to wish him a pleasant homeward trip.

RELICS OF ANCIENT SPANISH DAYS DUG UP

BALBOA, Canal Zone, May 7—(AP)—Relics of Spanish days, dating back 300 years, have been uncarthed in construction of the 14-mile Madden road between the canal and the site of a proposed dam at Albajuela. Among them are a brass mould, apparently used for measuring gold, a brass cup and a human skeleton shackled with a chain and band. The road is named for the late Representative Martin B. Madden.

WOMAN INJURED WHEN TWO AUTOS COLLIDED

NEW LONDON, May 7—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Cooper, of Marblehead, Mass., was taken to a hospital late today, suffering from lacerations and injury to her back when the machine in which her husband was driving, crashed into another car operated by Joseph A. Smith, of Plainfield. Smith was arrested, charged with reckless driving.

MASS. HOUSE REJECTS OLD AGE PENSION BILL

BOSTON, May 7—(AP)—The house today rejected the bill for establishment of a non-contributory old age pension system with an old age bequest fund by a roll call vote of 110 to 106.

PROPONENTS LEADING IN DEBENTURE PLAN CHECK

Debenture Group in the Senate Shows Majority of Five Votes in Favor of Retaining That Section in the Farm Relief Bill—Administration Leaders Declare That Even if the Senate Approves Debentures, That Provision Would Be Eliminated in Conference of Senate and House Committees.

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—Despite determined efforts by senate administration leaders to rally a majority for defeat of the export debenture plan opposed by President Hoover, an element of unsteadiness within their ranks today brought discouragement on what was expected to be the eve of a vote on that feature of the farm relief bill.

The most recent check by the debenture group was asserted to show a margin of five votes in favor of retaining that disputed section. Members of the administration group declined to estimate their strength but the opinion was expressed that the vote would be extremely close.

This outlook was conveyed to President Hoover today by Senator Watson, the republican leader. The veteran Indiana legislator declared later that even if the debentures were approved by the senate, that provision would be eliminated in the ensuing conference by a committee of senate and house members.

The confidence radiated by supporters of the debenture proposal was more striking than usual today in contrast to the reticence of administration leaders in discussing their chances optimistically. The vote is looked upon generally as providing the first contest of major proportions between President Hoover and the senate.

With major interest at present concentrated on the fate of the export debenture plan, once that question is disposed of the senate expects to act without undue delay on the farm bill itself. A vote on the measure probably will be taken late this week.

Last minute arguments were made in the senate today for and against the debenture plan. Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, who began a defense of the Hoover farm program yesterday, declared the last election had amounted to a mandate to turn down all proposals but those advocated by Mr. Hoover during the campaign as interpretative of the republican platform.

Montana's two democratic senators, Walsh and Wheeler, declared there was no question but that the debenture plan would provide immediate financial relief for the farmer.

The plan envisaged by the farm bill, Senator Wheeler declared, "sets up one of the greatest bureaucracies in the history of the world with vague and ill defined powers.

"The bill gives the federal farm board $500,000,000 to experiment with and makes the board virtually answerable to President Hoover alone," he continued.

"Think of the political patronage this board would possess and think how easily it could influence votes every four years by loaning $1,000,000 to this cooperative society; perhaps $2,000,000 to another. The tempting bait of substantial government loans could be cleverly dangled before the vote in various parts of the country and the $500,000,000 revolving fund might be used for virtual bribery on a wholesale scale."

THREE REPORTS IN SENATE ON RIGHTS OF SEC'Y MELLON

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—Three reports from the senate judiciary committee and one from the famous three Coveleskie brothers in baseball, pleaded guilty today to operating a speakeasy at Shamokin and was fined $150 in the Middle District court.

In imposing the sentence, Judge Johnson said he took into consideration Coveleskie's baseball record and several letters testifying to the man's good reputation. He ordered the saloon padlocked for two months.

The man who is credited with winning the National league pennant for the Philadelphia Nationals in 1903 by taking three games from the Giants, meekly told the court "if my arm was any good I wouldn't be here today."

On a plea for counsel that Coveleskie was unable to pay the whole fine, the judge permitted an extension of time in which Coveleskie said he could raise the money.

ATTORNEY GUILFOILE ON STAND IN HIS OWN DEFENSE

WATERBURY, May 7—(AP)—Attorney Joseph C. Guilfoile took the witness stand late today in superior court in his own defense on the charges brought against him by the grievance committee of the New Haven County Bar association. Before he took the stand, Judge Edwin C. Dickenson dropped for the time being the charge involving the Star-Record, a weekly newspaper, but refused to hear arguments on a motion to drop the other four counts. Attorney Guilfoile in his testimony today, explained conflicting statements made to the bar association committee on moral fitness by saying that at the time he was on the verge of a nervous breakdown following an automobile accident in which his wife and baby were hurt. He will be on the stand tomorrow morning, when court convenes at 10 o'clock.

COVELESKIE GUILTY OF OPERATING A SPEAKEASY

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 7—(AP)—Harry Coleskie, one time big league pitcher and one of the famous three Coveleskie brothers in baseball, pleaded guilty today to operating a speakeasy at Shamokin and was fined $150 in the Middle District court.

In imposing the sentence, Judge Johnson said he took into consideration Coveleskie's baseball record and several letters testifying to the man's good reputation. He ordered the saloon padlocked for two months.

The man who is credited with winning the National league pennant for the Philadelphia Nationals in 1903 by taking three games from the Giants, meekly told the court "if my arm was any good I wouldn't be here today."

On a plea for counsel that Coveleskie was unable to pay the whole fine, the judge permitted an extension of time in which Coveleskie said he could raise the money.

KILLED RESISTING ATTEMPT TO "TAKE HIM FOR A RIDE"

DETROIT, May 7—(AP)—Because he resisted an attempt to "take him for a ride," William W. Gunn, 51-year-old music store owner, was shot fatally late last night at the door of his home. His wife, Carrie, narrowly escaped being struck by a shot which lodged in the side of the doorway in which she was standing.

Gunn was summoned to the door of his home by his wife, in response to a request by two men. As he appeared the men drew weapons and ordered Gunn to accompany them. Gunn seized the nearest and obtained his gun but the other opened fire, a bullet striking the music store proprietor in the stomach.

The two men then fled in an automobile.

No reason for the attack has been established.

ARREST OF MEN WANTED FOR ROBBERY IN TORONTO

BROCKTON, Mass., May 7—(AP)—An hour after the receipt of a telegram from the Toronto, Can., police, Patrolman William Wilson arrested three men who were said to be wanted for armed robbery in Toronto and for a bank robbery at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

The men gave the names the Toronto police had broadcast. They were Anthony Consola, 22; Joseph Di Salvio, 25, and Joseph Mussari, 22, all of Niagara Falls, N. Y. They were charged with carrying arms without a permit and after appearance in court tomorrow will be held for the Toronto and Niagara Falls police.

The telegram from Toronto was read at the 6 o'clock police roll call and shortly after 7 o'clock Wilson overheard three men asking for directions to New York. He took them to the station for questioning. The police said that two loaded revolvers were found in their automobile and Di Salvio had a package of bullets in his pocket.

TO ELIMINATE PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE TO THE FLAG

HARTFORD, May 7—(AP)—The pledge of allegiance to the flag, with which for several years members of the Hartford Women's club have formally opened their meetings, will no longer be a part of the opening ceremony except on special patriotic occasions. The club at its annual meeting Monday voted to strike out a by-law requiring this observance.

That the salute was an unnecessary and troublesome preliminary seemed today to be the opinion of those who favored the action. "Getting up and down with bundles and paraphernalia and doing it all in a hurry seemed more disrespectful to the flag than omitting the salute," one woman said.

BOY KILLED WHEN HE PUT HEAD OUT OF BUS WINDOW

BERLIN, May 7—(AP)—William Bittner, seventh grade pupil of the Hubbard school, East Berlin, was almost instantly killed today soon after leaving Hartford in a bus filled with Berlin children, who had been taken on a sight-seeing trip to the capital by Representative Robert O. Clark.

The Bittner boy's skull was fractured when he put his head out of the window of the bus and struck it against a pole. He was taken to St. Francis hospital, Hartford, but was dead upon arrival.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY WILL CLOSE TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, May 7—The morning session of the house was largely spent in recalling bills from the offices of the secretary and engrossing clerk for the correction of errors, passing upon bills relating to private measures that were not opposed. A vast number of unfavorable reports were made on matters that were of little importance to the general public and were mostly of requests for special privileges. Bills of this character have not met with the favor of the assembly at this session.

Continuance of the state aid that has been given to small towns was voted for the next two years beginning July 1, 1929.

The bill concerning the conduct of slaughter houses, which met with considerable opposition when reported in the house has been withdrawn as a mutual agreement has been made that is satisfactory to the Connecticut Humane society, sponsors of the bill.

The bill creating the city of West Haven was passed with a referendum clause. A bill was passed that all hospitals receiving state aid shall install the uniform system of accounting recommended by the American Hospital association.

The bill providing for biennial elections in the town of Plainfield was amended so that seven constables instead of five may be elected.

An effort was made in the senate to pass an amendment offered by Senator Peasley that would cut out the testing requirements in the bill concerning motor oils. It was opposed by Senator Lavery. It was defeated with only two votes favoring the amendment.

Towards the close today the house was in confusion, some of the members were unable to await the notification

JEWETT CITY

SUPT. OF SCHOOLS CLEMENT TENDERS RESIGNATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 7—Supt. F. H. P. Clement has asked the Griswold school board to consider his resignation effective. Mr. Clement is the superintendent of the schools of Griswold, also principal of Riverside grammar school, a post which he has held for twelve years.

Father Iciek Addresses Legion.

Rev. Stanislaus A. Iciek, of Norwich, addressed an open meeting of the American Legion in the K of C hall in the Finn block, Monday evening. A good sized audience listened to a fine address with interest and profit. Tuesday evening the membership roll showed a list of 91

Sotony Anglers in Luck.

Evidently the Standard Oil bunch of fishermen has located the famous Willow brook, the whereabouts of which has heretofore been known only to Dennis Barnett. The Whalers caught 17 fine trout Sunday, none less than one-half pound. There was one fish in the lot that weighed over 2 pounds, but alas it was a Mt. Misery sucker.

Some of the more venturesome are having their gardens plowed this week. Others are holding off a bit, remembering the frosts in early May 1927-28.

Danielson-Moosup Guests.

At its meeting, Thursday evening, Faith chapter, O. E. S., No. 82, of Jewett City, will entertain Danielson chapter, No. 27, and Rebekah, No. 27 of Moosup.

John H. Perkins has moved to the one-time E. M. Swift property, recently vacated by Mrs. Ida B. Ladd, on the East Main street highlands.

Pending the moving of several wire carrying poles, a number of new granolithic walks are to be laid on the East Main street highlands.

Edward Murphy, in charge of removing the borough garbage, has cleaned up the job with neatness and dispatch.

Local owners of asparagus beds were getting their first cuttings on Tuesday.

The corner gallery was much interested Tuesday afternoon in the witnessing of absolute proof that a big car doesn't need avoirdupois attached to its driver, to be under complete control. A little snip of a girl came up the state road in a great black Packard, as big as a meeting house. At postoffice square the small driver decided to turn around. The top of her yellow head just showed through the windshield. The way that young miss horsed the big machine back into Fanning court, then came ahead on everything was something fine to see. The great car seemed to like it too, never missed a plug, straightened out and purred down Main street, in fine acknowledgment of a master at the controls.

Lisbon Club Meeting.

Lisbon Community club is planning for a meeting to be held in the new hall tonight (Wednesday), at 8 o'clock, D. S. T. The committee in charge of the arrangements is made up of six young people: Archie Goldberg, Newell Rist, Alwin Kaempffe, Jr., Miss Hortense Phillips and Misses Augusta and Helen Thoma. There was a hinting in the air Tuesday evening that a surprise program was to be presented.

SALE FOR STATE BLIND WAS WELL PATRONIZED

It was pleasing, Tuesday afternoon, to note the interest that was taken by local purchasers at the sale of articles made by and sold for the blind of Connecticut. Not only were the many novelties well made and tastefully displayed, but they were articles of common home use, hence the offerings met with ready favor, and the buying was correspondingly brisk.

Telescopic Pole.

A minor item, yet often proving of major importance, was omitted from the note above telling of the luck of the Standard Oil fishermen that came up Sunday from New London. One of the gents had a telescopic pole with a hollow butt, which appeared to have a cork fitted into the end. The exclusive pattern is sold, they said, only by Spears and Coeshuck. It was explained that the section with the stopple, is to be used exclusively for carrying live bait.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

MISS VERA SISWICK BRIDE OF FRANCIS P. FLEMING

Miss Vera Siswick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Siswick, of Grant avenue, and Francis P. Fleming of Hartford were married at the home of the bride's parents Saturday at noon. Miss Mildred Siswick, a sister of the bride, and Charles Poirier of Springfield were the attendants. Rev. Arthur Mosley, pastor of the Methodist church of Stafford Springs, performed the ceremony, following which a reception was held for intimate friends of the family. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Fleming left for a wedding trip.

Mrs. Armand Chaudonnet of New York has been visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. Catherine Tonon.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander I. Mitchell of East Main street have returned after a several weeks' trip abroad.

Miss Beatrice Siswick of Connecticut college, New London, has returned to her studies after a few days spent at home.

Miss Marion Moran of Hartford was at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moran, over the week end.

Carl Storm has been spending a few days at his home in Stafford Hollow.

Mrs. Joseph Brunelle and daughter Margaret of Springfield, Mass., were recent visitors with friends and relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Taylor and children of Springfield spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Phillips Taylor.

Miss Regina Russell has returned home after a few days' visit with New York relatives.

EDWARD FOISEY BECAME ILL ON WAY TO MASS

Edward Foisey, 63, of Brown avenue, died suddenly at his home Sunday morning. Mr. Foisey had started to attend services at St. Edward's church, but was taken ill on the way and had to be carried back home, where he died a few minutes later. He has lived in Stafford Springs for several years and has been employed in the local woolen mills. Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons and four daughters.

OVER THE COUNTER
UNUSUAL SAVINGS AT FULLERTON'S CLEARANCE SALE
Ladies and Girls:
Young and Old, here is something that is bound to appeal to all. The Spring Clearance Sale of Coats and Dresses is going on at The J. B. FULLERTON & Co. Store for just Three Days—Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week!
Glance at These Unusual Values. COATS of Velvet, Kasha, Broadcloth and Tweed Mixtures in sizes from Misses' 16 to Ladies' 44; values from $25.00 to $29.50—Selling at Only $19.50.
DRESSES of Flat Crepe, Georgette, in all the new spring shades; a great variety of silk prints in different models, all with long sleeves; sizes from Misses' 16 to Ladies' 44; values from $15.00 to $19.50—Selling at Only $10.50.
And, Ladies', this is not a Sale of special low-price garments purchased as "Bait"—but a regular sale of regular merchandise. Language has its limits and so have "unusual values." Oft repeated, they cease to be "unusual" and FULLERTON'S policy is based on the belief that too many sales, like too many sweets, soon lose their fascination.
So that FULLERTON'S annual program is of Fewer and Better Sales and here is a Better Sale that cannot be disputed when one considers the values offered.
Whether it's a Coat or Dress you just select your size, color and style and pay $19.50 for the Coat or $10.50 for the Dress. The original price doesn't matter. The actual discount may be anywhere from 10 to nearly 35 per cent—and that is to your advantage.
Remember the three days—Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Sincerely, JANE.

ROTARIANS HEAR ABOUT WORK OF 4-H CLUBS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 7—Most interesting talks on 4-H club work in Windham county were given at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel this noon by Miss Marion Mills of Putnam, Windham county 4-H club agent, and four club workers. The meeting was in line with the club's program of agricultural relations prepared by Chairman James B. Fullerton. Miss Mills was introduced by Charles B. Pomeroy. In her remarks she gave a concise outline of the educational work of 4-H clubs in the agricultural field, explaining that 4-H meant Head, Heart, Hand and Help. Miss Mills made excellent suggestions as to how the Rotary club and the community could assist 4-H work. Norman Amidon, president of the Sheba Sheep club of Abington and representative to the Washington, D. C., conference this year, told of the organization, and work of his organization. The word Sheba represents the names of the original club members, Stoddard, Holbrook, Elliott, Baker and Amidon. Clifford Stone of Killingly and a member of the Climbers Poultry club related the success with which that club had met in poultry raising and egg production.

Leslie Jewett of Hampton told of the work of the Hampton Poultry and Dairy club. The Jewett boy, with a thoroughbred heifer, took high honors at the state fair in Hartford last year.

Miss Katherine Mara gave a delightful outline of the objectives of the Windham Jolly Cookers, a cooking club in Windham Center of which she is president. The club was organized under leadership of Mrs. J. Raymond Smith and has accomplished notable work. Miss Mara was one of the 12 Connecticut delegates sent to the exposition at Springfield, Mass., last year.

Guests other than the speakers were L. Dexter Crawford of this city and Charles H. Branch of East Springfield, N. Y., father of Rotarian C. Harry Branch.

The club voted to pay one-quarter of the cost of installing flood lights to illuminate the airway sign, including the name Willimantic, which has been painted on the roof of the New Haven railroad freight house. The cost is to be shared by the Exchange club, sponsor of the signs, the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company, the chamber of commerce and the Rotary club.

An invitation to attend the inspection of the trade school either this afternoon or this evening was read by President Raymond A. Parker. Announcement was also made that next week ten potential directors, of whom five will be elected officers at the following meeting, will be chosen next week. Program Chairman Herbert W. Huber announced the program for the four coming meetings. Past District Governor Elmer E. Hubbard of Pawtucket, R. I., will be the speaker next week. The club voted to accept the invitation of the Exchange club to be guests at an evening meeting June 4, when Gov. John H. Trumbull will be guest speaker.

MANY INSPECT NEW WILLIMANTIC TRADE SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 7—Hundreds of residents of Eastern Connecticut visited the new Willimantic State Trade school at the formal opening held this afternoon and evening. Practical demonstrations of the activities of the students and the products resulting were carried on during the inspection hours from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 o'clock. Concert music was provided by the Trade School band, Charles N. C. Wheeler, bandmaster.

The school occupies a completely equipped four-story brick building, formerly known as the Turner mill, at the corner of Bank and Valley streets. The courses opened in September, 1972 and full classes are now conducted in masonry, carpentry, painting, plumbing, electricity and architectural drafting. The student body of boys is drawn from Windham, including the city of Willimantic, Andover, Chaplin, Hampton, Hebron, Lebanon, Mansfield, Scotland, Willington, Norwich and Stafford. A student must complete creditably 4,800 hours of instruction to be eligible for a diploma, this course to be taken either at day or night sessions. The curriculum is on the 44-hour week, or from 8 to noon and 1 to 5 daily, except Saturday when the hours are from 8 to 12. The town of Windham purchased the building and bore the expense of remodeling while the state, through the state board of education, pays all instructional costs.

Otto R. Nyffeler, who is acting director of the school, has been affiliated with the state trade school system for ten years. He is a graduate of Carnegie Tech and gained extensive experience in plumbing and heating contracting and engineering. He organized plumbing and heating classes in army schools during the war and later served as superintendent of construction at Camp Jackson, S. C. Director Nyffeler has taught plumbing classes in Stamford, mathematics and drafting at the Danbury trade school and plumbing and heating at the part-time co-operative trade school in Hartford.

The faculty comprises a group of expert instructors in their respective lines. George H. Jay, instructor in carpentry, has spent 15 years at his trade and holds teacher training certificates from Massachusetts and Connecticut. Prior to coming here he was a member of the Meriden trade school faculty. Charles F. Taylor, masonry instructor, was in charge of several important constructions in Connecticut during the 34 years that he has worked at this trade. He is a former instructor at the Hartford part-time school.

Waldo Landry, painting instructor, has been a master painter for 12 years and has also had wide experience in paper hanging and decorating. He was also transferred from the Hartford school.

Wilbur S. Hill, electrical instructor, is a graduate of Wentworth Institute, Boston, and has taken special courses at Brown university. He was with the testing department of the General Electric company for four years and served for nine years with power companies, being chief electrician for the Belamose corporation in Rocky Hill for three years.

John Griffin, plumbing instructor, is a graduate of Wentworth Institute and Franklin Union, Boston. He was foreman of important plumbing contracting firms for some years and is a former instructor at the state school of engineering in Boston.

Miss Ruth M. Russ, secretary, is a graduate of Windham high school and was formerly a member of the office staff of the Connecticut Agricultural college.

The masonry, painting and carpentry departments opened in September and notable progress has been made in these courses. The plumbing department began in February and the students have already done considerable installation work. The drafting department opened in November and the students have already drawn up plans for a large commercial garage and have had instruction in making blue prints. The students from the other departments have received instruction in free hand sketching, lettering and detail drawing for training in their respective trades.

Maurice Kelso, 24, and Donal Hammerberg, 26, of Minnesota, both students at the Connecticut Agricultural college, received painful injuries about 9 o'clock this morning when the Dodge coupe in which they were riding collided with a Reo speedwagon owned by Norman D. Baker of Warrenville at Mansfield Four Corners. The students were driving to Hartford with Kelso at the wheel. The truck came out of the new highway leading into the corners from Warrenville. The students were rushed to St. Joseph's hospital by Prof. Irving G. Davis. Hammerberg was found to be suffering from a bad scalp wound and Kelso was quite badly bruised and cut, but none of the injuries proved serious in nature. The state police barracks at Stafford Springs were notified and an investigation of the accident made. It is understood that Charles Koss, driver of the truck, and Kelso will be given a hearing in the Mansfield town court as soon as the injured young men recover sufficiently.

Thrown from a 15-foot ladder on which he stood while engaged in painting a house owned by Minot S. Fryer at 176 High street, Adelbert Russ, aged about 50, of 245 Summit street, fell headlong to the ground, sustaining a fracture of the jaw, severe cut on the lower lip and possible fractures of the bones of the cheek and nose. At St. Joseph's hospital, where the man was rushed by Dr. Fryer, Dr. P. E. Wilcox stated that an x-ray would be taken to determine the exact extent of the injuries. The ladder was struck by a machine that was being backed out of the garage by Mr. Fryer's son, who was unable, from his position in the machine, to see the foot of the ladder as it rested on the driveway.

Over 30 members of the Windham County Guernsey association attended the meeting held in the vestry of the First Baptist church in co-operation with the Windham County Farm bureau, Monday night. Fred Rosebrooks of Keystone farm, this city, president of the Guernsey association, presided over the session. Previous to the meeting, which was devoted to the advancement of the breeding of dairy cows, a supper was served by the women of the church. Six towns in the county were represented in the attendance. The speakers were: E. G. Woodward, superintendent of Grass Land farms at Taconic; A. R. Merrill, extension dairy specialist at the Connecticut Agricultural college, and R. E. Wing of Putnam, Windham county farm agent. A general discussion of dairying methods followed. The meeting was in charge of a committee composed of President Rosebrooks, Frank T. Anderson of Woodstock, secretary, and William C. Childs of North Woodstock.

The board of governors of the Willimantic Country club voted to hold a carnival on the clubhouse grounds on or before July Fourth at a meeting held in the offices of Dr. Michael D. Riordan Monday evening. The following committee was appointed to have full power to make preparations for the event: Dr. M. D. Riordan, chairman; Joseph M. Berard, J. Francis Keon, John C. Frazier, Edwin J. Donnelly, George A. Bartlett, Raymond A. Parker, R. G. Remington, Ernest Bottomley, William H. Nichols, John Mansure, John F. Ahern, Mrs. John F. Ahern, Mrs. R. G. Remington, Mrs. Michael D. Riordan, Mrs. Joseph M. Berard, Mrs. George W. Hickey and Mrs. G. Everett Harrington.

A committee for men's entertainment, match games, etc., was appointed as follows: Paul L. Moran, chairman; Walter S. Jordan, James Hallock, Arnold Lang and Ralph H. Gibson. The women's entertainment committee will be headed by Mrs. Edward J. Ottenheimer with power to select four assistants. The dance committee for the year consists of: Justice George E. Hinman, chairman; Attorney Harry S. Gaucher, Willis Ridgeway, Donald E. Crane and G. C. White.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Charles Robinson

Mrs. Charles Robinson, aged 61, died at her home in South Coventry this morning after a three weeks' illness. She is survived by her husband, Charles Robinson; one daughter, Mrs. Vincent Grady of South Coventry; two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Walden of Essex and Mrs. Belle Hempstead of New London; a brother, John Johnson of New London; one grandchild, Catherine Grady of South Coventry, and several nieces and nephews.

Miss Celia A. Peckins

Miss Celia A. Peckins, 65, of 875 Main street, died in St. Joseph's hospital Monday night. She had been ill for about two weeks. The deceased was born in Lawrence, Mass., July 17, 1853, a daughter of John N. and Sarah A. Johnson Peckins. She leaves one sister, Mrs. Effie Armstrong, and a niece, Miss Phoebe Armstrong, both of New London. Miss Peckins was an active member of the First Congregational church and had been a resident of this city for 35 years.

F. M. Armstrong of Pawtucket, R. I., representing the Fyre-Freeze Extinguisher company of that city, was the speaker of the evening at the weekly dinner-meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club held in the Nathan Hale hotel tonight. The speaker demonstrated the extinguisher by actual use. It was announced that the speaker next week would be C. K. Nash of Hartford, a representative of the State Fair association. George M. Graves will be in charge of a meeting to be held in Chaplin May 21 and the session of May 26 will be held at Grange hall in Scotland with Clinton T. Wood in charge. President Dixon VanZandt read an invitation from the recently organized Exchange club of Unionville to attend the charter night meeting there Thursday evening. The invitation was accepted.

The 60th annual reunion of the 21st Connecticut Volunteer association will be held in the Grand Army headquarters of the town building, Thursday, May 16, it was announced today by Robert H. Fenton, treasurer of the association. The forenoon meeting will be convened at 10:30 o'clock to transact business. A "camp fire" session will be held in the afternoon with talks by the officers, members and invited guests. There are but 21 known survivors of this famous Civil war regiment. But eight members responded to roll call at the reunion held last year.

Funeral services for William Le-Doyt were held in Woonsocket, R. I., this morning with burial in the Nathan Hale cemetery at South Coventry this afternoon. Rev. Charles G. Johnson conducted a committal service at the grave at 2:30 o'clock.

Capt. Ellison S. Smith of Company C, 169th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard, has received orders to prepare his command for camp duty at Niantic during the two weeks from July 7 to 21. RESTS WITH FRANCE.

A few days ago the success or failure of the reparations conference depended upon Germany, and it looked very much like failure. Had the German attitude been accepted and no further effort been made it would have meant the ending of the present effort and the continuance of the Dawes plan.

After a study of the claims made by Germany and the attitude of the other countries it was the belief of Owen D. Young, who heads the American commission, that it would be a mistake to throw up their hands and adjourn without further effort. The result is that he put forth a plan for meeting the situation and succeeded in getting a favorable response from the German delegates, indications of approval from the British and an expression from Japan that is satisfactory. As yet it is not known what the French are going to do in regard to it, but for the other allied nations it is believed that their interests have been adequately safeguarded.

The plan would make some modifications for Germany. Modification is what it has sought, even to the extent of threatening to disrupt the conference. There would be a complete readjustment of the whole system of German annuities, but it is likewise realized that there would be a settlement of the reparations question instead of leaving it hanging fire.

Stress is placed upon the importance of such a move and the effect it would have upon European conditions. Such was the object of the conference. When it was called and when the respective nations agreed to it there was recognized the desirability of coming to some understanding in the light of present day conditions. Germany wanted to know where it stood and it was entitled to such knowledge. In the early discussion it was evident that it was putting the total amount of reparations at a figure which did not accord with the sentiment of the allies. Looked at from a different angle and undertaken by a different method there is agreement, barring France, for a new agreement. It remains to be seen now whether France intends to hold up the new proposition or accept its terms in the belief that such sacrifice as it will make is preferable to leaving the matter in the air through a failure of the conference.

STICKLESS STAMPS.

Within the past few months there has been much said about the postage stamps that do not stick. Those are the stamps, of course, that have been properly applied and not those which have been put on a spotted envelope. Experience teaches that it is never possible to remove those without great trouble.

The stamps that do not stick occasion much trouble. They may drop off before cancellation or afterwards. In the latter case their presence during cancellation is noted by the white space on the corner, but in the former instance no one knows what has happened. There is difficulty in telling whether there ever was a stamp on the envelope and in the uncertainty there must be a demand for proper postage. Uncle Sam doesn't accept promises or make allowances for stamps that do not stick.

And yet right there is where the big kick comes from the public. Uncle Sam furnishes the stamps. They are supposed to have sufficient mucilage of the right kind to make them adhere to the envelope, and yet when stamps have been licked and stuck and then drop off the sender doesn't take kindly to the demand for more postage when he has no control over the stuff that should stick.

It is the non-sticking stamp that causes the trouble through creating an uncertainty as to whether the postage has been paid and bringing a demand for what in too many instances has meant double postage. The idea that the stamps might be pinned on isn't a good one for the sanitary machines. The suggestion that they might be sewed on isn't bad but everyone isn't a seamstress and then again it takes too much time.

The real solution, of course, lies in a return to the old method of gumming the stamps in the days when they stuck like a plaster or in putting on sufficient gum to do the trick. Stamps that do not stick have been the cause for annoyance and complaint. They must have given much trouble to the postoffice department and to those who use the postal service and when such conditions prevail there ought to be no further reason needed for the application of the necessary remedy.

FIGHTING ILLITERACY.

The struggle to decrease and if possible eliminate illiteracy is by no means a new one. It has been going on with excellent results in some states but not so much can be said for it in others. The difference in results is due to the difference in efforts and interest, and to no small extent to the difference in the people.

Not until there is a determined effort to combat the condition is there likely to be any appreciable progress made. It is a deplorable situation when it can be shown that there are localities where more than half of the people are illiterate, and yet such is the case. This has had its bearing upon the movement which has been started in the state of Louisiana to overcome the situation. There a new fight is being made against illiteracy. There has been an appropriation of $100,000 made by the state and the aim is to see that all who wish are taught to read and write.

Only those who cannot read or write are enrolled but there is a large number to draw from when it is realized that there are nearly 300,000 illiterates among the blacks and whites of that state, the former making up the big majority. Clearing up that situation is going to require a long time even with plenty of evidence being manifested but interest among the illiterates is considerable when it is noted that there are nearly 65,000 of them who have sought instructions.

It becomes evident at once that the appropriation which has been made by the state is not going to be sufficient to meet the requirements, but the undertaking has aroused those whom it is desired to reach. Both whites and blacks are displaying the right spirit. They are appreciative of the opportunity and recognize the value that such instruction as they may obtain will be to them and indirectly to the state and nation.

The fight against illiteracy is one which should go on wherever that condition prevails and be continued until it is eliminated. Louisiana may need it most but there are not many states but where there are opportunities for additional efforts. Unfortunately there are too many instances where the individuals themselves display no interest in making the effort for self betterment.

THE DAY'S NEW HOME.

Although the New London Day has moved five times since its first issue back in 1881, it has been otherwise engaged as the present day issues clearly show. It has moved because it has outgrown its quarters and it has developed because it has so admirably served its community.

In its new building, an enlargement of its recent home, it is housed in a commodious, well arranged, up to date plant, equipped with modern facilities in all departments for getting out an interesting and attractive newspaper. Publisher Bodenwein has spared no expense in providing our neighboring city with a newspaper and a newspaper plant of which it has reason to be proud and in the new home and its extensive equipment he has made provisions for a long look ahead.

How long it will be before the Day outgrows its new building is problematical but the provisions for future development make it apparent that the publisher has confidence in the growth of that city, and such an establishment cannot fail to reflect the confidence and support given to the Day by the community.

There is no greater asset for a city than a live and progressive newspaper. The Day has long since demonstrated that it is one of the valuable and growing institutions of New London and in its new home, as it nears the end of its first half century, it can contemplate its second 50 years with perhaps no less confidence than it did the first but certainly with a far different outlook and less worry.

THE 140 YEAR OLD LAW.

In connection with the reports which have been made to the senate by the judiciary committee, and members of that committee, concerning the right of Secretary Mellon to hold his place in the cabinet, there is an intimation that the law ought to be reconstructed in such present day language that there will be no doubt as to its meaning.

There have been very few instances since the law was enacted 140 years ago that there has been any question as to what it meant. There is but little doubt at the present time as to what it means. The attorney general has found no difficulty in interpreting it. The secretary of the treasury himself understood its meaning when he took the office and predecessors over a long term of years have done likewise. It is possible to refer to the Stewart case where the gentleman desired for secretary of the treasury was found to come under the law and he was turned down.

If there is anything seriously the matter with the law it should, of course, be remedied, but it is believed that the whole trouble at this time is caused by a desire to make it uncomfortable for Secretary Mellon and the administration rather than any serious belief that he had violated the law. The impression is that there isn't so much the matter with the law as with some of the senators.

For a considerable time there have been those who have sought to trouble Mr. Mellon. All other methods have been used and the charge of violating an old law, which he didn't violate, was the last. Perhaps there is something more than can be charged against one of the greatest secretaries of the treasury the country has ever had but if they have no better foundation than the one just decided they will amount to little.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: The popular neighborhood pastime these days is comparing tax bills.

Think of being obliged to tend the heater, mow the lawn, empty the pan under the ice box and wear an overcoat during the second week in May!

That can of salmon which yielded a $175 diamond was one of those much sought prize packages.

Now that General Dawes and his committee have shown San Domingo how it can save much money by a budget system, the question is will the advice be followed sincerely enough to get results.

CONCERNING HECTOR

"Now that we are all together and have fully five minutes of leisure," began the pernickety father, sugaring his breakfast coffee hurriedly, "I should like to inquire about the young man you brought home to dinner last night, Arnica. Who is he and why?"

"Didn't you like him?" the young lady of the house demanded, buttering the toast deftly.

"What's that got to do with it?" sniffed the pernickety father, reaching for another doughnut. "Mostly, the persons you like on sight are totally irresponsible individuals who can't earn a living. This family doesn't want to acquire any son-in-law who can't support a wife."

"No doubt Hector would let you look at his bank book if you asked him," retorted the young lady of the house with great sarcasm. "He is very obliging. He—"

"That's another point!" her father broke in, holding out his cup for more coffee. "It isn't natural for any young man to be as obliging as this Hector of yours is. Jumping up and getting me matches when he saw me looking for some and bringing your mother that book he had heard her mention! I feel more comfortable with the sort of young men I'm trained to— the kind who look you over coldly as though anything past twenty-five years old was a museum fossil and sort of infer that they are wondering why you are cluttering up your own living room when there is all the great outdoors for you to wander in, thus leaving them the easy chair, the footstool and the smoking stand."

"I think you are terribly disagreeable," the pretty daughter cried. "The idea of finding fault with a man because he is polite and courteous and thoughtful and generally grand! Why, Hector—"

"There you go!" cried the pernickety father, waving his fork at her. "The next thing I expect will be that you will want to marry Hector because he's such a lovely dancer and you just know he'll make a perfect husband!"

"The idea!" declared the pretty daughter, much flustered. "Whatever gave you the idea that I wanted to marry Hector? Why, we are merely very good friends. I guess I don't think every man who looks at me is in love with me."

"Pishtush!" snapped the pernickety father, raising two eyebrows loftily. "Show me the girl who doesn't consider every man within a mile radius in love with her. How, she inquires of herself, can he possibly resist me? And this merely-very-good-friends business is decidedly overdone. I am willing to admit that this Hector looks all right and is willing to help carry out the dishes between courses and able to listen to a decrepit old man like myself converse without going into a coma, but, besides that, married life includes grocers, butchers and rent collectors. I—"

"My goodness!" scoffed the pretty daughter with very pink cheeks, "you talk as though money was the chief consideration. I remember distinctly that one of the mottoes in my copybook in school was about money not being everything—"

"They've hanged the man who wrote that book since then," her father informed her emphatically, "as a public nuisance. But from your remark I look for the worst—Hector without doubt is one of those pleasant but spineless young men who find $22 each week in their pay envelopes and go out and buy a chocolate soda to celebrate. My poor child!"

"We're going to miss that train!" interrupted the pretty daughter frantically. "You can inter all your worries about Hector's fiances because he's vice president of his father's business and popular with his family. It's too bad he made such a poor impression—"

"Not at all, not at all!" objected the pernickety father who had visibly relaxed at her statement. "Why, I liked Hector right from the start!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 7—Just a little more than four years ago, when General Dawes launched his flaming attack on senate rules at his inauguration as vice president, no doubt Senator Watson of Indiana was amused.

As a good regular republican, of course, he could not express himself publicly if he so felt. He left that to democratic satirists like Reed of Missouri.

But watching Watson, now majority leader, in wrangles with Senator Tom Heflin of Alabama before the special farm relief session of the seventy-first congress was much more than started, the Bystander wondered if the Indiana senator was not utterly in agreement then with the Dawes view of the rules.

Good Out-Guesser

As majority leader it was largely up to Watson to figure out a way of handling the Heflin situation.

There was no doubt that a majority of the senate would have liked to sidetrack the whole matter of the physical attack made on Heflin at Brockton, Mass., and Heflin's demand that the senate vote a resolution of censure on the unnamed attackers.

Yet Senator Tom, single handed, but backed by senate rules, has more than once proved his ability to outguess and outgeneral all opponents on the floor. He knows as much about the rules as anybody in the senate.

Watson called a conference of very hard-boiled senators of the majority side. They doped out a plan to vote Heflin down and have done with it, which Blaine of Wisconsin blocked with an objection.

Heflin, looming huge in the yellow hued linen suit of frock coat cut, boomed a warning that he presently would deal at length with the "Roman-republican conspiracy in the senate."

Those Twitching Fingers

Watson sat eyeing Heflin. There was nothing he could do under the rules. Slumped heavily in his chair, Watson just glared, but his fists were clenched where they rested in his lap, and his thumbs snapped in and out of his curled fingers, in and out, in and out.

Rarely does that little sign of nerve tension escape this veteran of countless legislative battles.

Four years ago General Dawes' voice, high and shrill with emphasis and backed by whirling fists of his own highly individualistic method of oratorical gesture, was thundering anathema on senate rules.

"Under the inexorable laws of human nature and human reaction, this system of rules, if unchanged, cannot but lessen the effectiveness, prestige and dignity of the United States senate," Dawes then shouted, to say in the same place four years later that he took nothing back.

And if Watson thought of that statement as he glowered at Heflin, unquestionably he would have held that Dawes was right.

Stories That Recall Others

Naturally

Henry is three. One afternoon his mother entertained some friends. That evening she had related some of the incidents of the afternoon to her husband. He said to the boy:

"Henry, how did you get along?"

"Well, Jackie and me, we fighted a little."

"And who whipped?" asked the father.

"Mother," replied the youngster.

Thrifty

A certain farmer is reputed among his neighbors as very "close" in financial affairs. It is told that recently he was repairing the opening of a cistern near the house, and in some manner fell in. As the cistern was about half full of water it was too deep to stand on the bottom and too far to the top to climb out. He called to his wife but she was unable to assist him. This took place about 10 a. m. She said, "I'll get the hired man from the field."

"No, don't call him from his work," he said. "I'll swim about until he comes to dinner at noon."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Passing of the Prayer Meeting.

Mr. Editor: I have often wondered why it is that there seems to be no objection or opposition among the churches in regard to the passing away of the prayer meeting which seems to be prevalent everywhere among the denominations. Is it true that the prayer meeting is no longer interesting or profitable? Personally inquiring among the different denominations in regard to the giving up of the prayer meeting I was told by one that our church cares no longer for the prayer meeting, so we have discarded it. Another, we have no time to go to prayer meeting. One woman said, whose husband was a lodge member, "if his lodge meeting came on the same night as the prayer meeting I should advise him to attend the lodge," and so on. There is only one thing that can be written on the door of any church which has discarded the prayer meeting—lack of spirituality. As one has well said, "the upper room has taken the place of the upper room. Play has taken the place of prayer and feasting the place of fasting." John Wesley declares that the prayer meeting is the life of the church.

The writer of this article remembers well the prayer meetings held in the old Methodist church in Jewett City more than 45 years ago. The prayer meeting held Thursday night was always well attended, the vestry well filled shouts and amens came thick and fast from inspired lips and happy faces. Friday evening two class meetings were held, one on the Slater side and the other on the Ashland side. What is taking the place of the prayer meeting in these days? If we read the daily paper we find minstrel shows, suppers, lectures, church clubs and wordliness galore. Fake religions are large responsible for the passing of the prayer meeting including modernism, the theory of evolution so-called, also other fake religions of our day. They are responsible because they have shaken the faith of some who believe in Jesus Christ and would follow Him, and have turned them away from the true faith, teaching that Jesus Christ was not divine or the son of God. Modernism is a false and deluding religion and wherever it is taught leaves a trail of spiritual darkness, doubt and unbelief. Modernism is a sinning religion, full of worldliness and the reason that the multitudes are believing in and following it is because they love sin, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God. As Woodrow Wilson once said this nation needs to get back to God, so the churches of all denominations need to get back to the prayer meeting.

GEORGE HIRAM MINER.
Danielson, May 6, 1929.

The City Council and the Summer Street Sewer.

Mr. Editor: As my name was called, though not present at the meeting, I may be excused for seeking reply through your columns.

In regard to carrying out the vote of a former council in reference to said sewer, objection was made that only Mr. Trachtenberg required sewerage to his property. Very well. Is not one citizen entitled to the same right and privileges as every other one? Is it not a hardship to Mr. Trachtenberg that the assessment and taxes of his property be increased and he be denied the street privileges of a sewer, especially that for which he has asked and been granted by a former administration, and an apportionment having been made for the expenses thereof? Also, as that vote was to adjust and correct and compensate for a city error in carrying the city water through the street without supplying a sewer to take the waste away.

Not one of the present residents opposing were among the original grantees.

It is not so that Mr Trachtenberg can get relief from adjacent neighbors. These neighbors have no rights to cede to him to connect with them. Neither should he be oblized to seek recourse to this. The sewer was voted and the appropriation was made to put the drain through, under the Waters and Donovan administration. It is only justice to Mr Trachtenberg and equity in the present administration to complete the task and say no more about it.

The board of health through Messrs. Gebrath and Norman had urged this matter until action was taken a year ago.

The sewers that the objectors enjoy were secured by their predecessors. Not one of the original inheritors live to whom the privileges were ceded. These were as follows: George W. Swan, city missionary; Nathan Standish, trukman; F. E. Dowe, dry goods, etc.; B. T. Cranston & Co. news and books. The privileges were given to them by courtesy of neighbors who knew them, and with the expectation that the privilege would cease as soon as a city sewer would be put through.

This is the matter which is up now for completion and no puerile opposition should be allowed to stand in the way of it. The duty is one that urges improvements much needed and requiring only a few dollars already voted.

I have been a resident in Norwich since 1859. I have seen many ups and downs in the city in that time. I have never been in line for any special privileges nor official favors. I stand only for our constitutional rights.

I think I can write an intelligent letter that may appeal to intelligent readers and win the intelligent verdict of the readers.

My business has been and now is to deal with questions of sanitation and plumbing, and I have had some experience in these lines which I think justifies me in holding an opinion definite about this matter.

Golf a Nerve Medicine

By John William Shuman, M. D., Los Angeles.
(Gorgas Memorial Institute.)

Golf with its give and take will make or break a man of excessive nervous irritability, on account of which it is good medicine, good treatment for nervousness.

A certain man who used a caddie to alibi with and crab at, and who had been known to break his trusty driver over a caddie's head during a sudden fit of temper, when the caddie had only spoken out of turn at a moment when "Fore" should have been supreme, found out two things: First, that he did not deserve a caddie, and, second, that he should about more golf so that practice would make more perfect his self-control in moments of stress—and it worked.

Unless a man takes what he needs more or less constantly—for example, air, nourishment, rest and exercise, and control of the nerves—he will go stale, if not dead. Golf as a form of treatment can be taken, in fact, it must be taken, regularly if the best benefits vs. nervousness are to be secured, namely, control of the nerves.

In a recent tournament a 10 handicap man shot his qualifying round in 96. He freely admitted that he had come out with the avowed purpose of winning the cup, but failed to get in the first flight, all on account of overconfidence, which received a terrible setback on the third hole (a par 3), when he took a snappy 9. He recovered his nerve—only after making a horrible example of himself—along about the 14th, and played the remaining 4 holes in 2 under par. He said: "I've learned a lesson and that is never to be too confident and never to let my temper get the best of me at golf; but to just laugh off trouble." We are forever learning. That is why golf is a most efficient teacher.

There is a reason for the million or more bona fide golfers of the United States. It tells the story that they are getting more out of the game than simply spending time and money; that they are receiving lessons in fortitude and discipline, and a training in how to take the "rubs" on fairway and green, which are very similar to those of life.

Lack of control of the nerves is nervousness. There are those who think that they "must let the nerves out of the box" every once in a while and some twice in a while. Such folks are not trying to excuse themselves, but are putting themselves in a bad way practicing non-control, getting the habit of continually losing their nerve balance.

How often should golf be taken for nervousness? The answer, medically speaking, is whenever it is indicated—or a little before.

Burgess Bedtime Story

A Happy Family

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

'Tis well that in life's ceaseless game
Our talents seldom are the same.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was most impatient and Mrs. Wood Duck had not come back to her home in the hole high up in a certain dead tree deep in the Green Forest. Would she come again? Peter wished he knew. It might be that she had carried the last of her babies to the pond of Paddy the Beaver. If she had, Peter didn't want to waste his time there. But there was no way for him to know. So he waited and fidgeted and fidgeted and waited. After a time he decided that it must be that she had taken the last of the babies to the water, so he hurried over to the pond. Mrs. Wood Duck was nowhere in sight. Neither were the babies. Peter looked this way and that way eagerly. Presently he discovered Beauty at one end of the pond. This was, you know, Mr. Wood Duck. Peter hurried along the shore until he got opposite where Beauty was feeding.

"Where's your family?" cried Peter, quite out of breath.

"I don't know," replied Beauty in the most unconcerned manner.

"Do you mean to tell me that you don't know where your children are?" demanded Pater.

"Well," replied Beauty, "the last I knew they were at home."

"Well, they're not now," declared Peter. "At least, they are not in that hollow tree. Mrs. Wood Duck has moved them all over here to this pond."

Beauty began to look interested. "Is that so?" he exclaimed. "I must have been taking a nap. Yes, sir; I must have been taking a nap! I suppose you you saw her bringing them here?"

"No," replied Peter, "I saw her taking them out of the hollow tree."

"Well, it's all the same," replied Beauty. "I shall have to look around for my family."

Beauty began to swim along shore. Peter followed on the bank. It was very queer, but they saw nothing of the Wood Duck family. At least, Peter thought it was very queer. Beauty didn't seem to think much about it. It didn't seem to strike him as queer at all. In fact, Beauty didn't seem to be much concerned. He stopped to eat a bit here and stopped to eat a bit there, but all the time his sharp eyes were not missing anything. No, sir, they were not missing anything. By and by he stopped. He gave a little call. There was an answer. A moment or two later Mrs. Wood Duck proudly entered the water from beneath some low-hanging branches a little back from the shore. Right behind her came twelve fluffy little Ducklings and promptly entered the water.

Beauty began to swim along shore. Peter followed on the bank

"Why!" exclaimed Peter, who was watching from a little distance. "They don't have to learn how to swim!"

This was quite true. They swam just as naturally as Peter's babies walked on land. A pretty sight they were—that trim little mother with her twelve babies. Beauty swam around them proudly. He had no duties as a father. He didn't feel the obligation of any special duties now. But he certainly was proud of his family, and he showed it.

As for Peter Rabbit, it seemed to him he had never seen so pretty a family.

PHILIPPINES FEAR RISE IN SHIP RATES TO U. S.

MANILA—(AP)—Reports that agitation for the extension of the American coastwise shipping of the Philippines has been renewed in the United States has caused concern here among members of the Philippine chamber of commerce.

Application of the law to the islands would mean that foreign ships no longer could carry Philippine products from port to port in the Philippines or from the islands to the United States. It is feared that this would lead to a material increase in rates.

A resolution opposing the change was adopted by the chamber and sent to Pedro Guevara, resident commissioner at Washington.

NOW RADIO THRILLERS REPLACE FILM SERIALS

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—The motion picture serial of 15 years ago has its 1929 counterpart in the "continued next week" radio drama thrillers, believe studio managers of the western coast.

Today the listeners sit intensely before their radio speakers waiting for the hero to rush in and rescue the girl. They are just as attentive, broadcasters declare, as were the youngsters who gripped the chairarms of movie theatres when Ruth Roland or Pearl White escaped the clutches of the mustached villain in their cinema adventures.

You pay for KELLYS—why not have KELLYS?

SOME people buy "mail order" tires under the impression that they are saving money. Others buy Kelly-Springfields — and don't have to pay any more for them.

Contrary to general belief, Kelly-Springfield tires are not high-priced. Their reputation has given many people the idea that because Kellys are so good they must cost more.

If you'll drop in and see us the next time you are in the neighborhood, we believe you'll be surprised to learn how Kelly prices run.

Besides, we can make you a trade-in allowance on your present tires—and put the new ones on for you.

When you can buy the best for the same price, why be content with less?

GAVE MUSICAL PROGRAMME IN ENTERTAINMENT SERIES

As the first of a series of three entertainments, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United church, gave a splendid programme of vocal numbers at the Community house, Tuesday evening. Rev. Mr. Abbott was accompanied by Henry J. LaFontaine, the well-known and popular local musician.

Rev. Mr. Abbott sang the various numbers in fine voice and the audience of 200 were liberal in their applause. The programme:

Group 1—Erlland (von Fielitz).

Group 2—In Autumn (Franz); The Old Mother (Grieg); I Love Thee (Grieg).

Group 3—I Love and the World is Mine (Johns); Constancy (Webber); The Three Birds (Cesar-Cui); I Attempt From Love's Sickness (Purcell).

Group 4—Till I Wake (Hope); The Blind Ploughman (Clarke); Invictus (Huhn); The Morning Hymn (Henschel).

Rev. Mr. Abbott's encore numbers were None But the Lonely Heart (Tschaikovsky); I Love Thee (Grieg), and When We Parted (Ippolitov-Ivanov).

The series of entertainments is being held by the Brotherhood for the purpose of raising money towards the Brotherhood's pledge for church repairs. For the next in the series Rev. Mr. Abbott will give a programme of selected readings and for the concluding night his programme will be "Mixtures."

The entertainments are in charge of the Brotherhood officers, Harold E. Robbins, president; Arthur L. Peale, vice-president; Marcus Leith, treasurer, and Henry D. Lyon, secretary. Mr. Leith had charge of the ticket table and the Home Time group of girls sold home-made candy.

SAY TALMAN ST. WILL PROVIDE ALTERNATE ROUTE

The proposed improvement of Talman street from Laurel Hill bridge to Preston bridge, is favorably looked upon by a number of local taxpayers. At the May meeting of the court of common council, Monday night, a petition asking for the improvement of that street, was received from Henry Gebrath, a former chairman of the public works committee of the council and others, and was referred to the finance committee to be placed in the estimates for action at the annual city meeting in June.

"We believe," said the petition, "that the improvement of Talman street will relieve the present congestion on Main street, at Shannon corner." In other words, it is felt by those who favor the improvement of Talman street, that if that street is put in proper condition, that many automobile drivers, heading east and west, would use Talman street, rather than Shetucket and Main streets, thus relieving the ever increasing traffic congestion at Shannon corner. The Talman street improvement, if carried, would be made at moderate expense to the city.

HAVE SPLENDID PROGRAMME FOR WOMAN'S CITY CLUB

A duo of professional entertainers from Boston, known as the "Versatilians," provided a splendid programme Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel before a capacity audience, the affair being presented under the auspices of the Woman's City club. The entertainers were Miss Eunice Scriver, violinist and whistler, and Miss Elizabeth Cary, reader and pianist.

It was an entertainment so varied and well presented, that it would please the most critical, so that the audience was unusually liberal with their applause and many were the congratulatory remarks after the programme.

The programme comprised: Readings, cuttings from play, "Happiness", in costume (a Brooklyn shop girl); monologue, Little Sister Entertains, also in costume; whistling solos with piano accompaniment, in Spanish costume; vocal selections, Russian Gypsy numbers, old-fashioned harp accompaniment; whistling solo with violin obligato.

The violin selections were Spanish Dance (Drdla), Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life (Victor Herbert), Indian Smoke Dance (Burleigh), Perpetual Motion (Bohm) and Fairy Tale (Komzak).

At the close a comedy skit entitled, "Capabilities," by Misses Scriver and Cary, costumed in capes, who pretended to have a quarrel, and found the silver lining to the quarrel and also the capes, was a feature number. A song from the musical comedy, "Sally," completed the programme.

RESERVES DECISION IN LANGEVIN DIVORCE TRIAL

In the superior court at New London Tuesday afternoon, after the criminal business had been disposed of Judge Allyn L. Brown heard the testimony and reserved decision in the divorce suit brought by Ernest Langevin of Wauregan against his wife, Alice Gelinas Langevin, who had been sentenced in the criminal session to six months in jail on the charge of unfaithfulness to her marriage relations.

The couple was married in April, 1925, at Arctic, R. I., and they have one child, a girl, born Dec. 8, 1926.

Committees Made Reports.

Reports from various committees, all most satisfactory, were made at the regular meeting of Mercier assembly, No. 12, C. L. of C., held Tuesday evening with Miss Loretta Gadbois, the president, in the chair. Plans are now underway for another card party to be given under the auspices of the degree team. At the next meeting the degree team will be exemplified by the degree team and the drill team will be seen in their work, which promises an especially interesting meeting.

READY FOR CEREMONY, BRIDEGROOM DELAYED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 7—Rough water in Long Island sound Tuesday afternoon prevented a Westerly couple from embarking upon a matrimonial voyage. Ariard Willard Roode, 22, son of Arthur Roode, keeper of Bridgeport lighthouse, was prevented from reaching Bridgeport and did not make the train to arrive in Westerly at 6:29. At her home, 1 Newton avenue, White Rock, the bride-to-be, Charlotte Marie Russell, 22, daughter of Horace Nelson, with her bridesmaid, Margaret Lynch, also of White Rock, waited in vain. The ceremony was set for 7 p. m. at the Seventh Day Baptist church and the pastor, Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, D. D., had been especially called back to Westerly from Boston to perform the ceremony.

The groom's uncle, Howard Gardiner, was to be the best man. The bride, when seen at her home could account for the absence of the groom by stating that only one man was able to bring the lighthouse keeper from his light to Bridgeport. She said that, although nervous, she was happy because no one was sympathizing with her and expected to take up her duties Wednesday morning at the textile plant of the George G. Moore Co., and the ceremony, planned four months ago, would not take place until Wednesday evening, for the lighthouse keeper would be unable to leave his light until Wednesday afternoon.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Charles E. Chapel

Mrs. Ellen Phillips Chapel of 376 Bank street, New London, one of the city's oldest residents died at 8:15 o'clock Sunday morning at the home of her daughter with whom she had resided. She was born June 16, 1838 in Waterford, the daughter of Gurdon and Eunice Haynes. She was twice married. Her first husband was the late Chester A. Phillips, whom she married in September 1857 and by this union there were eight children, four of whom survive her. They are Wallace Phillips of Mystic, Representative Fred Phillips of Montville, Dwight Phillips of New York and Mrs. Daisy Maher of New London. Another son, Charles H. Phillips of Fitchville passed away on July 10th, 1928. She is also survived by two grand daughters, Mrs. Adelbert Morrison and Mrs. Henry Metcalf of Norwich, two grandsons, James Phillips of Montville and Lewis Phillips of New London; also five great grandchildren. On July 22, 1903 she married Charles E. Chapel of New London who survives her with two step daughters, Mrs. B. King and Mrs. L. Morgan of Bolton, Mass., and two step-sons, Walter and Albert Chapel.

Mrs. Chapel was for many years a resident of Montville and she was the oldest living member of the Baptist church there in which she was a willing worker. Although she attended church in New London during her 35 years of residence there she had always retained her affiliation with the Montville church.

For many years she lived on Williams street. She was a dutiful mother, a true and loving wife and a loyal friend. The younger generation always called her Grandma Chapel. She has been most tenderly and devotedly cared for by her daughter during her last years.

Funeral services were held at the funeral home of Samuel M. Prentis Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, D. S. T. Rev. E. L. Nield of Montville officiated and burial was in Comstock cemetery at Montville. The love and esteem in which Mrs. Chapel was held was shown in the many and beautiful floral remembrances.

FUNERALS.

Edward W. Thordsen.

The funeral of Edward W. Thordsen was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the parlors of Undertakers Cummings and Ring, No. 322 Main street and the service was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. The burial was in the family plot at Patchaug cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Ricketts conducted the committal service. The bearers were Michael Clifford, John Lynch, Thomas Crassy and Walter Gromko. There were many beautiful floral tributes at the funeral.

Mrs. William M. Thompson.

At 2.30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. William M. Thompson was held at her home, No. 644 Main street, and the service was conducted by Rev. Thomas H. M. Ockford of Poquetanuck, who also conducted the committal service at the grave in the Yantic cemetery. Friends acted as bearers and there were a number of beautiful floral tributes. The Henry Allen and Sons Co., had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Merrill Lyons.

The funeral of Mary Lyons, widow of Merrill Lyons, was held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Hanover Congregational church with Rev. Mr. Snow officiating. The bearers were Fred Ladd, Myron Allen, Alvin Watrous, and Charles Chabunan, burial being in the Hanover cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Snow conducted the committal service. The funeral arrangements were in charge of G. G. Grant.

Mrs. William N. Thompson

The funeral of Mrs. William N. Thompson was held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at her residence, No. 644 Main street, with a number of relatives and friends attending. The services were conducted by Rev. Thomas H. M. Ockford of Poquetanuck and there was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes. Burial took place in Yantic cemetery and a committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Ockford. The bearers were Fred Thompson, Jr., Joseph Higgins, Howard J. Randall and Herbert L. Richardson. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Henry Allen and Son.

Mrs. Thompson, who was Julia Whaley, was born in Providence and died about noon Saturday at her residence following an illness of several years. Besides her husband she is survived by a son, Frederick Thompson of Providence, a sister, Mrs. Alice Ellsworth, six grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

THREE GO TO STATE PRISON UNDER SENTENCE FROM SUPERIOR COURT

Three state prison sentences were imposed in the criminal superior court at New London Tuesday on the opening day of the present term, with Judge Allyn L. Brown presiding, and the work of the court was pushed forward so expeditiously under the guiding hand of State Attorney Arthur M. Brown that only two or three of the 76 new cases on the docket are still to be disposed of. Many of the accused were represented in court by the public defender, Attorney Charles L. Stewart, and the court records were kept by Court Clerk John H. Walker.

Court was adjourned to next Friday morning in this city when sentence will be passed upon Mrs. Katherine Perrino, alias Katherine Ramestella, 61, accused of manslaughter in East Lyme through causing the death of Julia O'Connell of New London last September by an illegal operation. Mrs. Perrino pleaded guilty to the charge in court Tuesday afternoon. G. C. Morgan is her attorney.

Prayer was offered by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth when court was opened and the business of the session was then taken up.

Judge Brown sentenced Joseph Davanzo, 33, to state prison for not less than 2 1-2 nor more than 3 1-2 years, on the charge of burglary at a grocery store in New London.

Michael Fenton, 23, of Groton, was sentenced to not less than 2 1-2 nor more than 4 years in state prison on a burglary charge for stealing automobiles in Groton. Edward Joseph Demers, 17, of New London, who was associated with Fenton, was sentenced to the Cheshire reformatory.

Henry Martell, 33, was sent to state prison for not less than 2 years and 3 months nor more than 4 years for statutory burglary in Stonington.

Reformatory Sentences

Louis S. Perkins, 24, of Waterford pleaded guilty to a charge of "causing loss of life by gross negligence in operating a motor vehicle," and he was sentenced to the Cheshire reformatory. Perkins, it was alleged by the state, was driving under the influence of liquor along the Boston Post road in Waterford in March when he struck and killed Nellie Beckwith, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe L. Beckwith of Willetts avenue extension, and injured William Spieler, 14, of station 6, Waterford; Horace Beebe, 14, son of Harry M. Beebe, 32 Converse place, and Donald Ferguson, son of Rev. R. W. Ferguson of 252 Montauk avenue.

John T. Burns, 24, of Griswold pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle without the consent of the owner and was sentenced to the reformatory.

Tilden W. Pruitt, alias Charles Ingram, 17, pleaded guilty to theft of an automobile in Groton on March 2, 1929, and was sent to the reformatory.

Four Youthful Burglars

Four youthful burglars, all New London boys, were put to plea at the same time and all were sentenced to the reformatory, but in the cases of two of them the sentences were suspended under probation. The youths were Ralph Wolfe, 16; Frank Ellis, 17; Raymond Brooks, 19, and Jay Steele, 19. Wolfe and Ellis were charged with attempted statutory burglary on May 1, 1929, at the store of H. A. Mallove, Brooks and Steele with statutory burglary on April 7, 1929, at the Bank street store of Nicholes Stanitou.

State Attorney Brown described Wolfe and Brooks as the ringleaders and read off a list of about a dozen petty burglaries charged against them. There was only one count against Steele and two against Ellis. Judge Brown sentenced all four to the Cheshire reformatory, but suspended the sentences under probation in the cases of Ellis and Brooks.

Two Young Hold-up Men

William Weizerock, 17, and Charles Kriewski, 16, two New London youths, were before the court for robbery and attempted robbery and were sent to Cheshire. They held up and robbed a New London man on the street and tried to hold up the proprietor of a grain store. When the police were after them they took refuge in the railroad yards and Kriewski was shot in the lower part of the back as he was trying to get away.

Jail Sentences

Robert Dickey, 23, of New London pleaded guilty to taking a motor vehicle without the owner's permission and was given eight months in jail.

Ward Hazen, 55, pleaded guilty to statutory burglary in New London and was sentenced to 45 days in jail.

Michael Dwyer, 49, was sent to jail for six months and fined $25 on the charge of theft in the town of Griswold. He was under the influence of liquor at the time. Dwyer said he preferred to go to jail rather than to the state farm for inebriates, when Judge Brown spoke about sending him to the state farm.

Bessie Jackson, 42, of this city, charged with aggravated assault upon her husband, was sentenced to a year in jail, sentence suspended.

Joseph King, 22, charged with indecent assault in New London, was sent to jail for six months.

Burrell Pierce of Bozrah and Mrs. Alice Langevin, charged with adultery, were each sent to jail for six months.

In regard to the case of Leroy Buddington, accused of indecent assault in the town of Mystic, State Attorney Brown stated to the court that Buddington had spent a large part of his life in the insane asylum and there was much doubt of being able to convict him on the charge. He is now back in the asylum, the state attorney said, and he recommended a nolle, which Judge Brown ordered.

Escaped From Jail

The case of Joseph Magnan, accused of statutory rape in Norwich, was continued when the state attorney explained to the court that Magnan had escaped from the Norwich jail, but the state police say they are warm on his trail.

For Carrying Concealed Weapon

On the charge of carrying a concealed weapon, a revolver, in the town of Lyme on April 23, Harry G. Misunas, employed by a Mr. Tiffany as a watchman, was fined $25 without costs.

Sanity Commission Named

In the case of Lindsay G. Smith of this city accused of embezzlement, State Attorney Brown stated that the man is undoubtedly insane and his counsel, Attorney Edward G. McKay, was to ask for an order for the appointment of a commission to examine Smith as to his sanity.

Judge Brown later signed the order naming Drs. W. T. Callahan and C. H. Gildersleeve of this city, and Superintendent E. S. Bunnell of the Norwich State hospital as the sanity commission. It is expected they will make a report in court Friday.

On Arson Charge

Stanley Sanford Peters, alias John Doe, of New York, and Harry Trefes of Stonington pleaded not guilty to the charge of statutory arson in Stonington on April 20, 1929. They elected to be tried by jury and the trial may be set for some day next week.

Judge Modified Assault Charge

When Israel Markow, 68, of this city pleaded guilty to the charge of aggravated assault with a pocket knife upon Philip Sherman on Jan. 16, 1929, State Attorney Brown recommended a fine of $50.

He went on to explain that the assault arose out of an argument over some tires and Sherman was stabbed in the shoulder. After brief remarks from Attorney C. C. Morgan, counsel for Markow, Judge Brown directed that the charge be changed to simple assault and the fine be $35 without costs.

Israel Ragavin of this city, a witness in the city court in the Markow case, where his testimony caused a perjury charge to be made against him, had his case nolled on payment of $150, on the recommendation of State Attorney Brown.

SHOWS LOSS IN G. & E. APPLIANCE SALES BUSINESS

In eleven months time the Norwich gas and electric department showed a loss of $5,401.29 in its appliance sales department, according to the report of Martin Cohen, auditor, to the special committee appointed by the court of common council some weeks ago to investigate the sales of appliances by the department. Total sales during the 11 month period were $54,160.03 and the gross profit on the sales was $18,766.95. The expenses during this period were $24,168.24 which means a loss of $5,-401.29.

The auditor's report was presented to the common council at its May meeting Monday night. After hearing the committee's report, the council accepted a proposed ordinance which prohibits the gas and electric department from engaging in the sale of appliances. The proposed ordinance comes up for public hearing before the council on the evening of June 17th. The auditor's report to the special committee follows:

Aldermen Richard P. Gregson,
Chairman of Special Committee,
Court of Common Council:

I have made an examination of the books and records of the city of Norwich gas and electrical department, of accounts pertaining to the sale of appliances as per your instructions and have set forth the results under accompanying profit and loss statement.

Merchandise inventory as set up was taken from the books without verification, the only possible verification would be in taking actual physical inventory.

The books of the department which are kept in accordance with the form laid out by the public utilities commission, do not keep segregated the accounts affected by the sale of appliances as such, and it was therefore necessary to pick out those accounts which might be affected. In the short time given for the completion of the audit, accounts which seemed the most important were examined first.

Accounts contained in the accompanying profit and loss statement are those which seem entirely for the merchandising of appliances though there are several accounts which are only in some measure related. Following are accounts which are in some measure affected, the part of which would have to be more or less arbitrarily applied.

Commercial collecting: Amount applicable to appliances impossible to distinguish as such, as collections are made primarily for gas and current, and installments on appliances incidentally.

Commercial bookkeeping: Impossible to determine the part of whole applicable.

Other general office salaries: Impossible to determine the amount applicable.

General office supplies and expenses: Only expense applicable would be for general stationery, amount of which cannot be determined.

Store expenses: Includes salary of stores keeper and assistant who have charge of all the purchases for plant as well as appliances and impossible to segregate.

Bond interest: Amount applicable could only be determined by a detail and exhaustive examination of individual accounts receivable so that total amount due for appliances only, would be considered.

Management salaries and transportation cost of sales manager although charged entirely to the sale of appliances, the cost is partly due to producing increase in gas and electricity consumption outside of sales appliances.

A test was made as to credit limits on sales of appliances, and it was found that exceptionally liberal terms are granted as considered by merchandising standards.

It is reasonably possible that due to the great number of classifications which by their name would imply that they are not related to the sale of appliances, one or more important items were omitted. It would require a complete detailed audit of the department books to be certain that such a possibility did not happen.

In my opinion and subject to the above, the accompanying profit and loss statement correctly reflects the activities of the city of Norwich gas and electrical department on the merchandising of appliances for the 11 months period, May 1, 1928 to March 31, 1929.

MARTIN COHEN,
Accountant and Auditor.

GIFTS MADE AT SHOWER CAME IN MAY BASKET

Miss Henrietta Friese was tendered a surprise shower Tuesday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Shea, Jr., Rock Glen, off Palmer avenue, in honor of her approaching marriage to Edward Hildebrand, formerly of Norwich, now of Bridgeport. A supper was served during the early evening and was followed by a social evening. The house was prettily decorated in Nile green and blush pink and there was an opened umbrella, with streamers, suspended from the ceiling. The gifts for the bride-to-be, were found in a May basket left at the home. Miss Friese, seated beneath a bower, was unexpectedly showered with confetti, released by a string suddenly pulled by one of those present.

Among those present were Helen Baldyga, Lena Lorinski, Anna Driscoll, Margaret Casey, Margaret Schaffhausen, Mary Geer, Dorothy Jennis, Alice Gilbeault, Louise Schaffhausen, Jean Lorinski, Kitty Haggerty, Kitty Hanrahan, Ruth Gore, Hazel Hein, Martin Burke, Oscar Beauregard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gore, Mrs. James Young, Barbara Friese, Bertha Wiese, Genevive Wiese, Kitty Swatzburg, Tilly Hildebrand, Mrs. Adolph Friese and John Shea.

Those who presented gifts to the bride-to-be, included Miss Mary Driscoll, Miss Anna Whalen, Miss Margaret Rohen, Mrs. Margaret Moran and Mrs. Barrows.

Visitor From Tacoma

Raymond T. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley J. Moore of Tacoma, Wash., and formerly of this city, is a guest of his aunt, Mrs. Fletcher E. Boynton of Freeman avenue. Mr. Moore has just closed a successful run of a year and a half with the collegiate musical comedy "Good News" and after a short visit here leaves for California where he will visit many friends in the movie colony in Hollywood. From there he will spend the remainder of the summer with his parents on the coast, returning to New York in August where he will continue his work in the operetta "The New Moon" which is now playing on Broadway.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Imogene Scott Ridgely, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Randolph Ridgely, of Baltimore, and Frederick Sewell Camp, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trumbull Camp, of Norwich. The marriage takes place at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, May 18, at Christ church, Baltimore. Mr. Camp and family and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins will be present from Norwich.

In the summer colony at Neptune Park the coming season, having leased cottages on the seawall, will be members of the Hall family, of South Willington—Mr. and Mrs. W. R. McBee in the Lippitt cottage, Mrs. William H. Hall and her mother, Mrs. Holman, in the Preston cottage, while William D. Holman and family, of Hartford, will occupy the Atwood residence.

The Tuesday afternoon Bridge club met with Mrs. Laurence E. Millea, the prize winners being Mrs. Henry H. Vignot and Miss Mary G. Shannon.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver L. Johnson have had as their guest the former's sister, Mrs. H. C. Hatch, of Windham.

Corporation Counsel Edmund W. Perkins has returned from spending Father's Week-end with his son, Dunstan, at the Kent school. Mrs. Perkins also has returned, having been at Windsor Saturday for the Berkshire-Loomis track meet, going to Sheffield, Mass., to pass Sunday with her son, Edmund Blackstone Perkins, a member of Berkshire school track team.

Mrs. Alfred Cheney Johnston, who passed the week end at the home of her father, Richard S. Gernon, motored back to New York Monday.

Mrs. Frank S. Bunnell was hostess to the Monday Bridge club. Miss Martha L.

MAYS DECISIVELY BEATS CURCIO AT NEW LONDON; PECHEENI GETS VERDICT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 7—Bobby Mays, Connecticut lightweight champion, decisively outpointed Frankie Curcio of Providence, champion of Rhode Island, in the ten-round main bout of Promoter Ernest Fakourey's opening outdoor show of the season at the Hamilton street arena here tonight. The show was witnessed by 3,500 shivering fans who paid in a total of $2,600.

It was Bobby Mays' first local bout since last August when his right arm was fractured in a bout with Young Al Conley. Mays came back with practically all of his former speed and ring generalship. He was master of Curcio in all of the ten rounds and had smooth sailing in every round except the fifth, when he went down under a foul blow. The referee allowed him a minute's rest and he resumed the fight without slackening of speed or endurance.

Mays, a natural southpaw, had a big advantage over the right hand punching of Curcio. The Providence boy's main weapon was right hook to the jaw but he was unable to land it once and it was not until the ninth round that Curcio showed anything in the form of a dangerous attack. In this round he tore into Mays with little thought of caution. This proved his undoing as Mays spun him around about midway of the round and then smothered him under a barrage of rights and lefts that put an effectual stop to the Providence boy's rally.

Mays worked a long right followed by a left cross that had Curcio in a bad way during the early stanzas. At the end of the fourth Curcio's face showed the effects of Mays' pummeling, his mouth was cut and his left eye was starting to swell. It was in the fifth that Curcio dropped Mays with a low blow. After a minute's rest, during which his seconds worked over him, Mays came back and started in where he left off. There was never any doubt as to the superiority of Mays at any stage of that fight. He was complete master of the situation and tonight looked fully as good if not better than a year ago when he was considered in his prime.

Suggs Stops Genaro

Sonny Suggs, brother of Chick Suggs of New Bedford, gave Mickey Genaro of Waterbury a severe beating in the eight-round semi-final. The hard-hitting little Negro did not open up until the third round when he began slashing out with a left hand and stepping in with right-hand attack to the body. Suggs floored Genaro with a terrific right-hand smash to the chin in the fifth round. Mickey was up on one knee at the count of five but took the full nine seconds. In the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds Suggs battered the Waterbury boy almost at will. During the sixth round a left hook raised a mouse under Mickey's right eye. Suggs' left hand shots cout Mickey badly about the mouth, nose and cheek and he was bleeding freely when the bout ended. Suggs weighed 130 and Genaro 131.

Wagner Gets Verdict

Kid Wagner, local featherweight, came back to the ring after being in retirement since last June and was awarded a decision over K. O. Brown of Bristol, R. I., in six rounds. Brown went down under a right to the stomach in the fourth round and the count rose to seven when the bell rang. Brown and his seconds claimed a foul but the referee would not allow it. He came out for the fifth round and continued to fight with no apparent harmful effects from the disputed blow. Wagner had a shade the better of every round except the first, which was fairly even. Wagner weighed 128 and Brown also weighed 128.

Russo Kayoes Wilson

Joe Russo of Westerly, R. I., technically knocked out Roundhouse Wilson of New Bedford, Mass., in the second round of a scheduled six-rounder. Late in the first round Russo sent Wilson to the canvas with a right to the jaw but the bell rang at the count of three. Wilson was apparently down for the count except for the timely intervention of the gong. Beginning the second round, Russo charged into his opponent and drove both hands into the body. He crowded Wilson to the ropes near a neutral corner and brought in a right-hand shot to the midsection and then raising his attack to the head he hooked Wilson with a right and left to the jaw. Wilson was defenseless and glassy eyed and the referee stopped the bout to save him further punishment. The weights were Russo 160 and Wilson 149 1-2.

Pecheeni Wins

Geno Pecheeni of Norwich won a decision over Young Arruda of New Bedford, Mass., in a four-round preliminary. Geno took the first, third and fourth rounds. Arruda had a margin in the second round in which he floored Pecheeni for a count of three. Pecheeni boxed cautiously after the knockdown, making good use of a long left hand. He made Arruda miss often and stepped in to inflict severe body punishment with his own right. In the third round Arruda's most effective blow was a left hook which cracked Geno's cheek. Pecheeni cut Arruda's mouth badly in the fourth round with a barrage of left jabs. Pecheeni weighed 125 1-2 and Arruda 126.

Tauff, a Victor

Curley Tauff of the Coast Guard, New London, outpointed Johnny Bedell, also of New London, in the first four-round preliminary. Tauff, swinging rights and lefts, piled up a safe point margin in the first three rounds, crowding in all the way. Tauff began to tire in the middle of the third round and was an easy mark in the fourth. Bedell took the last round, shooting short rights to the face in the infighting. During the final round Tauff was cut freely about the face and he was very unsteady on his feet. The weights were Bedell 113 and Tauff 117.

ACADEMY TRACKSTERS MEET CHAPMAN TECH ON MONDAY

The next meet for the Academy track team will come next Monday afternoon when Chapman Tech will be the opponents at the campus. This will be the third meet of the season for the locals, who have won one and lost one. Coach Matthew J. Sheridan expects a stiff tussle from the Whalers and this meet should give a good line on the Red and White team's chances in the Interscholastic Conference meet at New London, May 22.

St. Mary's Win Third Victory

At Mohegan Park, Tuesday, the St. Mary's beat St. Patrick's, 11 to 9, while Lyons pitched a fine game. Kirby and L. Angelone led the hitters with three hits apiece. The game was fast all the way through with two double plays. Roberts played nice ball also doing some sleight of hand tricks on first base. Hartnett saved the game by hitting a two bagger into deep center. The score by innings was:

S. M. S.	0 2 0 0 1 6 2 — 11
S. P.	2 0 0 0 6 1 0 — 9

SENATORS RALLY IN NINTH BUT FAIL BY ONE RUN

DETROIT, May 7—(AP)—Despite a two-run Washington rally in the ninth inning, which was stopped only by good luck, the Detroit Tigers scratched out a 3 to 2 victory over the Senators today in the opening of a three-game series.

Earl Whitehill's portsided slants were nicked by the Senators for only six hits but a brace of walks and two singles in the ninth almost undid his previous work. Two triples, by Alexander in the second and Gehringer in the third, played a large part in the downfall of Sam Jones.

BRAVES RALLY IN EIGHTH TO BEAT OFF CARDINALS

BOSTON, May 7—(AP)— An eighth inning rally, resulting in four runs, today enabled the Braves to fight off the aspiring St. Louis Cardinals and win the first game of the series here, 8 to 5.

Singles by Clark James, Sisler and Harper and an error by Frisch, enabled the Braves to romp home with the winning runs in the eighth.

Greenfield was driven from the box in the fifth inning nder a barrage of Cardinal hits.

YANKEES BEAT BROWNS TO TAKE LEAGUE LEAD

ST. LOUIS, May 7—(AP)—The Yankees scrambled to the top of the standing of the clubs today for the first time this season by shading the Browns by 8 to 5 in a ninth-inning finish at Sportsman's park. Babe Ruth hit his fifth home run in the fourth with two aboard and Bill Dickey added another in the next round, but these blows would have failed of victory had Alvin Crowder been able to get the champions out in the ninth. Ruth's walk, Gehrig's single and Meusel's double spoiled the day for Crowder, who gave way to Rip Collins.

Herb Pennock again was knocked from the box, this time by a sixth-round assault which netted four hits, three runs and a lead of 5 to 4 for the Browns. Wiley Moore acted as relief, but stepped aside for a pinch batsman in the eighth. Tom Zachary finished and got credit for the victory.

The game was marked by six double plays, three by each side.

Thermos Wins

The Termos Bottlers defeated the Richmond Radiator nine Tuesday evening at Hollyhock Island in an exhibition game between these two Dusty league teams. The score was 4 to 1.

Susie Says

Congratulations, Geno.

Yep folks, we took in another boxing show last night at New London. Kind of chilly around the edges but there was plenty of action to take your mind off the weather.

It must have been a good show to hold 1600 fans in their seats for over two hours. Those who had overcoats were the envy of their less fortunate brothers.

This boy, Bobby Mays, sure looks like a comer. His work against Curcio showed that he has plenty of speed and knows how to use it to the best of advantage. Curcio was a total loss against the New London southpaw.

It looked to us as though that low blow in the fifth might have been a diplomatic way of getting out of taking a proper trimming. Mays however thought different and kept on fighting.

Geno Pecheeni, the pride of Danny Shea and the Smoke Shop boys, paid them good dividends last night. Geno took Young Arruda without difficulty. Geno sure looked like a champ.

There was more or less Norwich interest in the performance of Kid Wagner, former Norwich boy. The Kid fought his usual slashing bout to win easily from K. O. Brown of New Bedford.

Those that attended the bouts from Norwich were well repaid for the trip and if Promoter Fakourey continues to put on these kind of shows he can bank on Norwich patronage.

For next week Al Beauregard is slated to meet Al Gillette in the main bout at the Hamilton street arena. Beauregard fought at New Haven and looked mighty good.

Gosh, if these bouts keep up I'll be talking and thinking fights. Of course if you married a good right and a left cross isn't a bad thing to have. Ask any married woman.

It was a record house according to Promoter Fakourey. More power to you, Ernie.

PITTSBURGH WINS OVER GIANTS IN TENTH

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—Late rallies by the Pirates at the Polo Grounds today enabled the invading Buccaneers to defeat the Giants by 3 to 2 in ten innings in the first game of the series. The visitors rushed two runs home in the eighth to tie, and added the winning marker in the tenth on a double by Lloyd Waner and a single by Hal Traynor.

The only Giant scoring against Larry French, recruit southpaw, was in the form of home runs in the first and the second innings, one each by Andy Cohen and Fullis. It was French's first major start.

Larry Benton pitched for the Giants, and kept the Pirates' thirteen hits well scattered except in their two scoring innings. Hogue drew an intentional pass in the ninth, filling the bases with two out, but Benton was permitted to go to the plate for himself. He fouled t Sheely.

Ray Schalk managed the Giants in the absence of John McGraw, who has a heavy cold. All of the Giants' five runs in the last two games have resulted from homers, each with the bases empty.

DEIGEL SETS RECORD AS HE LEADS IN QUALIFYING ROUND OF BRITISH OPEN

By FRANK H. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

GULLANE, Scotland, May 7—(AP)—With Leo Diegel, professional golf champion of the United States, showing the way, American golfers today made a highly successful entrance into the British open championship.

Diegel, with a record-breaking 70 over the Muirfield course, led the big qualifying field with a score of 144 for the 36 holes of pre-championship play and he was followed into the select circle of qualifying players by most of his fellow countrymen.

It can no longer be said that British weather at its worst can dismay golfers from the United States. Yesterday's howling east coast rainstorm and a gusty wind today played all the tricks that weather can play with a golf ball but all the serious contenders from the United States got under the wire with 163 or better, necessary to qualify.

Close behind Diegel with a 36 hole score of 147 was Wee Bobby Cruickshank, who was bred on the wild winds of Scotland. George Von Elm, Detroit amateur, scored 151 to go into a tie with George Duncan and Albert Whiting, Britons, for fifth place, a stroke behind a great British amateur, Cyril Tolley, and Reginald Whitcombe, youngest of the Whitcombs, golfing brothers.

Von Elm was the only American amateur to qualify and he was the only one expected to continue in competition after today. Silas M. Newton, of New York and Joshua Crane, of Boston, used too many strokes and F. W. Stiles of Philadelphia, and Max Behr, of San Francisco, did not return cards today after bad starts yesterday.

Until the last it seemed that the American Ryder cup team might go into the championship play intact as Ed Dudley scored 162, the limit. Al Espinosa, scoring 161, and Johnny Farrell, 160, were in danger for a time, but the rest of the Ryder cup team and the other visitors from America were well placed.

The international aspect of the championship will, the exception of the usual Anglo-American fight was largely eliminated by the weeding out process of the qualifying rounds but Jose Jurado with a score of 153 remained to carry the hopes of Argentina.

The adopted Americans, Cruickshank, Jim Barnes, MacDonald Smith, Tommy Armour and Jimmie Thompson, also conquered the worst weather their native land could muster and Wild Bill Mehlhorn, lone raider, who came to Scotland to beat the golfing world in general, qualified easily.

J. H. Taylor, Harry Vardon, Ted Ray, and Alex Herd, were among the famous veterans to qualify, but James Braid and Jack White failed.

With Diegel and Cruickshank, the only players able to beat 150 for the 36 holes and Von Elm only a stroke over the rest of the American invading contingent were strung out over a string of figures. Watrous had 152, Hagen and Horton Smith 154, Armour and Mehlhorn 155, Sarazen, Golden and MacSmith 156, Turnesa, 159, Farrell and Barnes 160, Espinosa 161, and Dudley 162.

Diegel's sterling round of 70 was the feature of today's play, it bettered the course record by three strokes. Although he seemed at top form he was not satisfied. He took three putts on four greens. Although he has bought half a dozen putters since he reached Muirfield, he went back to his old one today.

GAVUZZI PICKS UP TIME LOST ON MONDAY

COALGATE, Okla., May 7—(AP)— Pete Gavuzzi, bearded Italian of England, regained the time he lost yesterday in C. C. Pyle's bunion derby when he ran the 54 miles from Holdenville, Okla., to Coalgate today in 7:27:30.

Johnny Salo, Passaic, N. J., policeman, was second, covering the distance in 8:08:05. Philip Granville, of Hamilton, Ont., and Paul Simpson, of Burlington, N. C., trotted in together, to tie for third place in 8:27:40. M. B. McNamara, of Australia, was fifth, and Giusto Umek, of Trieste, Italy, came in sixth. Sam Richman, New York, was seventh and Harry Abramowitz, New York, eighth.

The five leaders in elapsed time:

Pete Gavuzzi, England 251:20:12.
John Salo, Passaic, N. J., 253:56:17.
Giusto Umek, Italy, 266:58:01.
Paul Simpson, Burlington, N. C., 277:46:08.
Sam Richman, New York, 282:17:45.

"PHINO" TOMBARI GOING WELL AT C.A.C.

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, May 7—Among those that have succeeded in making a name for themselves during their careers at the Connecticut Agricultural college, is Serafino P. Tombari, former Norwich Free Academy star athlete, and now a junior at the Storrs institution.

Starting off in the year 1926 as a "lowly" freshman, "Pinto" as he is popularly known here, was a candiate for the frosh football team that made a remarkable record during that season. During the winter his activities waned, but with the coming of spring he aspired for the baseball team under Alexander at the shortston position. Although the former N. F. A. athlete was better known as a second baseman during his secondary schooling he soon became acquainted with the new position and was later elected captain of the nine.

As a second year student "Pinto's" name was again connected with athletics alone. His first shot at the end position, pushed a veteran from the place in the line which he covered remarkably during the year. His ability to throw and spear passes made him a threat that added many points to the Aggie gridiron scores that season. In the spring he easily drew down the shortston position, and made good from the start.

His real step into the limelight came this school year 1928-1929. In the usual manner he started off playing end on one of the greatest football teams that has marked Aggie gridiron history; a team that went through a season with but one setback, and that at the hands of Boston college. The team nevertheless succeeded in scoring more points than any other team against the mighty Maroon and Gold eleven.

In the early fall the vice presidency of the junior class was awarded to Tombari, and also the position of circulation manager of the Nutmeg, the annual yearbook. During the winter he participated in the inter-fraternity bowling matches, in which his team he captained were the winners of the inter-mural championship and were awarded the Mediator cup which is presented each year to the winning team.

At the annual mid-year formal dance, Tombari was one of the committee who put this dance across. His next honor was his appointment as chairman of the Junior Week committee, the most difficult executive position to be held by any undergraduate. He is directly responsible for all that will occur during the local Junior Week festivities that will be held May 4th and 11th inclusive. This is the downfall or success of the class during its career at Storrs, which will give an idea of the responsibility of the position that "Phino" has been selected for.

In addition to these honors, Tombari was elected to the student senate, student governing body recently. He has been shifted to the third base position on the diamond outfit this season because of his strong throwing ability. He is a good student as well majoring in chemistry, and holding his own in the classroom as well as on the athletic field and in extra-curricula activities.

The work that the Norwich youth is accomplishing is remarkable in the fact that he is working his way through school. He works for the athletic department, not on a white collar "gift job," as one might think, but as a laborer for wages that can be scarcely called much. He is also a waiter in the dining hall, for which he is known for his politeness and willingness to serve. His work has always been of the highest rank while a student here and his popularity is increasing each day. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tombari of 47 Washington street.

O'DOUL'S HOMER WINS GAME FOR PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, May 7—(AP)— Lefty O'Doul's home run, his fifth of the season, gave the Philadelphia Nationals a 6 to 4 victory over Cincinnati in the series opener here today.

Eppa Rixey was coasting under a 4 to 2 lead going into the eighth inning but the Phillies were up with a quartet of tallies. O'Doul's smash over the fence accounted for three runs.

Curt Walker gave Cincinnati a 3-0 lead in the first inning with a homer off Alec Ferguson. Luther Roy, who got credit for the game pitched good ball after relieving Ferguson. A pinch hitter replaced Roy in the rally round and Benge pitched the ninth inning for the Phillies. The score:

DYKES, ERRORS HELP WHITE SOX TO WIN

CHICAGO, May 7—(AP)—Alphonse Thomas and the White Sox put a crimp in Connie Mack's Athletics today, taking the series opener, 4 to 2. Thomas restricted Philadelphia to five hits, while his mates hammered Bob Grove for an even dozen.

Grove kept the Sox safeties fairly well scattered, but errors, three of them by Jimmy Dykes, Athletic shortstop, helped Chicago to score the necessary runs. Cissell, Chicago shortstop, matched Dykes in misplays but his boots were of less serious nature.

DANIELSON

EYE DEMONSTRATION GIVEN AT HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 7—In the auditorium of the high school building this afternoon at 4:30, Mrs. B. Franklin Royer, wife of the secretary of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, conducted an eye clinic with subjects of pre-school age, with a view to demonstrating to teachers and other adults who were present methods of detecting eye faults in young children and pointing out what should be done to correct these faults. Several children between the ages of four and five years were used for the purposes of the demonstration, a feature of the Week for the Blind here. Each September teachers in the public schools of Killingly give pupils eye tests when school opens for the year, using material supplied by the state, but these tests are necessarily something less than adequate, though they are the means of uncovering many unsuspected defects of the eyes in pupils and the opportunity to correct them. The clinic conducted by Mrs. Royer this afternoon proved highly interesting.

Meanwhile, this and surrounding communities are showing surprising interest in the exhibition at the town hall in the interest of the blind. Hundreds visited the exhibits yesterday, and hundreds more today. This morning Stetson K. Ryan, secretary of the State Board of Education for the Blind, said the opening day in Danielson yesterday was one of the best of record in the entire state. Total receipts were $308.40, of which amount $225.65 came from sales in the main hall, $5.35 from the tea room, $54.95 from sales in Wauregan and $16.35 from sales in Attawaugan.

The presence of blind people engaged at their trades is one of the most interesting features of the exhibit. William Kearns, a blind shoemaker, is mending shoes. Gustave Vozel, a blind chair caner of New Hartford, is putting new seats in chairs and stools. Miss Agnes Wall, a blind dictaphone typist and operator of Hartford, is demonstrating her work. Two blind teachers of the State Board of Education of the Blind, Miss Lorraine N. Berger and Miss Corinne Delesderniers, are present. They are taking turns operating a sewing machine and loom, on which a rag rug is being woven. Secretary Ryan, Mrs. Francis W. Herrick, Miss Audrey Fleming, Mrs. Christine Schweisinger and Mrs. Lucy Gatchell are assisting in various capacities at the exhibition. This evening a group of blind children from the Connecticut School for the Blind provided an entertainment of merit.

Local committees assisting today were representative of St. Alban's church, the Greek Orthodox church and McGregor, W. R. C.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Spooner, in North Sterling, funeral services for Mrs. Mary Ellen Credit were conducted by Rev. Ernest C. Drake of the United Protestant church at Sterling. Burial was in the Parker Hill cemetery at North Sterling. The bearers were Bertrand Benway, Jared Hall, William Hawse, William Young, Byron Young and John Winthers. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

A death at 3:30 this morning at the home on the top of Dolly Cole hill, east of here, was that of Mrs. Ella Rounds, age 73 years. Mrs. Rounds was born in Foster, a daughter of Lemuel Hopkins and Susan Hopkins, members of families for generations resident in the Hopkins Mills section of that town. She was the widow of Lorenzo D. Rounds. Mrs. Rounds leaves a brother, Arthur, of Hopkins Mills and several nephews and nieces.

This evening a comedy drama, A Bunch of Fun, was presented in the Phoenix theater in the interest of Killingly grange by a cast made up, with one exception, of members of Little River grange of Hampton, and many were in attendance. The cast was made up Elmer Jewett, Jesse Richling, E. Pearl, Arthur Hall, Emma Keech, Fawn Jewett, Eleanor Pearl, Helen Gunther, Armand Bishop, Danielson, Irene Murphy, Arthur Fitts, Joseph Easterbrooks and Carrie Nichols.

Killingly and numbers of other towns in eastern Connecticut are under quarantine to prevent the spread of the European corn borer, it is announced in a pamphlet of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station. Other eastern Connecticut towns in this regulated area are Bozrah, East Lyme, Franklin, Griswold, Groton, Ledyard, Lisbon, Lyme, Preston, Salem, Sprague, Stonington, Voluntown, Waterford, Canterbury, Killingly, Plainfield, Putnam, Scotland, Sterling, Thompson and Windham.

Until further notice, unless accompanied by a certificate or permit issued by an authorized inspector of the state and federal quarantine and control administration, the following plant and plant materials cannot be allowed movement rom the restricted area, of which the foregoing towns are a part to points outside: Corn, broom corn, sorghum and sudan grass, including all leaves and stalks throughout the year. As the foregoing mentioned towns are in what is known as a two-generation area, all cut flowers and entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock, gladiolus and dahlia, excepting gladiolus and dahlia bumbs without stems are also barred from movement outside the area.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Helen Given of Plymouth, Mass., member of the faculty of Killingly high school the past year, and Lawrence McCarthy, also of Plymouth. Recently Miss Given and Mr. McCarthy have been visitors here with Miss Gertrude Pelletier.

Wednesday evening at Masonic headquarters here Sidney W. Bard is to give an illustrated talk before members of the Order of the Eastern Star on the Masonic home at Wallingford.

Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at St. Alban's church the wedding of Miss Lucy Ethel Laurie Beeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Beeney of the West Side, and Clarence Andrew Griggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Griggs of Abington, is to take place.

Mrs. James Monohan and Miss Margaret Monohan of Providence visited with relatives here today.

Thursday evening members of Danielson chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, are to be guests of the members of Faith chapter at Jewett City.

As has been customary for years past, Danielson patriotic organizations will assist in the Memorial day exercises to be held in South Killingly on Sunday, May 26.

Miss Emma F. Pilling, who has had charge, very successfully, of Junior Chautauqua work here for several years past, will not undertake it this year, because of her health, and Mrs. Edward L. Olsson has been named to succeed her.

Amateur athletes from various sections of the county will be at the Windham county fairgrounds in Brooklyn next Saturday for the annual track meet under the auspices of the Windham County Y. M. C. A.

When Dr. and Mrs. George M. Burroughs and their daughter, Miss Georgia and Miss Laura Jacobs arrived at the St. Georges hotel at St. Georges, Bermuda, a few days since they were surprised and delighted to be greeted by C. R. Creighton, the manager, whose family are resident in Dayville, and who visits here as his business permits.

PUTNAM

A. W. MARTIN SENTENCED TO A YEAR IN JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 7—Arthur W. Martin of North Grosvenordale was committed to Brooklyn jail to commence a sentence of a year when his probation sentence was revoked and the original penalty inflicted by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin in a special criminal session of superior court held here today. Martin was arrested a year ago and arraigned before Judge Marvin on a charge of abandonment of his wife and cohabiting with another woman. In view of the circumstances existing at his home, upon a recommendation from State's Attorney Howard Bradford, Judge Marvin committed the prisoner to the care of Probation Officer L. Edwin Hill of Danielson. In his report today Officer Hill charged that Martin had in the course of a year violated certain clauses of his probation. In view of these deliberate violations State's Attorney Bradford recommended that original sentence be carried out.

Bateman Gets Probation.

Gilbert F. Bateman of Chapel street arrested Friday evening by Police Sergeant George Liard on charges of indecent assault upon a girl and bound over to superior court Saturday morning following a hearing in superior court was arraigned before Judge Marvin this morning in superior court. The charge of indecent assault was changed to abusive use of a female child and Bateman pleaded guilty to the count placed against him. He was represented by Public Defender Harry E. Back of Danielson. In stressing the circumstances surrounding the case State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford informed the court that this instance was the defendant's first offense and while the charge against him was a violation it was not one of the most serious crimes and in view of the environment in which the eighteen year old youth had lived he recommended that a sentence of one year in jail be imposed and suspended, placing the boy on his good behavior for a year. Before committing Bateman to the care of a probation officer Judge Marvin severely reprimanded him for his conduct and carefully informed him of the rules and regulations governing his probationary period.

Kaminsky Sent to Prison.

Alexander Kaminsky alias Al Callahan, member of a Willimantic quartet of burglars, apprehended after a series of breaks had been charged against them by the police of that city was sentenced to serve a minimum term of four years and a maximum term of eight years on a charge of statutory burglary and a term of one year for three subsequent offenses of breaking and entering.

The youth was arraigned before Judge Marvin in superior criminal court this morning and pleaded guilty to the four counts.

State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford represented the state, while the defendant was defended by Harry E. Back of Danielson, public defender. Kaminsky's appearance before the bar this morning was the aftermath of a series of breaks committed in Willimantic in September, 1927. Two of his so-called nals were taken in custody shortly after the acts were committed and are now serving similar sentences in the state prison in Wethersfield. State's Attorney Bradford in his outline of the case stated that Kaminsky realizing the police were slowly tracking him down fled from Willimantic to Florida. It was only a few months later that he was arrested in Florida in connection with a series of breaking and entering offenses and thefts. To offset the Connecticut authorities the boy assumed the alias of Al Callahan and it was under this name that he was sentenced to serve a long term in the Florida state prison.

He was identified by Connecticut police officials while serving his sentence in the southern prison and after a conference between the governors of the two states was extradited and returned to this state to answer for the Willimantic charges.

The list of naturalization cases set for hearing at Willimantic on Tuesday morning, May 14, was issued this morning by Clerk of Courts Curtis Dean. The list is one of the most lengthy issued by Windham county court officials in several months and the cause of the accumulation of cases is attributed to the announcement by the United States department of labor to the effect that the modified code of immigration laws shall be in effect on July 1. Forty nine cases of naturalization are to be heard and those applying are subjects from the following countries: Great Britain 19, Albania 1, Poland 11, Italy 5, Denmark 1, Sweden 4, Germany 1, Greece 3, Czecho-Slovakia 1, Roumania 1, Syria (Lebanon) 1, Portugal 1. Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin will officiate at the hearing.

The regular civil session of superior court slated for trial this morning was opened and immediately adjourned to Willimantic on Thursday, May 16, by Judge Marvin this morning. Cases assigned to trial were settled out of court when agreements were reached by all lawyers.

Regular rehearsals for the forthcoming minstrels to be presented by the combined talent of the Putnam and Danielson Rotary clubs in Putnam on June 20 and in Danielson on the following evening are now taking place in both communities. Leon M. Farrin of this city who is a member of the production committee said this afternoon that dates for the event were changed a few days ago from June 13 in Putnam to the above named date.

In police court this morning two men from Boston arrested yesterday by Capt. of Police Jarvis and Officer Spencer following a bit of drunken boisterousness in the north end were fined and one was committed to the county jail to serve a sentence of 30 days. Judge Geissler officiated at the session.

Ladies' night was held last evening at the Masonic club rooms on South Main street. The Masons and the ladies gathered at a supper served in the club rooms earlier in the evening and following this were entertained by a group of sleight of hand performers. The annual affair was largely attended.

The youth of Webster schools as well as the older folk thrilled yesterday as they glanced upon the smiling countenance of Clarence Demar internationally known marathon runner of Boston who addressed several hundred children Monday in the municipal auditorium.

At noon in the Joslin house Mr. Demar spoke before a Rotary gathering. In both instances his talk was along the line of qualifications to become an endurance runner. He told of the experiences of the last few rasping steps needed in which to win the Boston marathon in which he was six times a winner.

Mention should have been made in this column this morning that the American Legion auxiliary also was represented by a committee assisting at the exhibit of the Week for the Blind in the town hall yesterday.

The annual Old English tea party attracted numbers of the members of the church and their friends to St. Alban's Parish house this evening, for a very pleasant social gathering.

Giavanni Guarco of Willimantic appeared before the town court this morning to answer to a charge of failing to grant the right of way and was fined $5 and costs, a total of $15.74, by Judge W. Fenner Woodward. Guarco's car was in collision here with a car owned by Charles S. Francis.

State Officer James Carmody, injured at Jewett City some time since, is still confined to his home here, but is making steady progress toward recovery and may be able to go on duty again during the coming week.

Are You Well and Strong?

"Before my third baby was born my husband advised me to take your medicine and he bought me three bottles of it. When I had taken the first one I began to feel better so I kept on during the whole period. We have a healthy baby boy and we are so proud of him and praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the help it gave me. I feel lots stronger since I started to use it and would not be without it."—Mrs. Frank Lukes, R. No. 1, Box 58, Lankin, N. Dakota.

TIGHT MONEY PRESSURE CONTINUES TO OBSTRUCT THE POOL OPERATORS

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—The stock market still suffered from the relentless pressure of tight money today. Pool operators were able to send a sizable assortment of issues a few points higher, but could not attract a following, and the general list persistently sagged, dozens of important stocks losing from 2 to 7 points. There was no inclination to unload, however, and the day's transactions fell short of 3,500,000 shares.

The remarks of Gov. Roy A. Young of the Federal Reserve board to the effect that the reserve banks cannot indefinitely keep their rediscount rates below open market rates were regarded rather gloomily in Wall street, as fears of higher rates had waned during the past few weeks. The passing of the peak of the spring commercial credit requirements had been expected to dissipate this cloud. Furthermore, rumors of a change of Federal Reserve policy had been passed about freely in Wall street recently.

An indication of the extreme scarcity of funds appeared today when New York banks were bidding 6 per cent between themselves for surplus Federal Reserve funds, a full 1-2 of one per cent above the rediscount rate. Call money renewed at 14 per cent, a high level seldom reached by the renewal rate in late years, and held at that rate all day. Dealers in bankers' acceptances raised their rates 1-8 of one per cent for the longer maturities, following a similar increase recently for 30-day bills.

Many theories were advanced for the persistent scarcity of funds. One was that J. P. Morgan & Co. had called a substantial sum to pay for stock purchased in United Gas Improvement by United corporation. Another was that recent new financing had caused a considerable drain on the money market. It was recalled that Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City bank, predicted on March 26 that money paid out over the month end would be slow in returning to this center.

The day's news was mixed in character. The tariff bill was generally regarded as a bullish influence. More favorable earnings statements appeared, particularly that of Mack Truck. Radio corporation first quarter showing of only 23 cents a share, however, was distinctly disappointing. Crude oil production figures for the latest week, showing practically no change despite the drop in California, were also disappointing.

International Telephone was a conspicuous strong point, mounting 11 1-2 points to 231 1-2, a new high, but losing nearly half its gain at the close. Sperks Withington was also sent up 11 1-2 points, reaching a new peak at 219 3-4, and holding its gain. Stockholders meet the end of the week to consider an increase in authorized capital to permit a 300 per cent stock dividend.

The utilities alone showed group strength, the Associated Press index of 20 moving forward, while the industrials and rails sagged. Airways Electrical Appliance, American Rolling Mill, Columbian Carbon, By-Products Coke, and Commonwealth Power mounted 4 to 7 points to new high ground. Cement and sugar issues improved in response to the proposed tariff schedules.

Radio dropped more than 6 points to 100, and closed at 100 3-4, in heavy selling on publication of the earnings report. Cable advices to the effect that negotiations for a merger with Columbia Graphophone, Ltd., had been unsuccessfully terminated with no present prospects of resumption tended to accentuate the selling. Such issues as General Electric, American Can, Commercial Solvents, New Haven Railroad, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and Westinghouse Electric lost from 3 to 10 points. Advance Rumely issues broke about 5 points more, but the common regained most of its loss. United Aircraft sold up during the morning, dropped 6 points later and closed 3 points off.

In the commodity markets, wheat again broke about 3 cents, to the lowest levels in five years, as the markets were clogged with the large surplus and export competition was keen. Corn sold off for a time, then rallied on unfavorable weather forecasts. Cotton broke about $1 a bale this morning, but regained its loss on reports of rains over the belt.

Foreign exchanges were quiet and fairly steady, although sterling cables were quoted a shade lower at $4.85 1-4. The Spanish peseta rallied from its low level reached yesterday.

WESTERLY

COURT AND CREDITORS LENIENT TO FAMILY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 7—Tuesday afternoon in the probate court Judge Edward M. Burke disposed of matters as follows:

Estate of Harry A. Littlefield. As at a previous hearing many creditors of estate who had accounts against restaurant property conducted on Bay street, Watch Hill, were present to urge that their claims be paid. In addition to a $2,000 claim, a creditor, James W. Burke, told the court that a listing he had made partially showed claims of $4,672.88. The estate came before the court on the petition of the widow, Mrs. Mabel Littlefield, who desires to operate the Watch Hill restaurant this summer, represented in court by Attorney Clarence E. Roche, for a six months' allowance for widow and four children, ages 6 to 12. Court ordered an allowance of $100 a month from the estate. In her inventory on file the estate showed $3,986, the restaurant building and fixtures, on leased land at Watch Hill, being inventoried at $2,500. A creditor, Charles R. Johnson, who stated that he desired no violence done the interests of the children, told the court that he had an opportunity once to sell the interests for $8,000 and thought the inventory figure low. Another creditor, who insisted that his three year claim of $1,310 should be paid was Louis Leone of Watch Hill. At the conclusion of the long hearing Judge Burke admonished the administratrix, Mrs. Littlefield, that the property should be managed not for personal interests but for all the creditors and ordered the decree entered as above, as the statute required protection for the family.

Estate of Harry T. Stimpson, Jr. Petition granted of Mary Stimpson, mother, of minor; Edward S. Stimpson of Newton, Mass., was appointed guardian of the estate in Rhode Island. Bond made $200. Thomas Perry named appraiser.

Estate of Andrew Lanphear. Petition received from Horace F. Sisson, named as sole executor in the will of the testator who died a resident of Westerly April 14, 1928, that the will be admitted to probate. Of the witnesses, Martin Shea and Eugene B. Pendleton, the former appeared in court. Admitted to probate without objection. Horace F. Sisson was confirmed as executor, Attorney M. Walter Flynn, appearing for executor and Judge Herbert W. Rathbun representing Mrs. Earl Robinson. Bond was made $900 with surety. Lewis Stanton was named appraiser.

Estate of Ann Taber. Following the probate court action of Aug. 7th appointing Edward Taber and Lulu Smith administrators, the former refusen to sign and constructively declining, a thirty days period having elapsed, letters testimentary were ordered issued to Lulu Smith, solely as administratrix, with bond satisfactory to court.

Estate of Annie G. Zerbarini. First and final account of Annie Zerbarini, from Sept. 26, 1928 to April 8, 1929, received and ordered filed.

Estate of Edward A. Hart. Second and final account of administrator from March 27, 1927 to March 25, 1929, received and ordered recorded.

Tuttle-Dalton

In law chambers in the Third District court, Judge Oliver H. Williams Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 performed the civil marriage service at which Viola Louise Dominick Dalton, daughter of Albert Dalton, became the wife of Charles Warren Tuttle of Portland, Me. The witnesses were Mrs. Robert Mason, Mrs. H. E. Shortman and C. E. Burdick. The groom is a sailor.

Real Estate Sale

May 6. Marion C. Caverly of Providence to Edward E. Pierce and wife, Ida M., of Wakefield, R. I., land together with buildings and improvements on the south side of the Boston Post road, bounded easterly by lands of Frederick B. Sprague and westerly by lands of James L. Gavitt.

Observed Patriotic Night

"In behalf of Westerly chapter, Order of DeMolay, I wish to express my appreciation and heartiest thanks to the members of Harriet Beecher Stowe Tent for this beautiful silk parade flag, which will also be used in our ritual work. We will ever stand faithful to our flag and all that it stands for—purity, bravery and loyalty. Again I thank you," said Master Councilor Miles Coulbourn as he accepted the colors presented by Stowe tent.

Singing by the DeMolay quartet to piano and violin obligator of numerous patriotic airs, short biographical talks were given as follows: Preceptor Nelson Thorp, Nathan Hale; Senior Steward Edward Botelle, U. S. Grant; Scribe John Wallack, Marshal Foch; Orator Burnie Stenhouse, Nathaniel Greene; Marshal Ralph Briggs, Robert E. Lee; Sentinel Donald Bonner, "Mad" Anthony Wayne; Standard Bearer Stanton Carpenter, Edward Rickenbacker; Almoner Robert Spargo, General Pershing. In the further observance of Patriotic Night Thomas McKenzie added a stereopticon talk on Masonic Patriots.

Won Providence Trophies

In two motor buses of the Rhode Island Coach lines members of Battery E, 243rd R. I. C. A. C., (H. D.) from the Dixon street state armory to Providence Monday night. An excellent showing was made by the military unit, Captain Alvin Andrews, commanding at the review held before Gov. Norman S. Case at the state armory in Cranston street, the men carrying off three trophies for excellence in rifle shooting. The Battery E. members won the Governor's trophy, for highest percentage of increase in figure of merit for rifle shooting; the Remington trophy and the National trophy for the highest figure of merit in the state of Rhode Island. The governor's trophy is a silver shield mounted on mahogany, and the two other trophies are statues.

The presentation of the Governor's trophy was made by Gov. Case. The trophy was made by Gov. Case. The prizes were awarded for excellence in rifle work for the season of 1928. Praise was given Lieut. Francis N. Spry, of Battery E., who had charge of the rifle practice.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Herman C. Eccleston

Funeral services for Mrs. Louisa Bailey Eccleston, 80, widow of Herman Clinton Eccleston, a well known resident of North Stonington were held Monday afternoon at two o'clock at her home in that village. Rev. Inor S. Partington, pastor of North Stonington Congregational church, officiated. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, Westerly, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Partington. The bearers were George Stone, William Bromley, Mason Pardelow, Ernest Gray, Wilbur Main and Edward Brown.

Percy Seeley of Boston, a former Westerly boy, visited Westerly friends Monday.

Erastus H. Benn was among Westerly business callers in Providence Tuesday.

Martin McGrath of Pawcatuck is a patient at the Newport, R. I., Naval hospital, being treated for stomach trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph E. Chandler have returned to New York after being guests of Mr. Chandler's mother, Mrs. C. Byron Cottrell.

LISBON

A committee of six young people is arranging a very attractive program for the meeting of the Community club Wednesday evening. The committee comprises Archie Goldberg, Alwin Kaempffe, Jr., Newell Rist, Gussie Thoma, Helen Thoma and Hortense Phillips. The meeting is to begin at 8 o'clock (D. S. T.).

Lisbon grange met Friday evening in the Community hall. The lecturer's program included music by a four-piece orchestra, a blackface sketch by Archie Goldberg and Charlie Helmboldt, pantomime, Wanted—A Wife, by Harold Mell, Miss Louise Schmidt, Miss Lena Seidel, Miss Annie Seidel and Miss Alice Schmidt; a violin and piano duet by Alwin Kaempffe and Alwin Kaempffe, Jr. At the next meeting of the grange the first and second degrees will be conferred on a class of nine by Canterbury grange.

Arthur Edmunds of Westminster was a visitor at R. R. Barber's Wednesday.

MYSTIC

WOMEN'S BIBLE CLASS ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR

The Women's Bible class of the Union Baptist church met Monday evening in the church for the annual business meeting and social. The officers' table in particular was beautifully decorated. Mrs. B. F. Davis, president and teacher of the class presided. Mrs. Davis who has been ill for several weeks thanked the class for their many expressions of love with flowers and cards sent to her.

The secretary paid a tribute to the late Mrs. Rowland H. Wilcox, a loyal member of the class. The treasurer's report showed $147.22 received. The class gave $100 to the church and expended $22 for flowers and $18.53 for other objects. Mrs. Coates reported 51 calls on the sick and Mrs. Packer, lookout and membership committee has been very active. Officers elected were: President, Mrs. D. M. Bennett; vice presidents, Mrs. Amy Williams; Mrs. Lottie Greenley, Mrs. Lillian Price; secretary, Mrs. W. A. Phillips; treasurer, Miss Harriet Fish.

Misses Winifred and Doris Wheeler gave two duets. Sandwiches, cake and cocoa were served by Mrs. Nelson Holdredge and Mrs. Harry Hill assisted by Misses Wheeler and Holdredge. The class offering was $14.10. Thirty-five were present.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Ryon and two children returned to Dunnellen, N. J., Tuesday. Mrs. Charles E. Newbury returned with them for a visit.

Miss Nellie Vincent has been the guest of Mrs. Fannie Burdick for a few days.

Mrs. Russell Lamb is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Dickinson in Hartford.

Many Have Vacation Class

Thursday evening the Baptist church has been invited to meet with the Methodist people in the parish house to talk over the idea of having a vacation Bible study class during part of July.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Phillips were in New London Tuesday, to attend the funeral of the former's mother, Mrs. Ellen Chapel.

Mrs. Ida Crandall attended the May luncheon of Lucretia Shaw D. A. R. chapter in New London Monday.

Mrs. Gurdon Allyn and Mrs. Frelove Miller were in Westerly Monday.

May Basket for Pastor

At dark Monday evening at the Methodist parsonage in Old Mystic there was a pleasant surprise when the Golden Rule and Master's Helpers classes and their friends presented the new pastor, Rev. H. C. Moore and family a beautiful May basket, decorated by Frank Patterson. The basket held bananas, apples and ripe picked oranges brought from Florida by Fred Barnes and family, two boxes of chocolates and a box with a substantial sum of money. Master Dudley, Mrs. Moore and the pastor expressed many thanks. Following this, all went to the parish house where an informal reception was given the pastor and his family. A social hour with games, directed by Mrs. Maria Pierce and Mrs. Fay Johnson came next. The pleasurable evening was brought to a close by the serving of sandwiches, cake and coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Allyn, returned Sunday from Orlando, Florida.

Mrs. Myra B. Shea of Norwich was a recent visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Davis.

Class Entertained School

The Sunday school class of Morgan Foote invited the Sunday school of the Congregational church to a social in the parish house at the week end. About thirty-five were present. Games were played and each was given a May basket. Ice cream, cake, and punch were served by Mr. Foote assisted by Mr. West and Mr. Jones.

At the Congregational church Sunday eight were received into the membership of the church by the pastor, Rev. F. G. Chutter.

Mrs. Frelove Miller of Norwich is visiting Mrs. Gurdon Allyn.

Mrs. Lewis Beebe and Miss Rosabel Hurlburt of New London spent a day recently with Mrs. E. V. Whiting.

Miss Louise M. Noyes and Mrs. Frederic Denison have returned from a ten days' motor trip to Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilcox and daughter of Oneco spent the week end with Mrs. Wilcox's mother, Mrs. Byron Billings.

Mrs. Estella B. Bailey regent of Fanny Ledyard chapter, D. A. R. with Mrs. Amy Bradley, Mrs. Gertrude Thompson, Mrs. Fannie F. Fish and Mrs. Minnie B. Phillips attended the funeral of Mrs. Lucy B. Ryon in Stonington Monday. Mrs. Ryon had been a member many years.

Mrs. George S. Scott, Mrs. Alfred O. Colby, Mrs. Henry Sinclair, Mrs. George Sherburne, Miss M. Josephine Dickenson and Miss Julia G. Foote attended the annual luncheon given by Lucretia Shaw chapter, D. A. R. at the Mohican Monday.

At Hartford Meeting

Mrs. Amy Bradley and Mrs. Estella B. Bailey motored to Hartford Tuesday and attended the banquet given by the National Society of New England Women at Hotel Bond at 7:30 o'clock. They were over night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Wheeler formerly of Mystic. Mr. Wheeler is principal of the American School for the Deaf. Wednesday Mrs. Bradley and Mrs. Bailey attended the sessions of the Society of New England Women, both being members.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Dickenson returned Monday from St. Petersburg, Fla., where they spent the winter.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY WILL CLOSE TODAY

scheduled for Wednesday and slamming of desks and tossing of paper wads was frequent. The house had a long recess waiting for business from the senate. Both houses closed the day all set for adjournment tomorrow without any rush hour business.

HOUSE

The house was called to order at 10:31 with the speaker in the chair. Prayer was offered by the house chaplain.

Resolutions were passed recalling from the office of the engrossing clerk S. B. 143, an act concerning the operation of public service motor vehicles and H. B. 269, an act incorporating the Connecticut Title and Investment company. This was for the purpose of corrections. A resolution expressing regret at the death of Palmer S. Willard, late representative from Wethersfield, and paying the balance of his salary to his widow were passed. Under suspension of the rules, the Middletown Trust company was granted until September 1, 1929 to file their certificate of incorporation.

The bill amending the charter of the Stony Creek association was passed as printed in the journal. At 12 a recess was taken until 1, but the house was not called to order till 1.33.

On disagreeing action with the senate, the Fairfield County hospital bill was reconsidered and the number of trustees was made twelve instead of five.

The bill providing for a vocational school commissioner was objected to by Mrs. Lewis, house chairman of the educational committee. It was a new bill, and had been rejected by a vote of thirteen to one by the committee. She claimed it had no standing before the house. Her point of order was sustained and the house refused to receive the bill.

The bill passed Monday codifying the laws concerning education came back from the senate, indefinitely postponed. On motion of Mrs. Lewis the house refused to reconsider its action and asked for a committee of conference.

The bill making an appropriation for the purchase of Rocky Neck park in East Lyme for the purpose of a state park was taken from the table and was amended to appropriate $50,000 to the state park and forest commission for the purchase of land without specifying when. A motion to indefinitely postpone was lost. An effort was made to to confine the appropriation to the purchase of land adjoining existing parks. This was opposed by House Leader Johnson. This motion was lost. The effort to amend the bill that would add the names of the governor and the mayor of New London to the commission on bridges and river was lost. The amendment had been passed in the senate.

House Leader Johnson and Minority Leader Tobin were appointed a committee to draft resolutions on the death of Ex-Governor Roberts.

Among the bills passed were the following:

S. B. No. 532. An act amending an act concerning county bar library appropriations. Substitute for S. B. No. 47. An act concerning the examination and registration of nurses. Substitute for S. B. No. 162. An act making an appropriation for the Second Company, Governor's Foot Guard. Substitute for S. B. No. 258. An act making an appropriation to Governor's Foot Guard. Substitute for S. B. No. 365. An act concerning a uniform system for hospitals receiving state aid. S. B. No. 533. An act concerning the filing of certificates of incorporation of foreign corporations with the secretary of state. Substitute for S. B. No. 535. An act amending an act providing for biennial elections in the town of Plainfield. H. B. No. 986. An act concerning fees of tax collectors. H. B. No. 272. An act concerning state aid to small towns.

At 1 o'clock the house adjourned to 10:15 standard time Wednesday.

HOPKINTON, R. I.

At the recent financial town meeting, $5,000 was appropriated to be used under the direction of the town council for replacing the wooden bridges in the town with those constructed of cement. Also the sum of $500 was appropriated to be used for oiling certain roads in the town.

Miss Clara MacDonald, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Byron, left Friday for California, where she will reside with her step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Wells.

Rev. Paul S. Burdick preached at the First Hopkinton Baptist church Sunday morning for the last time before leaving town for his new pastorate in New York state.

Clarence White and family, of Wakefield, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. White, Sunday. Miss Lura Clarke was the guest of Mrs. Sarah F. B. Hood last week.

Alfred A. Crandall and wife, Susan A. Crandall have purchased a building lot from the estate of Wallace B. Wells and intend to erect a dwelling at an early date.

GALES FERRY

ATTENDANTS AT LIBRARY DURING PAST MONTH

Attendants at the Gales Ferry Public Library during April included Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, Mrs. Andrew P. Miller, Mrs. Nelson Parker, Everett Noyes and Mrs. Josephine Birch.

The Secret of the Lord, Psalm 25.14, was the theme of the Sunday morning sermon at the Community Methodist Episcopal church, by the pastor, Rev. Jerome Greer. A solo, He Giveth Sleep, was sung by Miss Margaret S. Colver as the offertory selection. Holy communion was administered by the pastor at this service.

The Junior League superintendent, Mrs. Jerome Greer, has started Junior League meetings at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evenings. A study of the membership manual has been taken up.

Miss Helen L. Colver, newly elected first vice president of the Epworth League, led the Sunday evening meeting with the topic, Institute.

The league voted to omit the evening meeting next Sunday and to attend the Methodist Crusade meeting at the M. E. church in New London, when Dr. H. Reeves Calkins, of India, wil be the speaker. A pageant, arranged by Mrs. Grace Bitgood, of New London, will be presented the same evening.

The May meeting of the local Woman's Home Missionary society auxiliary, is to be held Tuesday the 14th with the vice president, Mrs. John Harold, at the submarine base.

Arrangements are being completed for supper, to be served under the auspices of the Men's class, at the local church.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Otis Winchester and Mrs. Charles H. Winchester, of Norwich, arrived Saturday for the season at their summer home in the village.

Miss Harriet Bishop Brown, of Hartford, called on friends at her former home in the village, Friday and was entertained over night by Miss Alice Satterlee.

Home From Washington

Mrs. Chester E. Dimick returned the last of the week from attendance at the D. A. R. congress in Washington, D. C., and visits to her mother, Mrs. W. B. McKelden of Washington and her sister, Mrs. R. E. Powell, in Linwood, Penn. Mrs. Dimock motored back with her niece, Mrs. Hugh Peters, who has just returned from Panama, and who has been joined here by Lieut. Peters, from the Submarine Base for a visit to Prof. and Mrs. Dimick.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Paul Chambers

Local relatives have received word of the death, on Sunday, April 28, of Mrs. Rose L. Chambers, widow of Capt. Paul Chambers, at her home in Louis River, N. J. Mrs. Chambers was a former resident of Allyn's Point and was a daughter of the late Nelson and Lydia Stoddard Maynard. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Bertha Chambers and a son, John Chambers, of Louis River. Her sister, Mrs. Bertha Hoyt, of Gales Ferry, was called to Louis River by her critical illness a short time ago. There are also three brothers, Willard, Maurice and Allyn Maynard surviving.

F. Leon Hooker, of New Haven, motored here Saturday afternoon for a call on Mr. and Mrs. J. Otis Winchester at their summer cottage.

Walter Hill was a caller Saturday on his brother, Sherwood M. Hill in Groton.

Visited Glastonbury

Mrs. Delphine Fish has returned from a visit to her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Coleby Morgan, in Mystic. Mrs. Fish accompanied her daughter and Miss Bessie Heath, of Mystic to Glastonbury, where they were members of a party of six entertained at Hale House by Miss Jane Hamlin, of New Britain.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Packer and daughter, Miss Beatrice, of Mystic, were callers Sunday at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Comstock. Mr. Comstock is having trouble with his foot which started from an ingrowing nail.

The May meeting of the Flower Queen Esther Circle was held Friday evening with Miss Margaret H. Parker. A chowder supper with sandwiches, cake and cocoa was served. Misses Lillian and Velma Atkins and Miss Dorothy Baudro were the supper committee. A rehearsal of a play, Elizabeth's Young Man, followed the business session.

Sally Phipps has lovely skin

Movie Directors Say Lovely Skin Is Greatest Lure

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—"It is impossible to over-emphasize the lure of smooth, beautiful skin," says John Ford, Fox director. To keep their skin exquisite, 442 of the 451 important Hollywood actresses, including all stars, are using Lux Toilet Soap. "This white, fragrant soap gives my skin such pearly smoothness," says Sally Phipps, Fox star. Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap. And all the great film studies have made it the official soap for dressing rooms.

LARGE BEAM STATION PLANNED IN BELGIUM

BRUSSELS—(AP)—The Belgian government has ordered, at a cost of $130,000, a beam station which is to be used for radiophone messages to the United States and South Africa, the Congo colony, and Japan.

The number of radiophone messages with South America especially, has greatly increased.

The new beam station is to be ready for use early next year.

She—I see bicycling is again on the rise.

He—Yes, in spite of the falling off.—Detroit News.

The Dime Savings Bank of Norwich

THE 119th CONSECUTIVE SEMI-ANNUAL DIVIDEND will be payable on and after MAY 15th AT THE RATE OF 4½% a year, being the regular 2% dividend and an extra of one-quarter of one per cent.

We offer you all the facilities of an up-to-date banking institution and feel sure that you will appreciate the courtesy and friendliness of our officers and employees.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—Prices in the bond market today continued to work irregularly lower under competition of high money rates but trading, chiefly as a result of turnover in a score of convertibles, broadened out into the most active session since the late March liquidation of securities.

Apparently the need for funds caused wide selling by banks and other holders of securities but the selling brought no such slump in prices as accompanied the March liquidation.

A good deal of realizing took place in some of the convertibles which were run up with stocks last week. American I. G. Chemical 5 1-2s sold off nearly 3 points to 100 3-8, contrasting with the top of 110 1-4 reached on their last week's spurt. Allegheny Corporation 5s, American International 5 1-2s, American Telephone 4 1-2s and Atchison 4 1-2s, among the most active stock feature securities, also closed a little lower.

International Telephone 4 1-2s continued to move rapidly as the stock rose. Selling toward the close reduced their early three-point gain to a fraction. With the upturn in the stock, International Cement convertible 5s were bought by traders and they scored a two-point gain. Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s, convertible into the railroad's common stock, were admitted to trading and received an active reception around 101.

Turnover of the convertibles and a few active rails and miscellaneous issues, such as the recently listed Texas & Pacific 5s, Frisco 4 1-2s and Standard Oil of New York 4 1-2s, swelled the day's sales to more than $12,000,000. Slight losses and a few fractional gains were rather evenly distributed through the various groups.

Foreign loans and United States government obligations also gave way under credit tension. Prime European government issues, which benefited the last few days from more cheerful reparations news, shared in the softness.

All except a fractional part of the $32,000,000 issue of New York City corporate stock subway notes were awarded today to the New York banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., which bid 101.42 on a basis of 4.81 per cent. This is the largest piece of municipal financing of the year and attracted wide interest because of the 5 1-4 per cent coupon rate, one of the highest the city has paid. There will be no public offering, the issue having been taken for private account.

"...and can you imagine, said Priscilla, Gas Cools it!"

CAN you think of anything quite so interesting as gas heat cooling a refrigerator?

Yet it's the most practical and effective way to keep food fresh and wholesome. With its constant, dry, odorless temperature of below fifty degrees, wastage is almost unknown.

Of course, a Gas Refrigerator has all the newest features. With it you can make ice cubes as well as delicious frozen desserts and chilled food combinations.

And its silence is most refreshing. No motor or moving parts to vibrate, hum and get out of order. Requires practically no attention at all year after year.

Visit your gas company for a demonstration. You'll find it well worth while even if not ready for a new refrigerator right now.

While there you can also see other wonder-working aids to health, happiness and convenience in the home which the gas industry has made possible.

For example—laundry dryers, fireplaces, house heaters, radiators, incinerators, automatic water heaters, ranges, garage heaters, etc.

Any of them may be purchased with a small down payment and easy terms for the balance.

Ask your gas company for free booklet, "Gas—The Servant of Mankind." It tells the romantic story of gas—how to select and care for gas appliances—contains new ideas in housekeeping. Write, phone or call for your copy.

You can't compromise with Pride of Ownership

The owner of a De Soto Six has a sound basis for his pride of ownership—he is driving exactly the car he wants to drive—a Chrysler-built car.

Cars of lower price attracted him not at all. He knows they lack many of his essential demands. And he didn't need to buy a more expensive car because he found complete satisfaction—full realization of his personal standards of performance, comfort, economy and durability—in the De Soto Six.

Here is a car that is literally built to order for those whose budgets are not unlimited—a car that even the most discriminating motorist can own without either sacrificing his pride or straining his pocketbook.

Before deciding on your purchase, give the Chrysler-built De Soto Six your most critical inspection. You will find all the advantages and comforts, all the zestful driving, and all the pride of ownership that are associated in your mind only with cars of much higher price.

PLEADED GUILTY TO FOUR COUNTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 7—(AP)—Robert E. Martin, of Willimantic pleaded guilty to four counts of breaking and entering before Judge Marvin in superior court today, and was sentenced to four years on the first count and one year on each additional counts. Martin was arrested today on a bench warrant. The charges against him were committed in 1927.

The May term of the civil side of superior court adjourned until Thursday morning at Willimantic, without hearing any cases.

LEONARD BRIDGE

FORESTRY MEETING WITH DINNER BY CAMPFIRE

A forestry meeting was held at Mrs. David Walsh's woodlot Saturday under the direction of J. A. Gibbs, extension forester of the Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs. Those attending were R. C. Hawley of Yale School of Forestry, New Haven; W. Foster Schreeder of the state forestry service, Hartford; Extension Forester and Mrs. Robert B. Parmenter of Boston; Prof. A. E. Moss, Extension Forester Leon St. Stone, John E. Powers and Prof. B. W. Ellis of Storrs; Joseph B. Pike, South Windham; County Agent and Mrs. H. C. Norcross of Torrington; County Agent E. E. Tucker and Ralph Haun of Rockville; J. E. Riley, Jr., Harry W. Hicock and W. O. Filley of the state Experiment station at New Haven; A. F. Hawes, state forester, of Hartford; County Agent Raymond K. Clapp, New Haven; County Agent Walter T. Clark and County Club Agent Randolph Whaples of Norwich and David Walsh. The day was spent in traversing the woodlot, which is one of five of the best timber lots now in the state, and discussing forestry. At noon a broiled steak dinner, prepared over a campfire, with buns, cookies, coffee and brick ice cream, proved most appetizing. Those present expressed themselves as having a most enjoyable outing.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Porter of Manchester spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Geer.

Miss Myra Geer of Fitchville and Walter Thorp of Stonington were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Geer Thursday evening and Saturday.

Mrs. George Reynolds and son Lawrence returned Saturday from an 18-day visit with the former's sister-in-law, Mrs. William Catchpole, at Jamaica, Long Island.

H. Theodore Bland is home after a stay of several weeks with his daughter, Mrs. Bert Stimpson, at Westfield, Mass.

CAR THIEF COMING TO NEW LONDON VICTIMIZED NORWICH LOAN CO.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 7—Theodore Fitzgerald, formerly of Groton, was arrested this afternoon at Detroit, Mich., charged with auto theft and will be brought back to New London. When Fitzgerald returns he may be charged with other offenses. Fitzgerald recently rented a car of the Hire and Drive It company and when he did not return with the auto complaint was made to the police. Last night the police received a telegram from the police of Detroit stating that they had a car in their possession which, it was believed, had been stolen. The registration of the auto is N-121. A checkup of the owner of the auto revealed that it was the Hire and Drive It company and the car was the one which Fitzgerald had hired. A warrant for Fitzgerald's arrest was issued by Acting Prosecuting Attorney Max Noyes and was sent to the Detroit police, together with a description of Fitzgerald. This afternoon another telegram was received here stating that Fitzgerald had been arrested at an airport, on the outskirts of Detroit and that the prisoner was willing to return to New London without the necessity of extradition papers being issued. Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh left this afternoon to take charge of the prisoner.

It is understood that several weeks ago Fitzgerald obtained a loan of $300 from a Norwich loan company, the latter accepting furniture in the Fitzgerald household as security of the loan and upon a signed statement of Fitzgerald and his wife that the husband and wife owned the furniture. Since the issuance of the loan it was determined that the furniture had not been paid for and that the statement Fitzgerald and his wife signed was false. Shortly after obtaining the loan, Fitzgerald deserted his wife and, with the automobile went to Detroit.

Charles Kleinmanns was in the police court this morning charged with breach of peace and upon complaint of Frank Sylvia, the latter alleging that Kleinmanns had beaten the complainant's son. Judgement was suspended.

Drivers Forfeit Bonds.

S. R. Brown, old Lyme; Louis Alderman, New Haven; William G. Griswold, 210 Huntington street; Nathan Morris, 500 Ocean avenue; Samuel Violette, 66 Lewis street, Fred E. Good, 130 Crystal avenue; Mrs. Selma Caswell, 12 Alden street, Mystic and Joseph K. Oliver, 16 Waldo street, were charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances in parking overtime. Their respective bonds of $2 were declared forfeited because the drivers failed to present themselves in court.

Three cases of intoxication were tried, two being given suspensions of judgment while the other was committed to the workhouse for 30 days.

HICKS, NORWICH BOOTLEGGER, SURE TO BE IN COURT THIS TIME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 7—Solidius Hicks, colored, 19, of 102 Boswell avenue, Norwich, employed as a janitor, who is charged with violation of the liquor law, the specific charge being transporting, by his dilatory actions in appearing in the police court, is a prisoner at police headquarters. He is locked up in a cell, which insures his being arraigned tomorrow when the case is called for the third time. Twice before Hicks was to have been presented, but on each occasion he failed to show up with the result that his bondsman vacated surety on the bond this morning, causing Hicks to be detained that further postponement of the case would not be necessary.

Hicks was arrested last Tuesday night by Patrolman Dennis Murphy when the officer detected Hicks attempting to deliver a quantity of alcohol at a North Bank street house where it is reported liquor is sold. A companion of Hicks made his escape, but the Norwich man remained with his load and was arrested. The following day the case was called in the police court and Hicks, who had been released on bail, failed to appear. His bond was declared forfeited, but when he presented himself a half hour after court adjourned he was assured that the case would be reopened and the date of the trial was fixed for today. As was the case previously Hicks, accompanied by counsel appeared at police headquarters this morning again after the court session had closed. When he did so, Louis Eifenbein, his bondsman, refused to longer continue to act as surety, which left the only alternative of the police that of making Hicks a prisoner, with the assurance that the case would be reopened for once and all time Wednesday.

MENACE OF SOCIALISM THEME OF HEAD OF THE D. A. R.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 7—Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in her speech Monday at the annual luncheon of Lucretia Shaw chapter, at the Hotel Mohican, stated that unless we teach the children of the so-called socialist party that America is the best country in the world, those children will eventually start a movement which will overthrow the government. After reciting incidents which she had noted at meeting after meeting of the red element of the country, she stated that the only conclusion she could draw that a sweeping reform was imperative.

Miss Margaret Dolan of Blackhall street was given a surprise party last night. The evening was spent in the enjoyment of games, music, dancing and refreshments.

Dwaintz Fritz of 195 Huntington street gave a May dinner and dance at his home at the week end. Exhibitions of tap and fancy dancing were given by several of the guests.

Capt. Hamlet's Suggestion.

At a meeting of the League of Coast Guard Women, held at the academy, Captain H. G. Hamlet of the Coast Guard spoke on the need of renovating and renewing the furniture in the lobby of the local Y. W. C. A. He recommended that members of the organization take the responsibility of raising sufficient funds to make the lobby attractive.

Twelve Join Hadassah.

At a meeting of the New London chapter of Hadassah held in the Community house in Blackhall street last night, twelve members were admitted. A drive is on by the organization to increase its membership.

A group of friends tendered Miss Ruth Liberman a party yesterday afternoon on her 11th birthday. The affair was held at the home of her grandparents at Terrace Boulevard.

Leads Honor Roll.

Miss Margaret MacNamara, daughter of Mrs. Ella MacNamara of Huntington street has received the distinction of being the first on the honor roll at Bay Path institute, Springfield, where she is a member of the senior class in the two year normal department. This is the second time she has won the coveted honor this year.

Dorothy Belgrade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Banev Belgrade of 302 Montauk avenue had a party on her fifth birthday last night at the home of her parents.

At a declamation contest at B. P. Learned Mission last night, Miss Jenni Boska won first prize, reciting the poem "When I'm a Man." Mrs. Charles Phillips, Mrs. George F. Cramer and Mrs. Mary Parmenter were the judges.

Tax Collector Resigns.

Tax Collector Harold Bosworth of the eighth school district, Groton, resigned tonight at a school committee meeting of the district of Eastern Point. A complaint has been made to the post office department that inasmuch as he holds a civil service appointment, he is not privileged to hold an outside office.

A new pulpit is to be erected in the Bishop Seabury Memorial Episcopal church at Groton. This was decided at a meeting last night by the executive committee of the church.

Hempstead Back in Office.

In one of the most spectacular elections in the history of the town of Groton, Monday, Warden George R. Hempstead was voted back into office for the eighth consecutive time. In spite of the fact that his name, together with those of several others on the pro-borough ticket, was not officially recognized, all went into office with a landslide of votes.

RUNAWAY'S BIG FOOT WAS WHAT GAVE HIM AWAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 7—Railroad detectives of New London, while on the lookout for a reported train-rider, happened to catch the offender here owing to the fact that he has exceptionally big feet. When they scanned at Union station the train which was a special one made up of Pullmans, they noticed a foot protruding from beneath the car. Giving it a tug they were not surprised when a 14-year-old youth came out. He gave his name as Eddie Cobton and admitted that he had boarded the train at Boston. He was placed in charge of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield who has arranged to have the boy returned to his anxious parents.

More than one hundred members of the retail grocers and meat men of this city attended a smoker held at Mercer hall last night. The principal speakers for the occasion were officials of the national organization.

Miss Menzie Slightly Injured.

An auto truck owned and driven by William Heryes, 27 Steward street, slightly injured Miss Louise Menzie, 38, of 119 Riverview avenue, yesterday. Miss Menzie was crossing Montauk avenue, between Bellevue and Faire Harbour place, when she walked against the side of the truck. Miss Menzie was not thrown, but she sustained bruises and scratches, no other injury being received, as was determined when she was examined by a physician.

The police are kept busy daily because of numerous complaints received of youths playing ball in the streets. The complaints are a yearly experience of the department, unable to put an end to the pastime except arrests are made. The trouble is due to insufficient number of open areas for the youngsters to enjoy their popular pastime.

LOCAL PRIEST AT FUNERAL—BURIAL IN UNCASVILLE

NEW LONDON, May 7—The funeral of Maurice A. Murphy of Noank, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, Noank and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Joseph Ranizewski, rector of St. Peter's and St. Paul's church, New London. The bearers were Robert McCarthy, Robert Tooker, Edward Murray, John Lynch, Edward Mahoney, and Michael Sweeney. Burial was in the family plot in St Patrick's cemetery, Uncasville.

Joseph N. Lapointe.

The funeral of Joseph N. Lapointe, proprietor of the Lafayette hotel, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Beckwith Memorial chapel, Cedar Grove cemetery and was attended by a large number of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The bearers were Joseph Mono, E. St. Jean, R. J. Carey, M. Tatten, B. Levy, J. Paulino.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. James D. Wicks.

Mrs. Ida Amelia Wicks, 74, widow of James D. Wicks, formerly of Brooklyn, N. Y., died last night at the residence of her son, Charles D. Wicks, in Niantic. She had long been ill. Mrs. Wicks was born in Brooklyn Sept. 28, 1854 and was a member of the Washington avenue Baptist church of that city. When her health permitted, Mrs. Hicks attended the First Baptist church in New London.

Mrs. Austin I. Bush.

Mrs. Mary S. Bush, 73, wife of former Judge of Probate Austin I. Bush, died late yesterday at her residence, in Niantic, after a long illness. Besides her husband, Mrs. Bush is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Josephine Smith and Miss Walt Bush, both of Niantic. Mrs. Bush was born in Philadelphia, but had resided in Niantic practically her entire life.

Mrs. Edward Riordan and infant daughter, 59 Colt street; Miss Dorothy Avrton, 14 Richmond street and Mrs. Paul Rawlings and infant son, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

David Eifenbein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eifenbein, of Hempstead street, was operated upon yesterday at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. His condition today was reported as being favorable.

Real Estate Sales.

William E. and Edith Steely have sold a building lot on Keeney lane to Adam and May Davis.

Philbert E. and Louisa Augur have sold to John S. Gunderson a house and lot on Dell avenue.

Elizabeth A. and Sidney B. Miner of St. Petersburg, Fla., have sold a parcel of land, part of which is located between Bayonet and Vauxhall streets, to Benjamin L. Armstrong.

WOMAN THROWN FROM CAR—ESCAPES WITH BRUISES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 7—An automobile driven by Cleveland Van Tassell, 14 Willetts avenue and a machine driven by Antonio Urda and in which was his wife, 26 Brewer street, collided this evening corner of Blinman and Reed streets. Both cars were damaged. Mrs. Urda in endeavoring to jump from the car, fell to the roadway, sustaining bruises and contusions, which fact was determined when the woman was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

A driver from Plainfield, and another from Jewett City were arrested this afternoon by State Police Officers Bernard Kenerson and James Dygert, the two men being taken to New London police headquarters and locked up for the night. The nature of the charge against them was not known at police headquarters.

SAY WOMAN WORKS DAYS, SELLS HOOCH AT NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 7—Mrs. Annie Malinowski, rear 37 John street, was arrested tonight charged with violation of the liquor law and will be in court tomorrow. The woman obtained a surety on her bond of $1,000. Mrs. Malinowsky, who is married and employed during the day, it is alleged, has made a practice of selling liquor at night. The police obtained evidence, yesterday against Mrs. Malinowsky, the evidence including an actual sale by the woman. Acting Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer issued a search warrant and tonight Patrolman Clarence Wells, George Bruhns and Edward Riordan made a search of the premises, but the only evidence found of liquor being stored on the premises consisted of two bottles of home brew beer.

The condition of Joseph Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, 23 Bellevue place, critically ill at a local hospital, was reported tonight as being very slightly improved.

Ignored Motor Laws

Several additional violators of the city and state traffic laws were arrested this afternoon, all posting bonds for appearance in the police court tomorrow. Max Ellonsky, 25 Moore avenue, was arrested by Patrolman Harry Watterson charged with driving without a license. Allen Creighton, 49 Chappell street, is charged with passing an automatic traffic signal set at danger and Harold Hirsche, Waterford; Leila O. Knowlton, Holyoke, Mass.; Edward O. Sprague, 41 Briggs street and R. B. Russell, Hamden, Conn., are charged with parking overtime.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre to Select Official "Miss Norwich" 1929, Contest All Next Week.

The Palace theatre and a group of local merchants are about to seek the most beautiful and perfect girl in this city and award her the official title of Miss Norwich 1929 and a wonderful $500 wardrobe. Not only will the winner receive the above but will represent this city in the Miss New England contest held at Revere beach, Boston, the week of July 29th. All the expenses of the winner will be paid and she will be the only official Miss Norwich of this year.

So what beautiful girl in Norwich or within ten miles of this city would like to receive this title, this wonderful wardrobe and the trip to Boston to compete with 40 other girls selected in similar contests throughout New England?

All that is necessary is to be within the ages of 16 to 26, unmarried, and with no professional stage experience and live or work in this city or within ten miles. This contest is conducted by Revere beach officials under the direction of Royce Grimm who has conducted most of the greatest contests staged in this country and there is not a girl in New England that should not try for the title, for it is run with all the prestige and dignity possible.

Girls will not appear in bathing suits during the week but starting next Monday night and continuing every night of the week all the girls that enter the contest will appear in either afternoon frock or evening gown and one girl will be chosen by the applause of the audience each night making six girls in all by Saturday night. On Saturday night a group of local judges will pick one of these six girls and award her the title of Miss Norwich and the many awards that go with the title.

It is very necessary that all girls that enter the contest get their names in at once as the contest director has information to give each girl as to her presentation on the local stage, so if you can live up to the above rules get your name and address also phone number in to the Palace theatre at once.

There are over 40 of the largest cities in New England in the quest for Miss New England and the Palace theatre is determined to bring back the title to this city for certainly there are plenty of pretty girls in this city. This week at the Garde theatre, Miss New London is being selected and will appear along with Miss Greater Boston, who won the Boston contest, all next week at the Palace theatre. Miss Boston won over 500 girls in the Hub and will appear in a dance act and in bathing costume as she appeared before the judges at Boston.

Miss Norwich will be given a wonderful wardrobe from local merchants that will include everything to make her not only the most beautiful girl in this city but the best dressed as well. She will be given a wardrobe of shoes, stockings, lingerie, afternoon frocks, party dresses, evening gown, millinery, sport frock, wrist watch, costume jewelry and a permanent wave. Certainly all these wonderful things are worth any girl in this city trying for and it is suggested that you get your entry in at once.

Woman Missionary to Speak

Straight from the wilds of West Central Africa, where lions purr over a lunch of rabbit beneath your very bedroom window and the leopard's hoarse cough comes through the jungle night, Dr. Mary E. Cushman, a woman physician serving in Ochiloso, West Central Africa will bring a thrilling story to the children of Norwich and vicinity on Friday, May 10, at 4:15 D. S. T., in the Sunday school room of Park church parish house.

Dr. Cushman took up her work in West Central Africa as a lone woman physician among the Bantu.

Dr. Cushman brings with her a remarkable fund of information about the customs and psychology of these people, and includes in her exhibit the paraphernalia of a real witch doctor, which she uses to vividly describe the practices of that clever but sinister figure.

The children will find in this story a splendid entertainment and knowledge more real than from a geography.

The rally is sponsored by the Children's Work committee of the Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut and is in charge of Mrs. Geo. L. Ingalls of Norwich, assisted by Miss Beatrice Eastwood and Miss Janet Blackstone.

Breed Theatre.

The Breed theatre announces that it has obtained for its first local presentation today and Thursday, a new German film production from the studios of the Defu company in Berlin, a foreign producing unit of First National Pictures, Inc. It is called "The Strange Case of Captain Ramper" and was brought to this country by First National. The premiere of this picture took place at the big Roxy theatre in New York and it was S. L. Rothafel ("Roxy") who selected it for that honor. It will be remembered that it was Roxy who sponsored the first important European film productions, "Passion" and "Dr. Caligari" which subsequently brought to the American screen such foreign talents as that of Lubitsch Emil Janninzs and Pola Negri. It is his opinion that this new film will assume an equally prominent place among the notable achievements of the international screen.

"Captain Ramper" was adapted from the stage by Max Mohr and the story provides an unusual theme with imaginative treatment and the subject is one of vital news interest all over the world. The leading role is played by Paul Wegener, perhaps the greatest figure of the German stage and screen. The German press, which has already viewed the picture, heralds his performance as one of the greatest of his entire career.

Palace Theatre

Another conclusive proof of the consistently good pictures being turned out by the Universal Pictures corporation is that company's "The Shakedown," which opened yesterday at the Palace theatre.

Featuring James Murray and Barbara Kent, "The Shakedown" is a vivid and moving story of the prize ring and oil fields ably directed by William Wyler and with an unusual quota of effective camera shots accredited to Charles Stumar.

The story, an original by Charles A. Logue, deals with the evil machinations of crooked fight promoters. The faked fight, long the "ace of the hole" for ring racketeers, forms the basis of the plot and the inner workings of the crooked prize machine are interestingly depicted.

In the leading roles James Murray and Barbara Kent share honors.

On the same program "The Danger Rider," Universal attraction with the popular Hoot Gibson in the starring role, was enthusiastically received.

The picture is the funniest in which the star has appeared. Added to his capabilities as a purveyor of thrilling amusement Hoot seems to have found himself as a comedian. He romps through the story, scattering action and fun on all sides.

"The Danger Rider" is laid on a ranch for ex-convicts run by Mollis, a pretty girl with charitable intentions. The ranch is supposed to give occupation to poor, run-down ex-criminals who can't find work in other places.

Hoot, the son of the prison warden, falls in love with the girl when he happens to see her picture. He goes to the farm posing as a notorious crook. The girl does her best to reform Hoot, but he is adamant. When a group of the men on the ranch attempt to rob her safe, Hoot intercepts them. His identity is discovered, however, so when Mollie sees that he doesn't need any reforming she decides the best thing to do is marry him to keep him that way.

Broadway Theatre

Texas Guinan, who for the past ten years has been one of Broadway's outstanding personalities is now seen and heard in "Queen of the Night Clubs," Warner Bros. latest of all-talking Vitaphone productions which comes to the Broadway theatre tomorrow.

Beneath the color and gayety of Broadway is a phase of life that is little known to the world at large and "Queen of the Night Clubs," brings to the talking screen this little known side of New York's Great White Way, and presents with deep understanding the story of those people whose business it is to entertain—shows the hearts that beat under the tinsel.

Texas Guinan, star of "Queen of the Night Clubs," is portraying her real self—the famous night club hostess and the toast of thousands.

Miss Guinan is supported by an exceptional cast which includes Lila Lee, Eddie Foy, Jr., Jack Norworth, John Davidson, John Miljan, William Davidson, Arthur Housman, Jimmie Phillips, Lee Shumway and others. Bryan Foy directed this all-talking picture which is an original story by Murray Roth and Addison Burkhart.

Afternoon Pinochle Club Entertained —May Basket for Mrs. Rosenlund

The members of the Afternoon Pinochle club were entertained Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Mark Furber at her home on Rockland avenue, where they had a very pleasant time. Mrs. Jack Hallisey and Mrs. Edward Bingham won the first prizes, and Mrs. C. E. Chapman was awarded the consolation prize. Mrs. Furber served a very delicious lunch of escalloped oysters, cake and coffee at the close of the afternoon.

Mrs. Victor Rosenlund of Maple avenue was pleasantly with a pretty May basket which was hung to her Friday evening. The surprise was planned by her little daughter, Miss Carolyn Rosenlund, who invited several of her small friends to attend the party. A very fine time was had by all. Those present were: The Misses Frances Smolen, Helen Desio, Alicia Baldwin, Cora Baldwin, Emma Milefski, Carolyn, Jean and Raymond Rosenlund, John Coffey and Mrs. V. A. Rosenlund. Mrs. Rosenlund served delicious refreshments and was ably assisted by the Misses Marion Kolb, Eloise Edwards and Ruth Rosenlund.

Mrs. Wilfred Breault and children, Beatrice and Raymond, and Mrs. Oscar Boutin and daughters Lorraine and Doris of Oakdale, were the guests of Mrs. James Rosenlund and family of Rockland avenue.

Mrs. Mae E. Spiers of Oakdale attended the state convention of the Woman's Relief Corps, Thursday, in New London.

Misses Ruth Rosenlund, Eloise Edwards and Marion Kolb of Main street were callers in New London Saturday afternoon.

Robert Bergman is erecting a new bungalow for his family in Pequot avenue.

Ninety-seven per cent of the homes in New Hampshire are wired for electricity.

When Summer Comes Can Fall be Far Behind?

THE outlay of money for next Winter's fuel may not seem a befitting thought to bring up at this time of the year.

Yet nothing is surer than the regular succession of the seasons. Nothing is more certain than that cold weather will follow warm.

The first heater days come in September. Buying your coal now means, at the most, buying it but a few months before you actually need its heat.

And this season offers you compensations in the way of reduced prices on Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite that do not obtain in the Fall.

This high-grade hard coal has literally been tried by fire through more than a hundred Winters. It has proved its right to be known as America's standard home-heating fuel.

Modern science has brought a notable perfection of inspection and preparation methods, so that Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite—The Best Since 1820—is even better in 1929 than ever before.

Shahan.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY LINING UP CANDIDATES FOR CITY ELECTION

The democratic town committee, it was learned Tuesday evening, will meet this (Wednesday) evening to line up candidates for the party caucus which is scheduled for Friday evening at the town hall. It is understood that Louis Waters, son of former Mayor Milo R. Waters, will be nominated as the democratic party's candidate for city clerk against the present incumbent, Weston C. Pullen. Frank H. Quinley, a former member of the court of common council, is mentioned as the party's candidate for first alderman. A candidate for second alderman has not been definitely decided upon, it is said.

For councilmen it is understood that William H. Aldrich, Leo Jacques and Joseph Pysyk will be nominated. The fourth candidate for councilman has not yet been secured, it was said, Tuesday evening.

Charles W. F. Billings and Edward Riordan are mentioned as the party's candidates for election as city sheriffs and John Corcoran will probably be the party's candidate for election as member of the board of water commissioners.

It is understood that the republican city caucus will be held Monday evening. The party's choice of candidates could not be learned Tuesday evening, but it is understood that several of the members of the present council, whose terms expire this month, will decline re-nomination. Weston C. Pullen, it was learned, will run for re-election as city clerk on the republican ticket.

At 6:26 o'clock Monday evening the fire department was called out by telephone for a grass and brush fire on land on Woodmansee avenue owned by John M. Swahn. Water pump cans were used to extinguish the blaze.

MRS. BUCKINGHAM'S PICTURE IN MOTHER'S DAY SETTING

An interesting arrangement for Mother's day is that in a window of the Buckingham Shop, where lilies-of-the-valley, violets and pearls set off a photograph of the portrait by a famous artist of Miss Buckingham's mother, the late Mrs. William A. Buckingham. One of the most beautiful women in Norwich, Mrs. Buckingham was Miss Mary Day Reynolds, of the eighth generation from John Reynolds, one of the 39 original settlers of the town of Norwich. Her parents' home was where the W. W. Backus hospital now stands. Up to the time of its purchase for the hospital site, the land had never left the ownership of the John Reynolds family.

Mrs. Buckingham is shown in her wedding gown of white satin and tulle, trimmed with orange blossoms. Beneath the picture is the simple word, "Mother".

NORWICH TOWN

"The Highway For God."

Rev. Robert H. Parkes, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Taftville, preached an inspiring sermon Sunday night in Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church. His theme was building a highway for God in the church and in the home. The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, had the opening service and introduced and welcomed the speaker. At the session of the Sunday school the class of girls taught by Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich presented a beautiful picture to the school. The presentation was made by Florence Gembel and Virginia Ward and the gift was accepted for the school by the superintendent, Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter. The subject of the picture is "Christ in the Temple."

Methodist Church Activities.

"Where Can We Go" was the theme of the sermon at the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning preached by Rev. George Warren Potter. The text was Matthew 6:67-68, "Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away? Then Simon Peter answered, Lord to whom shall we go? Thou has the words of eternal life." Doris Rose was organist in the absence of Mrs. Lewis Aldrich. A quartet, Mary Water, Virginia Ward, Bertha Backus and Florence Gembel, sang. There was an attendance of over sixty.

Florence M. Bennett, the superintendent, was in charge of the meeting of the Junior Epworth league when the topic discussed was "Fathers and Mothers in One Town." "Service the way of leadership" was the subject well handled by Theodora Brown at the C. E. meeting.

The first quarterly conference of the church was held Monday evening at 7.45 in the vestry by Rev. Myron E. Genter, superintendent of Norwich district.

The meeting of the Priscilla club is to be held at the parsonage this (Tuesday) evening.

The Dahonva Camp Fire Girls group will hold a ceremonial meeting Wednesday evening.

Scouts Hike.

Fourteen Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs connected with Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church took an eight-mile hike Saturday morning which included a trip to Mohegan park. Their scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter accompanied the scouts. While at the park the scouts made up two searching parties and set out to find a missing sail boat which was wrecked during the wind storm Friday night. The group in charge of Patrol Leader Wallace Wagner was successful in finding the lost boat.

Scouts Appointed Forest Guides.

At the meeting of Troop 2, Boy Scouts, connected with Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, four forest guides were appointed. It will be the duty of these scouts to watch out for forest fires and if they discover any they are to report at once to the scout executive, who, if the fire is serious, will send out a general call for scouts to fight the fire. The guides were presented shield badges which remain the property of the state, but may be worn as long as a scout remains faithful to his trust. Those appointed are Wallace Wagner, Arthur Bennett, Albert Eyberse and Donald Waterman.

SURPRISE GIFTS MADE BY CLUB MEMBERS

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Drake were pleasantly surprised Monday evening at their new home on Asylum street, by the members of the S. O. L. Mothers' club and their husbands. Games of different kinds made the party a merry one. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Drake were presented with a Windsor chair. Another surprise was forthcoming when Mr. and Mrs. Everett Morrell, who have recently purchased a new home, were also presented a Windsor chair.

Sandwiches, cake, ice cream and coffee were served.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cochran, Mr. and Mrs. William Huntington, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cowan, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lucia, Mr. and Mrs. John Christianson, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Wilbur, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rathbun, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Morrell, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Drake.

HISLOP STORE, N. LONDON, SOLD TO NEW YORK FIRM

The announcement that the James Hislop Co. department store in New London has been bought out by the Genung Co., of New York, a chain store enterprise, is of interest in Norwich. The Porteous & Mitchell firm was originally Hislop, Porteous & Mitchell, Mr. Hislop leaving Norwich to establish the New London store.

Moosehearst Legion Dance.

The Women of Moosehearst legion gave a successful dance Friday evening at the Moose home, with the Mohegan orchestra playing and William Austin prompting for the dance. The committee in charge comprised Irene Burns, chairman, Senior Regent Emma Beaver, Martha Wunderlich and Ethel Hoelck. Courtesies were extended by the Loyal Order of Moose.

May Have Norwich Beneficiary.

According to the medical examiner of Fall River the only beneficiary for liability insurance left by Michael Finnerty, who died there Monday as the result of injuries, is Mrs. Catherine Lord, believed to be living in Norwich or vicinity. Mrs. Lord is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John and Margaret Finnerty Grady and is a sister of Mr. Finnerty. The Fall River officials are endeavoring to locate Mrs. Lord.

Trinity Methodist Scouts Met.

Troop 6 of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church held its regular meeting Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, with an attendance of nine Scouts and Scoutmaster Raymond Brown. After the business meeting a drill was held after which there was instruction in first aid. Another group was instructed in tenderfoot work and signaling.

TAFTVILLE

The regular monthly business meeting of the Ponemah Wheel club was held Tuesday evening at the clubhouse on Norwich avenue.

President Fred Ince was in the chair at the business meeting of the members of the Taftville Social and Football club held Monday evening in their rooms at the Ponemah House.

Miss Edith L. Heap was the leader of the meeting of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor held Sunday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church. The topic was, "What the Bible Has Done in Foreign Lands," and interesting addresses were made by Mrs. Margaret Hunt and Mrs. John Wohlleben. Miss May Krodel read the 23rd Psalm and the Indian version of it, and there was a piano selection by Miss Alberta Mather.

Charles R. Adams of North Third avenue, and his son, Charles Adams, Jr., of Danielson, who spent the week-end at his home in town, motored to Arcadia, R. I., on Sunday. Returning with them was Mrs. Adams and her little granddaughter, Elaine Marie Sullivan of Norwich avenue, who have been spending the past week in Arcadia, the guests of Mrs. Ettabel Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Meyer of Bilsaville had as week-end guests their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gley, with their daughter, Miss Hazel Gley, of Mystic.

POETRY

The Mist

I have ridden in the morning
When the sun is climbing high;
I have ridden in the twilight
'Gainst a golden, cloud-filled sky.

When the whippoorwill is singing
And the stars are blossoming bright;
I have ridden in the murky gloom
Of a moonless, star-flecked night.

I have felt the wind a-whispering
To the spirit of the spring,
When the apple petals falling
Hover like white birds-a-wing.

I have ridden in the autumn,
When the wild grapes scent the air
And when the snowflakes sparkle
In star petals everywhere.

I have ridden to a high gale,
When the treetops bend in grace.
But the thrill of all is riding
When the mist is in your face.

When the leaves are wet and shiny,
And the tree trunks smooth and black
And the wispy dew's a-flying
To the wind that blows it back.

O, I've ridden in the sunshine,
And when the snow-storms swirl th place,
But the best always is riding
When the mist is in your face.

Wonder and a Thousand Springs

Along the just-returning green
That fledges field and berm and brake
The purple-veined white violets lean,
Scarcely awake.

And pear and plum and apple trees,
Evoked to bloom before they leaf,
Like cloudy branches filled with bees,
Strange as new grief.

A thousand springs will poise and pass
And leave no track beneath the sun;
Some gray-eyed lad, cool-cheeked as grass
Will watch each one.

And wonder as I wonder here,
And find no clew I have not found
And smile before he joins me, near But underground.

—William Alexander Percy.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Freshman—Is Jones around?

Junior—No, he must be out. His hat is here.—Monitor.

"How many students are there at your college, Beth?"

"Oh, about one in ten."—Montreal Star.

"I do hope you keep your cows in a pasture," said Mrs. Newlywed to the milkman.

"Oh, yes, ma'am, indeed we do."

"I'm so glad. I have always heard pasteurized milk was so much better."—Boston Transcript.

Piggly—I hear they're going to import sparrows to kill worms. Don'you think sparrows are worse than worms?

Wiggly—I don't know; I never had sparrows.—The Pathfinder.

The Good Old Soul—So you are the lad who discovered the schoolhouse on fire and ran and spread the alarm! That was a noble deed.

Little Jimmie—That's what all the kids think. Y'see, I give 'em all a chance to see it.—Detroit News.

Indignant English Guest—See here, I left my shoes outside the door last night and no one has so much as touched them.

Irish Proprietor—Yes, sir. That's the sort we are. Ye might put your watch and chain outside and no one would harm them.—Passing Show.

The old lady was watching a football match.

"What is the object of this game son?"

"Why, er, to put the little ball over the line."

"Well," said the old lady as she fished for a lozenge, "I should think it would be much simpler if they kept out of each other's way."—Preston Guardian.

PERSHING WAS READY TO DO BATTLE IN ANY WAR SECTOR

Fact Disclosed in Document Prepared by the Historical Section of the American War College—When Marshal Foch Asked General Pershing "Do You Wish to Go Into Battle?" General Pershing Replied: "Give Me a Sector Anywhere You Decide and I Will Take It Over"—Historic Scene is Pictured Vividly in a Narrative Just Printed by Government Presses.

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—On August 30, 1918, Marshal Foch faced General Pershing in France and demanded:

"Do you wish to go into battle?"

"Most assuredly," the American commanded replied calmly, "but as an American army."

Foch objected that it would take a month to complete such an army.

"Give me a sector any where you decide," declared Pershing, "and I will take it over at once."

This historic scene is pictured vividly in a narrative off the government presses today, which for the first time gives an official account of how it was decided that a million Americans would enter the Argonne as an American army, not as French reinforcements.

Headed "The Genesis of the American First Army," the document was prepared by the historical section of the Army War college. The narrative leading up to the climatic meeting between the French and American commanders recounts in detail from heretofore unpublished records Pershing's long battle against allied demands for American troops as replacements in their own armies.

Its publication led army officers to recall an interview with Marsh Foch published in Paris after his recent death, in which the French commander was quoted as having said Premier Clemenceau had considered that Pershing's efforts to build up an autonomous army was preventing the Americans from giving the aid they should have given the allied cause as a whole. "The Giver" was said to have accused General Pershing of being too stubborn.

Regarding the meeting between Pershing and Foch, which occurred at first army headquarters in Ligny-en-Barrois, the narrative published today says:

"It was a moment of high tension. The two commanders faced each other, both with decided convictions. The decision affected more than a million Americans.

Eleven days later, Sept. 10, 1918, while Pershing's first army crouched for its spring at St. Mihiel the agreement was ratified that gave him a 30-mile front. Within two weeks all his forces were driving through the Argonne toward Sedan and the armistice.

The monograph is a chapter of the official narrative history of American military participation in the World war, which the war college specialists are preparing with access to allied and German records as well as American. It is devoted exclusively to the account of Pershing's difficulties in carrying out President Wilson's instructions, given him before he sailed, to cooperate with allied armies as his judgment dictated but to keep always in mind "the underlying idea" that his forces in France "are a separate and distinct component of the combined forces, the identity of which must be preserved."

Of the idea for incorporation of American troops in allied armies as the quickest means of making their battle power effective, the war college historians say it was "advanced initially as a proposal, but became in the minds of the allies a necessity when Russia withdrew from the war and Germany seriously threatened the successful outcome of the conflict by a great drive on the western front."

It also is disclosed that allied diplomatic pressure was repeatedly exerted directly on President Wilson in Washington to override Pershing's decisions. The purport of war department cables to Pershing telling of these moves and the president's great concern over the picture of depleted allied manpower painted for him by the diplomats is given, once or twice in text form.

"The president, having selected the man (Pershing), abstained almost entirely from interference with his work; and this complete confidence and trust which he reposed in his commander-in-chief proved the key to General Pershing's successful solution of the difficult problems he faced," the army historians say.

Just how much of a necessity allied statesmen as well as soldiers regarded the use of American troops as replacements in their armies is revealed in connection with the "London agreement of April 24, in which Pershing assented to give priority during May troop shipments to infantry and machine gun units of six divisions to be trained and used temporarily with British forces. This grew out of the placing of additional British troop carrying tonnage at his disposal for the purpose.

On May 1-2, however, the supreme war council met at Abbeville, France, with Premier Clemenceau presiding and Premiers Lloyd George and Orlando also present as well as Foch, Petain, Haig, Pershing and Bliss and others.

Clemenceau disapproved the London agreement for American infantry and machine gun shipments in May for the British army unless similar shipments for the French army followed in June. Pershing promptly told the council that the allies could not decided what the United States would do with its forces, but Clemenceau was insistent.

Lloyd George intervened to ask:

"Why consider France and England? Let us consider the whole of the allies. England's losses (in the great German offensive then in progress) are the greatest, hence we must have replacements. Ten British divisions have been entirely knocked out. There are no British to refill them."

"I do not understand that the American army is available for allocation as recruits to either Great Britain or France," Pershing answered, "nor for any indefinite period. We must have an American army. I shall insist on this principle that no parceling out of the American army shall prevail. I want this principle taken up and agreed to now by this council."

The Principle was enunciated by the council, but the army historians note that both French and British authorities accepted it with the belief that it could not and would not be realized until the campaigns of 1919 had ended due to winter. They also note that diplomatic pressure for replacement shipments from America was renewed in Washington, quoting a war department cable to Pershing of May 12 showing that the two ambassadors had informed President Wilson that Foch planned to reopen the subject with Pershing.

That message also informed Pershing that there remained in the United States due to accelerated shipments less than 300,000 infantry and machine gun troops with any degree of training, which would be the "practical limit" of thatp rogram "unless the acceptance of untrained infantry is desired."

POLICEMAN EXONERATED OF STUDENT HILL DEATH

NEW YORK, May 8—(AP)—Policeman Jos. Greene was exonerated today from any blame in the fatal shooting last night of Edwin (Cowboy) Hill, star New York university football halfback.

The shooting was "purely accidental," and the result of "skylarking," said District Attorney McGeehan, of the Bronx. Hill was shot through the left breast during a playful scuffle with the policeman. The football player had lifted the officer's revolver from its holster and the gun discharged while they were wrestling. Hill died instantly.

The death of the backfield star cast gloom over the university campus as Hill was a universal favorite. A committee composed of "Chick" Meehan, head coach, Leonard Grant, football captain, Albert Nixon, graduate manager of athletics and Herb La Mark, football player, was named to accompany the body to Burgettstown, Pa., Hill's home! where burial will be held.

The committee left with the body tonight.

BRITISH PRESS PROTESTS NEW REPARATIONS PLAN

LONDON, May 8—(AP)—The British Press today displayed the most marked unanimity that has been recorded in years in protesting against the new scheme for German reparations credited by it to Owen D. Young, chairman of the experts commission in Paris. The condemnations printed by morning papers were supplemented by the London Evening publications and the Provincial Press, all seeming to be written in deadly earnestness.

Papers usually very friendly toward the United Stat s carried editorials headed by such expressions as:

"Not again, Sam."

"A cool suggestion."

"A shabby proposal."

The general cry of the British newspapers is that if any scaling down is to be done, it must be shared by all and not at the expense of Britain alone. The Liverpool Post concludes its editorial by saying:

"It is in the power of America alone to solve the reparations problem without creating fresh international heart burnings."

GERMAN DELEGATION IS RETARDING REPARATION WORK

PARIS, May 8—(AP)— With the German delegation holding aloof for the moment, the conflict in the reparations conference again has shifted to Germany's creditors.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, although pressed to put into writing the conditions to which he subordinates acceptance of the new proposal by Owen D. Young, continues to conceal Germany's reservations.

The British experts, dissatisfied with the percentages in the partition of reparations payments as set forth in the proposal, demand a new consideration of that question among the allied delegates."

This renewed discussion as to division of the payments and the continued hesitation of the Germans to make clear their position have prolonged the committee's work. The experts, who had counted on getting away for home at the end of the week, are losing hope of such an early conclusion.

WESTERLY BOY SHOT PLAYING WITH RIFLE

WESTERLY, R. I., May 8—(AP)—As the result of several boys playing with a rifle early tonight, Blain Richmond, 14, son of Elmer Richmond, is in a critical condition at Margaret Edward Anderson hospital with a bullet lodged in his stomach.

Richmond was shot when he attempted to wrest the weapon from Thurston E. Rider, 16, who pulled the trigger not knowing it was loaded. Police learned the bullet was entered in the chamber by Edward Kinz, 16, unbeknown to his playmates.

The accident occurred near the town arm, where the boys had gone to shoot rats. Rider is being held pending an investigation. He has resided with Arthur Main, caretaker of the farm, since he was taken from a charity home nine years ago.

X-ray pictures were taken at the hospital to locate the bullet in Richmond's stomach.

NEW WORLD'S ALTITUDE RECORD OF 40,000 FEET

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—A new world's altitude record appeared to have been set today by Lieut. A. Soucek, of the navy, in a flight at the naval air station at Anacostia.

Flying the same biplane in which Lieut. C. C. Champion, U. S. N., set the previous record of 38,418 feet, Lt. Soucek pushed his machine up until his altimeter registered 40,000 feet. He believed this represented a true altitude of approximately 39,000 feet, which would exceed the record of 38,418 feet.

The National Aeronautic association requires that the previous record be exceeded by 300 feet before it registers a new mark. The plane's barograph will be calibrated tomorrow.

Lieut. Soucek told how he deliberately risked his eyesight today to reach the highest altitude to which his plane would lift.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BARSA, Irak, May 8—(AP)—The British sloop Cyclamen left here today to protect British subjects in Abadan, Persia, where mobs had got beyond control of the police. Persian troops have been called to restore order.

BERLIN, May 8—(AP)—The newly introduced American tariff bill at Washington was criticized by some of the German newspapers today as increasing Germany's difficulty in obtaining reparations money from an export surplus.

LONDON, May 8—(AP)—Offerings at the wool sales today amounted to 10,000 bales, of which 9,000 were sold. There was an improved demand for Greasy Crossbreds and France bought fine grades at steady rates. Scoured Merinos sold well to the home trade, but Greasy Merinos were slow and were frequently withdrawn.

THREE CHICAGO GUNMEN BEATEN AND MURDERED

HAMMOND, Ind., May 8—(AP)—Bullet-battered, broken bodies of three Chicago gunmen were gangland's contribution today to its gruesome gallery of massacre pictures.

The victims were John Scali, Robert Anselmi and Joseph Guinta.

Police professed to see in today's triple executive retaliation for the slaying of seven members of George "Bugs" Moran's gang by machine guns in a North C'ark street garage, St. Valentine's day, and chalked up the score as three to seven.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson at Chicago announced that if the men were found to have been slain in Cook county he would conduct a wide investigation. He regarded the killing as a direct challenge to all law enforcement agencies.

The three deaths brought the total of gang killings of Cook county to 19 this year, an average of about one a week.

In a lonely spot just over the Illinois-Indiana line the bodies were found, lying in a heap on the back seat of an expensive stolen automobile and the other nearby at the side of the road.

Chicago officials with records and pictures hurried here after Hammond police discovered the murders. The autopsy revealed broken bones, bruises and burns, indicating rough handling.

SEARCHING FOR MISSING AMHERST SOPHOMORE

AMHERST, Mass., May 8—(AP)—Classes at Amherst college were suspended this afternoon while more than 100 students, under the personal direction of President Arthur Stanley Pease, searched for Frederick McCann, of Shorthills, N. J., Amherst sophomore who has been missing since last Friday. No trace of McCann was found.

At the morning chapel service President Pease urged all students to join in the search. The collegians assembled on the campus and were given orders by President Pease and Lieut. Albert M. Dacey of the state police.

The search covered practically all the surrounding country with special attention being paid to swamp lands and abandoned buildings. Earlier in the day, Lieut. Dacey had expressed the opinion that McCann had become mentally unbalanced through overstudy and might have been hiding somewhere near the college. He said he was prepared to bring additional state patrolmen to join in the search if no trace of McCann was found soon.

McCann's parents were here to confer with the police and college authorities.

GRAF ZEPPELIN TO MAKE ROUND-THE-WORLD TRIP

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—The post office department was advised today by American diplomatic officers in Germany that plans are being made for the Graf Zeppelin airship to make a round-the-world trip, starting and ending at Lakehurst, N. J.

A trip from Germany to the United States and back is due to start May 15, after which the post office department was advised, the airship would return to this country to start circling the globe.

The commander of the Graf Zeppelin, Dr. Hugo Eckener, was said to have stated to American representatives in Germany that he wishes to make the round-the-world trip an "all-American" affair and that he hopes to carry considerable mail to Far Eastern points for the United States.

From Lakehurst, the Zeppelin is expected to start across the continent to San Diego where there are hangar facilities in case they are needed, and from there to Japan and China via the Hawaiian Islands.

CONG. MICHAELSON'S LIQUOR LAW CASE IN HANDS OF JURY

KEY WEST, Fla., May 8—(AP)—The jury deliberating the case of Congressman M. Alfred Michaelson of Chicago, charged with smuggling liquor into this country from Cuba, had given no indication of a verdict three hours after receiving the case.

A verdict of guilty on the count charging smuggling of liquor would call for a penitentiary sentence. Transportation of liquor as charged in the court is a misdemeanor and is punishable by a fine.

"PHANTOM STABBER" AT WORK IN DANBURY

DANBURY, May 8—(AP)—Danbury's "phantom stabber" claimed his third victim within two months tonight when he plunged a sharp instrument into the right breast of Miss Florence Lattin, 18, of Padanaram road, Danbury.

The attack on the girl was similar to the two others made in this city and occurred in the same section. The wound was superficial. Both girls obtained a good description of the stabber who they described as a youth wearing a sweater, without a hat, and of dark complexion. Police searched the district without result.

DRUNKEN DRIVER POSED AS SUNDAY SCHOOL MAN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 8—(AP)—After Hugh MacQueen, of Arlington, had testified in the district court today that he was a member of a Sunday school class, was opposed to liquor and never drank, a probation officer introduced records that MacQueen had been arrested 13 times for drunkenness. He was convicted and fined $50 on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Mysterious Slaying Of Harvard Junior

Body of Walter T. Huntington, With Bullet Wound in Head, Found on Farm Near Windsor.

WINDSOR, May 8—(AP)—Walter Treadway Huntington, Harvard junior, found dead on the Murphy farm, on the outskirts of Windsor, was murdered, according to the opinion of Medical Examiner Henry N. Costello, who completed his autopsy late today. His body was discovered by a farm hand this morning, lying about 15 feet in from the road, with a bullet wound in the head.

A note, written on yellow paper, found near the body, is held by County Detective Edward J. Hickey, and whether or not it contained any clues as to the motive for the shooting could not be ascertained.

Huntington, who has been absent from Harvard university since Saturday and came home yesterday morning, left his home at 10:30 last night to go to a drug store. He had been riding with a friend, Burdett Williams, who took him to his home at 10:30. A few moments later, Huntington left again on an errand and his whereabouts after that time are unknown.

The body of the student was found lying flat on the back, with the arms and hands folded across the stomach. That the homicide was not a case of robbery was indicated by the fact that Huntington was wearing a diamond ring on his finger when found. It was learned that an automobile had stopped near where the body was discovered, some time during the night. Officials were trying today to check up on whether or not the body had been carried to the spot where found. According to Detective Hickey, Huntington was alive when his body was left or thrown in the field. Contents of his stomach, which had been expelled, indicated, according to Hickey, that Huntington was alive when brought to the spot.

Huntington left his home dressed in white flannels and a light topcoat. When found today the clothing showed no signs of a struggle. Persons living in the vicinity of the Murphy farm, the boyhood home of Gov. John H. Trumbull, said they had heard no shooting during the night. Detective Hickey is concentrating his efforts to trace the movements of Huntington after he left his home at 10:30 last night.

The slain youth was described by townspeople as a popular member of the younger set. He was salutatorian of his class at Windsor high school, when he was graduated in 1926. He entered Harvard during the fall session of the same year.

Burdett Williams, who was with Huntington nearly all day yesterday and in the evening, accompanied Detective Hickey all day on his investigation. He was also present while the autopsy was performed.

Huntington's father was Henry A. Huntington, a lawyer in Hartford. He was a member of the general assembly in 1911, and died during the session.

N. H. TO BEAR DAMAGE CAUSED BY RECENT STORM

CONCORD, N. H., May 8—(AP)—The entire cost of rehabilitating the trunk lines, state aid roads and bridges damaged by the recent flood in the Colebrook section will be borne by the state, Governor Charles W. Tobey and his council decided today. Damage to the roads and bridges was set at more than $200,000. Repair work will be started immediately and it is expected that the roads will be open to travel by July.

The first train since the flood from Colebrook to West Stewartstown over the Maine Central railroad was run today. The repair crews in the vicinity of Colebrook was repairing the detour roads to get them in condition for travel while the main highway between Colebrook and Dixville is being repaired.

A representative from the national headquarters of the American Red Cross reached Colebrook today to take charge of the relief work in that section.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The senate voted to retain the debenture plan in the farm bill.

The house was in recess while its members studied the new tariff bill.

Democrats of the house ways and means committee met to lay plans for consideration of the tariff.

President Green of the American Federation of Labor advocated a senate inquiry into southern textile mill conditions.

Representative Tilson, house majority leader, called a meeting of the whole republican membership for Friday to consider procedure on the tariff.

SLAYER OF SON-IN-LAW INDICTED FOR MURDER

AMARILLO, Tex., May 8—(AP)—R. H. Hamilton, former judge on the Texas supreme court's commission of appeals, who shot his son-in-law, Tom Walton, Jr., 21, to death here Saturday, was indicted for murder by the Potter county grand jury late today.

House Democrats Attack Tariff Bill

Republican Leaders Plan to Begin General Debate on the Measure and Hasten Action.

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—While democrats were assailing many features of the new tariff bill, republican leaders made plans today to begin general debate on the measure in the house tomorrow without waiting for the adoption of a special rule to govern its consideration for amendment.

The first organized democratic attack on the bill came in a statement late in the day by Representative Garner of Texas, the minority leader, who declared the members of his party were a unit in opposition to many administrative provisions of the measure, some of which he characterized as "vicious."

The statement was issued after a meeting of the democratic members of the ways and means committee, who were excluded from meetings during the preparation of the bill, and shortly after Chairman Hawley announced that the measure would be taken up for debate tomorrow.

No explanation was advanced for the move to start debate so soon after the bill's introduction, but there were indications that it was planned on the theory that many differences among the republicans over certain features of the measure might be smoothed out during the debate, thus reducing the demands for a rule throwing open many sections for amendment.

The full membership of the ways and means committee will meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow to report the bill formally to the house. At 3 o'clock Friday afternoon the full republican membership of the house will meet to discuss the nature of the special rule.

Republican Leader Tilson has promised a rule which, he said, would give ample opportunity to the membership to offer amendments. The democrats want a rule allowing changes to be suggested at any point during the reading of the bill.

HOW TEXTILE CENTERS REGARD NEW TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—Two members of the Alabama delegation in the house today expressed disapproval of the new tariff measure but with few exceptions approval in whole or in part was given the bill by representatives from other textile manufacturing states who commented on the proposed statute.

McDuffie of Alabama, democratic whip, said that the textile rates did not appear to foreshadow any help to the cotton producer, "especially if they are going to increase the price of his clothing." Bankhead, another Alabama democrat, said he was not going to support the bill "on general principles."

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, republican, of Massachusetts, declared she was "very much pleased with the cotton and wool schedules," and Representative Freeman, republican, of Connecticut, said the textile schedules "appeared to be satisfactory."

Representative Gifford, republican, Massachusetts, asserted he was pleased with the increases as it concerned textiles but that it would be difficult to judge. "I am pleased with the increases which have been granted," he said, "but I am awaiting word from the manufacturers as to whether they feel that the proposed schedules would permit them to operate at a profit."

Another New England republican, Representative Merritt, of Connecticut, said there was some question in his mind whether silk duties meet the demand. Any changes in the bill as framed, he asserted, should be made in the senate or in conference instead of "throwing it open to the house as a committee of 435 members where it would be virtually torn to pieces."

Representative Aldrich of Rhode Island, one of the framers of the law and son of the late Senator Aldrich, co-author of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, said that "generally speaking the entire bill is satisfactory."

Congress is being "stampeded to a certain degree on the question of tariffs to assist the farmer," Representative Underhill, republican, Massachusetts, said. "After a number of years of neglect," he added, "they are now coddling the farmer to such a degree that it will be injurious nationally."

ASKS TO HAVE ESTATE DECLARED INSOLVENT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 8—(AP)—A petition filed in the Middlesex probate court today asked to have the estate of the late Albert S. Apsey, former Boston lawyer and executor and trustee of several estates, declared insolvent. Claims of $204,265 were listed against a $64,878 valuation.

The largest claimant was the Riverside Court Hotel company, of which he was president and attorney for 29 years, for $100,000. The claim is identified as a "withdrawal".

Apsey served as senator and representative from this city for several years and was an officer in a number of business concerns. The estate was left to his widow, Mrs. Laura S. Apsey.

SESSION OF JOLLIFICATION MARKED CLOSING DAY OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, May 8—The house chamber this morning was decked out in mardi gras fashion. On the desk of every member there had been placed by the committee a paper bag containing all kinds of noise-makers, confetti and streamers. No calendar was on the desks of the members and the way was open for the usual jollification which began before the session was called to order.

A band formed from members played popular airs and it was with difficulty that the speaker secured order. It was a time when dignified clergymen, lawyers and doctors become boys again.

Order was secured at 10.15 after the band had played the Star Spangled Banner and prayer was offered by the chaplain.

A resolution was passed recalling from the office of the secretary, the bill relating to the commission on rivers, harbors and bridges. Disorder again broke out and the speaker announced that the women had prepared a program. There soon appeared some women members bearing placards reading "Coroner", "State's Attorney", "Court Clerk" and names of other court officers. A mock trial was held to ascertain who murdered "Marjory". The jury was not sure of the guilt of the accused but guessed he was guilty. The prisoner on being asked if he had anything to say replied that the verdict was a minority report and besides that it was his opinion that it was unconstitutional. The supposed victim (Miss Cheney) appeared and pleaded for clemency for the accused and he was placed on probation to report daily to Marjory Cheney. It was a clever skit and was well carried

James Campbell, 29, Negro, was shot in the back in Hartford when he attempted to escape arrest by Patrolman R. L. Corrigan following a raid on a disorderly house. During a chase of nearly a mile the officer fired two warning shots at the man. A third shot entered his back.

SENATE VOTED DEBENTURE PLAN FARM RELIEF 47 TO 44

Overrode the Wishes of President Hoover—Thirteen Republican Independents Joined an Almost Solid Democratic Vote in Defeating the Administration Group—Two Democrats Voted With the Administration Republicans and Two Other Democrats Were "Paired"—Belief is Expressed That the Amendment Will Be Eliminated By Conference Committee—Leader Tilson Predicts Debenture Defeat in the House.

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—Despite President Hoover's emphatically expressed objections, the senate voted 47 to 44 today to retain the export debenture plan in its farm relief bill.

Thirteen republican independents joined an almost solid democratic vote in defeating an attempt by administration forces to eliminate the disputed provision.

The bill already passed by the house does not provide for debentures, and inclusion of the plan in the senate measure was held by its opponents tonight to complicate enactment of farm relief legislation greatly. Republican leaders contended the house would reject the provision overwhelmingly, especially in view of the president's position.

They were confident that it would be eliminated ultimately by the conference committee of senate and house members which must adjust differences between the two measures, but were plainly concerned over the time it might take to settle the controversy. The senate has yet to vote on the farm bill itself.

Only two democrats left their party line-up to join with administration republicans in the elimination move. They were Wagner of New York and Ransdell of Louisiana.

Two other democrats, Walsh of Massachusetts, and King of Utah were "paired" with Shipstead of Minnesota, and Kendrick, democrat, Wyoming, both of whom are in hospitals. Among the republicans who disregarded the wishes of the president were Borah of Idaho, and Brookhart of Iowa, who were leading campaigners for Mr. Hoover prior to the recent election.

Just before the roll call was begun, Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, read from the letter of the president to Chairman McNary of the senate agriculture committee listing ten reasons why the executive opposed the debenture plan.

"I think it is well for the record to show at this point," he said, "the objections the president has to the proposition we are about to vote upon."

The administration forces were doomed to be defeated by one vote even though Senators Walsh and King had declined to pair with the two absent members. Senator Walsh had a clerk read a letter from Senator Shipstead in which the Minnesota member said he was never so desirous of voting on a proposal and urged Walsh to pair so he would not be "required to further impair my health by being present."

A similar request by Senator Kendrick of Senator King was announced by the latter.

Word of the senate vote reached the house almost immediately, but little comment was forthcoming. Representative Garner, of Texas, the democratic leader, predicted that the house democrats would be virtually solid in their support of the debenture plan at the time of a vote on the conference report on the farm bill.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican leader, predicted that the house never would accept the debenture plan.

He said two routes were open to the house in moving against the section.

One would be to raise the question that the senate had exceeded its authority vote. In this event the bill would be sent back to the senate without action by the house.

The second method would be to meet the question on a direct vote in the house. Leaders feel that they have a broad majority against the proposal and expressed willingness that the matter be handled by a direct house vote.

The debenture plan aims to increase the price of farm crops by giving a surplus exporter a debenture certificate, the value of which would be equal to one half the tariff on imports of those commodities. In the case of cotton, upon which no tariff duty is levied, the debenture rate would be two cents a pound.

The debenture certificates would be accepted for payment of import duties, and the National Grange, which sponsored the proposal, contended the farmer would receive practically all of the certificates' value.

A graduated system of debenture rates would be afforded by which the rates would be lower in proportion to overproduction of any debentureable crop. The proposed farm board would not be compelled to use the plan but would be authorized to employ it whenever it was deemed advisable.

Prior to the vote on the debenture amendment, the senate adopted a proposal by Senator Tyson, democrat, Tennessee, to give products manufactured from raw cotton and tobacco the benefits of the debenture plan should it be revoked.

Since the principal difference between the house and senate farm bills is the debenture section, chief interest is expected to be attached to what will be done with it by that conference.

Republican leaders have asserted that the conference will eliminate the disputed section, but both senate and house must approve the conference report before the farm bill can be sent to the white house.

Thirteen republicans voted against the administration motion to eliminate the debenture provision.

Only two democrats voted with the republican administration group.

Those voting for retention of the debenture were:

Republicans—Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Frazier, Howell, Johnson, Lafollette, McMaster, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, Pine and Schall—13.

Democrats—Ashurst, Barkley, Black, Blease, Bratton, Broussard, Caraway, Connally, Copeland, Dill, Fletcher, George, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Hawes, Hayden, Heflin, McKellar, Overman, Pittman, Robinson, of Arkansas, Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Steck, Stephens, Swanson, Thomas, of Oklahoma, Trammell, Tydings, Tyson, Walsh, of Montana, and Wheeler—34.

Those democrats voting to eliminate the debenture were Ransdell and Wagner—2.

Republicans—Allen, Bingham, Burton, Capper, Couzens, Cutting, Dale, Deneen, Edge, Fess, Gillett, Glenn, Goff, Goldsborough, Gould, Greene, Hale, Hastings, Hatfield, Hebert, Jones, Kean, Keyes, McNary, Metcalf, Moses, Oddie, Patterson, Phipps, Reed, Robinson, of Indiana, Sackett, Shortridge, Smoot, Steiwer, Thomas, of Idaho, Townsend, Vandenberg, Walcott, Warren, Waterman and Wtson—42.

Of the four senators not voting, two favoring the debenture, Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota, and Kendrick, democrat, Wyoming, were detained on account of illness. Senators King, Utah, and Walsh, Massachusetts democrats, however, who were against the debenture were paired with the absentees and did not vote.

Just before the debenture vote the senate included products manufactured from raw cotton and tobacco under operation of the debenture provisions. This proposal was sponsored by Senator Tyson, democrat, Tennessee.

BOSTON POLICE DEPARTMENT ATTACKED IN MASS. SENATE

BOSTON, May 8—(AP)—The Boston police department was scathingly attacked today on the floor of the state senate. President Gardner Bacon made several futile attempts to check a denouncement by Senator Michael Ward, of Boston, which was directed chiefly at Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson and Special Officer Oliver Garrett, head of the liquor squad.

Ward told the senate 10,000 "blind pigs" were operating in Boston and that action against them had ceased after the bootleggers had paid the bagman of the Wilson administration.

Officer Garrett was termed by Ward a "$36 a week policeman who buys $25,000 cows" referring to Garrett's Hingham farm residence. The senator charged that the only time raids were made in Chinatown was "when the police plant opium there themselves."

Commissioner Wilson, he termed "dishonest and disreputable," and said Wilson was "doing more to harm the republican party in Massachusetts than all the agencies working openly against that party."

SEN. HEFLIN DENOUNCES CONCESSIONS TO SINCLAIR

WASHINGTON, May 8—(AP)—The order forbidding jail officials to give any information concerning Harry F. Sinclair and banning newspapermen from the jail during his three months term was denounced in the senate today by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama.

With the wealthy oil man accustoming himself to jail routine on the second full day of his sentence, the Alabama senator declared it was "time for those in authority to stop truckling to millionaire criminals."

The only information forthcoming at the jail was that Sinclair's work in the drug room had not been interrupted by an unusual occurrence. Having qualified as a pharmacist as a young man, Sinclair will carry on that work while executing his term behind the bars for contempt of the senate.

CLOSE OF CONVENTION OF SOCIAL WORKERS

MIDDLETOWN, May 8—(AP)—The Connecticut conference of social work closed a four day convention today, with the election of officers. Those elected were: Clarence Blakeslee, New Haven, president; Mrs. T. P. Walden, vice president; Miss Lillian Pruden, New Haven, vice president; John M. Wadhams, Torrington, vice president; Kenneth Messinger, New Hartford, vice president, and Matthew A. Reynolds, New Haven, treasurer. The secretary of the association will be elected at the opening session of the meeting in New Haven in 1930. An executive committee of 23 was named.

JUNIOR WEEK FESTIVITIES AT STORRS BEGIN TODAY

STORRS, May 8—(AP)—The annual junior week festivities at Connecticut Agricultural college will begin tomorrow with the competitive drill for which prizes will be awarded to the best platoon and company. The junior "prom" will be held Friday evening with an expected attendance of 120 couples. As a climax to the week-end the Theta Alpha Phi dramatic fraternity will reproduce Paolo and Francesca on Saturday night.

ASKS FOR ACCOUNTING OF $800,000 TO $750,000

BOSTON, May 8—(AP)—A bill in equity filed in Suffolk superior court today by Clarence E. Clement, stock operator, of Boston, asked an accounting from George C. Moore of New York city of between $800,000 and $750,000. The sum is due Mr. Clement's bill sets forth from a joint venture to enhance the market for and price of the stock of the United Electric Coal corporation, a coal mining concern. The case will come up for hearing in the motion session tomorrow.

"BIG BILL" KELLIHER GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

BOSTON, May 8—(AP)—A jury in Suffolk superior court today found William J. "Big Bill" Kelliher guilty on two counts of conspiracy to steal and two counts of larceny, involving the sum of $1,730. Pleas of guilty to one charge each of conspiracy to steal, were entered by two co-defendants, John J. Duffley and William J. Connolly. Sentences will be imposed on Friday.

ST. JOSEPH'S TO OBSERVE NAT. HOSPITAL DAY SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 8—St. Joseph's hospital will observe National Hospital day on Sunday May 12, in conjunction with thousands of other hospitals throughout the country. A program that will be of interest to the public has been arranged offering all an opportunity to become acquainted with the work of the hospital. The day is not intended as an appeal for funds.

Hospital day was inaugurated in 1921 and every year additional hundreds visit their neighborhood hospitals. The occasion is sponsored by the American Hospital association and has the unqualified support of public officials throughout the nation.

LEGION AUXILIARY TO BE FORMED THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 8—Formal plans for the organization of a ladies auxiliary to James J. Shea Post No. 19, American Legion will be drafted at a meeting of the post to be held in the G. A. R. rooms of the town building Thursday evening. Members will present their discharge papers as information for filling application blanks for the women. Mothers, wives, sisters, daughters, step-mothers, step-sisters and legally adopted sisters of legion members are eligible for membership and a large registration is expected from the city and town of Windham. The post will receive the able assistance of Miss Jennie Batz of Rockville, district chairman and a corps of workers.

Mrs. May A. Gates eulogized Miss Emeline Dunn at the meeting of the Woman's club held Tuesday afternoon. It was the last regular meeting of the club year. Mrs. Gates, in calling attention to a painting by Miss Dunn, presented to the club by Samuel Chesebro gave an intimate biography of the artist.

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Maida Dainton, dramatic critic of New York, whose subject was Some Significant Plays of the Season. She was introduced by Mrs. Dwight E. Abel, chairman of the program committee. Miss Dainton stated that there was an overbuilding of theaters by real estate men. Despite bad conditions in some areas, however, the critic advanced the belief that influences for good were radiated from the general theatrical situation. She stated that critics consider Street Scene one of the best among modern plays. Caprice, Holiday and Let Us Be Gay were others mentioned by Miss Dainton. She said that in New York it is time-honored tradition that a play to succeed must have a live interest and women in the cast, but there were two, Wiltes Over Europe and Journey's End which have neither and are playing to full houses.

OBITUARY

Charles J. Hurley

Charles J. Hurley, a former resident of Willimantic, died in the Springfield, Mass., General hospital Tuesday afternoon after an illness of pneumonia. He was a native of Ireland and for a number of years made his home in Naugatuck. The deceased leaves four daughters; Mrs. John Whalen of Waterbury; Mrs. George Fratus of Old Lyme, Mrs. Frank Smith of Trenton, N. J., and Mrs. James Korbel of Springfield, Mass.; three sisters, Mrs. Patrick Curran, Mrs. Michael P. Cronin and Mrs. W. F. Palmer, of this city; four grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

A short calendar session of the Windham county superior court with Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin of Hartford on the bench will be held in this city Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Several of the 11 cases on the list are of local interest. Friday, Judge Marvin will also preside for the assignment of nine court and two jury civil cases in connection with the short calendar. Notice issued by Clerk Dean is the effect that Judge Marvin will call the docket of the cases listed on the civil calendars and discontinue or otherwise dispose of those untried and pending for one year and those in which there is default for appearanceu nless sufficient cause is presented for further continuance. All receivers, unless previously excused, will be required to be present to answer for the condition of their estates and accounting of trusts.

A persistent rumor that a tri-motored airplane had made a forced landing in a field about one-half mile east of Dunham's store at Mansfield Center Tuesday evening failed to prove true today when inquiries did not reveal the landing of any plane in this vicinity. The rumor got its start when residents of Mansfield Center were attracted by the low altitude of a big plane that nearly brushed the tops of trees as it circled about, the aviator evidently seeking a landing place. The machine flew off in an easterly direction and seemed to drop down. Several people drove in the direction in which the plane had disappeared but failed to locate it.

About 15 feet will be taken from the top of the 150-foot chimney of the old Quidnick-Windham plant, now owned by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company in repairing damage caused last week when the stack was struck by lightning. The top of the chimney was found so damaged that it would either have to be replaced entirely or eliminated and in view of the fact that a replacement would necessitate the building of costly platforms from the ground the latter course was decided upon.

Rev. Myron E. Ganter of Norwich, district superintendent will be in charge of the service at the Methodist Episcopal church next Sunday morning. Rev. Harvey Reeves Calkins of India will speak of the World Wide Kingdom work. At the Sunday evening service a Mothers' day program will be carried out. In the absence of Rev. Harold H. Critchlow, the church night service Thursday will be led by E. Byrd Freeman. Rev. and Mrs. Critchlow are visiting in Brooklyn, N. Y., this week. Saturday Rev. Mr. Critchlow will officiate at the wedding of Miss Wilhelmina Taylor of Arlington, N. J., to Murray O. Klingaman of Albany, N. Y., in the Robert Treat hotel at Newark, N. J. Mrs. William G. Taylor, mother of the bride and Mrs. Critchlow are missing.

Miss Edith Larkin and Miss Sabra S. Stoughton, first and second delegates respectively, read reports of the 33rd annual Rebekah assembly at the regular meeting of Violet Rebekah lodge held in Odd Fellows hall Tuesday evening. Whist was played, the prizes being awarded to Mrs. Elinor Benner and Wilbur G. Stevens, first; Miss Ruth Easterbrooks and Fred N. Flagg, second.

Miss Margaret Crosthwaite was tendered a May-basket surprise party at her home, 1299 Main street, Tuesday evening. Games and singing, with Christopher Vorel at the piano made up a delightful evening. Present: The Misses Mildred Cotter, Irene LeClaire, Cecelia Barrett, Thelma Barrett and Stella Barrett, Christopher Vogel, George Copeland, Frank Brisbois, Percy Crosthwaite, George Setterberg, Arthur Sweet, Ralph and William Crosthwaite, Mr. and Mrs. R. MISS LAUGHLIN RESIGNS TO TEACH IN BAY STATE

Miss Margaret I. Laughlin, teacher of Grade 1A, Riverside Grammar school has tendered her resignation to the Griswold school board and is to teach in one of the schools of Massachusetts. Miss Laughlin has taught here for the past three years and has made many friends who will be sorry to have her leave.

There was further evidence Wednesday among the pickerel fishermen at Tadpole, that the fishing laws need some remedy. This pond contains both bass and pickerel. The law was off pickerel May 1, while bass are protected until July 1st. Ever since the first of the month, every day, pickerel casters have caught black bass, which now readily take the plug or spoon.

Will Aid Mission School

The Woman's Mission Circle of the Baptist hurch held their May meeting in the church parlor Tuesday afternoon. There was an attendance of sixteen. Mrs. E. B. Gardner led the devotional service. Mrs. Davis reported the returns from the coin cards to date and a letter from Mather School in Beaufort, S. C., was read asking for supplies of clothing to be sent to their Sales House. The school is supported in a large part from the sale of clothing which is sent in boxes and barrels from the north. There is special need of boys and men's shoes and underwear. It was voted to pack a barrel and clothing may be brought to the church up to May 23d. Where it is not possible for the donors to bring their bundles to the church they have been asked to notify Mrs. A. M. Brown. Packages will be called for. A questionnaire will be circulated among the women of the church to ascertain the number of active members.

Mrs. Brown then turned the meeting over to Mrs. E. M. Gray, who had charge of the program. The subject was "The Orientals at Our Door," and the unusually interesting material told graphically of the work of Christian Americanization among the Japanese on the Pacific coast. Their well-known love of beauty was appealed to and their response might put many towns to shame. Their spiritual and educational advancement is not neglected. Different phases of the work were described in selections read by Mrs. A. M. Brown, Mrs. Francis Campbell, Miss Belle Guy, Mrs. E. E. Scates, Mrs. Martin Davis, Mrs. S. F. Brown, Mrs. C. F. Gardner, Mrs. B. R Gardner, Mrs. S. A. Wilbur, Mrs. Mary Y Brewster, Mrs. William Perry, Mrs. Lewis Hewlitt and Mrs. Nathan Babcock. Mrs. Campbell as hostess, served sandwiches, cookies and tea.

WHAT IS A ONE CENT SALE?

It is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price, then another item of the same kind for one cent. As an illustration: The standard price of Klenzo Dental Creme is 50c, you buy a tube at this price and by paying one cent more, or 51 cents, you get two tubes and save 49 cents. Every article in this sale is a high class standard piece of merchandise, just the same as is sold every day at regular price. No limit—buy all you want, but on Thursday, Friday and Saturday only!

A PROFIT SHARING METHOD OF ADVERTISING

THIS sale was developed by the United Drug Co. as an advertising plan. Rather than spend large sums of money in other ways to convince you of the merit of these goods, they are spending it on this sale in permitting us to sell you a full size package of high standard, merchandise for one cent. It costs money to get new customers, but the sacrifice in profit is justified, as we know the goods will please you.

PUTNAM

ST. MARY'S BELL TO BE BLESSED TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 8—It is expected that throngs will witness the conferring of the diocesan blessing by Rt. Rev. Maurice McAuliff, auxiliary bishop of Hartford diocese, upon the new 2,000-pound bell at St. Mary's church Thursday evening. Rev. D. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's, said this afternoon that he had been informed today of the bishop's coming to Putnam to officiate at the ceremony, representing Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, bishop of Hartford.

The service will take place at 7:30 o'clock. Father Bellerose stated today that announcements regarding the mission of the auxiliary bishop to Putnam will be made at all the masses on Thursday when the feast of the ascension will be celebrated.

Workmen are now engaged in making the tower ready for the new peal. The belfry is now being relined with copper to reflect all the notes of the bells and supports are being strengthened so as to offset the additional weight that will be present when the new bell and the two bells already in use are installed.

The fire-gutted City hotel, Putnam lodging house, destroyed by fire a few months ago and now on the verge of collapsing under the strain of inclement weather of the past fortnight, will not be entirely razed and cleared away for some time yet, according to the owner, Stephren Harquoll, of this city. Mr. Harquoll said this morning that insurance adjustments have not been completed as yet rendering the doomed to take care of Putnam's recently acquired Main street eyesore. But in the interests of public safety the owner said that he intends to have workmen start work on the wrecking of the north side wall which was weakened by the intense winds and heavy rains of the past week. The wall gives one a vague idea of how the famous leaning tower of Pisa really appears to the human eye. The center of the three-story abutment is wavy in form until it reaches the sashes of the second story, while this is curving out towards the street. A portion of the thoroughfare from South Main street to School street continues to remain roped off to prevent trespassing.

The monthly meeting of the directors of the Putnam chamber of commerce was held Monday evening at the Putnam Inn. The session of the business executives was preceded by a dinner. The problems coming before the group at the May meetings were of a routine nature and created little interest.

A highly enlightening and interesting talk on the work the state of Connecticut is accomplishing for the blind was given at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Putnam Rotary club, held in the Putnam Inn at noon today, by S. C. Worden of the state board of education of the blind. The speaker was introduced by Rev. James F. English, president of the club. Mr. Worden told of the activities of his department of state education. Its origin was 25 years ago when a philanthropic individual conceived the idea that the blind could be aided by home vocational training. Since the state authorities recognized the work of this man, the work has developed extensively in a quarter of a century. Mr. Worden said that the state maintains three institutions for the blind in Hartford together with a corps of teachers who instruct sightless persons in their homes. The name of Miss Marion Dillette of Norwich, was given by Mr. Worden as being the home instructor of New London and Windham counties. Four courses of learning are provided by the state in the education of the blind: primary, secondary college (optional), and relief. The speaker said that the college courses as offered to the blind have proven successful. One sightless student will be graduated in June from Yale university with the degree of bachelor of arts.

Other factors of learning and aid furnished the blind by the state institutions were interestingly touched upon by Mr. Worden in his talk, including the methods adopted in teaching the blind to read and write.

Miss Irene Desmond, a member of the state board of education of the blind, with two blind pupils ably demonstrated the blind way of reading, writing and arithmetic to the Rotarians.

Another subject of interest to the youth of the city discussed at today's Rotary gathering was the Loyalty day parade, the feature day of Boys' week. The plans now being formulated, by the club committees will make the parade the greatest juvenile event in the history of the city.

A report from the various committee heads directing the combined Danielson and Putnam Rotary minstrel show was to the effect that the advance ticket sale forecasts the undertaking will be a huge success.

Visitors at today's luncheon were Herman L. Bennett and Arthur L. Ryan, of Webster; Henry Johnson, of Danielson; O. C. Hills, of Rockland, Mass., and S. C. Worden, of Hartford.

Frank Johnston, of South Woodstock, was seriously injured early this afternoon when an axe with which he was chopping glanced off the side of a sapling and caused a deep wound into his right forearm. Johnston was rushed to the Day Kimball hospital, where he remains in a critical condition, suffering from the loss of blood. It was believed by the hospital authorities this afternoon that amputation of the arm would be necessary.

An alderman was highly in demand last evening—the first Tuesday of the month—regular meeting night of the common council, but such a being was not to be found. After an hour of ceaseless telephonic search of the city fraternal club rooms and other haunts of tired business men who comprise the board of aldermen, Mayor Charles A. Richard finally gave up all hopes of reaching the needed councilor to make a quorum and amid the suggestions of Fire Chief R. E. Thurston decided to postpone the pow-wow another 24 hours. The presence of Mayor Richard, Aldermen Ames, Chadwick, Migneault and Dubois was insufficient to carry on the session. The lack of a quorum proved to be a subject of jest which was eagerly devoured by Chief Thurston and his cohorts, as his wit drew many a smile from the congregation outside the rail and an occasional laugh from the four within.

Ernest B. Kent, second member of the city water commission, has tendered his resignation to Chairman of the Commission Ralph E. Thurston, the commissioner disclosed today. The resignation of Mr. Kent was to have been read at the common council meeting Tuesday evening, but as there was not a quorum present the document will be acted upon at a meeting this evening. Mr. Kent's reason for resigning his duties as a member of the water commission is given by Mr Thurston as due to ill health Mr Kent is now a patient at St Vincent's hospital in Worcester and the exact nature of his illness is not known.

Upon the resignation of former Commissioners Gilman, Smith and Elliott, Mayor Richard appointed Mr. Kent to the commission with Mr. Thurston and Mr. Dubois, the remaining member. Since he has been a director of the city water company, Mr. Kent has been an ardent worker and figured highly in the formulating of the reconstruction plans of the water system, now under consideration of H. L. Symonds, consulting hydraulic engineer of the board.

Rev. George J. Donahue, pastor of the Holy Trinity church in Pomfret, will sail from New York for Europe on May 25. Father Donahue will be gone about three months, visiting France, Switzerland and Italy.

Alderman Robert T. Chadwick of South Main street will sail for England on May 14. Alderman Chadwick will be accompanied by Mrs. Chadwick and will be gone for several weeks.

AIR CIRCUS AT PUTNAM DURING THE WEEK END

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 8—An "air circus" is to be held on Mantup Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 16, 17 and 18, according to an announcement made tonight by Arthur S. MacDonald, secretary of the chamber of commerce. Mr. MacDonald, informed the common council that the air fete is being arranged by the L. and H. Aircraft Co. of Hartford. According to the present plan, a fleet of seven planes to be piloted by experienced fliers will participate in the maneuvers on Friday and Sunday. On Sunday an air parade with its line of march being several flights over the city with the members of the common council and Mayor Charles A. Richard as guest passengers. When informed of the circus tonight, they seemed somewhat timid in accepting the invitation extended to them by the Aircraft corporation through Mr. MacDonald.

Many distinguished aviation officials of the state aviation commission including the state commissioner of aviation and officer of the 43rd division Air corps, a number of World war pilots and a French pilot, who recently completed a flight from Paris to Egypt are to take part. During the circus activities to take place on Mantup field, including many thrilling aerial stunts and races. The purpose of the meet according to Mr. MacDonald, is to bring to the minds of the public, the rapid strides of progress in aviation being accomplished in Connecticut.

O. S. DUGAS NAMED AS NEW WATER COMMISSIONER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 8—Oscar S. Dugus of Providence street, a Putnam merchant, was appointed tonight to fill the vacancy on the board of water commissioners created when Commissioner Ernest B. Kent tendered his resignation to the council. The appointment of Mr. Dugas was made at the regular meeting of the common council upon a recommendation from Mayor Charles A. Richard and was immediately ratified by the board of aldermen. Mr. Dugas will assume his new position as a member of the water commission at once.

DANIELSON

NOTED GLOBE TROTTER PAYS VISIT TO DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 8—Warren A Hogle, a celebrated hiker who is out to do 100,000 miles in 15 years, came to town this morning and stopped at the postoffice to have a clerk there postmark a book he carries and in which the names of many distinguished persons are inscribed, including those of former Presidents Warren G Harding and Calvin Coolidge and several presidents of Central and South American countries. Among the signatures is that of Forme- President Obregon of Mexico, victim of an assassin. Hogle readily establishes by his book that he really has been around. There are postal cancellation stamps from hundreds of towns and cities throughout the 48 states of the Union. Among the signatures is that of Nellie Taylor Ross, former governor of Wyoming. Page after page of the book is adorned with gold seals and imprints of countries and cities in South and Central America.

Hogle claims Daley, in the Gila desert country of California, as his home town. He is a decorated veteran of the World war, having served overseas with the 6th Field artillery. His left leg is gone at a point above the knee and he gets about on crutches, selling souvenir picture cards of himself as a source of revenue. Hogle started out on his long hike from Los Angeles, March 7, 1921, and up to April of the 100,000 that he hopes to do. He of the 100,000 that he hopes to do. He anticipates that several more years will be required for him to do this, though he is ahead of schedule. After more than eight years of wandering about Hogle continues in good trim and appears to be in very good health

The annual Windham county Y. M. C. A. track meet will open at the fair ground in Brooklyn at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. From 10 until noon events and trial heats will be run off. All of the dash finals and the 880-yard run and the mile run and all relay races will be run off starting at 2 p. m. There will be no admission charge to the grounds, and everyone is welcome to attend. In previous years a large number of spectators have been on hand to enthuse and encourage the competitors. Entries have been received from various towns of the county. Those winning first, second and third places in the county track and field meet will be admitted to the state meet, which will be held at Wesleyan field, Middletown, May 25.

For three years Windham county Y. M. C. A. athletes won first place at the state meet. Hartford county won last year, but Windham county is out to regain the honors this year. Danielson, Dayville, Plainfield, Putnam, Thompson and the Grosvenordale will be represented by competitors at the meet at Brooklyn on Saturday.

Judging will be in charge of Eric Lind, physical director of the Willimantic Y. M. C. A. Mr. Lind's judging and his decisions are marked by splendid fairness and have made him an outstanding personage in this capacity. Mr. Lind is to be physical director at the Windham County Girls' camp at Camp Woodstock in August.

In case of a heavy rain storm next Saturday, the meeting will be postponed to Saturday, May 18. All entrants must hold Windham County Y. M. C. A. athletic cards.

The list of Junior events: 75-yard dash, baseball throw, running broad jump, 220-yard relay, high jump.

The Killingly Woman's club will have a large delegation of its members at the 33rd annual convention of the Connecticut State Federation of Women's clubs at Willimantic, May 14-15-16. The opening session is to be on Tuesday next at 11 a. m., at the First Congregational church

Marshall Dowe, 7 years of age, has joined the troop of Bulletin boys that go about Danielson making deliveries every morning, and Marshall is of special interest in his field of endeavor because it so happens that he is of the fourth generation of the Dowe family to handle The Bulletin in Danielson, and of the fifth generation of the Dowe family to be engaged in commercial pursuits here. There are residents of Danielson who regularly purchased Bulletins from Marshall's great grandfather, from his grandfather and from his father John M. Dowe, for whom Marshall is now covering a route through Hawkins, Broad, Cottage and L'Homme streets and putting out about 70 papers every morning. Marshall is the youngest of Danielson's Bulletin boys, but he is giving good and faithful service.

Announcement is made that the plan to close the school at South Killingly and transport pupils studying there to Danielson has been abandoned. Supt. W. E. Parker said school officials deferring to the wishes of residents of that section of the town that the school be continued when the new school year begins next September, in the interest of economy it was planned sometime since to close the South Killingly school permanently at the end of the present school year in June. This arrangement would save a teacher's salary, the cost of heating the building and other incidentals of maintaining the school, and as against these savings there would be the cost of transporting the children to Danielson. The proposed arrangement would have resulted in a net saving to the town. It did not meet with the approval of numbers of parents of school children in the South Killingly district, however, so in September the school will open as usual. The Valley district school also is to be continued during the coming school year, though some time since it also was planned to close that school and transport the pupils to the East Killingly school. As at South Killingly the plan met with parental opposition.

Because of the road work being done in South Main street between the bridge over the Assawaga river and the bridge over the Quinebaug river many drivers find it convenient to make the short detour through Water and Franklin streets in going to or coming from the West Side, thus avoiding all but a few feet of the section where work is being done.

A matter of interest to hundreds of the residents of Danielson is that Thursday is Ascension day and that it will be marked by special church services.

Bayer-Tablets Aspirin Genuine

To Identify Genuine Aspirin

THE increasing use of Bayer Aspirin every year is proof that it has no ill effects. It is the accepted antidote for pain. It always helps; it never harms. Quick relief when you've a headache, or cold; or are suffering from neuralgia or neuritis. Rheumatic pains yield, too, if you'll only give these tablets a chance. But you want genuine Aspirin, so look for the Bayer Cross on every tablet. The box always bears the name Bayer and the word genuine printed in red.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

To maintain a slender figure, no one can deny the truth of the advice:

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

Conflicting Arguments

have been unable to halt the rapidly increasing tendency of the public to adopt Lucky Strike as its favorite cigarette. Lucky Strike is a blend of choice tobaccos whose toasted flavor thrills the taste, whose toasting process eliminates impurities, and, as 20,679 physicians testify, makes Luckies less irritating. Toasting elevates Lucky Strike to a plane of quality which no other cigarette can approach. The constant care of experts assures the quality of Luckies. Its choice by millions proves its superiority and is the truthful answer to selfish claims.

"MERE PARTISAN SABOTAGE"

The vote in the senate on the debenture provision in the farm bill makes it evident that there has been a lining up of the democrats and the insurgent republicans for the purpose of embarrassing the administration.

This special session has been called for two things in particular. One of them is to provide farm relief legislation. The house has acted upon the so-called administration bill and acted favorably by an overwhelming vote. The senate has been spending most of its time considering the debenture provision. This has received the opposition of President Hoover who has set forth the reasons why such a step ought not to be taken. He has pointed out the undesirability of it quite the same as President Coolidge nailed the equalization fee, and yet because there is strength enough among the democrats and the insurgent republicans to insist upon the debenture plan and squeeze it through it has been done. There is an insistence upon what is uneconomic and unwise and with the senate taking the same action on the farm bill as upon debentures it leaves congress divided in such a way that one house must yield if there is to be any legislation at all. From the house comes the information that it will never consent to the debenture plan. Thus once more the senate faces the responsibility of denying the country the benefit of farm legislation because of the cash demands made.

The Brooklyn Eagle, democratic, has declared that "democratic senators who wish to do something for their party will vote against the debenture plan." The New York Times, also democratic, declares that the democrats have united with insurgent republicans "on a measure which denies what has been regarded as a fundamental democratic doctrine." Senator Copeland of New York, democrat, has declared he would vote for the plan but he "would hold his nose" in doing so.

The democrats have succeeded in putting over the debenture plan in the senate and all this makes it apparent that it has been done for the purpose of "putting the president in a hole." When the Eagle refers to it as "mere partisan sabotage" it is evident that it will have worse effect upon the democrats and the insurgents than upon the administration.

TARIFF REVISION.

After much preliminary investigation through hearings and otherwise, the ways and means committee of the house has presented a tariff bill for the consideration of the representatives. That it will be thoroughly studied in every detail is to be expected. It will not undergo careful scrutiny on the part of members of congress but by individuals and organizations throughout the country who may be favorably or unfavorably affected by its provisions.

Revision has been desired in order to deal justly with the present day conditions. Trying to satisfy everyone is a big problem. Evidently the ways and means committee believes that it has done the right thing in view of the demands and opposition that were placed before it. Whether it can justify its action in the face of the kicks that are registered because the revision has gone too far or not far enough remains to be seen.

It is to be expected that there will be a series of efforts for further revision in the measure before it is allowed to leave the house. It is going to take time to go through and discuss the merits of the various schedules and come to an agreement on a measure which can be passed along to the senate.

Still the time that is given to it in the house will be much shorter than that which the senate can be expected to use in handling it. It is useless to think that the senate will give its approval to the bill as it stands. On general principles it will do its best to leave its impress upon it even if it takes all summer and even though such remodeling as it seeks is no better than the house action. When tariff changing is started there's no telling where the end is going to be. New England has particular interest in the result.

OUGHT TO HAVE A MEDAL.

There is a law in the province of Ontario which requires a person to obtain a license if he wants to carry a gun. Evidently it has been found necessary to give protection to the public through the restriction of the use of firearms and the licensing plan has been resorted to as in many of the states of this country.

How a person may disregard that law unless circumstances develop which cause him to reveal the fact that he was toting a gun is illustrated by the experience of a Detroit policeman who was vacationing in Ontario. This policeman encountered a situation where professional highwaymen were at work. Evidently he could have kept out of the picture and refused to disclose the fact that he had a gun and no permit to carry it, but whether he knew his own predicament or not he deemed it wise to bring down the robbers and he employed his gun to do it. He shot one and wounded the other and rendered a valuable service to Ontario, but soon found himself subjected to arrest, charged with carrying a gun without a license and jailed with the possibility of an additional charge of manslaughter or murder.

Here is a case where a resident of this country has really violated a law in Ontario, but the circumstances under which it occurred are such that it was really done for the benefit of the people of that province. That he should be held under bail until the circumstances surrounding the affairs are cleared up to the satisfaction of the Canadian authorities would not seem surprising, but to place him in jail and hold before him the possibility of being charged with murder gives him no better standing that of the highwaymen, against whom he was giving the public its chief protection at the time.

It cannot be believed that any of the charges will be pushed. For the service that was rendered in stopping the highwaymen the Detroit bluecoat ought to be given a medal instead of being thrown into jail and threatened with punishment. Ontario has cause for being grateful that the officer in this case was armed and a good shot.

FRANCE MUST DECIDE.

On the first of August there will be due this country from France the sum of $407,000,000 in payment of war materials that were carried across the ocean by the United States and purchased by France after the close of the war. Since the time of purchase France has been paying interest at the rate of 5 per cent. and now the question arises as to whether France is going to settle this bill, ask for an extension of time or ratify the funding arrangement for taking care of the war debt with which this bill for war materials was combined under the terms of the negotiated agreement.

Inasmuch as it is reported that France has plenty of money with which to meet this debt when it comes due, it will not be for a lack of funds that it doesn't pay. Rather is it likely to hinge on the outcome of the reparations conference. If that results favorably to France it is probable that there will be a ratification of the refunding arrangement. If it fails to meet the demands of that country it will be used as the reason for refusing to take action upon it. Then it will be possible for France to pay to this country an amount similar to that which would be required under the agreement, payments of which have been made up to now practically as if the agreement was in effect, or it can settle the bill for materials and leave the war debt unchanged.

France has used the reparations situation as the excuse for failure to take action on the debt agreement. It has bridged the situation to a degree by making the payments the same as if there had been ratification but it must come to some decision soon as to what it is going to do about the bill for surplus war material which it has agreed to pay and the date for that is August first. Inasmuch as this country is getting 5 per cent. for this money and is able to borrow at a much less rate, it has been pointed out that there would be an advantage to have France continue to pay at the present rate. On the other hand with the money on hand there is a chance for France to cut its interest bill by a sizeable sum through settlement, though there is the effect on exchange of turning over such a large sum which will come in for consideration.

THE NEW SOLICITOR GENERAL.

It was currently reported that President Hoover was desirous of having Charles E. Hughes as his secretary of state during those days when he was making up his cabinet. He did not secure him for that important post which he so admirably filled a few years ago, but he has secured his son, Charles E. Hughes, Jr., for a most important post in the government, that of solicitor general in the department of justice.

This appointment is bound to be received with a high degree of satisfaction. It evidences the president's desire to get men who are able and well fitted to perform the services expected. Standing high in his profession, having had years of experience and being well equipped through his training, it is to be expected that Mr Hughes will fill this responsible office with as satisfactory results as was done during the days when Attorney General Mitchell was handling the duties and making such a favorable impression upon the members of the supreme court.

The position is not simply an honorary one, it calls for the assumption of large responsibilities as the cases are prepared for presentation to the highest court in the land by this government agency.

In making this appointment, as in the case of a number of recent judgeship appointments, President Hoover picked from recommended names. He gave weight to the endorsers and there is no question but what his selection was a meritorious one, so much so that there is reason to believe that the work of the son in this office will reflect the same high character and good judgment that has so frequently been displayed by the father.

A SURPRISE FOR FAMILY

Emily, my wife, really isn't the easiest person to please in the matter of gifts, for she has unusually original ideas and thinks of the most astonishing things to give for presents. For example, last year she ordered two blue spruce trees planted beside the front door of our house, and called them our anniversary present.

She said nothing to me about the trees until I came home and found them—then explained that she wanted them to be a surprise for me. So this year I thought it would be nice to select something as a surprise for her turn about being fair play, as it were.

For quite a while I puzzled over just what to get. Of course I could have handed her a check and let her pick out something for herself, but somehow I can't see that way of doing things. To my way of thinking a gift must be personal if it is to be of real sentimental value. I considered a new rug for the dining room Emily having mentioned several times recently how much we need one. I also thought of glassware Emily having remarked how nice it would be to have an attractive new service.

But as Emily was in the country with the children for the week before our anniversary, I could not very well draw her out concerning the colors she preferred in either a rug or glassware, and besides, I do think a man makes a mistake in attempting to select anything for a home, as after all, it is the wife who spends the most time in the home and so really should be allowed to choose what she wants.

As the affair worked out, it was most fortunate that I had not chosen either the rug or the glass service for on the very morning of the day Emily was scheduled to arrive back in town with the children I ran across what I considered just the thing for our anniversary present.

This morning I drove out to the North Road Golf club for a foursome with some friends, and on our way back to the city we hammered to drive up Mapleshade Pike, past the famous Krielson kennels. There we stopped to have a look at Krielson's dogs. Splendid animals they are—every one a prize winner.

As I am very fond of dogs and have thought for some time that a Great Dane would make a fine pet for the children, it suddenly occurred to me that here was the very thing to buy for Emily's anniversary present. I knew Emily would wish to drive directly home from the station with the children, so thought it best to take the dog with me.

When I had reached the union station and had found a place to park I hardly knew just what to do with Emily's gift, for I was not sure that Dagmar could be managed in the midst of all the noise and excitement of the station, and yet I felt she was too valuable to be left alone in the car. There seemed no choice save to take her with me, so grasping firmly the end of the heavy chain leash I made my way into the station.

Just as I had feared the noise and excitement of the train and the crowds of people confused and frightened Dagmar. For a moment she cowered close to me and then she abruptly bolted, tearing the leash from my hand.

Realizing the importance of remaining perfectly calm while attempting to control a frightened dog I directed a near by redcap to follow Dagmar and secure hold of her leash, while I met Emily and the children.

Emily looked a little tired and was anxious to go directly to the car. I explained to her, however, that we would be delayed for a few moments while I attended to a matter of importance. Fortunately the porter had succeeded in capturing Dagmar and the dog, saving me, and having recovered from her first panic, bounded back toward me, half dragging the redcap, who as a precaution against losing Dagmar, had twisted the leash about his wrist.

Pamela, who is 7, was much interested in Dagmar, but Peter, who is only 2 years old, seemed a bit startled when the dog loped up to me. Of course, Dagmar is a good-sized dog weighing very nearly 140 pounds but I am sure that Peter would not have been frightened if he had not been tired from the train trip.

Emily, who had caught Peter up in her arms to comfort him when he screamed at the sight of Dagmar, gasped when she saw me reach forward and pat the dog. And when I explained that Dagmar was our wedding anniversary present I give you my word, her face was a perfect study in emotions. Never have I seen any one more thoroughly astonished.

I tell you I felt well repaid for all the time and thought I had devoted to the selection of her gift for I knew that her surprise was complete. She forgot, poor dear, to say "thank you" but then, are words necessary between two persons who understand each other as perfectly as Emily and I?—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

Death-Rates Increased by Smoke Noise Causing Deafness

By N. W. Faxon, M. D., Director of Strong Memorial Hospital, Rochester, N. Y.

The modern city is needlessly dirty and noisy. If we are to keep our health and hearing, smoke, dirt and noise must be eliminated or reduced to a non-pathological minimum.

All cities in the United States are smoky; some more so than others. Smoke reduces the sunlight in some cities 18 to 42 per cent. It makes them 3 to 4 degrees hotter on cloudy days, through increased humidity in summer, and through cloudiness 3 to 4 degrees colder on what should be sunny days in winter. Also, it deposits from 2 to 4 tons of soot on each square mile per year. It costs each inhabitant of these smoky cities $16 to $20 a year in damage to buildings furniture, paint, clothes and increased laundry bills. Smoke always means economic loss of the heat units in coal from imperfect combustion.

Furthermore, smoke increases the death rate from acute respiratory diseases (.67 per 1000) so that for every one million people living in such dirty cities 700 more people die each year than die of similar diseases in clean cities. Smoke increases cloudiness and fogs, which, together with the soot particles themselves, filter out a major portion of the beneficial rays of sunlight, and so affect the general health of all.

Why then do householders and manufacturers continue to produce smoke? Usually for one or more of the following reasonsff. Because they are using very poor coal; because they are using soft coal in a furnace designed for hard coal; because they are forcing a furnace to produce more heat or steam than it was designed to produce, or have added more furnaces to a chimney than it can adequately take care of; because industrial plants or office buildings permit careless or ignorant stoking by firemen.

The smoke nuisance can be remedied by the use of the right kind of coal, by the correct design of furnaces and chimneys for the use demanded and by proper methods of firing. These conditions can be brought about by the passage of proper smoke laws and their conscientious enforcement by intelligent inspectors, supported by the municipal government and public opinion. Smoke is produced through ignorance and carelessness and should not be tolerated.

We have been conscious of the dangers of smoke for a long time, but only recently have we realized the harmfulness of noise. Men who work in boiler shops frequently have thickened ear drums and become partially deaf. Neurologists believe that a constant bombardment of noise make people irritable, cross and cranky. The noise of city streets, from elevated trains, trolley cars, trucks and autos has increased with the speeding up of transportation and the crowding of this transportation into narrow stone brook canyons. Such a volume of discordant noise of varying intensity is irritating and disturbing to conversation and clear thinking, as anyone knows who has tried to converse or work in any city office that is unprotected from street noise. Moreover, we are accumulating proofs that it causes nervous disorders and deafness.

That such traffic noises can be prevented or reduced is entirely probable. Sound absorbing devices are already being used in many buildings, and sound-proofing methods are being developed. If we prefer to protect our conscious hours and our sleep from growing deaf we must control and eliminate the noise of our cities.

Clear fresh air and quiet are normal conditions of the earth on which we live. Except for the winds, waves and waterfalls and certain abnormal upheavels of nature, polluted air and noise are man-made. If man is clever enough to use natural forces to work for him he should be able to still further to control them, to eliminate that which is undesirable, and to regain fresh air and quiet in his cities.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

Bahia

"Bahia, where the Spanish trans-Atlantic flyers were forced down, was the first Portugese settlement founded in Brazil," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"According to the letters of Amerigo Vespucci, he and his followers spent several months in All Saints bay in the neighborhood of Bahia during the early years of the sixteenth century. Bahia was not officially recognized by the Portugese government however, until 1549 when the first governor general of Brazil set up a colonial government there. Bahia was the capital of Brazil from that time until 1763 when the government was removed to Rio de Janeiro.

"While Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo surpass Bahia in size, the old port, which lies about 400 miles down the coast from Pernambuco, is a thriving commercial center with about 200,000 inhabitants.

"The harbor it faces is one of the finest on the east coast of South America. Vessels from many world ports are anchored off shore, while smaller boats with local cargoes come and go like 'schools' of water beetles.

"The traveler's first impression of Bahia, as he sails up the harbor toward the city, is that there are really two separate towns.

"A congested settlement hugs the shore line while on a cliff in the background, 200 feet above the roof tops, the fringe of another settlement is visible.

"In the narrow streets of the lower town and among the bordering warehouses half-naked porters, perspiring freely in the tropical heat, spend their days moving carzoes of cocoa, tobacco, cotton, sugar, rubber and fruits, all products of Bahia state, brought to the port by railroad trains and high-wheeled donkey carts.

"The customs house, depot and offices of foreign firms interested in Bahia commodities also are in the lower town. Most of Bahia's cocoa, the largest exportable product of Bahia state, is shipped to the United States.

"Upper Bahia is reached by elevators, steps and winding roads. Here and there in the narrow streets of this portion of the city, sky blue and delicate pink houses, some of whose plastered fronts are deeply pock-marked, take the traveler back a century or two in Bahia's history. But within a stone's throw of these districts there are wide modern thoroughfares, lined with fine shops, banks, theaters, office and government buildings. A park or a garden now and then breaks the monotony of the solid rows of masonry.

"Of the 300,000 inhabitants of Bahia, about two-thirds are Negroes. Some are pure blooded Negroes, some are a mixture of Portugese and Negro, while others are a mixture of Portugese and Indian, and Indian and Negro. Here are the blackest of black faces and this shade tapers off to a white. In fact many natives are recognized as Negroes only by their large black eyes and thick lips. The first slaves from Africa were landed in Bahia and slave trading was carried on until 1888.

"In Bahia the mulatto maidens, with erect, well-built bodies draped in gaily colored cloth, gold chains about their necks, bracelets covering their arms, and large rings hanging from their ears, gracefully stride through the streets under such burdens as baskets of clothes and pans of sweetmeats perched on their heads.

"There are other native women who prefer voluminous skirts of printed cloth and low-necked, short-sleeved blouses over which brightly-colored shawls are thrown. Red handkerchiefs are knotted about their heads. Their callous, unshod feet do not smart on the roughly paved side streets."

"Walter, why do I find a piece of rubber tire in this hash?"

"I don't really know, sir, except that the automobile is replacing the horse everywhere."—Masonic Craftsman.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 8— Examination of the histories of the 30 vice presidents of the United States seems to make that job a doubtful insurance risk.

Half a dozen of them died in office, which is a rather large percentage. Except for those presidents who died at the hands of assassins, the higher office has been far less associated with vacancies created by death.

The comment is prompted by the fact that congress has made provision for a memorial to William Rufus King of North Carolina and Alabama, elected vice president in 1852 on the ticket headed by Franklin Pierce.

King had a varied political career both in the house, representing North Carolina, and as senator from Alabama. He also had extensive diplomatic experience in Russia and France.

Died Before Installation

He contracted tuberculosis while in the senate and went to Havana seeking relief from the malady. His oath of office as vice president was administered there under authority of a special act of congress. He died in Alabama before installation.

It will be noted that King was one of those legislators of the early days who represented different states in congress at different times.

There is a case of a member of the senate who sat in that body from three different states. He was James Shields, Lincoln's opponent in that celebrated near-duel of which so many conflicting stories still are circulated. Shields was senator successively from Illinois, Minnesota and Missouri.

Denby as a Marine

With the death of Edwin Denby, stories of his war days in the marine corps cropped up on all sides. He was an enlisted man at the beginning, a sergeant of marines stationed at the great Paris Island recruit camp in South Carolina.

But whether as a commissioned or non-commissioned officer, his task was to keep morale of the leathernecks up to the mark. Many veterans recall him as Sergeant Denby, the "grand confessor" of recruits.

He had a way with him the youngsters liked. It was his job to smoke out possible fraudulent enlistments or facts as to the lives of "rookies" concealed in filling out their enlistment blanks.

He was highly successful. His kindly, serious talks sent streams of youngsters back to correct their records and provide for wives, children or other dependents conveniently forgotten.

And out of that intimate contact with them Ed Denby drew an affection for the men in the ranks of the marine corps or the navy that stayed with him to his death.

Stories That Recall Others

Clothes Pin

Bertha, age four and a half, upon seeing a safety pin on her mother's dress, said, "Mother, may I have that clothes pin?"

Mother, somewhat surprised, replied: "Dear, that isn't a clothes pin."

Bertha, thinking for a moment, remarked: "Well, mother, it closes, doesn't it?"

Lindy Cheese

A grocer living near a school had a very small customer.

"I want a nickel's worth of Lindy cheese," said the lad.

"I have no cheese by that name," said the grocer.

"Yes, you got Lindbergh cheese. You know, the kind that makes the girls hold their noses."

"Bond Bread gives customers satisfaction"

WILFRED DONAIS, of Taftville, Conn., runs a store where quality, price and service go hand in hand. Two trucks take orders every morning, making deliveries in the afternoon. Just call 2105.

Although in the grocery business over fifteen years, it took me some time to learn how to handle my bread business. During my earlier years I put in every baker's bread, thinking it would please my trade to have as much variety as possible. Every day I would have stale bread left, and it used to puzzle me why my bread business was so unsatisfactory.

I then decided to confine my bread supply to not more than two leading bakers' products; namely, Bond Bread and another.

Since I began handling Bond Bread I have never found it necessary to put in another baker's bread, because the salesman who delivers to my store takes the best of care of me and he sees that I always have fresh bread.

I learned from my customers that Bond Bread is the best-quality, the best-keeping, and the best-flavored bread that I ever had in my store.

The result is that in handling two bakers' breads, Bond Bread is materially increasing my bread business and is giving my customers wonderful satisfaction.

OUR THREE-FOLD RESPONSIBILITY

WE recognize the fact that we have a definite obligation to the public in this community and this obligation we accept as a public trust. This responsibility to you is three-fold:

Our Service must be Adequate

To meet this condition, we must prepare today for the demands of tomorrow. New buildings must be constructed, new apparatus installed, new storm-proof cables run, new personnel trained, so that when tomorrow comes, we are ready to supply the demands which it will bring.

It must be Dependable

Strict adherence to high standards is necessary if the service is to be dependable. Only by maintaining high standards of construction, of equipment, of operating personnel, can we hope to give that day in, day out dependability of service which is your right, and which it is our constant aim that you should have.

And it must be Satisfactory

Your point of view is the one which we must consider—not ours. You want 24 hour service; you want service free from interruptions; service that is unlimited in scope; service that is speedy and accurate; and this service should be supplied at a reasonable cost.

• • •

All these things we must provide, to reach the objective for which we are constantly striving—

"The most telephone service, and the best, at the least cost to the public."

OBNTUARY

Mrs. Henry Gevers

Mrs. Lena Miller Gevers, widow of Henry Gevers, of North Stonington, formerly of this city, died at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the W. W. Backus hospital, after a serious illness of three weeks. She was born in Norwich, April 4, 1876, the daughter of Alonzo and Mary Miller, and with the exception of one year spent in North Stonington she had always resided here. In 1894, in Providence, she was united in marriage with Henry Gevers, who died at North Stonington on Sept. 9, 1927.

Mrs. Gevers is survived by a son, Charles Gevers of Norwich, a daughter, Mrs. James Richardson of Peublo, Colo., a brother, George Miller of Danielson and several grandchildren. She was tenderly cared for by her son in her last illness. Mrs. Gevers was of a pleasant disposition and made a host of friends, who will learn of her death with sincere regret.

Mrs. W. G. Chapman.

Mrs. Edna Walter Chapman, 54, wife of Warren G. Chapman, died suddenly Tuesday night about 9 o'clock at her home in Monument street, Groton. Heart trouble was the cause of death.

Mrs. Chapman's death came as a distinct shock to relatives and friends for she had apparently been in excellent health.

She was born in Niantic, the daughter of the late Martin C. and Mary Jane Chapman Walter. On Sept. 16, 1899, she married Mr. Chapman at Niantic. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman removed to Groton 27 years ago.

Mrs. Chapman was a member of the Methodist church at Niantic. She had many friends in this city, Niantic, Groton, and New London.

Besides her husband, she leaves one daughter, Mrs. Frank W. Hewes, Jr., of Groton, and one son, Martin W. Chapman, also of Groton. Two grandchildren also survive.

Jacob S. Beetham.

Jacob S. Beetham, 68, formerly of this city, but a resident of Fishers' Island for about 25 years, died at 6.05 o'clock Tuesday evening at the government hospital on the island, following an illness of several weeks with pneumonia and complications.

The body was brought to New London Tuesday night on a special boat and taken in charge by Undertaker C. A. Gager of this city. The burial is to be at Converse cemetery, Franklin.

Mr. Beetham was born at Wynberg, Cape Town, July 28, 1860, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beetham, coming to Norwich when a young man. In the early part of his life he made several trips to sea, later taking up farming and for the past twenty or more years he has very successfully cared for the gardens at the Mononoitto Inn, Fishers' Island.

Surviving him are three sisters Mrs. Frank Prodell, Mrs. Peter Peterson and Mrs. James Dumont, all of Norwich and five brothers, Robert, Thomas and William of Norwich, Cornelius of Lisbon and Joseph of Baltic, also several nieces and nephews. Fraternally he was an Odd Fellow, member of the Hugh H. Osgood lodge, No. 6920, I. O. O. F., M. U.

Mr. Beetham was very honest and upright in his dealings and of a pleasing personality, freely making many friends. He will be sadly missed by all who knew him.

ADDRESSED ROTARY CLUB ON AVIATION TOPIC

The members of the Norwich Rotary club heard a very entertaining and instructive address on Aviation given by Walter F. Lester at the luncheon of the club held on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. The talk dealt with the various phases of aviation, military, commercial and scientific research.

Mr. Lester said that aviation is a subject of astounding scope. Mankind has conquered transportation on land and navigation and transportation by sea centuries ago, but is only just learning to subdue the air.

Commercial aviation now sees something like a half million miles flown every day. However, this does not necessarily mean by an immense number of pilots average of 100 miles an hour and an individual easily accounting for 1000 in a few hours. Aviation is more highly developed in the United States than anywhere else in the world for merchandise but not yet for passengers.

Airports are the horse hitching post of the past. They are sure to be the necessity of all communities in the future. In Norwich 14 sites have been visited and surveyed and estimates for grading running up as high as $100,000 made, each according to governmental requirements. The state aviation department made an inspection of the sites recently. A report is expected soon.

Mr. Lester, whose son is now a cadet at the Kelley field flying school, was introduced by Arnold Smith. The speaker was accorded a vote of appreciation. There was little business at the business session at which President Edward W. Jewett presided and John P. Morley acted as songleader.

Fountain Street Chimney Fire.

Nine gallons of chemical were used to extinguish a chimney fire at 41 Fountain street to which a telephone call summoned the firemen at 8.27 o'clock Wednesday morning. The house is owned by Dennis Shea. Acting Chief Henry R. Taft with Engine 3 and Squad A responded.

On Mt. Hermon Honor Roll

Word has been received from Headmaster Henry F. Cutler of the Mount Hermon school that Sidney H. Pitt is on the honor list at the close of his first term at the school. Sidney is the son of Rev. and Mrs. David A. Pitt of Broadway.

Fortune is sometimes fickle, but misfortune is always sincere.

UNIVERSALIST WOMAN'S MISSION SOCIETY ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

An inspiring address on the topic, "The Church of the Spirit," delivered by Rev. Dr. Thomas Van Ness of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., was a feature of the 97th annual session of the Connecticut Universalist convention, which is being held here Wednesday and Thursday at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor. Delegates coming from New Haven, Stamford, Bridgeport, Hartford, Meriden, New London and Stafford are in attendance for the two-day convention. The annual state convention of the Women's Universalist Missionary society was also held Wednesday with election of officers.

The convention got underway at 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon with the address of welcome to the visiting delegates by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins and the response by President T. A. Fischer, D.D., of New Haven, who presided at the meeting. The reports of the secretary, treasurer, superintendent and fellowship committee were rendered, accepted and approved, all of them showing the society had an active and successful year.

At 6 o'clock the convention delegates repaired to the social rooms, where an excellent supper was served under the chairmanship of Mrs. Thomas W. Wilson, assisted by Mrs. Harry Bjurstrom, Mrs. Nellie Bailey, Mrs. Sumner W. Armstrong, Mrs. Charlotte Pike and Miss Nellie Bacon. The dining room was in charge of Mrs. Irving Hill and Mrs. Charles Parsons. The menu comprised tomato bisque, roast meat, baked potatoes, string beans, asparagus tips, salad, ice cream, cake and coffee.

Address by Dr. Van Ness

The evening service commenced at 7:45 o'clock. Following the customary period of worship with specially fine selections by the organist and choir, Rev. Dr. Van Ness addressed the congregation. He spoke in part as follows: "The church of today tries to maintain the ancient ideas, tries to obtain power. Now it makes the church of today to a great extent a church of the past, a thing of creed and not of spirit. The church of today to a great extent seems to be unaware of the fact that Jesus fitted His parables to the needs of the time.

"This world of ours is not only different spiritually from the world Jesus lived in, but is different intellectually. It demands different methods of teaching, of preaching and consequently a different church; a church of spirit and not a church of creed. And so the church of spirit being born it will be and must be more progressive.

"You and I are tremendous. That's God, eternal life. We are surcharged with it. Union with God. That's the due faith of the church of the spirit. It is a splendid faith. You will find it more splendid if you share with the pioneers in the coming of the new church of spirit. It will make it possible to say, I will fear no evil. Why not? Because Thou art with me. If the day's curtains are being drawn between now and the hereafter you will fear, you can say, as did one of old, 'Into Thy hands I commit my eternal and immortal soul.'"

Tableau and Pageant

At the conclusion of Rev. Dr. Van Ness' excellent sermon the candle lighters, Helen Williams, Marion Jarvis, Annie Stockdale, Ruth Thompson, Eleanor Stevens, Evelyn Barnes, Ruth Manning and Dorothy Parsons, lighted the candles and the lights were turned off. The tableau of the Nativity was then given in splendid effect by the cast: Mary, Hattie Fowler; Joseph, Lloyd Thompson; Angel, Virginia Disque; St. John, Eleanor Pike.

A beautiful presentation of the pageant, The Other Wise Man, under the direction of Mrs. A. N. Foster, followed with the following participants: Artaban, Herbert Lawrence; his friends, Lloyd Thompson, William Mitchell, Sherman Barber; the Sick Man, Thelma Bjurstrom; the Boy, Eleanor Nelson; the Woman, Betty Pike; the friends, Hattie Fowler, Dorothy Alquist, Eleanor Stevens, Marian Jervis, Ruth Benning; the Captive Maid, Virginia Disque; the soldiers, (captain) George Bell, Kendall Armstrong, Theodore Pike and Irving Parsons.

The reading was by Rev. A. N. Foster. Throughout the pageant and tableau, which were presented in candlelight, the organist played softly, adding considerably to the enjoyable presentations.

Woman's Missionary Officers

The annual convention of the Woman's Missionary society preceded the Universalist ministers' session, and was called to order by the president, Mrs. Madelyn Wood of New Haven, shortly before 2 o'clock. The devotional service was led by Rev. Charles Kramer of Bridgeport, after which the superintendents of the various departments made their reports and the society went on record in favor of all forms of law enforcement and the peace movement.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Madelyn Wood, New Haven; vice-president, Mrs. C. C. Champlin, Hartford; secretary, Mrs. Joseph Woolley, Meriden; treasurer, Mrs. Albert Greenwood, West Hartford; members of the board, for three years, Mrs. Louise Marble, Meriden; for two years, Mrs. Joseph Barritt, Bridgeport.

The session was attended by 34 delegates from Stamford, Bridgeport, New Haven, Meriden and Hartford. In all 75 were present.

Thursday Session

The final session of the Connecticut Universalist convention will be held today (Thursday) with a sermon at 9:30 a. m. on "God in the Commonplace," by Rev. D. E. Trout, followed by the service of the holy communion of the Lord's Supper, Rev. Mr. Foster presiding. The election of officers will take place at the business meeting at 11 a. m., with lunch at noon and adjournment coming at 1:45.

LUTHER LEAGUE VOTES TO SPONSOR BASEBALL TEAM

The Luther league of the First Evangelical Lutheran church had an attendance of about 35 at an interesting meeting held Tuesday evening. An appropriation of $30 was made for a baseball team to be sponsored by the league.

An invitation was accepted to attend the social of the South Manchester league on June 18 and about 30 are expected to go. Two other events for the future are an entertainment with a play and a Wagner college night, the latter in conjunction with the congregation.

A large Luther league emblem was presented by Ernest Zachae, beautifully made and framed. The last item of business was probably the most momentous for the future of the church when, upon the suggestion of Albert Werth, it was voted to establish a building fund.

Ladies' Aid Society Met

The Ladies' Aid society met Wednesday afternoon at the First Evangelical Lutheran church, receiving two new members, Mrs. Adolph Friese of Bentley avenue and Mrs. Joseph Shea. Rev. and Mrs. E. Hingkeldey of Middletown were visitors. Mrs. E. Sabroske made a $5 gift. It was decided to have a traveling basket circulated. After the meeting was closed with prayer, cake and coffee were served by the committee consisting of Mrs. Frank Decker and Mrs. H. Edwards.

For Burial at South Norwalk

The body of Joseph Hegedus, who died here Wednesday, was taken to South Norwalk by Shea & Burke for funeral services and burial.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Motoring to New London Monday to attend the May luncheon of Lucretia Shaw chapter, D. A. R. at The Mohican, Mrs. Albert M. VanWagenen had as her guests the regent of Faith Trumbull chapter, Mrs. William H. Dawley, Mrs. Albert S. Comstock and Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell.

Mrs. Frank I. Royce, Mrs. Albert J. Bailey, Mrs. Robert W. Otis, Miss Willey, Miss Burlingame and Mrs. Albert J. Sinay formed the committee in charge of a benefit bridge for Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., for which Mrs. Elijah S. Burdsall opened her home at Fort Point Monday evening. Nineteen tables were taken. The rooms were beautifully decorated with quantities of the season's blooms. Following cards, the hostess served ice cream and cake.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Arthur I. Bill, of Willimantic, entertained the Auction Bridge club of four tables at luncheon at Lighthouse inn. The prizes at cards went to Mrs. William A. Arnold and Mrs. Eebert A Case.

Mrs. Albert H. Chase and Miss Virginia Chase returned from Boston early in the week.

When Mrs. Howard P. Benjamin of Washington Place was hostess to the Home Service unit Wednesday afternoon ten were present. Following sewing Mrs. Howard J. Shaver poured tea.

A luncheon of eight given Wednesday by Mrs. Alfred M. Haring of Laurel Hill avenue proved a birthday surprise for Mrs. Harry E. Higgins of Sachem terrace. The decorations were in Pink and there was a birthday cake with pink candles.

The Delphian club met Wednesday with Mrs. Edward D. Fuller, of Broadway, the subject being William and Mary and the Revolution of 1688. This theme Mrs. Fuller treated most delightfully in her paper, also read from the life and letters of William and Mary. She referred to the unusual fact of medals struck for various occasions during their reign, and the feature was her display of one of these medals, the property of Charles J. Dyer, and loaned the club for the afternoon. This is of heart-shaped, bronze and because of its shape may have commemorated the marriage of William and Mary.

SIX CHURCH CONFERENCE ENTERTAINED AT HANOVER

The sixty-ninth six church conference was held at Hanover Congregational church Wednesday, over 200 people being served at the dinner hour. The morning service was opened with an organ prelude by Miss Jennie Gallup, followed by the invocation by Rev. Harold Arnold of Pachaug. Rev. G. F. Goodenough of Jewett City led the responsive reading and Rev. W. J. Reynolds of Newent read the Scripture from Colossians.

Prayer was offered by Rev. W. C. Prentiss of Plainfield. The offering was received by Nathan Hall of Preston City and James Royle of Plainfield.

The sermon of the morning was from the subject, "A Revaluation of Christ" by Rev. Lyman G. Horton, D. D., pastor of the Asbury M. E. church, Providence, R. I. "Great is the need today," said the speaker, "of a systematic and careful revaluation of Christ. In these days there is to be seen the unmistakable note of the rapidly growing popularity of Christ."

Here and there we hear more and more about the significance of the living Jesus. His influence has increased throughout the ages, and nothing of today's life can be of more vital importance. In closing the learned speaker left his final message in the form of an inquiry—"Do Present Generations Know Christ?" "It should not be a thing possible to prove, that churches are filled with audiences who have no especial use for the Saviour."

The afternoon session was opened with a devotional service led by Rev. George W. Clark of Preston City. The minutes of the last conference were read by Mrs. E. H. Hiscox of Jewett City. The roll call was responded to by 9 from Newent, 9 Pachaug, 38 Preston, 12 Jewett City, 26 Plainfield, 40 Hanover, and 30 visitors. A vote of thanks was extended the church for its hospitality and for the splendid program of music and addresses. Rev. Mr. Reynolds gave the invitation for the June conference to be held in Newent.

During the afternoon session a most delightful address, to which the audience of over 200 listened with keenest interest, was delivered by a young woman from Indian, Miss Clara G. Labaree, who handled the live up-to-date subject of "Indian Homes and Future Home Makers" in a clear cut manner, and with delightful rapid fire delivery. The customs and manner of living of her pupils there, with a fine illustration of their language spoken like a native, went to make up a section of the very instructive talk, with many entertaining incidents and profitable illustrations. Outstanding in the way of Indian character study, was Miss Labaree's sympathetic description of her farewell reception, given by her 200 small brown pupils, one of whom read a chapter in the Bible, following a prayer by another member of the mission school.

A feature eagerly anticipated at the Hanover conference is the Lotus quartette of Boston, whose appearance is made possible by W. G. Park. Their program during the two sessions included, The Lord's Prayer, America the Beautiful, Still, Still With Thee, In the Garden, Rock of Ages, Holy Lord God Almighty, 'Tis the Old Time Religion, Remember Now Thy Creator and Just Beyond the Hilltop. The decorations were roses and carnations.

VISITING DAY FOR THE UNITED WORKERS

All those officially connected with the United Workers are to have the opportunity today (Thursday) to participate in visiting day from 2 to 5 in the afternoon, which has been arranged so that all may view the different buildings connected with the work of the organization. These include the Sheltering Arms, Rock Nook home, the neuro psychiatric room at the Backus hospital and the home building of the United Workers at No 9 Washington street.

Motor transportation is to be provided so that the 225 women who make up the members of all departments and committees, the district visitors and the teachers may get from one building to another easily, this detail being in charge of Mrs. Robert Coit Johnson. Miss Edith C. Young and Miss Audrey Gernon.

Tea is to be served from 4 to 6 o'clock at No. 9 Washington street, where Mrs. A. H. Chase, president, Mrs. C. B. Gilbert, Miss Adelaide L. Butts and Mrs. W. S. Allins will receive. At the Washington street the visitors will see the family welfare room, the public health nursing room and an exhibit of the work done by the girls in the club department. Reception committees will officiate at each of the other places where visits will be made. Miss Mary E. Richards, who is in charge of the tea from 4 to 6, will have a large committee of assistants.

CHAS. F. NOYES IN LIST OF MEN HEAVILY INSURED

"The Tatter" in the New London Day is responsible for the following:

My item of last week in reference to life insurance has brought out some new information; new to the public, although naturally not in life insurance circles. I said that some men had taken out life insurance policies for as much as $1,000,000. I am informed that this is not considered a high amount for a policy. The largest policy on record is the one taken out by Rodman Wanamaker for $7,500,000. There is a long list of men throughout the country, hundreds of them, who have taken out policies ranging from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000. John M. Bowman, owner of a chain of hotels, has taken out a policy for $4,500,000. Charles Chaplin, film actor, has one for $1,000,000; Joseph P. Day, New York real estate man, has one for $1,500,000; Pierre duPont of Wilmington has one for $4,000,000; Douglas Fairbanks is in the $1,000,000 class; Julius Fleischmann, Jr., has one for $1,000,000; William Fox of the Fox Motion Pictures corporation has one for $6,500,000; Will Hayes, motion picture czar, $2,000,000; Jesse Lasky motion picture magnate $3,000,000; Marcus Loewe, another motion picture magnate who recently died, had a $5,000,000 policy. Clarence McKay of the Postal Telegraph has a $2,000,000 policy; J. C. Martin, publisher of a Philadelphia newspaper, $1,500,000; John McCormick, singer, is in the $1,000,000 class. George E. Merrick, founder of Coral Gables Florida, has a $1,000,000 policy; Charles F. Noyes, New York real estate broker, son of Charles D. Noyes of Norwich, is on the list for $2,400,000. James C. Penny, chain store man, has $3,000,000; Will Rogers, the comedian, has a $1,000,000 policy; Walter H. Strong, president of the Chicago Daily News corporation, has $2,000,000 worth of insurance Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., $1,850,000. John Wanamaker, who recently died, had $3,000,000. William Wrigley, Jr., chewing gum magnate, has a policy of $1,500,000. William Ziegler of New York has $3,400,000 and Adolph Zukor, motion picture magnate, $5,000,000. The list could be extended indefinitely.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 8—George Robert McKenna, of Pawcatuck, Wednesday night tendered his resignation as prosecutor of the Stonington town court to Judge William Avery Wilcox. Attorney Henry P. Hammacher of Stonington was named to succeed him. Prosecutor McKenna has held office for six years, his first term being from 1893-95.

LINCOLN STORE EMPLOYES HAVE A KIDDIE PARTY

At the home of Miss Frances B. Jacobson, 159 West Main street, Wednesday evening, the Lincoln Store employes enjoyed a delightful kiddie party. The dresses were appropriate and much merriment was excited by the different costumes. Mrs. Joseph Mara and Mrs. Edward Edwards entertained with a most amusing act, illustrating a popular song. Games were played and refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Andrew Hill.

Brush Fire Off Baker Street.

A bell alarm at 2.05 Wednesday afternoon from box 228, corner of 14th street and Boswell avenue was rung in for a brush fire on land off Baker street belonging to Owen S. Smith.

Water from pump cans was used in fighting the blaze by the crews from Engines 1 and 2 and Squad A, directed by Acting Chief Henry R. Taft and Deputy Chief D. J. Brennan.

WEDDING

Moskowitz-Gurwitch.

The wedding of Miss Mollie Gurwitch, of Louisville, Ky., and Julius Moskowitz of Jewett City, Conn., took place at 7.00 o'clock Sunday evening April 14, at the Tyler hotel, Louisville. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Mandlebaum assisted by Rabbi Zarchy.

Mrs. I. Friedman was the matron of honor, and the bride's sister was maid of honor, Miss Mildred Ann Gurwich. The bridesmaids were Misses Fanny Kamenaster, Freda Gurwitch, and Rose Goldberg. Leon J. Weinberg was best man for Mr. Moskowitz. The ushers were Hyman Gurwitch, Hyman Goldberg, Samuel Goldberg, Ben Goldberg, Harry Seligman, Sam Kahn and Maurice Goldberg. The flower girl was Miss Selma J. Goldberg.

The canopy was decorated with palms, ferns, smilax and two candelabra were lighted with tall candles. Miss Rose Greenberg sang several selections before the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a crepe Elizabeth gown made with a bloused waist and long sleeves. The full circular skirt was shirred at the waist line. Her veil was adjusted with a close fitting cap of rose pointed lace and caught at the back with a half wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an arm shower bouquet of bride's roses tied with white tulle. The maid of honor wore a Patou model of shell pink satin gown made with a round neck. The full skirt was short in front and long in back and sides. The carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. The matron of honor wore a sky blue chiffon gown. She carried an arm bouquet of sunburst roses. The bridesmaids were dressed in Jenre models of satin and tulle. Each carried an arm bouquet of roses.

The bride's mother wore a Patou model of tan crepe trimmed with a jabot cream lace. Her shoulder bouquet was sweet-peas and roses. The flower girl wore a flowered chiffon dress and white slippers, the socks matched her dress.

The ceremony was followed by a dinner for the immediate family and a reception.

The out of town guests included H. Horowitz, New York; A. Moskowitz, Hanover, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. M. Goldberg, Mrs. Rosenstein and Julius Rosenstein, all of Frankfort, Ky.

COMMITS SUICIDE BY JUMP FROM BRIDGE AT TAFTVILLE INTO RIVER

Henry L. Troland, 64, of No. 55 Providence street, Taftville, formerly of Norwich, a well known coachman and gardener for many years, committed suicide by drowning Wednesday afternoon in the Shetucket river at Taftville. Removing his coat, hat and shoes he mounted the railing of the Black Bridge and jumped off, droping a distance of 50 feet, into three feet of water. His body was recovered at 4 o'clock by Enos Eccleston of Taftville, approximately two hours after he committed the act.

The presence of his hat, coat and shoes, on the bridge, led Charles Smith and James Edwards, both of Lisbon, who were on their way to work, to believe that something was amiss, so they notified Constable Disco of Taftville. Within a short time a large crowd had gathered and fearing that someone had taken his life, Enos Eccleston and August Dugas, both of Taftville, started investigating along the river.

About 200 feet below the bridge and ten feet from shore the body was discovered in shallow water. Mr. Eccleston waded in and brought the body ashore, where it was viewed by Acting Medical Examiner Dr. George H. Gildersleeve of Norwich, who was notified. He pronounced death due to suicide by drowning and gave permission for his body to be removed to the undertaking establishment of George Grant of Taftville.

Born in Norwich, May 19, 1865, the son of James H. and Augusta Schaffer Troland, Mr. Troland had resided in Norwich and Taftville his entire life. He was engaged for many years as a coachman and gardener, working for the late Dr. L. B. Almy, the late Dr. Patrick Cassidy and the late David A. Wells. He was also employed by Geduldig's, the florist, as a gardener. Mr. Troland had gained much prominence in his trades and was an expert in those lines.

About 35 years ago he was united in marriage with Catherine McCann in St. Patrick's church, this city, by the late Rev. Peter P. Shahan. During his residence in Norwich he resided on Jail Hill. For the past 10 years he has lived in Taftville. Mr. Troland was of a friendly and pleasant nature and easily made friends, all of whom will learn of his untimely death with profound sorrow.

Besides his wife Mr. Troland is survived by three sons, James H. Troland and Joseph T. Troland, both of Taftville, and Daniel H. Troland of New London, a daughter, Mrs. Annie Stewart of Chicago, two brothers, Daniel Troland of Providence and Charles Troland of Norwich, a sister, Mrs. Augusta Chapman of Norwich and two grandchildren, James Murphy and Janet Troland. He was a brother of the late Grant Troland.

LOUIS GREEN BLANKS WESTERLY HIGH AND ALLOWS BUT ONE SCRATCH HIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 8—Louis Green, Norwich Free Academy's diminutive southpaw, came within an ace of pitching a no-hit, no-run game here this afternoon as the Wildcats stopped Westerly high for the ninth straight win of the season. Green allowed but one hit, that of the infield variety and fanned 12, turning in a brilliant exhibition in his first full game this season.

LOUIS GREEN

By winning the Academy went farther ahead in the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island league race and established themselves as big favorites to cop their fifth straight title. This was the third victory in as many games for the visitors and they are the only undefeated team in the circuit.

Green's pitching was the principal factor in the Academy victory. He allowed only three men to second base and none any farther. Six men saw first base, three on passes, two on errors and Christy on his hit.

Buck LaCroix centerfielder, Alec Arico, first baseman and Anso Tombari, rightfielder, were the leading hitters with two bingles apiece. LaCroix having a two-base hit. Buck also furnished the fielding feature of the afternoon when he tore far out into deep right center after Dolan's drive in the second inning to rob that boy of at least a three-bagger by a running one-hand catch.

The game was played under adverse conditions, a cold wind blowing across the field and not only chilling players and spectators but also interfering with batted balls. Hhis was Westerly's first defeat on their home field this year.

The Academy made half their runs in the first inning. Arico led off with a rousing single into right field and stole second. However, Gibbs lined to Stenhouse and Arico was doubled off second, Stenhouse to Christy. Cummings was safe on Dotolo's error and LaCroix doubled through shortston, scoring Cummings. Fagan was safe when Novak fumbled his tap to the box and LaCroix went to third. Fagan went to second unmolested and Tombari scored both with a smashing single into left field. Tombari was out stealing.

Two more runs were added in the fourth. With one away, Tombari got his second hit, a single to left and, after Fontaine fanned, Pepin single d past third, sending Tombari to third.

Green was safe on Dotolo's error and Tombari scored and Pepin came in a minute later on a passed ball. The Wildcats finished scoring in the next inning when, with one out, Cummings was safe on Novak's error. LaCroix hit to deep short and when the throw to second was too late to catch Cummings, all hands were safe. Fagan hit to short again but nobody covered second until it was too late and while the Westerly players were discussing it, Cummings sneaked home.

Westerly only had two chances at all to score, and they were quickly squelched by Mr. Green. In the third, with two out, Novak walked and Christy got his hit, a roller to Cummings and the subsequent throw Umpire Hank Morin said, was too late to catch the runner. Stenhouse, however, forced Christy at second. In the ninth, Dolan and Itchkawich walked with two away but Deutch was out on a little tap in ront of the plate. Crowell to Arico, to end the game. NICE CARD LINED UP FOR NEW LONDON ARENA TUESDAY

Promoter Ernie Fakourey has lined up another good card for next Tuesday night at the Hamilton street arena in New London. After giving the fans a bang-up good show for his opening card Ernie comes right back with one just as good if not better. This time there will be two star attractions of eight rounds each, Al Beauregard of Taftville meeting Al Gillette of New London in one and Pete DeGrasse of New York battling Jimmy Picardy of Boston in the other. These should be fast as both bouts are at 118-120 pounds.

Kid Wagner of New London meets Joe Maselli of New Haven in a six round semi-final.

There are four four-round bouts at the beginning of the show. Vic Darr of Norwich clashes with Art Polowitzer of Hartford, Julio Rossi of Westerly meets Jack Bogart of New Haven, Dutch Whitley of the Coast Guard tangles with Young Novack of the Sub Base and Johnny Bedell of New London opens the show against Tim Connors of New Haven.

This looks on paper like a very fast card and should pack the arena again next week.

CARDS OUST BRAVES FROM LEAGUE LEAD

BOSTON, May 8—(AP)—Cavorting over the home plate eight times in a single inning, the first, the St. Louis Cardinals evened its series with the Braves by taking the second game today, 10 to 2. The defeat, together with Chicago's victory over Brooklyn today, put the Braves out of the league lead for the first time this season.

Sherdel held the home team to four hits and the St. Louis batsmen knocked Leverett and Wertz out of the box in the first before anyone was out. Doubtit led the Cardinal onslaught with two doubles and two singles, although Hafey managed to squeeze in three singles and a double.

Maranville was put out of the game in the first inning for disputing a decision by Umpire Stark on High's steal of second base after the latter's team had made its eight runs.

YANKS HOLD LEAD BY TROUNCING BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, May 8.—(AP)—Defeating the Browns here today by a score of 8 to 1, the Yankees maintained their place at the top of the league standing and dropped the St. Louis team deeper into third place. The Athletics remained within half a game of the champions by winning from the White Sox in Chicago. The victory was the sixth straight for the Hugmen.

Waite Hoyt held the team to five well scattered blows. He was aided materially by Lou Gehrig who slapped his seventh home run to start the sixth inning, breaking a 1 to 1 tie and giving the Yanks the run which eventually won.

Ruth's bat was two sing'es, one of which drove home a run. The score:

Come on, folks, let's give Louis Green a long cheer. All ready, now, one, two, three.

What, you don't know who Louis Green is? Shame on you, haven't you read the rest of the sport page yet? If you haven't take a look at that Academy-Westerly box score and see what you see.

Do you see that he let down that Westerly gang with one lone hit and fanned 12 of their batters. Pretty good for a small boy, ain't it? Say, that kid ain't bigger than a pint of beans.

The official scorer ought to credit that one hit to Hank Morin. If my eyesight ain't gone back on me in the last 24 hours that man was out by about a foot. But what can you do when the ump calls him safe?

Why even the scorer on the Westerly bench said that Green should have a no-hit, no-run game if Hank hadn't missed the play at the first bag. Even the mighty Hank can miss 'em it seems.

And now that you know who Green is let's give that long cheer and then let's give a short, oh very short, one for Morin for making the only hit of the game. All together now.

We saw one of the most optimistic men in seven states yesterday afternoon. He was the boy who was trying to sell esquimo pies to the shivering fans. Why, the very thought of ice cream made your tummy freeze up.

The three loyal rooters for the Academy were present, Charlie Mack, Pop Lane and Officer Scud. The usual baseball arguments were on and the general opinion was that it was a three-cornered tie.

Say, those Academy boys have got quite some ball club. They played snappy ball in back of Green all through the game. Buck LaCroix, pride of Pautipaug hill, saved Green with a brilliant catch. Reminded us of the fielding of Harry "Goo" Noyes.

All right now let's give another cheer for Buck and then we'll all go home. All together, now. Gosh, I bet I'd make a better cheer leader than Pee Wee Keeley.

HUDLIN HOLDS RED SOX AND INDIANS WIN

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 8—(AP)—After a bad first inning, Willis Hudlin settled down and held the Boston Red Sox to five scattered hits and enabled Cleveland to win a 3 to 1 victory today.

Falk's steal of home in the second inning gave the Indians their first run and Averill's double following Jamieson's hit and Fonseca's walk in the third added two more. Score:

BRITISH GOLFER TURNS IN CARD OF 69 TO LEAD FIELD IN BRITISH OPEN

GULLANE, Scot., May 8—(AP)—For six minutes today an American golfer led the field in the first round of the British open championship but at the close of play tonight the honor went to a Briton, Young Percy Alliss, pro at the Wannsee club, Berlin, scored a brilliant 69 to clip a stroke from the Muirfield course record, established yesterday by Leo Diegel.

It was a case today of beating Diegel to get the lead, for the P. G. A. champion of the United States early in the day wrested the lead from Abe Mitchell by turning in a 71 to Abe's 72. The American held it only until Alliss, who was playing just behind him, came in with his 69 which was not threatened during the rest of the day.

Tonight Cyril Tolley, the long-driving Englishman, was the only amateur in the first 45. Scores of the other amateurs today were near the 80 mark or above. To the surprise of the experts here George Von Elm, the Detroit star, was among the high scorers with 79, caused mostly by difficulties on the greens. Von Elm turned in the highest card of the 17 Americans playing.

Although the Americans lost the actual lead, they crowded Alliss' mark all day. Of the 22 players scoring 75 or better today, 12 are visitors from the United States.

The Americans again demonstrated their ability as wet weather golfers. A storm broke in the afternoon, but Hagen played better during it than he had before when the sun was shining, and Ed Dudley came home through a heavy rain storm with a fine 72.

Leo Diegel and Jim Parns showed the American crowd the way with a pair of great 71's. Dudley had a chance to tie for the lead of the American squad as he needed only a four at the home hole but he showed that he has a wise head on young shoulders by playing for the par and safety.

Thirteen of the 17 Americans equalled or bettered the approximate par 76.

There were no real upsets and favorites this morning still were favorites tonight. So many wagers have been placed on Hagen, Archie Compston, MacDonald Smith and Diegel that bookmakers decline further odds on them.

Alliss finished fourth in the British open last year and won the German open title.

After Alliss with his 69 came Diegel and Barnes, 71; Abe Mitchell, Herbert Jolly, Johnny Farrell, Ed Dudley, 72; Gene Sarazen, MacDonald Smith, Bobby Cruickshank, Al Watrous and Tom Williamson, veteran Nottingham pro, 73; John Golden, Aubrey Boomer, Cyril Tolley, Bill Mehlhorn, W. T. Twine of Bromley, 74; Tommy Armour, Fred Taggart of Winslow, Mark Seymour of St. Leonard's, R. M. Alston, former amateur star, and Hagen, 75.

Horton Smith and Archie Compston were placed with six others at 76; Jose Jurado, the pro from Argentina, C. A. Whitcombe, Al Espinosa and five others had 77; Joe Turnesa, Jimmie Thompson and George Duncan were in a group with four others at 78, and George Von Elm and Phil Perkins kept company with a dozen others at 79.

For most of the Americans it was another day of disappointment on the big undulating, tricky Muirfield greens. Over here the Americans have been considered invincible with their putters but the qualifying tests and today's play showed the visitors turning self-criticism on their shots to the cup.

The Americans caged many birdies and a respectable number of Eagles.

The starting order tomorrow will be reversed and Hagen and Henry Cotton, last out today, will leave the first tee at 9 o'clock.

Low scorers after the first round of the British open golf championship included:

Percy Alliss, Great Britain, 35-34—69.

Leo Diegel, United States, 36-35—71.

Jim Barnes, United States, 35-36—71.

SALO CUTS 43 MINUTES FROM LEAD OF GAVUZZI

DURANT, OKLA, May 8—(AP)—The battle for the lead in C. C. Pyle's bunion derby between Pete Gavuzzi, the bearded Italian of England, and John Salo, flying cop of Passaic, N. J., continued today in the 39th leg with Salo cutting 43 minutes and ten seconds from the advantage of Gavuzzi by capturing the day's grind between Coalgate, Okla., and Durant, Okla.

Salo ran the 80 miles in ...45:10 and reduced Gavuzzi's margin to one hour 52 minutes and 55 seconds. Since the plodding pilgrims entered Ohio, a month ago, the two have dueled for first place honors.

The first five in total elapsed time: Pete Gavuzzi, England, 252:48:27.
John Salo, Passaic, N. J., 260:41:27.
Giusto Umek, Italy, 274:34:31.
Paul Simpson, Burlington, N. C., 284:56:48.
Sam Richman, New York 290:24:25.

MISS RUSSELL SENSIBLY ACCOUNTS FOR DELAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 8— Charlotte Marie Russell, whose marriage with Keeper Arlard Willard Rode, of White Rock, and of the Bridgeport lighthouse, set for Tuesday evening, at 7 p. m., was delayed by the non-appearance of the bridegroom, kept to her determination of the night and continued Wednesday at her employment at the textile plant of the George C. Moore Co. Tuesday night she stated that undoubtedly rough water in Long Island sound had prevented Keeper Roode from reaching Bridgeport in a small boat, consequently he did not make his appearance on the 6.29 p. m. train on its arrival in Westerly. Neighbors had observed preparations for the wedding which she stated was to have been performed by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church. They saw delivered at No. 1 Newton avenue, where the prospective bride resides with her father, Horace Nelder, the two bouquets to be used that evening by the bride and bridesmaid and were at loss until the Wednesday morning papers were received to account for indications of wedding festivities.

Gift To Newlyweds

When Deborah chapter, No. 9, Order of Eastern Star held a meeting Tuesday evening in the Masonic hall, a former chapter matron and R. I. state grand matron, Mrs. Mary Isabelle Fiddes Pawson did not appear. She was finally sent for and arrived with her husband, John Albert Pawson of Bradford, master of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., Westerly, whom she married recently in a New York city church. A past patron Harry L. Bolles, as a token from the past patrons and past watrons of the chapter, presented the newlyweds a silver coffee service.

At the end of the lengthy session of Westerly probate court Tuesday afternoon a number of additional estate matters were acted upon in addition to those reported Wednesday. They were given consideration by Probate Judge Edward M. Burke as follows:

Estate of Laura Beringer. Inventory received, examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of Margaretta S. Williams. Petition received for the filing of a copy of a foreign will received and continued with order of notice.

Estate of Catherine Bekizuk. Accounts of four children of a legatee, Kataryna, Stefana, Olga and Maximillian, with petition to deposit same in foreign bank, received and continued.

East Avenue Fire

An alarm for Box No. 127, East avenue, and near Bethel Chapel, was sounded at about 4:40 p. m. Wednesday, for a brush, grass and rubbish fire which started from some unknown cause at the rear of the property of William A. Clark, on East avenue. Fire Chief George E. Egger, and Engineers Robert Bonner and George McKenzie with the Ahrens-Fox and Seagraves pumpers and the Alert Hook and Ladder truck responded, the truck returning when it was found that its services were not needed. The motor pumpers were driven to the back yards of the adjoining East avenue houses and lines of hose were laid from the booster tanks to the blazing grass and rubbish from which dense clouds of smoke arose. The flames were soon out. Residents of the houses were telephoned for and make quick trips from the center of the town when they learned that their property was endangered. There was no fire loss.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH REPORTS PROSPEROUS YEAR

The First Baptist church of Westerly held its annual meeting Tuesday evening in the vestry, when encouraging reports were heard of the church's activities for the past year.

With all obligations met the treasurer's report showed a substantial balance in the treasury of the different organizations. Under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, much good work has been accomplished in adding to the membership of the church as well as making a number of material improvements. The pastor gave a pleasing report of the year and upon his recommendation the church voted $75 toward a Baptist missionary to work among the foreign population of this end of the state.

Officers for church and Sunday school were re-elected as follows: President of the corporation, Albert G. Martin; trustees, Harry J. Nichols, Robert Hazard, Raymond C. Gould, Frank A. Greene and Stanley Laing; secretary and clerk, Arthur E. Thompson; treasurer, William E. Martin; financial secretary, John Stanton; auditors, Albert Pilling, Mrs. Catherine McCarroll.

The Sunday school officers elected are: Superintendent, A. R. Riley; assistant, Herbert Sisson; secretary, Dorothy Wilcox; assistant secretary, Dorothy Martin; treasurer, Mrs. Catherine McCarroll; assistant, Miss Hazel Martin; superintendent primary department, Mrs. B. G. Richmond; assistants, Mary Rittenhouse and Lillian Clark; beginners' superintendent, Mary Cottrell; assistants, Emily King, Mrs. Marsh; cradle roll superintendent, Miss Jennie B. Miner; pianist, Miss Una Clark; assistant, Miss May Gould.

Burgess Bedtime Story

The Play School
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Teach your children every day
Bits of knowledge in their play
—Mrs. Wood Duck.

Had you been over to the pond of Paddy the Beaver and watched the family of Beauty the Wood Duck, you probably would have thought, as Peter Rabbit did at first, that those little Ducklings did nothing but play. That is the way it seemed. For all Peter could see they did nothing but swim about, duck their heads under water and chase little water insects and have a good time generally. Once he saw two or three riding on their mother's back. Life seemed to be all fun for those little Ducklings.

"They ought to be learning something, instead of just wasting their time playing," said Peter to Beauty, their father. "That is no way to bring children up."

Beauty didn't say a word. But he did chuckle a little. Yes, sir, he chuckled a little. He seemed quite satisfied with matters as they were. You see, he was very wisely leaving everything to Mrs. Wood Duck. As for Mrs. Wood Duck, she seemed very well satisfied with the way the children behaved.

"My dears," said she, when they took their first swim, "you may play about as much as you please, but be sure never to get very far from me. The wise Duckling eats while it plays, so while you are learning to be at home in the water you may as well be getting something to eat at the same time. Do you see all those little wiggly things in the water? They are very good eating for young Ducklings. Let me see who can catch the most."

Once he saw two or three riding on their mother's back

There was an immediate rush of the little Ducklings, each one stretching his little neck out and trying to scoop in those wiggly little things in his bill. It was funny to see them dart this way and that way, splashing the water and having a most exciting time. Do you know what those wigglers were? Well, each one of them would have turned into a mosquito if a hungry little Duckling had not caught it. At a sharp note from Mrs. Wood Duck, the twelve little Ducklings obediently swam close to her. Then she led them on their first journey out into the Great World, which really wasn't much of a journey, although it seemed so to them. It was simply a little trip along the shore of Paddy's pond.

Presently Mrs. Wood Duck went ashore and the Ducklings began to hunt for things to eat along the edge of the water. They found some seeds and they found green stuff good to eat. Now and then one would find a grub or a worm. Sometimes two would spy it at the same time and there would be a rush to see who could get it. Whenever one of them strayed too far, Mrs. Wood Duck would give that warning little note and instantly all those little Ducklings would come running to her.

Finally she thought they had played enough and called them in. When they had gathered close to her she began a new play. "I see something that looks like the end of a black stick out in the water," said she. "I wonder which of you will see it first."

Immediately all the little Ducklings began to look. "I see it!" cried one. "I see it!" cried another. Finally the last one had seen it.

"Now watch it," said Mother Wood Duck.

So the little Ducklings watched and watched and made a regular game of it. And then right in the midst of it that black thing disappeared. "It's gone!" cried one little Duckling.

"Do you think you would know it if you saw it again?" asked his mother.

The little Duckling was sure he would know it. His brothers and sisters were also sure they would know it.

"That's good," said Mother Wood Duck. "If you all really know it, you will never be caught by it."

"How could it catch us?" cried two or three Ducklings together. "How could a stick catch us?"

"That wasn't a stick," replied Mother Wood Duck. "That was the head of Snapper the Turtle and he is very, very fond of young Ducks."

115 B & O MEN TEST 4 LEADING CIGARETTES

"Why should I change?" says the average smoker, when someone suggests another cigarette.

"I'm used to my brand . . . and it's a good smoke."

Of course it's good. Not even Old Man Habit can hold a smoker to a poor smoke. But being used to an old thing often keeps a man from getting acquainted with a better one. That's the reason for these "concealed name" cigarette tests now going on all over the country. To give a man a chance to find out, on the level, which cigarette his taste really does like best.

Look what happened at the Mt. Clare shops of the B & O in Baltimore, the other day. Most of the fellows there had been smoking that old favorite (let's call it Brand Y) for years. But when Chairman of Machinists, James E. Poulton, handed out the four leading cigarettes with paper "masks" over the names, 57 out of 115 picked OLD GOLD as the best cigarette. It was a walkaway for OLD GOLDS!

"That only proves," said a chief mechanic, "that a fellow misses a lot if he gets too set in his ways."

PREHISTORIC ELEPHANT STANDS 18 FEET HIGH

NORMAN, Okla.—(AP)—The bones of a prehistoric elephant, one of the most complete skeletons ever found in the southwest, have been unearthed by University of Oklahoma scientists.

Dr. C. E. Decker, professor of paleontology, believes it was an elephas Jeffersonicus.

The skeleton when mounted will stand 18 feet high. Its teeth are as large as a human skull.

Why its wonderful flavor has won world-wide approval

★ 1—"Canada Dry" is made from high-quality Jamaica ginger and through our exclusive extraction process retains all the flavor and aroma of the ginger root.

★ 2—"Canada Dry" is made from absolutely pure ingredients, blended and balanced in exact proportions. A secret process of carbonation enables it to retain its sparkle long after the bottle is opened.

★ 3—"Canada Dry" is tested daily under laboratory methods to assure its purity. Leading hospitals serve it. Leading physicians prescribe it. Here is a better, purer ginger ale.

SERVED in Paris and New York . . . served in London and the Houses of Parliament at Ottawa . . . "Canada Dry" is the aristocrat of beverages. Mellow as the manners of a diplomat . . . sparkling as the wit at a state dinner . . . refreshing as the beauty of the women gathered there . . . "dry" as a rare old wine . . . and gay as the conversation of a drawing-room.

"She couldn't believe they weren't new"

"When my sister-in-law was outfitting her new home five years ago, we found such a wonderful pair of blankets that I couldn't resist buying a pair for myself.

"Visiting us last summer she saw me putting that very same pair of blankets away and accused me of duplicating our bargain without telling her. She couldn't believe they weren't new! Hers, she said, had faded terribly and become harsh and thin.

"But I told her I find Lux as wonderful for blankets as for sheer things . . . Lux keeps all my woolens thick and soft and unshrunken just like new year after year."

14 PER CENT CALL MONEY CONTINUES TO THWART VIGOROUS POOL EFFORTS

NEW YORK, May 8—(AP)—The stock market struggled with 14 per cent call money for the second successive day today. Pools again made vigorous efforts in a few sections of the list, but were unable to attract a following or to check a small but persistent stream of selling. Total sales again fell short of 3,500,000 shares.

The market displayed more resistance than it did yesterday, the gains a little more than offsetting the losses. Large buying orders placed just under the market in important issues by investment trusts are believed to have provided a cushion for the decline.

The fact that call money failed to come down was both puzzling and disappointing to traders. The high rate had been expected to attract funds from the interior by today at least, and that none have been forthcoming found no other explanation than the speculative credit curtailment operations of the Federal Reserve officials. Three of the large New York banks were said to be loaned up to the hilt at the Reserve bank.

The only sign of improvement was the failure of yesterday's advances of 1-8 of one per cent in bankers' acceptance rate to hold for the 150 and 180-day maturities. There was continued uneasiness over the possibility of an increase in the New York discount rate tomorrow and it was taken for granted that brokers' loans would show another substantial increase, particularly in view of the recent volume of new stock offerings. The fact that the Boston bank made no change in its rate after the close today was somewhat reassuring.

Aside from less cheerful reports from the reparations conference, the day's news was generally favorable. American Sugar Refining resumed common dividends on 35 annual basis, after a lapse of more than a year. The Steel Trade Reviews said that no decline in production had appeared. American Metal Market said, however, that "Some observers are convinced that a decline in automobile production, which cannot be postponed many weeks, will have far-reaching consequences, both directly and through a sentimental influence." Iron Age's composite price for pig showed an advance of 9 cents to $18.67 a ton.

General Electric was a strong point, rising 11 1-2 points to a new high price at 263. Tobacco stocks improved on rumors of conferences of important leaders in the industry looking to an end of the cigaret price cutting war. Universal Leaf rose 6 points to a new high, and United Sigar Stores preferred crossed 100.

Some of the oil shares were well bought. Transcontinental rising about 2 points to a new high for the year at 14 1-4 on merger rumors. Tide Water Associated also reached new high ground on announcement of its refinery project in Texas. Indian Motorcycle made an extreme gain of about 8 points, and it was rumored that Charles Levine, trans-Atlantic flier, had purchased a large block. The Advance Rumely issues rallied farther, with gains of 6 and 7 points. Vick Chemical, Commercial Solvents, United Aircraft, Murray Corp., Johns Manville, Consolidated Gas, Safeway Stores and American Sugar were other strong points.

Radio steadied, closing at 101 1-2, up nearly a point. Liquidation of a large block held by an operator recently active in the stock was said to have been completed. General Motors was firm, although the outcome of tomorrow's meeting of directors for dividend action was anxiously awaited.

Sparks Withington, a strong point yesterday, lost about 4 points. Allis Chalmers, Curtiss and Wright Aeros, International Telephone, National Bellas Hess and National Biscuit lost 3 or 3 points. Columbia Graphophone was again liquidated as result of the collapse of merger negotiations witr Radio.

In the commodity markets, after sagging further to new lows for the past few years, wheat futures rebounded on covering on the theory that the expected bullish government report on winter wheat tomorrow had been more than discounted. Cotton sold higher for a time on better Liverpool cables and a bullish weather report, but closed barely steady.

Foreign exchanges eased somewhat on the less optimistic reports regarding reparations. Sterling cables were slightly lower at $4.85 3-16.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN EASTERN CONN.

There has been a noticeable increase in building operations in Norwich and vicinity during the past few weeks, with many permits being granted for new buildings. On the West Side, especially on upper Asylum street, at the corner of Newton street, several new houses have been erected. There are four of these houses, three being single tenement houses while the fourth is one of two apartments.

Another development is on West Town street, where three or four new dwelling houses have been erected and are now ready for occupancy.

On Harland road the district is fast building up and plans have been drawn for several new houses in this section. At the other end of the town, near Geer avenue and Dunham street, a number of houses are in the various stages of construction. The foundation for a new dwelling house on Mechanic street is being laid.

At the office of Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft during the past week four permits were granted and several applications received. Included in the permits is one for a two-apartment house to be erected for Benjamin Krieger and David Trachtenberg on Lincoln avenue. The other permits were for garages or alterations to present buildings.

The following permits were issued during the past week at the office of Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft:

To Frank A. Bromley, to erect a veranda on the present frame building at 264 West Main street. The veranda will be 24x4 1-2 feet and will have a concrete foundation. The veranda will be of frame construction, to conform to the present house. The estimated cost is $100.

To Benjamin Krieger and David Trachtenberg, to build a two-apartment house on Lincoln avenue. The house will be 26x50 feet and will be two stories high. There will be six rooms and bath in each apartment. The foundation and cellar will be of concrete and the superstructure will be of frame construction. The exterior will be finished in clapboards and stained shingles, with composition shingles on the roof. The interior will be finished in hard finish plaster and hardwood. The estimated cost is $8,000. A local contractor is to do the work.

To George E. Pitcher, to erect an addition to the rear of the present building at 361 Main street. The addition will be 22x32 feet and will be of brick construction. The estimated cost is $600.

To Edward Brosofske, to erect a one-car frame garage at 85 Seventh street for himself. The garage will be 13x20 feet. The estimated cost is $200.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were eight sales of real estate, the same number as during the corresponding week in 1928. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $87,000 and $56,594.

During the past week there were 11 sales of real estate in New London, two more than during the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $82,750 and $19,734.

New London.

With a bid of $34,300, the Merritt-Chapman and Scott Corp. 292 Pequot avenue, was the lowest bidder for the construction of the greater part of the lighthouse service depot wharf in the rear of the custom house. The construction projects consist of a wharf 190 feet long and 75 feet wide, with a creosoted pile foundation and a concrete deck. The old wharf will be removed with the excention of a section of 100 feet which will be replaced by the lighthouse department next year. At this time a new entrance to the wharf will also be provided.

The contract has been awarded for a residence to be built for Joseph Schwartz 133 Bank street, at the corner of Ocean avenue and Glenwood avenue. The house will be 33 1-3x42 feet with a sun porch and attached garage.

Ground has been broken for a residence to be built for Edgar B. VanWinkle on Jerome place. From private plans, the house will be 34x26 feet with an attached garage, 22x21 feet. The estimated cost is $13,000.

The permit has been issued for a stone garage to be built at 42 Bayonet street by Thomas Sevrini. The building will be 23x33 feet, designed for three cars.

The dwelling formerly located at the corner of Jay and Franklin streets has been demolished to make way for a brick and stucco service station to be built on the site by the Texas Oil Co. The building will be 45x26 feet.

Bids are being received for the proposed alterations of the Bishop Seabury Memorial Episcopal church on Fort street, Groton. The building committee consists of Mrs. Samuel Meech, H. Alonzo Ashcroft and A. L. Wyman. As previously reported in these columns, the first floor will be arranged for parish purposes and the entire second floor for the rectory.

Building Permits.

A. S. MacFarlane, frame garage, 39 Parkway, $500.

C. Fransantano, sun porch, 269 Vauxhall street, $300.

Thomas Sevrini, garage, 42 Bayonet street, $1,000.

Frank Orchard, frame garage, 38 Waller court, $600.

E. B. VanWinkle, frame dwelling, Jerome place, $15,000.

Joseph Schwartz, residence, corner Ocean avenue and Glenwood avenue, $23,000.

Frank Rothen, alterations, Jennie street, $200.

Number of permits for the week, 9; estimated cost of buildings, $44,100.

SESSION OF JOLLIFICATION MARKED CLOSING DAY

out to the delight of the men members.

At this point order was secured and the bill concerning the appointment of the commission as amended by including the names of the governor and the mayor of New London to the commission was passed.

Thanks of the assembly was extended to the speaker, Hon. Samuel H. Eddy, for the fair and able manner in which he had conducted the legislative sessions. House Leader Johnson of Manchester and Minority Leader Tobin of Waterbury were appointed a committee to conduct the speaker before the house. Mr. Johnson then on behalf of the house presented him with a handsome walking stick.

Speaker Eddy responded with warm words of appreciation for the courtesy shown him. The speaker said that there had been some criticism of the work done and that the session had been a dull one. In his opinion the laws that had been passed were good and what had not been done was still better.

On motion of Minority Leader Tobin of Waterbury a resolution tendering the thanks of the assembly to Hon. Raymond A. Johnson for the fair and impartial manner in his conduct of the business of the house was adopted. On behalf of the minority Mr. Tobin presented Mr. Johnson a diamond ring. A warm response was made by Mr. Johnson.

Resolutions were adopted expressing appreciation of the service of Hon. John F. Tobin as minority leader. Mr. Johnson spoke for his resolution and presented Mr. Tobin with a gold watch.

HOUSE.

Mr. Tobin was invited to speak from the rostrum and made a tender acknowledgment of the gift and the kindly treatment that had been given him.

Thanks were also extended to the clerk and assistant clerk of the house. Mr. Bill being given a gold watch and Mr. Traceski a traveling bag. Mr. Bill in making acknowledgment of the gift remarked they must be tired of hearing his voice as he had spoken on every bill that had come before the house. To the Rev. William A. Hudson of North Canaan resolutions of appreciation of service was passed and he was given a gift of the gold of the realm (fifty dollars in gold).

With business out of the way and with Clarence W. Seymour in the chair Rev. Hugh Shields, member from Ridgefield, was introduced as the official observer. His speech abounded with wit and humor.

He observed and noted that every lawyer that came to the assembly went away a judge. He was of the opinion that every taxpayer was rejoicing that this was the last day of the general assembly of 1929.

The secretary of state, known as "old man Higgins" said he wished to see the gentleman from Durham and a committee of three was appointed to conduct him to the throne of grace. He appeared with a catcher's mask and a baseball bat. He was given a box of animal crackers and a link of bologna. Mr. Reimer is a well-known clergyman and a determined anti-vaccinationist.

Miss Cheney of Manchester was presented a diploma for her constant watch over legislation. Miss Cheney said that a mistake had been made in making her degree "M. M." It should have been "O. M." "old maid." Diana of New Haven was given a clock that he might have any old time that he wanted. Mrs. Russ of Shelton who introduced a bill providing a pension after twenty five years of service, was presented a fireman's helmet, red shirt and a pair of blue denim overalls.

The members of the appropriation committee were presented with rubber "O. K." stamps.

At a serious moment a resolution was passed presenting to the speaker the block and gavel used during the session and the comptroller was directed to secure a portrait of the speaker to be placed in the speakers room.

At one o'clock a recess was taken until two. Altogether it was a noisy, hilarious time, abounding in wit and humor, hardly an introducer of some measure escaping a burlesque. Everything was in good nature and no hard feelings were created.

At 2.10 the house reconvened and a committee consisting of Johnson of Manchester and Tobin of Waterbury were appointed to wait upon the governor and notify him that the house had completed the business before them and would receive any communication that he desired to make. At 2.15 the senate headed by Lieut. Governor Rogers came in and were given seats in front of the rostrum.

A resolution of appreciation of the life and services of Ex-Governor Roberts was passed at 2.25, the governor accompanied by the associate state officers entered and the governor delivered the valedictory of the session of 1929.

In the old time form the final words by the sheriff, Oh yea, oh yea, oh yea by Secretary of State William L. Higgins by direction of his excellency the the governor I now declare this assembly adjourned sine die. God save the state of Connecticut and the assembly of 1929 becomes history.

WINDHAM

The annual report of the Ecclesiastical society of the Congregational church follows: Increase, balance April 1, 1928, $115.46; contributions and offerings, Windham, $560; contributions and offerings, South Windham, $850; increase from fund, $1,538.20; withdrawn from savings bank, $400; total, $2,963.66. Expenses: Cash paid pastor, $1,050; pulpit supply, $493; sexton, $159.45; fuel, $292.88; cemetery lot, $6; repairs in parsonage and church, $117.17; repairs on organ, $38.85; electric lights, $32.07; insurance, $127.85; envelopes, $9.95; parsonage driveway, $323.80; parsonage garage, $239.39; sundries, $1.28; balance April, 1929, $39.57; total, $2,963.64.

The local 4-H clubs were represented at the convention in Hartford Saturday and Sunday by Mrs. Raymond Smith and Annie Wilcox, of the Jolly Cookers, and Carl Josephson and Gail Smith, of the Wide Awakes.

The Ladies' Aid society served a delicious supper Friday, in charge of Mrs. Alfred Harvey. About 150 were present and the proceeds were about $75.

E. W. McGuire, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has purchased from the Challenger estate the lot adjoining his summer home on the south. He will tear down the old dam and make other improvements.

The annual meeting of the Parent-Teacher association was held in the school auditorium Monday. The report of the treasurer showed expenditures for the year of $240 and a balance of $33.33. Flat silver, including six dozen each of knives, forks and teaspoons for use in the hall, was purchased. Money was contributed for Near East Relief, Salvation Army and the Newington Home for Crippled Children. Since the P. T. A. was organized several years ago a piano was purchased for the auditorium and a large amount of playground equipment installed; a baseball diamond and a tennis court laid out. A new net is to be bought. Meetings have been held once a month from October and May, inclusive, and out-of-town speakers have given interesting and instructive talks on Mental Hygiene and other important subjects. Mrs. Valentine Anderson and Mrs. L. P. Oehrig represented the local association at the state convention in Greenwich last month. In February the Windham County P. T. association held an afternoon and evening meeting here. The officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. Valentine Anderson; vice-presidents, Mrs. DeWitt Lathrop, Mrs. Edward Smiley; secretary, Mrs. Harry Mosely; treasurer, Mrs. L. P. Oehrig. May baskets containing lunch were sold at auction and coffee was served and the meeting was adjourned until October.

WALL STREET BURROWERS WATCHING FOR OLD RELICS

NEW YORK—(AP)—Wall street's gold-lined catacombs have yielded an enormous number of valuable relics of Manhattan's early history.

Excavators who are making room for the foundations and gold vaults of a new building at 120 Wall street expect to uncover more than the usual number of these objects because the site is reclaimed ground formerly extended into the East river.

It was necessary to go down 80 feet to reach solid rock. Workers will remove layer on layer of silt and engineers in charge of the work are keeping close watch for pottery, clay pipes, tools and other relics of the early Dutch period.

MITCHELL ADVANCES NEW CREDIT THEORY

NEW YORK —(AP)— Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City bank, threw Wall street a new economic theory which has been tossed back and forth like a hot potato.

Congress, says the banker, should remove the tax now levied against profits resulting from increases in security prices. He believes that this would ease the credit situation by causing investors to liquidate their present holdings without the inconvenience of having to pay part of their profits to the government.

He says that the proceeds of such sales would go into the banks as deposits and that the buyers of the securities would borrow only part of the necessary funds from banks, "thus a net reduction in credit would be brought about."

Critics of the idea say that it takes just as much money to buy securities as the seller gets when he sells them and that the only persons to benefit would be present holders of high-priced stocks, who would retain their profits at the government's expense.

INDUSTRIES NOW BUILT ON NATIONAL PATTERN

CHICAGO—(AP)—American industry's swift development on a national, coast-to-coast pattern is pictured strikingly in the latest map of the Standard Gas & Electric company.

This company, with assets of more than $1,000,000,000, operates projects scattered from Pittsburgh to San Diego.

Subsidiaries are started from time to time in "fertile" territory and allowed to spread over the surrounding region like ivy.

There are eight major units centering around San Diego, western Oregon, central Colorado, Oklahoma, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Louisville and Pittsburgh. In addition there are 14 baby units scattered through Montana, Wyoming and North Dakota.

Electrical Exports.

WASHINGTON— (AP) —Exports of electrical equipment from the United States, particularly radio instruments increased 25 per cent last year. During the first two months of the year, says the department of commerce, America sold $21,412,248 worth of this class of goods abroad.

CHINA WELCOMES CAPITAL IF CHINESE HANDLE REINS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—China wants foreign capital for the development of her railroads and natural resources, but apparently does not want too much of it. The department of commerce understands that Nanking is considering proposals definitely restricting the amounts of foreign financial aid extended to any one project.

A tentative summary of these limitations includes stipulations that Chinese shareholders must hold 51 per cent of the capital stock of any corporation; that the directors should be dominantly Chinese, that the general manager must be Chinese and that the business must be subject to Chinese laws.

DEMAND FOR CHICAGO PLACES STILL BRISK

CHICAGO—(AP)—Despite the decline in the volume of securities trading the last few months, demand for membership on the Chicago board of trade, based on anticipation of trading in stocks, still is brisk.

More than 100 new members have been added recently.

Sixteen of the board's memberships have been purchased by New York financial institutions.

Uncle Sam, Confectioner

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is shipping candy abroad at the rate of almost 1,000,000 pounds monthly. Exports include all grades and the average price collected from foreign distributors is less than 24 cents a pound.

Boy (aged 3)—Mummy, I know where the jam factory is, and the paper factory, but where is the satisfactory I've heard you talk about?—Exchange.

YOUR HOUSE NEED PAINT?...THEN—

Don't neglect either end of the paint brush

THERE'S the painter end. You need a skilled hand to apply the paint. Employ a master painter—the man whose reputation for high-class work you know.

There's the paint end. Don't neglect that. It's the place for pure lead paint, the partner of experienced painters for years.

It is money in your pocket to consider carefully what goes at both ends of the paint brush . . . to have the two famous painting partners on the job.

Master painters today use pure lead paint, made with Dutch Boy white-lead sold by leading paint dealers everywhere.

POETRY

A Night Song

Come out and walk. The last red grove
Of light
Drains silently out of the slowly cooling night.
The trees are full of the dark sleeping night,
The fields are wet with dew.

All's quiet in the wood, but far away,
Down the hillside and out across the plain,
Moves, with its long trail of wails that sparkle its way,
The softly panting train.

Comes through the clearing. Hardly now we see
The flowers, save dark or light against the grass,
Or glimmering silver on a wanted tree,
That trembles as we pass.

Hark now! So far, so far . . . that distant song . . .
Move not the rustling grasses with your feet . . .
The dusk is full of sorrow, that all along
The muttering beneath trees.

So far, so faint, we fill our hearts with doubt,
Wind, or the blood that sings within our ears,
Has feigned a dubious and elusive note
Such as a dreamer hears . . .

Again . . . again! The faint sounds rise and fall . . .
So far the enchanted lost, the song so low . . .
A drowsy thrush? A waking nightingale?
Silence. We do not know.

—Edward Shanks

Let Me Dream Among the Hills

When the grass is green and growing
Near the brook that's swiftly flowing,
While the cooling breeze is blowing,
Let me dream among the hills.

While the wood-hen starts her drumming
For the worm that dreads her coming;
While the bees are busy humming,
Let me dream among the hills.

When the shadows northward turning
Where the Northern Lights are burning
Fill the heart with vacant yearning,
Let me dream among the hills.

When the swans are southward speeding
Where eternal summer's leading,
Hear, oh hear my earnest pleading,
Let me dream among the hills.

—Clyde Mitchell, in The Pathfinder

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"I'd like to get a lawn mower."

"I'm sorry, sir, we haven't any."

"Well, this is a fine drug store."—Monitor.

"Where's that salesman you had in the used car department who swore he never told a lie?"

"Oh, he starved to death."—Boston Transcript.

"So your new neighbor isn't as much of a nuisance as your old one?"

"No. This one's got two phonograph records."—Exchange.

"He's a fine orator, although he doesn't say much."

"No, his speeches don't mean any more than a woman driver's hand sticking out of the car about to turn."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Did you hear about the funeral of Skinner's competitor?"

"No, what was it?"

"Someone added the word 'friends' to the epitaph."

"What was the epitaph?"

"He did his best."—Detroit News.

"I think I shall vote for Senator Chump again. He has a very good platform."

"Platform!" snorted the major. "Just like a street car platform. He'll get in on it, but he won't stand on it."—The Pathfinder.

Will Fyffe tells of a young Scots lad who entered the chemist's. "Please, sirr, An want some pooder for ma ceester."

"Some that goes off with a bang?" asked the chemist, jokingly.

"Na, na. Some that goes on with a puff."—Boston Transcript.

An actor who had gone in for management was asked by an inquisitive old lady what was the difference between an actor and an actor-manager. "Well," was the reply, "the only difference I have discovered is this: As an ordinary actor I used to look forward to Fridays; now I don't."—Montreal Star.

United States battleships are named after states, cruisers after cities, destroyers after naval heroes, or men who have been conspicuous in naval affairs. Submarines bear numbers and mine sweepers are named after birds. The two ammunition ships of the navy are the Nitro and the Pyro. Some of the more unusual names are the Umpqua, Tuscmoek, Ogalala, Moncacy, Kidder and Koka.

If you wish to drive an elephant at night in Kandy, in Ceylon, you must have him provided with head and tail light. The municipal council besieged by harassed automobile drivers who could not see the elephants has ordered this new safety traffic ruling. Collisions between automobiles and the slow moving, shadowy gray elephants were becoming alarmingly frequent before the lighting order was issued.

Discarded newspapers collected by charitable agencies and exported to the Orient are producing more than $1,500 a day in Los Angeles, according to Clarence H. Matson of the chamber of commerce harbor committee. The newspapers are baled and exported to Java, Hong Kong and India, where they are used for wrapping purposes and for the manufacture of firecrackers, Matson said. Old newspapers exported to the Orient netted more than $600,000 last year, Matson said.

The custom of having a carved image on the bow of ships seems to have come down from the earliest shipbuilders. In the days of the old windjammers the figureheads often played, or were supposed to play, an important part in the fate of the ship. Not a few yarns are told, and believed, by old salts of figureheads that were either guardians or hoodoos. So deeply rooted were some of these superstitions that whole crews have been known to desert their ships on that account. The custom, as well as the superstition, seems to be dying out. Many of the big ocean liners have only a little scrollwork on their bows, while others have nothing. Navy vessels had their figureheads removed in 1906. The elaborate scrollwork was pretty but could seen from a distance, making them conspicuous targets for the enemy's gunners.

PAYNE ESTATE OWNERS, NEW LONDON, ORDERED BEFORE COMPENSATION BD.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 8—Owners of the Payne estate, off Mohegan avenue, which property the city has decided to take by condemnation proceedings for the U. S. Coast Guard Cadet Academy site, have been ordered to appear before the board of compensation May 29 at 10 o'clock in the morning. The owners are Mary E. Harver, Mary E. Harris and Nellie P. Wightman. The sum of $40,000 has been offered for the property, but the heirs have held out for an additional $10,000.

WATERFORD JUSTICE FINES SMITH AND COMPANION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 8—Joseph Smith, Main street, Plainfield, Conn., and Louis J. Masse, Jewett City, were presented in the Waterford town court today, the former charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and the latter with intoxication. They were arrested last night as the result of an automobile crash in Waterford. Smith was fined $100 and costs and Masse was given a fine of $5 and costs. Smith was driving a Chevrolet and in attempting to pass another auto at Mossbroker's corner, his car collided with a Ford that was traveling in the opposite direction, the Chevrolet crashing against the Ford with great force. In the Ford were Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Cooper, 26 Vine street, Marblehead, Mass. The Ford was overturned and Mrs. Cooper sustained lacerations and bruises and is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. State Police Officers Kenerson and Dyer were assigned to investigate the cause of the crash and arrested Smith and Masse. While the Ford was lying on its side another Chevrolet driven by Herbert Brown, submarine base, was overturned when Brown attempted to drive around the car that blocked the highway. Brown escaped injury other than bruises.

PABERATSKY PAYS $25 AND COSTS FOR HOSPITALITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 8—Joseph C. Paberatsky, U. S. coast guard, state pier, was presented on a charge of conducting a disorderly house and was fined $25 and costs. Max Roetnlisburger, W. L. Matthews, Floyd Merkins, Gilbert Noyhre, George A. Smith, Ralph Collanzo and Grazie Carrier, the last named a woman residing on Shaw street, this city, were charged with breach of the peace. Each was fined $1 and costs and the court ordered the remittance of the fine. Paberatsky and the others were arrested last Saturday night when State Police Officers John Smith, Arthur Johnson and Peter Busch raided the house following information being received that a group of sailors was creating a disturbance there. The house, which is located on the New Haven turnpike, was but recently rented by Paberatsky for the purpose of providing a place where his buddies could be assured a "good time".

Wrecked Car at Westerly.

A Chevrolet sedan owned by Charles Lemon, 193 Thames street, Groton, yard brakeman for the New Haven road, was stolen last night from its place of parking while the owner was at work. Lemon did not discover the theft until 12.30 and then reported the fact at police headquarters. This morning the state police discovered the automobile wrecked and abandoned near Westerly.

Meridian St. Parking.

City Manager William A. Holt today notified Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney that in the future the easterly side of Meridian street, between Church and Federal streets, would be restricted to parking. For a long time merchants of the restricted street have requested that parking of autos not be allowed on that side of the highway.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Harry G. Gidley, 813 Bank street, convicted recently in the police court of driving a public service automobile while he possessed only a private license.

Seek New Haven Elopers.

The New Haven police today requested the New London police to institute a search in this city in an endeavor to determine the whereabouts of Joseph Corenello, 19 and Jennie Felvestro, 17, both of New Haven, who it is believed, came to New London a few days ago and were married. The parents of the girl recently received a letter from the girl postmarked New London.

DR. FERRIN'S WIDOW IS CRITICALLY ILL

Mrs. Carlisle F. Ferrin, widow of Dr. Ferrin, who died suddenly of heart disease Monday and whose funeral will take place at the Ferrin home, 215 Glenwood avenue, is critically ill and it is doubtful if her condition will permit her attendance at the funeral services.

Mrs. Catherine Rose, of Norfolk, Va., has requested the New London police to make an effort to find her son, Joseph M. Rose, Jr., who is missing from home, and who, she believes, is in this city. The youth sought is a nephew of Patrolman Henry Sylvia.

HICKS FINALLY TRIED—PENALIZED $100 AND COSTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 8—The oft postponed case of Solidius Hicks, 19, colored janitor and residing at 102 Boswell avenue, Norwich, was tried in the police court this morning. Hicks was charged with violation of the liquor law and was fined $100 and costs.

Woman Fined $200 and Costs.

Mrs. Annie Malinowsky, rear 27 John street, was also charged with violation of the liquor law the specific charge being actual sale. She was fined $200 and costs. Mrs Malinowsky, who is employed during the day, has made a practice of dispensing alcoholic drinks to her trade at night. An informer of the police was sent to the house and purchased drinks. As a result of that evidence, Acting Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer issued a search warrant yesterday and last night it was given to Patrolman Clarence Wells to serve. Wells, accompanied by Officers George Bruhns and Edward Riordan went to the house, but their search was rewarded only by finding two bottles of home brew beer.

William Holloway, colored, of 16 Hill street, was presented on a charge of breach of the peace, but the court suspended judgment. Holloway was arrested at 1 o'clock this morning when he abused his wife to such an extent that she requested her husband's arrest. Holloway was arrested by Patrolmen Frank Philopena and Arthur Feeley.

Neglectful Husbands in Court.

Lester Perry and Frank Larkie were charged with non-support. Perry was sentenced to 30 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended.

Pinched Shoes and Hose

Stanley Rice, of Black Point, drove to New London last night with a young woman companion and, during the course of their stay here, the latter purchased a pair of shoes and two pairs of hose. Concluding her shopping, the purchase was left in the automobile, which was parked on Green street, and then they went to a nearby restaurant. When Rice and his friend returned to the car to start for home, they discovered that a thief had preceded them, for the shoes and hose had been stolen.

Car Knocks Down Boy

An automobile driven by Henry C. Burdick, 30 Baker avenue, Groton, in passing through Truman street tonight, knocked down Edward Mahone, 9, of Hempstead street. The boy was crossing the street and as he ran failed to notice the approaching automobile, running against the side of the machine. He was taken to the office of a physician, where an examination disclosed only bruises and scratches.

MRS. WARREN G. CHAPMAN OF GROTON DIED SUDDENLY

Mrs. Edna Walter Chapman, 48, wife of Warren G. Chapman, of 141 Monument street, Groton, died suddenly of heart disease at her home last night. She is survived, besides her husband, by a son, Martin Chapman, Providence and a daughter, Mrs. Frank W. Hewes, Jr., Groton. Mrs. Chapman had gone to Thames street during the early evening to witness an election parade and a short time after returning home, she experienced a nauseating condition, which was followed by the heart attack and Mrs. Chapman collapsed. An effort was made to secure the services of a Groton physician but none could be located. Finally a physician from New London was summoned, but when he arrived at the Chapman home, Mrs. Chapman had succumbed.

Max Eliensky, 25 Moore avenue, was charged with driving without a license and was fined $10. He was arrested last night by Patrolman Harry Watterson.

Allen Creighton, 49 Chappell street, charged with failing to stop at an automatic danger signal, was fined $5.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Public Invited

The public is invited to attend the annual exhibition of the children's work of the United Workers' sewing classes to be held Friday, May 10, from 3 to 5 p. m.

Announcement.

Mr. Edmond Cote, formerly with the Interstate Furniture company has resigned his position and is now with the Silberman Furniture store, 37-41 Main street, Norwich, where he will be glad to see all his old friends and patrons.

Palace Theatre.

A show of all hits is promised at the Palace theatre for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week as no effort has been spared by the management to bring to this theatre a bang-up show which opens with the high class novelty act direct from the larger cities, Cooke and Valdare, who will offer you something very smart in their own European novelty act. This act abounds with thrills and flashes from beginning to end.

Evelyn Smith, New York's marvel, comes as she does with the reputation that she has, you will agree that she is a marvel, she sings and dances marvelously, and is young and pretty.

Lillian Steel and Co. in Love Lessons, will make you talk to yourself on the way home and you will hold your sides at the lessons that are offered by this company of talented artists in the art of making love.

Scoville and Corday in Tenth Ave. carry you right to the heart of New York and the fun they put over on the trip is worth going a long way for.

Neil Kirk brings cheer to anyone with his high class harmony and the songs he sings, new and up to the minute and the new line of talk will give you a treat.

A brilliant cast in an unusual photoplay, "Old Shoes", which comes to the Palace theatre today, is headed by that most capable character actor, Noah Beery, who enacts an entirely new role as a modern Jekyll and Hyde, a psychological study of human nature. One moment in fits of laughter, the next, depicting most fiendish scenes, Dana Todd, Harold Garrisson, George Wagner and the many rural types in the southern village of "Rolling Fork", make a fine and capable cast for "Old Shoes," a wonderful story to ensnare all hearts and leave a never-to-be-forgotten impression.

GIRLS! GIRLS! GIRLS! Get Ready for Miss Norwich Contest, All Next Week.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre to Select Miss Norwich Next Week

Beautiful and shapely girls in Norwich are at this moment the goal in a quest which occupies the attention of many Norwich folk from all walks of life, for the word has gone out that a "Miss Norwich" must be discovered that will bring back the title of Miss New England to this city.

The Palace theatre and a group of local merchants want Miss New England to be a Norwich girl and they are determined in their quest. All concerned boast that Norwich possesses the prettiest girls in New England and their only difficulty is to find her and crown her the official Miss Norwich of 1929.

The contest opens next Monday night at the Palace theatre and will continue all week with the girls appearing each night. The audience will select by their applause one girl each night, making six girls in all by Saturday. On Saturday night a group of local judges will pick one girl from the six and name her the official Miss Norwich of 1929.

When the young lady is chosen as this city's most perfect and beautiful girl she will be sent to Revere beach, Boston, to compete for the title of Miss New England. All of her expenses will be paid and she will have the time of her life with banquets, dinners, yacht trips on the Atlantic, the entire Revere beach being turned over to the girls for recreation, balls and entertainments in the evenings and many good times too numerous to mention. All this will be for some local girl.

In addition to all the above, Miss Norwich will be given a wonderful complete wardrobe from local merchants that will provide an array of finery to be worn when she leaves for the famous Boston summer resort to try for the big title. The winner of the Miss New England title will receive a 25-week theatre contract and a wonderful wardrobe also.

All that is necessary to enter the contest is to either live or work in the city or within ten miles of Norwich, to be within the ages of 16 to 25, unmarried and with no professional stage experience. Girls will appear in either afternoon frock or evening gown and must appear every night of next week. All girls are urged to send in their names at once so that the contest director can give each girl all the instructions necessary. Get your name in to the Palace theatre at once.

Broadway Theatre.

Those who have hankered to visit Texas Guinan's celebrated New York night club need only see and hear the Warner Brothers' latest Vitaphone all-talking picture "Queen of Night Clubs," in which the famous hostess is starred at the Broadway theatre beginning today.

Much of the dramatic action of this colorful story of Broadway night life revolves around the night club owned and operated by the "Queen of the Night Clubs." Constructed along the same plan as Miss Guinan's cabaret, the scenes in this sensational production are startlingly realistic.

A large dance orchestra, many notables, scores of pretty girls dancing in perfect routine, and Texas Guinan, herself, in the role of the fascinating hostess in charge of all activities, to entertain the pleasure seekers in the background for the crashing melodrama.

In support of Miss Guinan in the "Queen of the Night Clubs" are such well known stage and screen players as Eddie Foy, Jr., Lila Lee, Jack Norworth, John Davidson, John Miljan, Arthur Housman, William Davidson, Jimmie Phillips, Lee Shumway and others. Bryan Foy directed from an original story by Murray Roth and Addison Burkhart.

Texas Guinan, who was the original two-gun-gal of the movies makes the change from night club revelry to the talkies with characteristic abandon. "It's a new field for the girl friend," she says, "and she needs a big hand!"

A very entertaining selection of short talking subjects are presented in addition to "Queen of the Night Clubs".

Final Week of CHRYSLER

"Learn-the-Difference" MONTH

Come In—See—Hear —Learn! Drive a

CHRYSLER

Only a few days left to learn the high points of Chrysler "Learn-the-Difference" Month.

Here is your chance to find out for yourself what you've heard and often wanted to confirm—the decided difference between Chrysler and any other car in your experience.

Chrysler is the one car in the world today that completely knocks the bottom out of the old argument, "All cars today are pretty much the same."

Chrysler has never been similar to other cars. Today, the Chrysler difference is more astounding than ever before—astounding because other cars have all made a gallant attempt to overtake Chrysler, but Chrysler—constantly and surely—has kept in the lead.

A Special Feature YOU Shouldn't Miss

It is of particular interest to every prospective purchaser to ask us about the Special "Learn-the-Difference" Gift Card.

In the lead in style! A single glance will reveal the artistic difference between Chrysler and all other beauty!

In the lead in engineering! The difference between Chrysler and all other cars is conclusive. Come in and let us explain these differences to you one by one!

In the lead in performance! The actual difference between Chrysler smoothness, speed, pick-up, flexibility, power, is easy to see and feel. One of our demonstrators is ready for you, eager to prove the difference!

Remember—this is the last week you can take advantage of "Learn-the-Difference" Month.

Make it a special point to see US NOW and get the facts—before the big event is over.

We realize that the world is getting better when it begins to sit up and take our way.

JEWISH COMMUNITY RAISES $500 FOR PALESTINE FARM WORK

In response to an urgent appeal, the Jewish residents of Norwich raised on Wednesday evening a quota of $500 towards a fund being created for the purpose of providing farm implements for the pioneer settlers in Palestine. The occasion was marked by a visit to Norwich by Mayor David A. Bloch of Tel Aviv, Palestine. At a testimonial supper held at 6:30 o'clock at the Jewish institute, $200 was raised in cash and the remainder of the quota was raised at a meeting at the Community house, Church street, during the evening.

Mayor David Bloch arrived at New London at 12.18 p. m. and was conducted by a delegation of prominent Jewish people to the home of Louis Pollock where he enjoyed a dinner prepared for him by Mrs. Pollock assisted by her friends. On his way to Norwich Mayor Bloch was greatly impressed by the beauty of the scenery. He also expressed his great admiration of the beauty of the city when he was driven through our principal residential section. Mayor Bloch made the complimentary remark that outside of Tel Aviv, Palestine, Norwich would be the only city in which he would like to live.

Promptly at 4 p. m. Mayor Bloch was conducted to the court house. Max Hanover, chairman of the reception committee presented Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg to Mayor Lee Roy Robbins as the man who would introduce the honored guest. In a few fitting words of introduction Rabbi Rosenberg introduced Mayor Bloch to Mayor Robbins.

Mayor Robbins received the guest at the council chamber and in greeting Mayor Bloch said among other remarks: "We mayors, although unknown to each other, have a community of interests and responsibilities. I am very glad to welcome you to Norwich. I extend to you the freedom of our city and I hope you will enjoy your stay in our city."

In reply to the cordial greetings of Mayor Robbins the distinguished visitor said among other words: "Our main task in Palestine is the recovery and the reconstruction of the economic, political and cultural life in the Holy Land, also the reclamation of the land which was laid waste by misrule since the destruction of the country by the Roman legions. We feel that it is our duty to construct a bridge between the old culture with the new European and American cultures." After the greeting ceremonies were over Mayor Robbins introduced the guests to the members of the reception committee and the city officials. They all gave the Palestinian mayor a hearty welcome.

At 6.30 Mayor Bloch was tendered a dinner at the Hebrew institute which was attended by prominent members of the Jewish community.

At 8:30 o'clock Max Hanover opened the meeting at the Community house, and in introducing the chairman of the evening, Aaron Goldblatt, he said: "We are honored this evening in paying our tribute to a noble man, whose outstanding idealism, his unselfish sacrifices in behalf of his fellow men, and his numerous accomplishments in Palestine, speak for themselves before the entire world. We American citizens, in particular, are thrilled by the exploits, the heroism and the accomplishments of the pioneers in Palestine, because the United States was also built up by the sacrifices of its early settlers.

"It is perhaps one of the mysterious enigmas of fate that when Columbus, at the behest of Queen Isabelle of Spain, set out upon his historic voyage, over the unknown seas, which culminated in the discovery of America, he encountered wandering ships bearing unfortunate Jewish refugees who were cruelly expelled from Spain for being true to the faith of their fathers. And it is in the land discovered by Columbus that a large number of Jewish people have found a haven, tolerance and happiness.

Two Rabbis Extend Welcome

The chairman, Mr. Goldblatt, then introduced the Jewish spiritual leaders of Norwich, Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg and Rabbi Max Stamm, who in well chosen words welcomed the honored guest, and expressed their hearty support of the movement to provide agricultural implements for the Palestine pioneers, which is the mission of Mayor Bloch in the United States.

Miss Lina Zimmerman of Hartford, then rendered several vocal selections which were enthusiastically applauded. Miss Zimmerman was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Silverman of this city.

Isaac Hamlin of New York made an urgent appeal in behalf of the campaign. He amused the gathering by saying that when he arrived in Norwich, he inquired of a policeman where the Jewish center of Norwich was to be found. The policeman answered "The Jewish center is right here and all over the city of Norwich."

Mr. Hamlin made an eloquent appeal and was warmly received by the large audience. Speaking of the time it will require to rebuild Palestine, Mr. Hamlin said that in the rebuilding of a people a few decades are of no consequence. The idealism of the younger generation is making rapid progress and Palestine is alive with new life and energy and is growing by leaps and bounds under the mandate of Great Britain.

Speaks on Rebuilding Palestine

Mayor Bloch was the principal speaker of the evening. As the Palestine mayor stepped to the front of the platform, he received a tremendous ovation. Mayor Bloch, in his remarks, said, that until now the rebuilding of Palestine was done by a few Zionist idealists. Today the non-Zionists have come to a realization of the sacrifices made by the pioneers of the Holy Land and they are lending their support to rebuild Palestine. The speaker said that under modern methods of agriculture, the land in Palestine has become productive and that Palestine is now exporting many products raised by the Jewish pioneers.

Mayor Bloch spoke of the electrification of the river Jordan, the building of the new port in Haifa and the draining of the marshes which are being created into fertile land. He spoke of the difficulty experienced in Palestine, due to the shortage of water, and told of the extremes to which the pioneers go to create artificial streams.

At the conclusion of Mayor Bloch's address, the audience greeted him with tremendous applause.

GRANGE VOTES TO BUY SCHOOL HOUSE BUILDING

Norwich grange, No. 172, Patrons of Husbandry, voted at its meeting Wednesday evening in Steiner hall to buy from Senator A. W. Lillibridge, who is worthy master of the grange, the old school house in the Bean Hill section of Norwich Town, which Senator Lillibridge purchased from the town at auction last month. He will sell it to the grange at the same price he paid for it, viz: $3,025.

The meeting voted to empower the executive committee to proceed to incorporate the grange so that it may hold the property as a corporation, and it passed a vote of thanks to Worthy Master Lillibridge, who presided, for his wonderful assistance in enabling the grange to secure the property for a grange hall.

William C. Kendall gave the grange an especially entertaining illustrated talk upon his motor trip to the Pacific coast, using over 100 views to add to his interesting descriptions.

At the close of the meeting ice cream and cake were served.

MADE VICE-PRESIDENT OF JACOBS MANUFACTURING CO.

Donald K. White, sales manager of the E. H. Jacobs Manufacturing company of Danielson, has been elected vice-president in charge of sales, according to an announcement made Wednesday by the company. The E. H. Jacobs Manufacturing company is among the best known manufacturers of textile loom equipment in the country and abroad, having been in the field for the past 60 years.

In the weekly list issued by the state motor vehicle department of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor are included the names of George M. Richardson, Groton; George Pearson and Albert J. Richard, New London; Albert Auclair, Putnam.

SHEEP SHEARING CONTEST AT POMFRET CENTER FARM

For the third time the annual field day and sheep shearing contest of the Connecticut Sheep Breeders' association is to be held at the country place of C. V. B. Cushman at Pomfret Center, the date set being Saturday of this week, with the shearing contests to start promptly at 9 a. m., standard time. It will be an all day meeting for all those interested and there will be prizes for hand shearing and machine shearing in two classes and for professionals. Prizes for single fleeces in fine wool, medium wool and coarse wool are also offered.

President Cushman will make the address of welcome and there are to be short talks by W. B. Connell, sheep specialist at State college, Penn., De Witt C. Winz, editor of the Rural New Yorker; J. C. Cort, secretary of the New England Sheep Breeders association; Commissioner J. C. Whitlesey and others. A demonstration in meat cutting, promising to be of special interest to the women, is to be given by D. W. Hartzell of the Chicago national livestock and meat board.

Connecticut Agricultural college will cooperate by having a display of different breeds of sheep.

REHEARSING FOR PLAY FOR MOTHER-DAUGHTER BANQUET

The cast for the play, "Mother Blessing's Job," which is to be given at the Mother-and-Daughter banquet, is rehearsing in preparation for its presentation on Friday, May 17. The cast of characters is: Mrs. Blessing, Mrs. A. C. Freeman; Marjorie Blessing, Alice Parsons; Carol Blessing, Mildred Yerrington; Dorothy Drake, Myrtle Greiner; Barbara Davidson, Doris Lund; Janet Hutchins, Betty Pike; Elizabeth Harper, Marion Agnew; Gladys Kinder, Jean Clark; Sadie, Margaret West. The setting is the garden of the Blessings' country home and properties are to be loaned by the Gilbert Furniture company and Portsous & Mitchell company.

Tickets for the banquet are in the hands of the leaders from each church, Mrs. Edwin Ross at the Community house and Mrs. Henrietta Tefft at the Central Baptist church will supervise the serving of the banquet.

Under the able direction of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham the girls' choir of Trinity Methodist church is preparing the musical part of the program.

John M. Swahn is arranging for cornet and drums to precede the line of march from the Community house to the Central Baptist church auditorium. The girls and their mothers will carry lighted candles and sing "Follow the Gleam" as they march. With the vari-colored headbands and the banners of the different churches the line of march will prove a colorful affair.

As usual, there will be a roll call by churches, preceding the program. An innovation this year will be admitting to the gallery of the Central Baptist church the fathers of the girls, who would otherwise have to wait in their autos for the program to be over. The ministers of the co-operating churches are being invited as guests of the Council of Girls' Workers, under whose auspices the banquet is given.

CHAUGHNESSY CASE IS CONTINUED IN COURT

In the superior criminal court at New London, Tuesday, the case of James K. Shaughnessy of Pomfret, formerly manager of the Griswold Co.'s chicken farm, charged with embezzlement of $264, $431.25, and $156.25 at various times, was continued until the next term of the criminal court and he was allowed his liberty on bonds.

Shaughnessy pleaded not guilty to all counts. He was represented by Attorneys Edwin W. Higgins and G. C. Morgan. The attorneys stressed the fact that prior to the state's charge against their client, he had brought a civil action against the Griswold Co. for about $12,000 and this case was now pending in the civil superior court. They maintained that justice would better be served by first having the civil case tried and State Attorney Brown said that he believed that the pressing of the state's case before the civil action would be unfair to Shaughnessy and so the court continued it.

PROMINENT BALTIC MEN DRAWN INTO LIQUOR CASE

The arrest of two prominent Baltic men, Aible Cote, formerly prosecuting attorney of the town court of Sprague, and William Bouchard, a well known business man of the village, has followed the Sunday night raid upon the Wellington farm on Pautipaug hill where four 250 gallon copper stills were seized. It is claimed that Arthur Carrier, who is a fugitive, has been the operator of the plant and that the two Baltic men have been connected with it through furnishing financial backing and disposing of the product of the "bootleg" plant on the farm.

Mrs. Carrier and the two Baltic men named were presented in the Sprague town court Monday afternoon, the charges against all being manufacturing liquor and keeping with intent to sell. Mrs. Carrier pleaded guilty, but a continuance was granted to May 17 in the cases of Cote and Bouchard, who were released in the custody of their counsel, Attorney Thomas M. Shields. Mrs. Carrier was sent to jail in default of $1,000 bonds and sentence will be pronounced on the continuance date.

Push Gardner Lake Road Work

With two big steam shovels and nearly 100 laborers at work preliminary excavations and grading for the new road to run north from Dolbeare's corners on the Norwich-Salem road along the west side of Gardner lake are being pushed forward as quickly as possible.

The road is that on which the entrances to Camp Wakenah, the Boy Scout camp, and Camp Terrehegan, the Y. M. C. A. camp, are located. It is hoped to have the road completed from the Norwich-Salem road to the Camp Wakenah entrance before the camps open this summer.

It sometimes happens that a man who fails at everything else marries well.

DIME SAVINGS BANK OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED

At 11 o'clock Wednesday morning the 69th annual meeting of the corporators of the Dime Savings bank was held at the banking institution on Broadway. The corporators' officers and directors were all re-elected. According to the annual reports the bank has had one of the most successful years of its history.

Frank L. Woodard, treasurer, showed in his annual report that there was a gain in the deposits of the $2,286 depositors of $427,105.81. An increase of about half a million is noted in the assets of the bank over the previous year. The officers and directors were re-elected as follows:

President, E. P. Bishop; vice presidents, F. L. Woodard, Shepard B. Palmer, Walter F. Lester; directors, Edmund W. Perkins, James C. Henderson, Herbert B. Cary, Russell F. Smith, Herbert W. FAIRVIEW 4-H CLUB MEETS AT SCOTLAND ROAD HALL

When the Fairview 4-H club had its May meeting at the week end at Scotland Road hall the meeting was opened by the president, Miss Mary Wildowski. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Bertha Jazcot, who also called the roll. There were six present. The teacher, Mrs. Henry King, taught the club how to make various kinds of reed baskets. Plans were talked over for a playlet to be given at a future date.

Friday and Saturday, April 26 and 27, the teacher, Mrs. King, and Miss Ruth Avery attended in Hartford the sixth annual state roundup, held at the capitol, also were guests at the banquet Friday evening at a Hartford hotel.

The next meeting of the club will be held Saturday afternoon, May 25, at the hall on Scotland road.

The 4-H club was organized by Miss Charlotte Fellows in June, 1928, she having served as leader for several months. She was succeeded by Mrs. King.

Aide at Convention

Mrs. John Olsen has returned to her home on Town street after several days' visit last week with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Apley, of New London. Mrs. Olsen was a department aide from Sedgwick Relief corps, Norwich, at the annual W. R. C. convention held Thursday and Friday in New London.

With Fleet on Cruise

Chief Signalman Robert Wells Strong, a former Norwich Town young man, returned Sunday from several months' cruise in southern waters on the U. S. S. Camden, mother-ship to the fleet of submarines at the submarine base on the Thames. During his absence the fleet of submarines was engaged in mimic warfare. Signalman Strong is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Strong of Norwich Town.

Having spent a week's vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Avery, of West Town street, Miss Louise Avery returned to Willimantic Sunday evening to resume her studies at the State Normal school.

Miss Marjorie Merry returned to Hartford, where she is engaged in secretarial work, after passing the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orrin F. Merry.

Miss Marion Buckley, who spent several days last week at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Sanderson, of Willimantic, returned home Sunday. She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson, who were guests that day of the latter's parents.

SCOUTS OF TROOP 10 TO HIKE TO GARDNER LAKE

The Boy Scouts of the Sacred Heart church, Troop 10, held their weekly meeting in the basement of the church from 7 until 9 o'clock. Scoutmaster William Burns was in charge of the meeting. After the collection of dues and the roll call by Acting Scribe Charles Ryan, the reports of the baseball manager, John Fields, and Capt. Richard Cormier were accepted. A few more Scouts received their registration cards. Mr. Burns announced that each Scout would be required to pass one test at or before the next meeting. Plans were made for a 14-mile hike to Gardner Lake and back and to pass tests on the way. The Scouts repeated the Scout oath and law in unison and separately. Richard Cormier passed nature test. During the game period a tug-of-war and similar games were enjoyed.

A Get-Acquainted Meeting

The May meeting Monday afternoon of Home chapter of the King's Daughters at the Johnson home is to be a get-acquainted meeting, upon the suggestion of the leader, Mrs. William E. Manning at the April meeting of the chapter.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank D. Coles of Harland road were in New London Wednesday afternoon to attend the funeral of Mrs. George E. Bitgood.

Those from Norwich Town who attended the annual Six-church conference of Congregational churches at Hanover Congregational church Wednesday, included Mrs. William H. Whiteman, Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb. Mrs. Whiteman was accompanied by Miss Maria Briggs of Norwich.

Cubs Hear "Two War Trails."

At a recent meeting of Wolf Cub Pack of Scouts connected with Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, the Cubs greatly enjoyed an Indian legend "Two War Trails," as read by Assistant Cubmaster Ralph Smith.

Cubs who passed tests at the meeting were Charles Browning, wood work; Gustave Fishbone, ball throwing and thrift; John Gibbs, athletics; Ellis Bentley, household management; Frederick Ross, the efficient treasurer, gave a report showing all bills paid and a balance in the treasury.

Quarterly Conference

At the first quarterly conference of Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, held in the vestry by the district superintendent, Rev. Myron E. Genter of Norwich, the report of the pastor for the year ending April first showed that he had preached at 48 morning services with an attendance of 2293, the highest number at a single service being 100 and the average for the year 41. Twenty-nine evening services were held with an attendance of 1395, the highest attendance at a single service being 175. The pastor made 569 pastoral calls during the year.

The efficient treasurer, Theodore Brown gave a comprehensive report. Mrs. William Weaver reported for the Ladies' Aid society showing that much had been accomplished during the year, all bills are paid and a substantial balance is in the treasury.

Lewis E. Aldrich reported for the C. E. society giving an excellent report. The young folks contributed $150 toward the running expenses of the church and have increased their pledge to $250 for this year. Helen Hayland Potter, superintendent of the church school reported that the school is being reorganized and a new system of lessons being introduced. Stanton W. Brown reported for the trustees and his report showed that $140 in repairs and improvements had been added during the past year. The conference elected Mrs. Richard Carter and Walter D. Kelley stewards.

Through the courtesy of the Young Men's Christian association, the scoutmaster of Troop 2, Norwich Town, Rev. George Warren Potter arranged a swimming test recently. A group of Scouts from Troops 2 and 10 accompanied Rev. Mr. Potter to the Y pool, where tryouts for first class swimming were given. Life Saver Nesbo was in charge of the pool and gave some helpful instruction in diving and swimming. Assistant Patrol Leader Donald Olsen of Troop 2 was successful in passing the test and two Scouts from Troop 10.

Lost Sleep With Terrible Itching on Face. Cuticura Healed.

"My face started to break out in small pimples and then a terrible itching started. The pimples were very hard and very sore and some came to a head. I scratched my face a lot and it looked so bad I never cared to go out. I lost plenty of sleep.

SENATOR FESS QUESTIONS REPUBLICANISM OF BORAH

In a Letter Written and Made Public, Senator Fess Classifies Borah With Other "Pseudo-Republicans" That Have Defeated the Farm Program of President Hoover—Says They Have Forced a Congressional Session For All Summer, if Not For All Year—Asserts That Borah, "The One Party Responsible For the Session," Has Helped to Encourage a Coalition of Democrats and Insurgents That May Not Subside.

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP)—A letter complaining that Senator Borah and "other pseudo-republicans," have defeated the farm program of President Hoover in the senate, and thereby have forced a congressional session for all summer, if not all year, was written and made public today by Senator Fess, of Ohio, the republican whip.

Recalling that he had urged against the extra session, Senator Fess declared the president "had been led through Senator Borah and other pseudo-republicans to promise a special session upon the representation that such a promise would bring the republicans to the president's program."

The letter was addressed to Marshal Shepley of Toledo.

"Senator Borah" the letter continued, "The one person responsible for the session, refused to go along with the president and supported the debenture against which the president had written a letter to the chairman of the committee. Senator Nye another who had sought the president's promise for a special session, went against the president. Senator Brookhart, who had done such valiant service for the president in the campaign also broke away from the president and became his most bitter critic on the floor of the senate.

"While the debenture will not be in the law when it reaches the president, the result of the senate's vote to the country is most unfortunate. It means ultimately a complete coalition between the democrats and insurgents and a consequent arresting of the administration's policies. It also means the first break, which is the hardest, and which will be succeeded by many that will be not so difficult but more disastrous to the administration. It also means that we are in the session for all summer, if not all year."

MAY CHALLENGE SENATE'S RIGHT TO DEBENTURE VOTE

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP)—A movement in the house to challenge the senate's right to initiate the export debenture proposal on the ground that it constitutes a tax bill was dealt with a request by republican senate leaders today that this challenge be laid aside, since they considered it might cause a prolonged delay in the enactment of a farm relief bill.

The fear was expressed by administration leaders that farm legislation would be hindered should the two branches of congress become entangled in the constitutional question involved. Only the house can initiate revenue proposals. An agreement was sought by which the difficulty could be decided by the senate and house conference committee which ultimately must reconcile differences between the farm bills passed by the two branches.

House republican leaders had shown a disposition to refuse to accept the senate measure on its being sent over for adjustment of differences, but tonight it was indicated the house will receive the bill after adopting a resolution declaring its action was not to be considered as setting a precedent.

In an effort to prevent a serious difference between the two branches of congress, Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, conferred with Speaker Longworth and Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the house republican leader.

Watson urged that the house lay aside the constitutional point and an agreement is looked for.

A prediction in the senate by Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, that the house would refuse the senate bill, brought a defense of the senate's right to include the debenture section by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader.

The Arkansas senator maintained that there was no foundation for the contention that the debenture plan relates to the revenue raising provisions of the constitution, and declaring that "any lawyer who examines the question" would assert the propriety of the senate's action.

He said house leaders were insistent that that branch of congress should not express itself on the debenture plan but he predicted that "this congress will not adjourn until the debenture plan has been voted upon and the whole congress has expressed its will."

While negotiations were going on among house and senate leaders, the attention of the senate itself was drawn to the proposal of Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, to eliminate fruits and vegetables from the operation of the farm bill. A vote is expected on his amendment tomorrow and probably will be followed by a final vote on the farm measure.

A sharp division arose over the Copeland amendment, with those supporting it contending that fruit and vegetable growers did not approve of the farm bill and desired to have nothing to do with it. Senators opposing the amendment declared that producers of these commodities desired the option offered in the bill to come under its provisions if they so desired.

SENATOR WALSH ATTACKS TARIFF REVISION BILL

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP)—An attack on the new tariff revision bill, because "it fails to give relief to several industries that have a righteous claim," to protection, was made by Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, in a statement today.

In addition to its failure to protect, Senator Walsh said, the bill "penalizes all manufacturing interests by increasing their cost of raw materials," and "levies outrageous and exorbitant increased duties on food products and building materials which will materially increase the cost of living to every American without any corresponding increase in his income or wages."

Senator Walsh termed the bill extremely disappointing to the so-called "eastern interests," because of its failure to grant relief to that portion of the boot and shoe industry which, he said, was contending against very serious competition from foreign importations of women's shoes.

CHARGES OF GRAFT IN WIDENING OF STREET

BOSTON, May 9—(AP)—Charges of graft in connection with the widening of Exchange street, at a cost of $1,750,000, made today by the Boston finance commission, tonight drew the fire of Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols. In a 19-page report, he made a general denial of the accusations and declared that the commission "should be completely reorganized."

Meanwhile Gov. Frank G. Allen, after studying the commission report, directed that it be submitted to Attorney General Joseph E. Warner for such action as he deemed proper.

Among the contentions of the commission was the charge that the sum paid by the city was greatly in excess of the assessed valuation of the property. The deal was described as "most flagrant case of waste of taxpayers' money by public officials."

BEE CAUSED AUTO MISHAP ENTAILING $5,000 DAMAGES

NEW HAVEN, May 9—(AP)—Because a bee upset the decorum of Mrs. Anna L. Holbrook, of Madison, while she was driving an automobile in which Mrs. Ida W. Rindge, of Madison, was an occupant and crashed into a fence causing injuries to Mrs. Rindge, a jury today awarded the plaintiff damages of $5,000.

The accident occurred a year ago on the Killingworth turnpike when a bee flew into the window of the machine and lighted on Mrs. Rindge, wife of Dr. Milo N. Rindge, former medical examiner. Mrs. Holbrook attempted to turn around and shake the bee off and in doing so lost control of the machine, which crashed into a highway fence.

NEW HAVEN MAN HELD FOR THEFT FROM MAILS

NEW HAVEN, May 9—(AP)—Thomas F. Mahan, of this city, appeared before U. S. Commissioner R. H. Alcorn, today charged with theft from the mails. He waived examination and was released under $1,000 bonds for probable hearing in the U. S. district court, May 23.

DEFENDS STOCK MARKET LOANS AS NECESSARY

CHICAGO, May 9—(AP)—E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock exchange, tonight defended stock market loans as necessary and vital to American prosperity and progress.

Addressing members of the Chicago Stock exchange at their annual dinner, Mr. Simmons declared, "Any arbitrary curtailment of funds for stock market loans inevitably acts as a curb upon progress and prosperity since it hinders business companies from readily obtaining capital which their continual development necessitates."

Acknowledging the charge that stock market loans frequently subserve speculation, he denied that speculation even approached gambling and hurled the counter charge that criticism of the loans was "based upon unjustified assumptions, partial knowledge and inadequate perspectives."

ASSUMED RESPONSIBILITY FOR MICHAELSON LIQUOR

KEY WEST, Fla., May 9—(AP)—Walter Gramm, Chicago coal dealer, who admitted ownership yesterday of the trunks in which the government charged liquor was found and for the ownership of which Representative M. Alfred Michaelson of Illinois was tried and acquitted, was arrested today. The federal warrant charged violation of the tariff act of 1922.

Gramm made bond of $2,000 but refused to comment other than to remark "I'm sorry."

Representative Michaelson who was cleared of charges of illegally importing and transporting intoxicating liquors, also declined to make a statement.

DATE FOR LINDBERGH-MORROW MARRIAGE

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP)—The Daily News in a copyrighted article tomorrow will say that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Morrow will be married Saturday, June 15, at the Morrow home at Englewood, N. J.

The Daily News will say it learned from a close friend of the Morrow family that the ceremony will take place at 4 p. m., and that Miss Morrow's elder sister, Miss Elizabeth Morrow, will be the bridesmaid. Miss Morrow's wedding dress will be of white satin trimmed with cream lace which her mother wore at her wedding.

SALARY OF COMMISSIONERS EXEMPT FROM INCOME TAX

HARTFORD, May 9—(AP)—The members of the Connecticut commission to revise the general statutes, are state officers, engaged in an essential government function, and therefore the money paid to them by the state for their work is not taxable, under the federal income tax. A ruling to this effect has been received from the bureau of internal revenue in Washington by Collector Robert O. Eaton, who sought a ruling at the request of Fred A. Scott, chairman of the revision commission.

The ribbons on the wreaths almost uniformly bore the inscription: "Revenge for the heroes of the bloody Mayday of 1929."

BILL TO LEGALIZE CALLING OF STRIKES WAS DEFEATED

BOSTON, May 9—(AP)—A bill to make lawful the calling of strikes to force closed shop agreements was defeated in the house today by a roll call vote of 108 to 104. The vote followed a sharp debate during which the bill was attacked as unfair.

Representative Leonard of Watertown said that under the bill a union could tell an employer that if had a non-union man he should discharge him or face a strike. Representative Pratt of Saugus said the bill was fair inasmuch as it provided that there could be a lockout for the exclusive employment of non-union men, just as it provided that there could be a strike to enforce a closed shop.

SURFACE TESTS WITH SUBMARINE DEFENDER

BRIDGEPORT, May 9—(AP)—Surface tests with the Defender submarine owned by Simon Lake, of Milford, were made tonight when the craft was towed about the Bridgeport harbor while Commander Sloan Danenhower, inventor, checked up the equipment for rescue work. A test under water is planned to take place in a few days, in preparation for the government trials which were postponed until the latter part of the month when the "Falcon," government towing ship, was unable to come here as scheduled.

TWO CHILDREN AND THEIR MOTHER BADLY BURNED

ROCHESTER, N. H., May 9—(AP)—Two children and their mother were badly burned here tonight when a packing box the children were using as a playhouse took fire. The mother was treated at home while the children were taken to the Rochester hospital, where one was in critical condition.

The mother was Mrs. Emma Hesilton, 28, and the children, Willis, 6 and Richard 3. Willis was said to be in a serious condition.

BOSTON POLICE BROKE UP A DEMONSTRATION OF STRIKERS

BOSTON, May 9—(AP)—Police tonight broke up a demonstration of strikers in front of the Universal Shoe company's plant in the Roxbury district and arrested 26 pickets, 12 of whom were women. Charges of obstructing a free foot passage were brought against them. They will be arraigned tomorrow.

Conferences between two shoe manufacturers and the general executive board of the United Shoe Workers' union continued today.

Grand List Of State Now $2,655,295,896

Annual Report Shows an Increase of $111,045,559 in the Assessed Value of Real Estate, Personal Property.

HARTFORD, May 9—An increase of $111,045,559 in the assessed value of real estate and personal property in Connecticut, is shown in the annual report of State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, announced today. The grand list for the entire state is now $2,655,295,896.

More than $127,300,000 is now collected annually from Connecticut in federal, state, county and local taxation, the report shows, and the per capita tax for the state is $77.27. The average tax rate for the state is 24.9 mills, compared with 24.3 for the previous year. This calls for a grand levy of taxes on real estate and tangible personal property, to be collected by local tax collectors, of $66,097,896. This amount is $4,148,110 larger than the previous year's gross levy for the 347 independent municipalities in the state.

Actual tax collections through all sources in Connecticut for the year mentioned follows:

Federal income taxes and other internal revenue receipts, for year ended June 30, 1918—$86,114,139.

State of Connecticut (regular taxes and motor vehicle registration fees) year ended June 30, 1928—$27,135,811.

Eight counties (50 per cent of unincorporated business tax, and county tax on towns) year ended March 31, 1928—$790,151.

Property taxes collected locally; personal taxes, towns share of stock tax and estate penalty tax year ended March 31, 1928—$63,271,818.

In 1924 the local tax bill was $51,597,231. In 1928, it was $87,433,638, an increase in four years of $15,836,357, or 30.7 per cent in the amount of money raised by local tax districts. The report observes that the increase can only be partially accounted for by increases in population and by decrease in purchasing power of the dollar.

During the year, the grand list of the state increased 4.4 per cent, the average tax rate increased 2.5 per cent and the grand levy of property taxes increased 6.7 per cent. In 1924, the state grand list was $2,258,005,127 and the average tax rate was 24.6 mills.

Uncollected taxes in all local municipalities as of April 1, 1928, amounted to $9,064,791.23. The highest per capita tax in the state is in the town of Darient, with a figure of $117.59 per person. The lowest per capita tax is in the town of Preston, with $6.92 for each inhabitant.

The highest per capita assessment is shown to be in the town of Morris, with $4,209.20, while Preston, with a per capital assessment of $345.77 is the lowest. Hartford raised the largest amount of taxes locally, with a levy of $8,539,820.73, and Marlborough, with a levy of $6,205.98 is shown to be the lowest in the group of 169 towns. For the largest cities of the state, the local tax statistics follow:

New Haven—Total tax levy $7,539,260; per capita assessment, $1,836.23; per capital tax, $45.79.

Hartford—Total levy, $8,339,820; per capita assesment, $2,122.70; per capita tax, $49.90.

Bridgeport—Total levy, $7,795,274; per capita assessment, $1,734.07; per capita tax, $51.16.

Waterbury—Total tax levy, $5,384,403; per capital assessment, $1,554.59; per capita tax, $50.77.

BRITISH PRESS OPPOSED TO YOUNG REPARATION PLAN

LONDON, May 9—(AP)—The British government today gave in the house of commons its considered view of the question which has arisen over reduction of the British share in German reparations payments at the Paris expert's conference. The question has stirred the entire British press to opposition.

The cabinet considered the matter in council during the morning and in the afternoon Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, made a carefully guarded statement to the house embodying the results of the ministerial deliberations.

There was a certain intentional vagueness of phrase about Mr. Churchill's statements.

But its essence was that British delegates to the Paris conference had no power to commit the British government to any agreement, and that such proposals as "had been foreshadowed in the newspapers yesterday" would be inacceptable.

Mr. Churchill studiously avoided mentioning Owen D. Young, who is the author of the proposal in question, and just as carefully avoided saying whether the government would under any conditions oppose any modifications of the separate agreement for allocating reparations payments among the allies.

FOR REDUCED FREIGHT RATES ON EXPORT WHEAT FLOUR

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP)—Falling in line with the action of western railroads, representatives of eastern carriers decided today to apply for reduced freight rates on export wheat flour in addition to wheat in an effort to relieve the plight of the farmer.

Decision to apply the reduction to wheat flour today was communicated to the interstate commerce commission, along with an announcement that all grain other than wheat would be excluded from the relief measure.

Meeting recently in Washington, eastern railway executives decided to seek reduced rates on all grain. The western carriers followed suit but decided the new rates should apply only to wheat and wheat flour.

Representatives of the eastern railways met today in New York with millers interested in obtaining lower rates for wheat flour and agreed to make their plan conform to that of the western carriers.

REPUTED HEIR TO $548,000 COULDN'T PAY HOTEL BILL

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 9—(AP)—Louis White of New Haven, Conn., reputed heir to $548,000, spent the last 10 weeks in the county work house because he couldn't pay a $64 hotel bill.

His attorney, Henry Levine, said White's difficulty arose from the fact that he can't obtain his fortune until he is 35. Levine, however, promised to see that the hotel bill was paid and White was released by the presiding criminal judge, Samuel E. Kramer.

Court officials said that White still faces a similar charge of defrauding an innkeeper at Akron.

New Angle To Death Of W. T. Huntington

Huntington Family Chauffeur Has Disappeared and Police Have Been Ordered to Search For Him.

WINDSOR, Conn., May 9—(AP)—Whether Walter Treadway Huntington, 20 year old Harvard college junior, came to his death by suicide or homicide continued to baffle investigators tonight. Statements made to them by residents near Murphy farm, where the student's body was found early yesterday, led them to a belief that suicide or homicide, a girl was in some way connected with the slaying.

While authorities argued with one another over different theories and started a hunt for a "dark haired slender young girl," it was discovered that Claire Kenelly, for five years the Huntington family chauffeur, was missing, and a police search for him was ordered. Kenelly, whose attentions toward the widowed mother of the slain youth is known to have antagonized young Huntington, had checked out from the Windsor hotel, where he had been living, and had disappeared. Mrs. Mary Clark Huntington, the student's mother, who is now prostrate, said she had not seen him since last night.

The theory of a "woman in the case," arose when the authorities, having failed to find the .32 calibre revolver believed to have been used in the shooting, began questioning residents near the farm. Two men told of a dark colored coupe which several times had driven up the road, about 15 feet from the spot on which young Huntington's body had lain, and had parked there. In the machine, they said, was a dark haired, slender young girl and a youthful looking boy.

John Strong, a farmer, said that within the last month he had seen the car three times and that it was always on either a Friday or Saturday. John Sabot, another Windsor farmer, declared he last saw the car a week ago Sunday and at that time observed it bore a Massachusetts license plate. The house, both men remembered, was about 10:30 or 11 o'clock.

Because young Huntington had made frequent trips to his home here from Cambridge on week ends and because the description given of the young man in the car fitted that of the student, the investigators believe it was he who had driven by the farm on the several occasions with the girl. What strengthened this theory, in their minds, is that on the various visits he had made, he frequently left home, or that of another person, at about 10 o'clock, presumably to return to his own home. Authorities point out that young Huntington, returned from a ride with his life-long chum, Burdett Williams, at about 10:30 o'clock and left home again a few minutes later, telling his mother he was going to the drug store. He was not seen again until the body was found.

CONTINUE SEARCH FOR MISSING AMHERST STUDENT

AMHERST, Mass., May 9—(AP)—The state police today continued their search for Frederick McCann, Jr., missing Amherst college sophomore, without finding any trace of the student. A detail of patrolmen combed the surrounding country in a vain effort to pick up some trace of the Short Hills, N. J., collegian who was last seen leaving a theatre here last Friday.

Those in charge of the police details believed that McCann was mentally unbalanced through overstudy when he left here and that he might have been in hiding in some deserted farmhouse. A report that he had been seen in the vicinity of his family's country home at Newland, N. H., failed of verification.

The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McCann, were in hiding here and have refused to give out any statement regarding their son's disappearance. College authorities were at loss to explain McCann's action.

All classes were resumed today at the college. The students joined in the search for McCann yesterday under the leadership of President Pease. Several individual groups, however, made trips today into the countryside in an effort to pick up some clue to McCann's whereabouts.

SUN'S CORONA PHOTOGRAPHED THROUGH HUGE TELESCOPES

MANILA, May 9—(AP)—Astronomers from Hamburg, Germany, and Washington, D. C., who brought tons of instruments half way around the earth for a four-minute clear view of the sun in eclipse were successful today at Iloilo, Central Philippines.

The sun's corona, visible only during total eclipse was photographed through huge telescopes upon the ground and from two airplanes 5,000 and 10,000 feet above the earth in pure atmosphere. As a result, it is hoped that something further may be learned of the composition of the corona, which may reveal the secrets of the atom and the ultimate structure of the universe. The scientists also hope by study of the photographic plates to learn something of the chemical composition of the corona, its origin, its relation to sun spots and the rapidity with which it takes shape.

GUARDS AT CHARLESTOWN STATE PRISON SUSPENDED

BOSTON, May 9—(AP)—Two guards at the Charlestown state prison were suspended today during an investigation of the escape of Albert Aldridge, Negro prisoner, who cut holes through a cell wall and the roof to get away some time last night. The investigation was begun by Commissioner of Correction Sanford Bates.

Aldridge has a record of escaping twice from the Deer Island prison, once from the Dedham jail, and aiding Stephen Hoppe to escape from the Dedham jail. Search of highways and trains today, and of Roxbury, his former home, revealed no clews of his whereabouts.

LAW ENFORCEMENT PLEA TO AMERICAN LAW INSTITUTE

George W. Wickersham Asserts That Pesident Hoover's Challenge Shows That the Bar Generally Must Exert Their Influence to Induce the People to Respect Law as Law—Chief Justice Taft Declares That Until Legislators Furnish to Lawyers and Judges the Means of Improvement We Shall Not Have That Improvement.

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP)—George W. Wickersham, of New York, one of those believed to have been selected by President Hoover for his law enforcement commission, called on the legal profession today to assist the chief executive in his law enforcement program.

Addressing the American Law institute, of which he is president, Mr. Wickersham declared the president's challenge shows that the bar generally and the institute members particularly must exert their influence in bringing the minds of the people back to respect for law as law.

The former attorney general said more than any one law or policy was involved, the question being perpetuation of civil liberty "which can not long endure if the law of the land loosens its hold upon the conscience of our fellow citizens.

Chief Justice Taft, under whose presidential administration Mr. Wickersham served in the cabinet, also touched upon law enforcement in his address to the institute.

"Until we get the legislators of the nation thoroughly charged with the knowledge of their duty with respect to furnishing to lawyers and judges the means of improvement," he said, "We shall not find that improvement."

Coincident with the meeting of the institute, reports were being circulated that Mr. Wickersham was one of the president's selections for the law enforcement commission and it became known that Mr. Hoover had given up hope of obtaining the services of Associate Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, of the supreme court, as chairman of the investigative body.

It was stated in official quarters that the chief executive has not determined who would be chairman of the commission, but that he had about decided upon several other members. Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, secretary of war under President Wilson, was reported to be among these.

MEETING OF TRUSTEES OF CONN. COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

NEW LONDON, May 9—(AP)—Three trustees of Connecticut College for Women, were re-elected to serve on the board for five years and two faculty resignations were accepted at a meeting of the board today. One professor was appointed.

The trustees re-elected to five year terms were Mrs. Frances S. Williams, Glastonbury; Judge Christopher L. Avery, Groton, and Clement Scott, Hartford. The board accepted the resignations of Miss Leonie Jeanne Setchanove, assistant professor of French and Italian since 1924 and Miss Alice Cowles Fairchild, assistant professor of home economics since 1925.

Prof. Morris Roberts, of Harvard, was appointed assistant professor of English.

The secretary report for Dean Wilbur L. Cross, of New Haven, who was absent, that a committee will probably report on obtaining a new president for the college at the June meeting. Benjamin T. Marshall, former president, resigned about a year ago.

The report stated that the college kept within its budget of nearly $300,000 during the year and that plans were nearly completed for the building of a new administration building to cost around $300,000.

The trustees of the board present were Mrs. Frances S. Williams, Glastonbury; Judge Christopher L. Avery, Groton; Mary M. Partridge, Hartford; Mary Bulkeley, Hartford; William H. Reeves, New Haven; Julia Warner, Nauzatuck; Colin S. Buell, New London; Louise C. Howe, Norwich; Harrison B. Freeman, Hartford and Mrs. Mary C. Mitchell, Hartford.

EIGHT AMERICAN WOMEN AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE

LONDON, May 9—(AP)—Eight American young women tonight were among those presented at the first court of the season and the first court in 29 years which a queen of England has held alone. The single golden throne was conspicuous but the knowledge that King George was fully recovered from his illness although not yet strong enough to attend such a ceremony, gave the scene an atmosphere of gaiety and joy.

The eight Americans were Helen Wills, California; Elizabeth Behn, Alice Coonley, Illinois; Lillian Emerson, North Carolina; Mrs Albert Halsted, Ohio; Jocelyn Pierson, Maryland; Harriet Walker, California; and Virginia Willys, New York.

Queen Mary herself, in a wonderful gown of tissue which changed its hue with every movement was the central figure of the brilliant and even spectacular scene in Buckingham palace, made all the more striking by the fact that her majesty stood alone in her regal splendor during the long hours while hundreds of debutantes made their curtsies before her.

TWO GIFTS FOR PEOPLE'S FOREST AT BARKHAMSTED

HARTFORD, May 9—(AP)—Two gifts of land as additions to the people's forest at Barkhamsted, have been received by the state from Mrs. Harris Whittemore, of Naugatuck and the Connecticut Daughters of the American Revolution, it was announced today.

The tract of land given by Mrs. Whittemore comprises 26 acres of woodland along the Farmington river and will be used as a public camp ground. Mrs. Whittemore's gift is in memory of her husband, the late Harris Whittemore, who was for many years a member of the state park and forest commission and will be known as the "Harris Whittemore camp ground on the People's forest."

The other gift is a tract of 90 acres to be known as the "D. A. R. tract on the People's forest." Both tracts will later be marked by tablets.

The People's forest is a unique institution, being a public forest devoted to growing timber, protecting wild life and providing outdoor recreation from private gifts. The forest now covers nearly 1500 acres and ove 300 individuals and associations in the state have contributed to the fund.

FURTHER HEARINGS FOR RADIO CORP. OF AMERICA

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP)—The radio commission announced today that on May 22, it would grant further hearings to the Radio Corporation of America, Mackay Radio and Telegraph company, Wireless Telegraph and Communication company, and Intercity Radio Telegraph company on their applications for high frequency channels for point-to-point communication in the United States.

The Radio Corporation and others, the commission said, already have presented evidence but the commission desires additional findings before they grant any or all of the applications now pending.

REVOLT AGAINST TARIFF REVISION BILL IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP)—A revolt against the tariff revision bill among a large group of republicans from the agricultural west, who are joined by at least one eastern republican and an apparently solid democratic membership, materialized today as the house began general debate of the measure.

The opposition, which developed both on the floor and in state delegation conferences, indicated that a vigorous fight would be directed against certain proposed increased duties on manufactured commodities and particularly against the retention of hides, leather and boots and shoes on the free list.

Republicans from ten agricultural states lent a decided impetus to the expected democratic opposition to the bill. In a conference before the house met, they expressed dissatisfaction with the proposed duties on building materials and with failure of the ways and means committee to grant higher protection to certain farm commodities and to take others from the free list.

The conference selected Representative Dickinson, republican, Iowa, to present a request to the republican caucus to be held tomorrow to postpone definite action on an amendment limiting rule until the farm group had completed a thorough study of the bill.

Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee, who opened the debate on the floor with an explanation of the bill, said the conference tomorrow would only be a starter on the rule question and that many others would be held before a decision is reached.

A spirit of compromise among republican members of the New York house delegation was indicated at a meeting held by them, after which Representative Parker said its majority was "very well satisfied with the tariff bill."

"It is very probable, however," he added, "that a majority of them will support a little more liberal policy towards certain agricultural products."

MEETING OF NAT'L. SOCIETY OF NEW ENGLAND WOMEN

HARTFORD, May 9—(AP)—A resolution expressing the hope that the Hartford Woman's club would rescind its decision to abandon the salute to the flag with which, since the war, they have been accustomed to open their business meetings, presented by Mrs. A. Willis Byrne, before the National Society of New England Women, was adopted today at the closing session of the three-day congress which has been held here. Mrs. Byrne, who was re-elected president of the national organization at this congress, is also a member of the Hartford Woman's club.

A resolution proposed by the New York colony suggesting that a change be made in the voting for officers-general was referred back to the committee on amendments and they were instructed to report at the next annual meeting of the society to be held next year in Boston.

It was voted to sponsor the Mark Twain memorial and a resolution in favor of the monument in honor of Jonathan Edwards, to be placed in East Windsor, was passed.

A fund to aid worthy women of New England descent was voted during the morning session.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The senate continued debate on the farm relief bill.

The tariff bill was formally reported by the house ways and means committee.

Eastern railroads agreed to limit reduction of grain rates to wheat and wheat flour.

The senate manufactures committee heard further testimony on conditions in southern textile mills.

Representative Will R. Wood of Indiana was chosen chairman of the national republican congressional committee.

Republicans from ten agricultural states decided to ask the house to postpone adoption of a rule governing tariff consideration.

TARIFF APPEAL FOR SHOE AND LEATHER INDUSTRIES

BOSTON, May 9—(AP)—An order memorializing congress to amend the tariff revision bill, recently reported by the ways and means committee of congress, to provide protection for the shoe and leather industries of Massachusetts, was unanimously adopted by the state house of representatives today. Copies of the order will be sent immediately to President Hoover, the presiding officers of both branches of congress and to the congressional representatives of Massachusetts.

JUDGE RESERVES DECISION IN $5000 DAMAGE SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 9— The civil suit of Arnold C. Kent vs. Andrew Dominick, based on an alleged real estate fraudulency and in which damages of about $5,000 are claimed was heard at the session of the May civil term of the Windham county superior court held in this city today. Judge L. F. Waldo Mar in presided. Attorney John B. Harvey appeared for the plaintiff and Attorney Irving E. Miron of Putnam for the defendant. The case lasted until mid-afternoon when brief arguments were made by the attorneys and Judge Marvin announced that he would reserve his decision. The case has to do with the purchase of a residence and gasoline filling station at Pheonixville, in the town of Eastford, by Kent from Dominick, the transfer being consummated February 1, 1928. Kent paid $3,000 in cash and gave a mortgage for $3,600. Kent had saved the money while engaged as a wood sawer for a number of years and the plaintiffs sought to show that the defendant knew that difficulty would be met with by Kent in securing a state license for selling gasoline and that the pumps were not located on the property. Two weeks after the transfer of the property the state motor vehicle department, through its gasoline branch, ordered the pumps removed because they fronted on the highway and were not 15 feet back from the road as required.

The plaintiff is principally seeking a cancellation of the sale agreement and the return of the money involved in the deal, together with the mortgage.

Plaintiff witnesses besides Kent included John Smith, state highway engineer, Edward A. Torrant of Hartford, an inspector for the gasoline branch of the state department, Robert Coburn of Phoenixville, Royal D. Ofemons, also of Phoenixville, and Walter R. Church of this city, manager of the local station of the Gulf Refining company. Attorney Miron presented his client and Attorney M. H. Geissler of Putnam at whose office the property transfer was made. Anton Kalechits of Eastford and Charles F. Taylor, civil engineers for the state highway department. An additional plaintiff witness was Charles W. Tryon of this city, real estate agent, who said that he would value the property at $2,000.

The next case on the docket list is that of Rachel Stein and Ida Hoffman of Brooklyn, N. Y., versus Jacob Tropp of Woodstock, an action for $2,000 damages concerning an exchange of property located in New York and Brooklyn, respectively.

NO. WINDHAM SCHOOL NOT TO BE CLOSED NEXT YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 9 — North Windham residents have had their fears put at rest with a statement by the town school committee that the grammar school of the town will not be closed next year. That the school was doomed for the next term became the unwelcome belief of the North Windhamites when the committee recently voted to defer the appointments of a teacher and of a janitor for the next school year. It was thought that the committee had in mind the elimination of the operating expense of the school with a plan to transfer the pupils to other schools in the town. Most of the villagers were opposed to any such move as indicated in the lost list of signers to a petition which has been presented to the board. To definitely set these fears at rest the board, at a meeting held Wednesday evening, voted to continue the school. The board also received a petition for the protection of children attending the Windham street school from Main street traffic. The board discussed this matter and that of establishing a safety zone for the children at the Natchaug school on Jackson street. Chairman Guild appointed Dr. W. P. S. Keating, Walter R. King and Robert O. Snow as a committee to appear before the common council at the May meeting next Monday night to ask for adequate police protection at these schools.

Secretary Egbert A. Case announced that George R. Sturges, director of attendance and employment of the state board of education has rendered a decision in favor of the school committee on the appeal of Carl Shamansky for the transportation of his three children to the Windham Center school.

The following assignments of committeemen were made for the presentation of diplomas at the graduations of the public schools in June: Dr. W. P. S. Keating, Windham high school, June 20; Raymond A. Parker, Natchaug grammar school, June 19; William B. Sweeney, Model school, June 19; Charles H. Backus, North Windham school and Walter R. King, Windham Center school, the dates of which have not been decided upon. With the rating at the South Windham school reduced to the seventh grade, there will not be any graduating class at this school this year.

A beauty contest with the object of finding the most beautiful and perfect girl in the city and award her the official title of "Miss Willimantic of 1929" is to be conducted by the Capitol theater and a score of local merchants who have contributed a $300 wardrobe toward the winner. In addition to securing the title and complete wardrobe the winning young lady will also be sent to represent this city in the Miss New England Pageant to be held at Revere Beach, Boston, in July. The lucky winner of this event will receive a $5,000 wardrobe and a 25-week theater contract to appear in all the finest theaters in New England. The contest is open to unmarried girls from the ages of 16 to 26, who reside within 10 miles of the city and who have had no professional stage experience.

JEWETT CITY

BOY CHANGED TROUT FOR X FROM CITY SPORTSMEN

Fishermen haven't changed a whole lot! Some years ago four young men from Jewett City were accustomed every summer to take a day off, and go down to the Poquetanock drawbridge for crabs.

In those days, the railroad bridge being a draw, (although it was seldom lifted) a man was kept there for the purpose of raising the bridge, should any boats desire to pass. He always kept a supply of crabs on hand, generally purchased elsewhere, to guard against allowing crab fishing parties to return without evidence of success.

The quartet from Jewett City, two of whom live in the borough today, always made sure to carry along enough money, to purchase a fair sized catch.

Thursday a local boy caught 17 trout, beauties, from a brook in Plainfield, which he said was "alive with them." Coming home, just at the lower Tadpole bridge, a voice from a passing machine, bound up the line sang out "Hey, there!" The boy stopped, as did the northbound machine. A man with hip boots alighted, then another, followed by a third. Stanley said he guessed that he was going to sell something by the way the men's eyes "bugged" out.

And he did! The trio were going fishing. Here were fish. Seventeen of them. "Take no chances," said one man. "A bird in the hand," said another. The lad slid the 17 off his stick into the grass. He brought home 7 and in lieu of the other ten, he had a perfectly good saw-horse in his jeans.

ASST. TREAS. SHERMAN LEAVING ASHLAND CO.

H. A. Sherman, assistant treasurer at Ashland Cotton Co., has resigned, the resignation taking effect May eighteenth. Mr. Sherman has held the position for two years.

Wednesday's drowning accident in Taftville, has given rise to no little controversy in the borough. Some here claim that the Shetucket river does not touch Taftville, maintaining that the Shetucket is formed by the confluence of the Quinebaug and the river that flows through Tafts. Others are no less positive that the Shetucket river drives the Ponemah mills in Taftville. It is believed here that someone that knows, will settle the difference of borough opinion, by correct information, by telling the name of the stream that turns Ponemah's wheels.

On larger naval vessels a number of young sailors are detailed each day to act as sideboys. These sideboys take part in the ceremony that is rendered to officers coming on board and leaving the ship. When an officer is about to come aboard these boys line up on both side of the gangway and salute the officer while a boatswain's mate blows a designated call on his pipe. The same ceremony takes place when the officer leaves. The number of boys varies from two to eight, according to the rank of the officer. This custom originated in the days when ships had no gangway and officers were hoisted aboard in a little tub or boatswain's chair, from the pulling boat in which they had returned from shore. The drum having a line attached to it had a crank on each end, hence there was always an even number of boys. As rotundity and dignity increased with rank, higher officers required more boys.

Suspense, Danger, Thrills and Romance Crowded each other into Rachel's Life

Under the stern fire of her husband's eyes the fibre of Rachel Melbourne's love for him suddenly grew strained and taut . . . in the days that followed she could point almost to the very hour that Melbourne had chilled her love for him.

Then she ran away from her cottage by the sea and fate claimed her for its own, whisking her to a gilded den in London, across the sea to New York into the sinister environment of a tawdry night club; then an apartment on Park Avenue; a fashionable girls' school; the bridal suite in a great hotel.

Into her life came Henley. Henley was a magnificent looking man, tall, slender and of easy carriage. He had a clear skin . . . his dark cropped mustache did not conceal a sensitive mouth that just escaped being sensual. His dark eyes could be cold or kind. . . .

Here is a story that is enthralling from beginning to end. There's not a dull page in it. Rachel Melbourne's romance by a turn of fate could be the romance of any spirited, attractive girl. "Driven," it is called and it begins tomorrow in the New York Daily Mirror. . . . "Driven"; brisk, exciting, winning. Don't miss a chapter. Begin reading it tomorrow in the Daily Mirror.

"In her flowing draperies of rainbow hues, Rachel came at his call and danced her way into the picture to the tumultuous applause of the audience. Over and over again they were brought back to respond to encores . . ."

"There was a gasp of astonishment at the close of the speech, when Rachel, with her eyes looking squarely into Richard Henley's, tore off her mask. With a strained, mocking laugh, she tossed it in the direction of his table . . ."

POETRY

The Editorial Room

Oh! a curious place is an editor's den
That dancing sanctorum that's ruled by the pen.
The odors are musty,
The furnishings dusty,
But it's cosy and bright to newspapermen.

Though files are untidy and cobwebs are thick
The wires of the world are bursting "Be Quick!
We want more excitement
Some wreck or indictment,"
So the editors work while the typewriters click.

When you enter the room and just take a peek
At the politics, weddings and deaths in a heap,
With fires and divorces,
The question of course is
However they sort it and sell it so cheap.

But—shuttles fly fast in the newspaper loom,
Be the woof and the warp news of panic or boom,
And yet you will wonder,
Whenever in thunder
It's housecleaning day in the editor's room.

—By Sophie E. Redford, in Boston Herald.

Tomorrow

It may be a much better day
Tomorrow,
I may feel more like work than play
Tomorrow,
The hard tasks that today appal
Me when I hear the stern Duty's call,
Perhaps I shall perform them all
Tomorrow.

It may not seem so hard to work
Tomorrow,
I may feel less inclined to shirk
Tomorrow,
The tasks that seem so irksome now
(Beneath their heavy weight I bow)
May seem less hard—I don't know how!—
Tomorrow.

My duties may not seem so stern
Tomorrow,
Some easy way out I may learn
Tomorrow,
Shall I my duties, then, fulfill?
I could, but I don't think I will,
I'll put off everything until Tomorrow!

He continues to whistle throughout the day and upon occasion has awakened at night and started to whistle for something better to do. Physicians and child experts are of the opinion that Cyril, Jr., is perhaps the youngest whistler on record. They expressed amazement that a child so young could control the comparatively difficult muscular co-ordination necessary to produce a whistle.

A knot is defined as a nautical mile of 6,080.27 feet, used in the United States navy and merchant marine. It is never used as a measure of distance but as a rate of speed a ship is making. Thus when it is said the ship is making 10 knots it is the same as saying it is going at a rate of 10 nautical miles an hour. The origin of the word knot is not known but it is supposed by some that it is a relic of the day when the ship's speed was measured by means of a contrivance called the chip log. When the log was thrown over the stern the line of the log slipped through the operator's fingers. The line was knotted at intervals. A part of the equipment was a small hour glass, the sand running from one compartment to another in a known time. To get the speed of the ship it was necessary to count the number of knots that went through the fingers while the sand was falling into the lower compartment. Thus it became natural for the skipper to say he was making so many knots, meaning that so many knots had gone through his fingers in that time.

A HOPEFUL OUTLOOK.

There are times when a conference, even though it actually accomplishes nothing, lays the foundation for what is believed will be a real and advantageous agreement later. That is the impression which those who have attended the disarmament conference at Geneva would convey. The gathering at Geneva has been unable to come to any agreement. That is not so different than was expected, in view of the problem being tackled, but for it to break up in the belief that an agreement is only a matter of time is encouraging.

To the conference there was presented a plan by Ambassador Gibson. It made a good impression but the several nations have recognized the need of study. They may also desire to engage in an exchange of views upon the points, in fact there is need for getting the proposal down to some definite basis of understanding. That will require a little time and in the meantime the several nations can go into the details and perhaps advance some views which will be beneficial.

The American plan has evidently created the belief that there is a way of actually coming to an understanding in regard to other classes of naval vessels besides the capital ships. The American suggestion has been received without stirring up a feeling of suspicion. There is a sincerity about it which prompts the others to do their part. It displays the importance of having the respective needs of the various countries considered and yet actually making some headway in the matter of limitations.

The hope cannot be entertained that navies are going to be done away with. That is out of the question. There must be provisions for defense as is recognized under the pact denouncing war, but there can be restrictions placed and limitations established in a manner that will stop the everlasting race to see which will get the most and the biggest ships first. The good results of the Washington agreement are having a valuable effect upon all moves for further naval limitations. It shows what can be done and that it is desirable. Thus if it is good for one class of war vessels, some such method ought to be applied in regard to other classes. It is to be hoped that the "hopeful frame of mind" in which the Geneva conference adjourned is prophetic.

CONNECTICUT INDUSTRIES.

When the survey which has been conducted by the Connecticut chamber of commerce shows a gain of 37 factories last year, over and above those which were lost, it is a gratifying showing. At the same time it is no more than should be expected from an industrial state.

At all times Connecticut and its cities should be anxious to get new industries but it should be equally concerned over the importance of keeping those it already has. Changing conditions have caused the closing of some factories. New conditions have made it advisable in some instances to locate elsewhere, but there are cases where sufficient interest has not been manifested in the retention of industries which might have been accomplished if properly encouraged. Furthermore there are instances where the failure to display the right attitude toward or the proper cooperation with worthwhile industries has prompted them to seek a transfer of their plant to another part of the country.

Connecticut has reason to be proud of its industrial activity. It hasn't so many factories and mills, however, that it can afford to let them slip away, much less display such an attitude as to cause them to pull up stakes and move elsewhere. It needs all it has and then more with the utilization of many of the plants which are now idle.

Every city is dependent upon its industries. Those that are established should be properly encouraged that they may become a greater asset to city and state, even while attention is being given to the desirability of seeking and encouraging new industries. Connecticut should not be allowed to fall backward either as to the production in its industrial plants or in the number of them.

COMPLETING THE TRIP.

When the president was making his trip to and through South America it was his intention to make certain stops in Caribbean ports which it was impossible for him to carry out through lack of time. It got to the point where his presence in this country was needed for conference purposes and he was obliged to revise his schedule. Naturally this caused disappointment on the part of those insular possessions and republics, as well as regret on the part of the president.

Evidently President Hoover doesn't intend to be denied the advantage of seeing those places which he had contemplated. He wants to get into personal touch with the Carribean republics quite the same as those of South America. They have their problems in which this country has long been interested and it is well that the president should seek and get first hand knowledge of what the conditions in those countries are and to show that same spirit of good will which was displayed on the trip through the western hemisphere.

That he intends to do this is indicated by the announcement that he plans to visit, Cuba, Porto Rico and Panama. There is no question but what such a statement will be regarded as good news in those localities. Porto Rico has long since been making demands for increased rights and it will welcome the opportunity to present its case to the president in person. It is a part of the United States in which the president has reason to be interested, and his decision shows that he is.

In Cuba there is every reason to believe that there will be a fitting welcome to this country's president and the same will be true at Panama. As a matter of fact there is no point in the Carribean where the president might touch, even for a brief time, but what would be grateful for the visit. It might easily be regarded as a vacation trip for the president but it will really afford an opportunity for getting first hand information and a personal touch that should be extremely valuable for all concerned.

OUT FOR RECORDS.

Getting far up into the thin air, setting a new altitude record in the flying machine, seems like a simple matter as the story is told by the record-breaker, but it is likewise evident that all is not comfort and that there are preparations of a most important character which must be made.

It isn't a case of simply swishing up into the clouds and keeping going heavenward until a certain height is reached. It is necessary to see that the machine is prepared to meet the increasing difficulties as increased altitude is reached, to see that the aviator is properly clothed and protected against the cold of the higher region and to see that provision is made for an oxygen supply when the point is reached where it is difficult to breathe.

Lieutenant Soucek of the navy has reached a height in an airplane which it is believed tops anything else ever reached by man. The cold, 75 degrees below zero, made it difficult to drive his machine but he was favored by ideal flying conditions and he got everything possible out of his machine. Even after corrections have been made in the altitude recorded, it is believed that it will be shown that he had reached a point about eight miles directly above the national capital.

Others who have come close to that altitude have experienced much worse conditions than he did, but he was able to show that the time has not yet come when a new record can be expected to remain unbroken for a long period. New attempts will be constantly made, aided by more powerful machines or equipment that will better meet the uncertainties of the thin air far above the earth, and the record mark will be pushed higher and higher even as machines are produced to go faster and faster, or to remain in the air longer and longer.

Record breaking attempts, regardless of what the undertaking actually is, hold out a fascination for many and in spite of the hardships or the dangers there will be those who will be willing to make the try. There always has been.

SQUEEZING THE CONSUMER.

That was an interesting report which came from New York to the effect that two sugar companies had increased the price of refined sugar. The increase was attributed to "expectations of a higher tariff on the staple".

That means of course that the consumer has got to pay the increase whether it takes place or not. Sugar is one of the things on which the tariff bill calls for an increase. It is not improbable that there will be an increase but the time for the boosting of the price of sugar because of such increase should come at the time the increase goes into effect and not now in "anticipation" of what may be done.

When the tariff revision will be completed and what the revision will amount to no one knows. Because a schedule of changes has been reported doesn't necessarily mean that they will go into effect. We can hardly anticipate the sugar companies announcing a reduction in the price of sugar in "anticipation" had the proposed tariff revisions included a provision for a lowering of the tariff on sugar instead of increasing it.

Whatever price adjustment is to follow tariff revision should wait upon the action of congress in actually making such revision and be effective from the date the change goes into operation.

An increase now in the price of sugar, in anticipation of an increase in the tariff, simply means that the sugar companies are going to squeeze the consumers for that rise. They will have no additional duty to pay until congress comes to a decision as to what the sugar tariff is going to be.

THE MOSQUITO MARATHON

Remember that poem about King Francis' jousting party and the lady who tossed her glove to the lions to prove her lover's gallantry? Could not happen today? Well, you don't know Miss Edith Adams of 168 Park avenue, Suburbia.

Edith was as beautiful as any of the proud damsels that flirted with King Francis' knights. If this were modern realism and not a highly romantic story, I'd let you in to the fact that Edith flunked in three subjects out of four in second-year high school. I'd tell you—but this is a tale of young love.

Arthur Pricken was a poor but honest lad who mixed soda fountain drinks for Suburbia's leading drug store and called regularly upon Edith. Calvin Winterbottom was equally honest and almost as poor. He drove a milk wagon and was working his way through college. He called upon Edith with just as much regularity as did Arthur.

It was a dulcet evening in August. Edith was swinging demurely in the porch swing. Arthur and Calvin were both coming to call. Both arrived punctually. Each glared at the other with ill-disguised antipathy. Each smiled sweetly at Edith.

"Let's sit out here awhile," said Edith, indicating chairs. Now it is a well-known fact that there are some persons who are not in any way bothered, irritated or otherwise put out by the bite of a mosquito. Edith was such a person. A dozen hungry insects could lunch off Edith and she wouldn't even bother to shoo them away. It's a gift.

Near the Adams home was a beautiful ravine, romantic, inviting lovers to stroll, but a seventh heaven for the production of new generations of mosquitoes. From this ravine a gentle breeze blew caressingly toward the porch where Edith and her two swains exchanged wise cracks.

Smack! It was Arthur. "Mosquitoes are sorta bad tonight," he said.

"Yes?" said Edith. "Who do you think'll be captain of the football team this year?" They tossed this theme to and fro for a bit.

Smack! Smack! It was Calvin. "I'm getting all bitten up," he remarked.

"Worst year we ever had for mosquitoes," said Arthur.

"Best to keep indoors to avoid 'em," said Calvin.

"It's getting a bit chilly, anyway," said Arthur, although it wasn't a bit chilly. But Edith paid no attention, or pretended not to understand these hints. She swung herself gayly on the porch swing and chattered of movie stars, high school society and a circus that was coming to town.

The boys tried vigorously to keep up to the standard of repartee expected in this wise-cracking age. But persiflage, interlarded with slaps and picturesque, if innocuous epithets isn't as airy as it might be. The evening dragged—settled down into a waiting match.

The two rivals were clearly engaged in an endurance contest. Which would hold out against the mosquitoes the longer? Which would be the first to give up and go home to rub something lotion on his tortured limbs? It was quite apparent that Edith was waiting to see and thoroughly enjoying the process.

Finally, at 10 o'clock, a particularly vicious mosquito settled down on the back of Arthur's head just at the line where closely cropped hair ended and neck began, and due in for a good feed, Arthur rose, murmured an apology, rushed indoors for his hat and was gone.

"Need you go, too?" asked Edith of Calvin. Of course he stayed.

It was half an hour later. Calvin was sticking it out manfully. He could sense that Edith was sporoving of him warmly. He made himself even more solid by inviting her to go to the circus with him on Monday evening. She accepted with a squeal of delight.

He wondered if he dared suggest going in. Every minute, it seemed to him, the mosquitoes grew worse.

"What do you say," he ventured, "that we mooch along from here?" Edith looked at him; he could not see, in the dim light from the nearby street lamp, the wicked expression in her eyes.

"Let's go for a walk in the ravine," she said romantically. Calvin rose and he, too, sought his hat.

"Good night!" he said, at one blow killing two misquitoes on his right ear, and his tone meant "that's that." "And say," he added, figuratively throwing the glove in the lady's face, "I just remembered I can't make the circus Monday night. I gotta date with Pauline Stock. Her dad's president of the Mosquito Abatement society." — Chicago News

Anxiety and Worry Affect Digestion

By A. C. Ivy, Ph. D., Professor of Physiology, Northwestern University Medical School, Chicago.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute.)

The digestive canal, which is composed of muscle fibers and glands, is connected with the brain (the master tissue of the body) by nerves. The nerves conduct impulses, which affect the function of the muscle fibers, causing them to relax in some instances and to contract in others; also they affect the glands, causing them to secrete in some instances and to stop secreting in others. Obviously, then, the type of activity going on in the brain has a marked effect on digestion.

If the surroundings are pleasant, the food appetizing, and the frame of mind so that one can think of his food and enjoy it, the digestive organs function perfectly. If the surroundings are not pleasant, if one is worried and thinks of his work, or is anxious, the digestive organs do not function perfectly.

Sleep increases the acidity of the stomach juice because of the inactivity o fthe brain. If a person is hypnotized and told that he is eating a splendid meal, the stomach will secrete. When one is worried, or anxious, the muscle of the digestive canal does not work normally. Certain portions go into spasms and other portions do not move with normal vigor. Digestive disorders result.

Hunger is caused by vigorous movements of the stomach. One knows quite well that if he goes without food for six or twelve hours he gets hungry. But if during this time he has been anxious or worried, he does not get hungry. He does not get hungry because the mental activity prevents the vigorous movements of the stomach. Hunger increases the rate of digestion and evacuation of the stomach. It is perfectly clear, then, that food should not be taken into the stomach when the stomach is in such a state that it cannot empty the food into the small intestine for the purpose of further digestion and absorption.

The nervous system is so constructed that habits can be formed. These habits may be good or bad. It is difficult to change habits. A bad eating habit produces chronic and vicious disorders of the digestive canal that are difficult to cure or to correct. The lesson, then, is that when one sits down to eat he should form the good habit of dismissing from his mind those things that cause anxiety and worry. Teach yourself to be able to relax at will.

I urge you to think of your food, and of pleasant but not exciting things while eating, that you eat lightly of easily digested food prior to and during a day fraught with business worry, mental or nervous strain and anxiety and that you eat bountifully only when a meal can be followed by several hours of leisure and relaxation, free from the nervous inhibitory impulses that deleteriously affect the formation of digestive juices and the movements of the stomach and intestines.

WASHINGTON, May 9 — (AP) — Senate press gallery experience produces familiarity with, but not necessarily respect for, senate traditions.

Therefore, it can be assumed that Senator Allen of Kansas, junior member of that body, but a press gallery veteran, thought lightly of the fact that he was trampling over time-honored practice when he made his maiden speech within a matter of days after he took his seat.

Time has been when a new senator waited patiently for months before raising his voice in debate. The old rule that children should be seen, not heard, applied.

Senator Allen, however, had a special job to do. He was answering Senator Brookhart's criticism of President Hoover's farm relief attitude.

Apparently Allen was under assignment by Majority Leader Watson, and his speech was well filled with Hoover campaign speech quotations. And that also was unusual, for administration leaders in the senate rarely trust the job of defending party and administration policies or action to a junior.

Giving Him a Chance

Perhaps the fact that Vice President Curtis' successor from Kansas will have to go up against popular ratification of his appointment to the senate so soon had something to do with it.

And the new senator's committee assignments do not seem to offer much promise of opportunity to distinguish himself before he faces the voters.

Aside from a place on the always politically useful postoffice committee, Allen drew assignments to the naval, printing and interoceanic canals committees. None would seem to be particularly profitable berths politically for a man from the interior.

Big Jump for Thomas

Still, times have changed and accidents happen even in the traditioncramped senate.

Look at the amazing experience of that other recent comer, Thomas of Idaho. He has been in the senate less than a year, also joining up by governor's appointment.

Yet within that year he jumped from lowest ranking republican member of the irrigation and reclamation committee to the chairmanship, and that's a good committee, politically speaking, for westerners.

Its republican membership includes such senatorial big guns as Jones of Washington, McNary of Oregon, Phipps of Colorado and both Johnson and Shortridge of California. Each of these seniors, however, had another chairmanship he preferred to retain so Thomas fell heir to the irrigation chairmanship despite his short service. Allen might have a similar stroke of committee assignment luck.

By contrast with the committee jobs of the new Kansas member, look over those of his veteran colleague, Capper.

Capper holds down places on agriculture, claims and foreign relations as well as being chairman of the committee on District of Columbia affairs. There's lots of good political publicity possible for a Kansan in that lineup.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Superstitions, Yesterday and Today

Mr. Editor: We all at times see in the papers something that runs counter to our own ideas, some statements that perhaps engender a certain feeling of resentment; or at least, the hidden shafts of ridicule may cause a curious irritation. This demands an answer. In the issue of The Bulletin, as of Saturday, May 4, I noted a reprint from the Lewiston Journal of an article credited to A. G. Staples. This is a story that seems to have an underlying savor, or what I may plainly term a left handed slap at the memory of the people of New England and recites the odd thoughts of those people.

Now I have been in this world myself and have had quite a few opportunities to study those people of yesterday and the day before, and to me his statements sound very ironical and misleading to the people of the present generation. The ones who only read as they run will have received a wrong impression. As I read his theme he may be right, for he may have lived where the people were peculiar and had peculiar ideas. If his object was to create merriment, he has attained his object for I for one have smiled at what he may consider humor. But to me it is a needless thrust at the ones who lived at a time when this country was still in a primitive condition, and its people were the salt of the earth. In their day he assumes they were very parsimonius and close. That I will admit for they had to practice rigid economy for they were living from one week to another oftimes without a dollar ahead and yet they lived, or perhaps they only existed, for if A. G. S. will jog his memory he will recall even in his own Pine Tree state those who worked in the mills labored from six in the morning and oftimes until seven at night and for a very modest stipend of one dollar a day and the day began at dark and ended after the shades of night had covered the earth with a mantle of darkness. With this condition confronting them is it any wonder they looked out upon life with a certain amount of dread? We of today can rest assured they did not make any extended trips to Europe, nor down to Florida to evade the rigors of a northern winter. Perhaps A. G. S.'s path may have been strewn with sunshine and bordered with the choicest flowers. I will admit mine wasn't for I at one time worked from 5 in the morning until 7 at night, or 14 hours a day for a one dollar bill, or about seven cents an hour. Not a great deal of cream there, was there brother? So they always had a dread of the poorhouse, at least that's your assertion, and I guess you are 100 per cent in that statement, for when the father was taken from the house, what became of his little ones and the mother, who had to face the world? Many times she was in no physical condition to do work that was beyond her powers or ability. Then what must they do? Call upon what was often times the ones who were in authority and were the ones to render relief. And this was often the portion of some woman who was refined and well educated, and as I read I note they were superstitious. Has human nature changed even today? I say no, for even now there are peculiar ideas, and every one has some pet idea that he brings out on some occasion to an admiring world.

A ball player has his hobby. He will tell you that it is an unwritten law that another player must not use his bat because there is only so many hits in it, and if a borrower used it that is so many hits less for the real owner. Again when they lay the bats down they must not cross them, for if they do they will lose the game, and further, the small ends must point to the dugout or some one is bound to be injured. A certain player on the "Yankees" couldn't play unless he had a red undershirt. That is where you smile out loud.

I wonder if A. G. S. when he forgets something and returns home for it, isn't told to sit down for a moment to break the spell. We must not walk under a ladder as a matter of precaution. I think that brings good luck for there may be a painter up aloft and he might have an accident. Anyway don't walk under a ladder. If a black cat runs across your path, you will have bad luck. Don't let your wife wash windows on Saturday for it will rain on wash day, and if you break a mirror that is a sign of bad luck. Yes, sir, you have to dig down and buy another.

The sporting gentry have their real pet superstitutions for they will tell you if you meet a hunchback rub his back and you will pick a winner at the track.

So they had many superstitions in the olden days, did they? They have them even in these modern times, for at one time at Belmont park, where the bang tails run there was a hunchback who made a living by letting the betting fraternity rub his hump at so much per rub. This they thought would bring them good luck.

There could be told many signs. One sure sign was when you put your hand in your pocket you could note the change. And so it seems to me that no people at any time had a monopoly on superstition, for in all generations there has been an open season and at any particular season they would trot out their pet superstition. In every land and time in the Emerald Isle when the wind howled around the cabin the Banshee was abroad. Oftimes in the new of the moon, we would hear the watch dog howl, and perhaps he may have had cramps, or thought he heard is ancestors calling him back to the pack, but old superstition had another name for this sort of an evening song. These are some of the pet signs of today.

As I, who come in contact with all kinds and conditions of people have many different things told to me, I have come to the conclusion that those people whose means were limited had the same as we have today, many signs and omens. And it will remain always the same, while the world do move and the people carry on I had no intention to try and answer the article of A. G. S., and I still have a lingering suspicion that it is beset with agreeable hallucinations.

German Peasants Retain Old Garb
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

ROTHENBURG, Germany—(AP)—Picturesque national costumes are still cherished by the German peasant folk. This traditional custom is fostered and reverted to at patriotic parades, family festivals and at church-wakes.

"Church-wake," in fact, is the one word that irduces the Bavarian peasant to drop all work and don his gala clothes which in this case are identical with those worn by his forefathers.

On special holidays the young village because may be seen stalking about in a heavy nail studded shoes—not boots—gray and green stockings reaching from above the ankle to below the knee, short breeches of deer skin, gray or brown jacket and a small green hat adorned with a feather.

The requisite relief is furnished by a green vest with genuine silver buttons, but mostly worn unbuttoned to show the suspenders of adorned leather or bright colored wool and the immaculate white shirt underneath.

The buxom lassies, not to be outdone, sally forth in black and green velvet bodice richly adorned with silver spangles, a gorgeous silken scarf and colored silk apron with flowery border.

In Bavaria the national costume's principal feature is the fly-cap, to which is added a blue apron with colored border, a large red bow-knot blue woolen stockings with a white design, and low shoes with black tassels and black velvet embroidery at the instep. A scarf of black brocade with gold lace and an artistically chiseled brooch complete the fastidious costume.

Now and then such a rare masterpiece as the "Schleierhaube," or veil cap, is encountered, which consists of a deep red band encircling the head, over which is spread a black lace veil descending in folds over the forehead and giving the face an indescribable charm of demure coquetry.

In certain districts parts of the national costume denote the wearer's religious faith. In northern Swabia the head-dress, when vaulted and peaked with the spreading ends of the bow-knot at the back of the head, are indicative of the Catholic faith, whereas the head-dress becomes Protestant insignia when it is broad and worn low down over the hair and the bow-knot displayed below the ears.

In Alsace the more ancient costume has been retained by Protestant women and consists of the old-German bodice of the sixteenth century, while the Catholic woman has compromised by wearing the old time headdress with ordinary city clothes.

A relic of the feudal days is the national costume of the Franconian, which comprises many remnants of the court splendors of the middle ages. The women wear jackets of velvet brocade profusely covered with gold lace, a silk apron elaborately trimmed and billowing over the voluminous skirt, while from the fantastic hood flutter long broad ribbons of water colored silk.

Infinite art and patience is required in ironing, folding and tying these gigantic linen headdresses. Wide fluffy colored skirts to below the knees, colored stockings, low shoes, a white chemise with short sleeves and a gaudy silk handkerchief tied over a black velvet bodice complete the costume of the robust "Spreewaelderinnen," who because of their proverbial healthiness were in great demand before the war as wet-nurses.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

And Where Is Topolobampo?

"Topolobampo, to which a United States navy destroyer was dispatched to protect American interests, is a city of only three hundred native inhabitants, yet it is an important port in the northern part of Sinaloa state, Mexico," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The town faces a large land-locked harbor with a deep water port inside, but a series of sand bars across the entrance of the harbor prevent vessels of more than 16-foot draft reaching the port's one dock. Topolobampo is the southern terminus of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad which, when completed, will connect the town with Kansas City, Mo.

"There are no streets in Topolobampo, and only one-mule-wide trails penetrate the thick brush and forests of the hills that lie at its back door. All cargoes for shipment from the port are brought to the dock by rail and hoisted from freight cars to waiting vessels.

"The Kansas City, Mexico and Orient is completed as far as Fuerte, Sinaloa, about 65 miles northeast of Topolobampo. To this line, the port owes even its small development. The dock is owned by the railroad and the company maintains a hospital for its employes in the town.

"Perhaps the greatest draw back to the port town is the fact that the Southern Pacific railroad of Mexico intersects the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient at San Blas, about 25 miles northeast of Topolobampo, and much of the produce from the Fuerte valley that would pass through the port is transferred to that line for United States and Mexican markets. The Southern Pacific of Mexico crosses the international border at Nogales, Arizona-Mexico, and, in its course down the west coast of Mexico, bisects Sinaloa state.

"While sugar, bananas and cotton are important products of the region near Topolobampo, shrimp fishing has long been a leading industry among the Indians along the north coast of Sinaloa. The port derives its name from the shrimp fisheries, although translated into English it means 'tiger water.' The natives will tell the traveler that a visit to the shrimp fisheries will convince him of the propriety of the name, for the declining rays of the sun upon swarms of these golden crustaceans give the effect of a tiger's skin, mottled in purple and gilt and gray. The shrimps are dried for shipment to China by way of San Francisco.

A great many uncalled-for remarks reach the dead-letter office.

SIGNS BILL TO MAKE MARRIAGE APPLICATIONS PUBLIC

Among the public acts signed Thursday by Governor Trumbull is substitute house bill No. 66, concerning marriage licenses. The town clerk of Naugatuck and any other town officers in Connecticut who have not been inclined, in spite of attorney general's opinions, to permit public examination of marriage license applications, are the targets in this measure. The bill provides that any application for a license shall be open to public inspection as part of the records of the office of the registrar of births, deaths and marriages, "and all applications which have been filed within five days shall be kept separately and readily accessible to public examination." It further specifically states that any registrar, who shall conceal the fact that any such application had been made "or refuse to allow any such application to be examined or copied at any time while his office is open for business, shall be fined not more than $100, or imprisoned more than thirty days, or both."

The bearers were Charles Murphy, Harry Durn, Frank Hanrahan, Elmer Johnson, August Ernest and Morris Richard. There were many beautiful floral tributes and there was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

For Commercial Travelers Convention

Further plans for the New England Grand Council convention of United Commercial Travelers which will be held in Hartford June 5, 6 and 7, include a sports program, and parade as well as a boat trip to Middletown, grand ball and visits to leading industrial plants of the city which were previously arranged. About 3,000 delegates are expected.

WATER DEPARTMENT RECEIPTS FELL OFF IN THE PAST TWELVE MONTHS

Receipts by the Norwich water department for the year ending March 31, 1929 fell below the receipts of the previous year, according to the annual report made by the water commissioners, and the sum of $46,502.81, which was paid to the city by the department, was $1,487.19 short of the amount which it was estimated would be paid to the city.

The annual interest on bonded indebtedness now amounts to about $75,000, having increased materially since the building of the new Deep River reservoir, as the city is now obligated to pay interest on the $1,075,000 bonds issued for building the new reservoir. The profit for the year in operating the department is shown at $7,488.98, this being exclusive of interest. Total income derived from all sources is insufficient to take care of all expenses.

The membership of the board consists of John A. Mitchell, Jeremiah A. Fitzgerald, John P. Corcoran, John M. Swahn and Charles A. Hagberg. The terms of all but Mr. Swahn and Mr. Fitzgerald expire this June.

Report for the Year

The report by the water board is given as follows:

The financial statement follows:

April 1 to June 30, 1928, receipts $26,118.89; disbursements $17,258.15; balances for city treasurer $8,860.74; July 1 to Sept. 30, 1928, receipts $26,729.22; disbursements $19,884.10; balance $6,845.12; Oct. 1 to Dec. 31, 1928, receipts $28,048.53; disbursements $15,014.55; balance $13,033.98; Jan. 1 to March 31, 1929, receipts $28,182.29; disbursements $5,519.32; balance $18,662.97.

At the beginning of the fiscal year we estimated our receipts at $116,000, our disbursements as $67,200 and the balance to be turned over to the city treasurer at $48,800. As shown by the above report the balance to be paid the city treasurer fell short of the estimate by $1,497.19.

The general business depression that prevailed during the past two years, has seriously affected the income of the department.

With two of the largest consumers closed, the manufacturing establishments not running their full capacity, the many empty tenements abated and the number of services shut off at the mains, the receipts were less than the preceding year.

While the above shows a gratifying net amount for the city, the earning capacity of the department would be better off, if a charge of $25 a year were made for hydrants, and if each department were to pay for water used.

The revaluation of town property will give a small increase, as there are but little over 500 services that would be affected.

We have over one billion gallons of water in the three reservoirs at present, Fairview, Stony Brook and Deep River, all full to their capacity and running to waste, and we think the supply is adequate for years to come.

Meters have been installed as fast as our funds will allow, the system being over 50 per cent metered at present, and at the rate we are installing the last few years, the entire system will be metered in ten years. As a rule the people in general try to avoid leaky fixtures. There are a few that are indifferent.

We have had no complaints from high points lately, and do not expect any after Deep River is let in.

Report by Supervisor Callahan

William H. Callahan, supervisor of outside work, makes his report as follows:

Fairview Reservoir.

The road and driveway were put in good condition, brush and grass were cut, fences and stone walls repaired, rip-rap cleaned, warning signs were repaired and lettered. The chlorinating apparatus was repaired and is working to the satisfaction of the state board of health.

Samples of water are sent to the state bureau of laboratories every month for analysis, and have met the standard set by the U. S. treasury department for drinking water.

The water-shed has been inspected by Frederick O. Almquist, assistant sanitary engineer of the state board of health and patrolled by employes of the water department at frequent intervals.

The reservoir reached seven inches above full pond on April 1, 1928, and remained full until August 6, 1928, and filled again on January 12, 1929.

Meadow Brook.

The gate to Fairview was closed and the waste gate opened on May 16, 1928. This gate remained open all summer. In October the grass and brush were cut, the laterals and main brook given a thorough cleaning, and the waste gate was closed on December 6, 1928.

On December 10th, the gate to Fairview was opened, letting the water into Fairview reservoir, direct from the brook.

Stony Brook.

The brush and grass were cut and burned around the west side of the reservoir, and up stream from the old dam, on each side of the brook for half a mile.

Several loads of filling were carted to the top of the dam, to fill in where the ground had settled and to the roadway on the east side of the reservoir and up on each side of Cherry Lane road; this will eliminate the building of a new fence.

A few boulders that were in a dangerous position along the east side of the roadway were broken and dropped over on the shore where the water was washing the bank.

On the west side of the spillway, the bank was washed for several feet and about 30 loads of stone were dumped there to form a rip-rap, which remedied the defect.

Samples of water are sent to the state laboratories, each month during the year, for analysis, and have met the standard set by the U. S. treasury department.

The reservoir filled on April 1, 1928, and remained full until May 8, 1928, and filled again on March 7, 1929, remaining full until March 31.

Deep River Reservoir.

The water-shed has been inspected several times by Frederick O. Almquist, assistant sanitary engineer of the state board of health, and found to be in very good condition.

As with all new reservoirs, the plowed ground around them, gives the water a rather high color, but that disappears after a time.

The venturi meter has been adjusted to register a correct flow; the chlorinator is adjusted to two pounds to one-half a million gallons and is ready at any time, as the water is safe for drinking, although a little highly colored.

At present there are about 15 services connected to this line, and all are getting water but two.

The waters of Fairview and Stony Brook reservoirs have been treated as in 1927, for algae and the results are satisfactory.

There were no frozen mains or services during the last year, which was unusual.

Cashier's Report

The report of Cashier Thaddeus Leahy shows cash balance on hand March 31, 1928 of $17,504.58, gross receipts for year of $109,078.93. Disbursements totalled $107,920.54, leaving a cash balance of $18,662.97.

The income and expense account shows income $109,193.43, expense $41,704.50, profit of operation for year exclusive of interest $67,488.93.

Report by Inspector

Laurens I. Hamilton, inspector for the department, makes report of 170 new meters installed, making total of 2,584 meters read quarterly. He reports inspection of unmetered service, 832 special calls made and 14 defective water closets found.

MRS. FERRACO APPEALS LIQUOR CASE SENTENCE

Mrs. Mary Ferraco of 12 Talman street took an appeal to the common pleas court from the city court Thursday morning when she was given a sentence of 10 days in jail and a fine of $200 and costs on the charge of violation of the liquor law.

She was arrested a week ago Tuesday at her home when State Policemen Arthur Whitmarsh, with a squad of the local officers appeared at her home, causing a wild scramble to hide or escape on the part of 20 men who were in the house. The police seized 17 cases of beer, several glass gallon jugs, one nearly full of liquor, a pint bottle of alleged moonshine, a copper boiler, rubber pipe, several glasses and a jug containing a quantity of home brew.

PILGRIMAGE PRIVILEGE FOR GOLD STAR MOTHERS

To give Gold Star mothers the opportunity to visit the graves of their sons who fell in France fighting for world democracy, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in response to a request from Secretary of War James W. Good, will co-operate with the government in sponsoring the pilgrimage of the mothers and widows of A. E. F. heroes; 30,405 of whom are buried in American cemeteries in Europe and 130 in other graves outside of the cemeteries.

The war secretary is authorized to arrange the pilgrimage that is to be made at the expense of the United States government, and only those mothers and widows who have not previously made a visit to the overseas cemeteries are entitled to participate.

According to the bill which makes these pilgrimages possible, the date set for their commencement is May 1, 1930, to October 31, 1933. Special passports will be issued without cost to mothers and widows so as not to interfere or jeopardize their re-admission into this country. The pilgrimage will be made by the most direct route and for the shortest practical time.

No mothers or widows will under any circumstances be allowed to remain in Europe for more than two weeks from the time of arrival to the time of departure.

All Gold Star mothers and widows in Connecticut are urged by Commander-in-Chief Carver to get in touch with the local posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars for aid in making arrangements. Advice and aid will also be available through the office of Edwin S. Bettelheim, chairman of the national legislative committee of the V. F. W., Washington, D. C., who will co-operate with the quartermaster-general of the U. S. army in assisting those Gold Star mothers and widows of those who fell on European battlefields, who are eligible to make the pilgrimage.

ISSUES APPEAL IN MASONIC TEMPLE CAMPAIGN

Arthur M. Brown, campaign chairman in the Masonic financial campaign, has issued the following in advance of the opening of the campaign, for which an organization gathering is to be held this (Friday) evening at the new Masonic temple on Washington street: To the Members and Friends of the Various Masonic Bodies:

Greetings:

I have agreed to accept the chairmanship of the campaign committee appointed for the purpose of selling $50,000 more of our Masonic temple bond.

I have done so because I believe the object is worthy of my best interest and support, and I am sending this message to you to ask for your co-operation in helping to make possible the complete success of the campaign during the week of May 13.

Our new Temple is rapidly nearing completion, and will soon be ready for occupancy. It is a magnificent building, and splendidly adapted to all Masonic needs, as well as the public auditorium requirements of Norwich.

Fifty thousand dollars, in addition to the funds now available, or in sight, will be required to pay the remaining construction and equipment costs.

When the opportunity is offered, I hope you will purchase as many bonds as you possibly can. The honor of Masonry in Norwich challenges you, and I am sure you will not fail to bear your full share of our financial obligation. Let our campaign slogan be "Buy a Bond."

Fraternally yours,
ARTHUR M. BROWN,
Campaign Chairman.

HOW TAX BURDEN HAS SHIFTED BY REVALUATION

Norwich and Putnam are two of the towns of the state used as illustrations by Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett to show how the tax burden has been shifted among different classifications of property through the process of revaluation.

Commissioner Blodgett gives the figures to show the percentage of the grand list covered in the several classifications before and after revaluation.

In Norwich the item of dwelling was 40.6 per cent of the grand list before revaluation and 36.1 percent afterwards. Lots were 2.5 per cent before revaluation, but 19.2 per cent afterwards. Another item is manufacturing plants. These were 20.6 per cent before and 17 per cent afterwards. Goods of merchants and manufacturers made 8.1 percent of the grand list before revaluation and 7.9 per cent afterwards.

For Putnam the showing was as follows Dwellings, 32 percent before, 36 percent afterwards; lots, 11.7 percent before, 18.7 percent afterwards; manufacturing plants, 16.5 percent before, 13.1 percent afterwards; goods of merchants and manufacturers, 8.1 percent before, 8.6 percent afterwards.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY DANCE WAS SUCCESSFUL EVENT

On Monday evening a very successful dance was held by Mercier assembly, No. 12, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, in their assembly hall in the T. A. B. building. Music was furnished by Thumm's orchestra. Withdrawal of Divorce Suit

Notice was filed Thursday with Clerk John H. Walker of the superior court by Judge Arthur F. Libby of withdrawal of the divorce suit which he brought for Mrs. Alice Gelinas Langevin of this city against Ernest L. Langevin. The suit was brought on the ground of desertion about six months after their marriage on April 14, 1925 at Arctic, R. I.

This week in the criminal superior court Mrs. Langvin was sentenced to six months in jail on a statutory offense charge, having been found living in a Gardner Lake cottage with Burrell Pierce who also was given a similar sentence. Mr. Langevin has sued for divorce and Judge Allyn L. Brown heard trial of the case in the superior court last Tuesday, taking the papers and reserving decision.

CHAPLIN DIES NEXT DAY AFTER GOLDEN WEDDING

Ellwood C. Burdick, 74, who, with his wife, celebrated their golden wedding on Tuesday at the home of their son, Wilfred Burdick, was taken with a heart attack in the afternoon and called a doctor. Wednesday morning, he died suddenly. His death is a sudden shock to his large circle of friends.

Those of their children and families present with Mr. and Mrs. Burdick for the wedding anniversary were: Mr. and Mrs. Asa Burdick and two sons, of Hampton; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Burdick, of Pine Bush, N. Y.; Clifford M. Burdick, Mr. and Mrs. Morton Burdick and son, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred E. Burdick and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Burdick and three children and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd W. Landon and five children, all of Chaplin. Mr. and Mrs. Burdick received a number of pleasing and useful gifts, including two solid mahogany easy chairs, four $5 gold pieces, a group picture of the children, 50 carnations from the Chaplin Community club, etc. A finely decorated bridal cake from Mrs. Leon Burdick, also a bridal loaf from Mrs. Asa Burdick, of Hampton; choice flowers from Mrs. P. B. Sanger, Mrs. Charles Perry and Mrs. W. B. Gallup; a bouquet from Mrs. Elmer Jewett, of Clark's Corners, and other choice flowers from friends. Mr. and Mrs. Burdick are esteemed residents of this town, where they have been living for over 30 years.

Mrs. George E. Snow has been confined to her bed and suffered much pain for the past five weeks, but is somewhat improved.

Dr. and Mrs. Howard Bowen, of Hartford, were week-end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George E. Snow.

STREET COMMISSIONER PREPARES TO START NORTH MAIN ST. WORK

The North Main street improvement will probably be started within a week or ten days, according to Street Commissioner Herbert B. Wightman. Mr. Wightman said Thursday evening that a car of tar is enroute to Norwich and is expected to arrive here this week end or on Monday. The work will be started as soon as possible after the carload of tar arrives, and will probably require about two months before it is completed.

A recent special meeting authorized an appropriation of $50,000 for the North Main street improvement from the vicinity of Burnham square to the foot of Schofield's hill at the junction of North Main street and Central avenue. The street between those points is in very poor condition because of numerous large holes and the improvement, when it is completed, will be greatly appreciated by the many auto drivers who use that street.

The street department is now preparing to spread a coating of tarvia on Broadway as far as the city line. Tarvia will also be spread on Washington street, Union street, Williams street, and cross streets in the Greeneville and other sections of the city. About two cars of tarvia, 20,000 gallons in all, will be required for the work. The department has already spread one car of light oil on a number of the streets to lay the dust and gravel is being used to fill numerous holes on streets throughout the city.

The West Main street improvement is practically completed. The concrete has been laid between the trolley rails and a couple more days will see the end of the work on that street.

DIEGEL AND HAGEN PLAY BRILLIANT GOLF TO TOP BRITISH OPEN FIELD

GULLANE, Scot., May 9—(AP)—Leo Diegel and Walter Hagen, two star golf professionals from the United States, dominated the second day's play in the British open and tonight Diegel led the field with Hagen second.

To take the lead for the first 36 holes, the unorthodox Diegel scored 69, giving him a total for the two days of 146; while Hagen, defending his title, smashed the course record with a sensational 67, the lowest round ever scored in the British classic, for an aggregate of 142.

The visitors were crowded by two British pros, Abe Mitchell with 144 and Percy Allis, credited with 148.

Eight Americans held places among the 11 leading competitors within striking distance on the eve of the crucial third round which so tests the stamina and nerves of golfers.

If Mitchell and Allies cannot beat back the American threat, Aubrey Boomer and Archie Compston, eight and nine strokes back, constitute the British reserves.

The entire host of 17 invading Americans, including George Von Elm, who barely escaped with 157, remained in competition after the guillotine fell again tonight cutting all but 6 players from the two rounds to be played tomorrow.

The rule is that players 14 strokes or over are automatically eliminated after the first 36 holes with a provision that the minimum field for the last day shall be 44. Under this provision all scores of 157 qualified for the continuation of play. However all the Americans except Von Elm and Jimmie Thompson, young Knoxville, Tenn., pro, were within the 13 stroke limit. Thompson took 156.

Between the high and low scoring Americans, the others were grouped in the middle ground. Johnny Farrell, John Golden, Gene Sarazen and Bobby Cruickshank were on the heels of Allis with scores of 147 and Bill Mehlhorn and Tommy Armour tied with Boomer at 148.

Two great old war horses of golf, Jim Barnes and MacDonald Smith were together at 151. Five Americans, Al Watrous, Ed Dudley, Al Espinosa, Joe Turnesa and Horton Smith turned in scores of 152.

After a stormy week, the visitors greeted today's sunshine with enthusiasm as did the galleries. Should the weather remain fair tomorrow predictions are that Bobby Jones' record score of 285, made at St. Andrews two years ago, may be broken.

When Leo Diegel arrived at the Muirfield clubhouse this morning he remarked, "this sunshine is great. Maybe I'll be able to take off two or three sweaters." As it turned out he took off a stroke for each sweater lowering his first round 71 to 69, and tonight he said, "This is one of the happiest days of my golfing life."

Hagen and Diegel played marvelous golf today. Hagen going out in 33 and coming home in 34 while Diegel covered the first nine in 34 and the second in 35.

Conservative Britain sticks to the old favorites and although Diegel leads the field, Hagen, who has shown that he lacks none of his old golfing magic, is a two to one choice to win the title for the fourth time.

Strangely enough Johnny Farrell, open champion of the United States is almost equally favored with Diegel as is likewise Wilfred Cyril Tolley, the stride either the Ryder cup competition at Moortown or at Muirfield and word has traveled here that he is a great fighter. The seven strokes he is behind is the same number he needed to tie Bobby Jones at the end of the first 36 holes of the American open when he went on to tie Bobby and then win the play-off.

Abe Mitchell, is Britain's hope and victory for him would be very popular in this country where he is considered the world's best golfer who has never won a major championship.

Cyril Tolley, ten strokes behind, leads the small band of amateurs surviving, including Von Elm, T. P. Perkins, the British amateur champion, J. W. MacKenzie, the Scotch champion, T. Bookless of Inverness and William Tulloch of Glasgow.

Play will start tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock. Diegel will go out with Jose Jurado of Argentina, Hagen and Tom Farrell and E. F. Drew of South Africa, Horton Smith and Miguel Paragon, Jimmie Thompson and T. P. Perkins, Ed. Dudley and Henry Cotton, Al Watrous and Cyril Tolley, Bobby Cruickshank and Aubrey Boomer, MacDonald Smith and R. M. Allis, Al Espinosa and Archie Compston, Gene Golden and L. J. Cotton, Bill Mehlhorn and W. W. MacKenzie, George Von Elm and James Ockenden, Joe Turnesa and Albert Miles, Jim Barnes and A. Perry.

Abe Mitchell and Percy Allis the leading British players, play together. E. F. Drew, the South African champion, and Jose Jurado, the little pro from Argentina, are the only representatives of the big international contingent other than the Americans, left in the field. Ted Ray and Tom Williamson are the only survivors of the British "old guard."

Leading scores for the first 36 holes by the British open golf championship include:

Leo Diegel, United States 71-69—140.
Walter Hagen, U. S., 75-67—142.
Abe Mitchell, Great Britain 72-72—144.
Percy Allies, Great Britain 69-79—148.
Gene Sarazen, U. S. 73-74—147.

ATHLETICS POUND OUT 9 TO 2 WIN OVER WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, May 9—(AP)—The Athletics pounded their way to a 9 to 2 victory over the White Sox in the final of the series today. They blasted three Chicago pitchers for fifteen blows, one of which was a home run by Jimmy Foxx. George Earnshaw stopped the Sox while Adkins and McKain succumbed to the Mackian fire.

The win gave the A's two out of three in the series. The score:

WILD PITCHERS AND ERRORS LOSE GAME FOR TIGERS

DETROIT, May 9—(AP)—With four errors casting a shadow over their play and four pitchers as wild as the proverbial Man of Borneo, the Detroit Tigers today presented a 6 to 3 victory to the Washington Senators. The Senators nicked Lefty Barnes for five hits and profited by Schuble's error to score four runs in the first inning.

Goose Goslin slammed a home run into the bleachers in the third for another tally and Ad Liska was called safe at home in the seventh when Schuble and Phillips attempted a double play and Phillips failed to tag Liska. The score:

YANKEES RUN WINNING STREAK TO SEVEN GAMES

ST. LOUIS, May 9—(AP)—The Yankees ran their winning streak to seven here today by defeating the Browns 7 to 3, for their third victory in St. Louis and their sixth in the west. The triumph enabled the champions to remain in the lead, half a game ahead of the Athletics, who defeated the White Sox.

Tony Lazzeri struck the winning blow for the Hugmen today, a home run in the sixth following a double by Koenig and singles by Ruth and Gehrig. Sam Gray stepped aside for a pinch batsman in the eighth, and the Yanks pounced upon Ed Strelecki for two runs in the ninth, aided by errors.

Henry Johnson, restored to duty as a starter, gave the Browns only three hits until the ninth when two more safe blows and two errors helped the home forces to two decorative runs. Eleven Brownies were left stranded. The score:

PIRATES MAKE IT TWO FROM THE GIANTS

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP)—The Pirates made it two out of three from the Giants by winning the final game of the series here today, 4 to 3, behind the fine pitching of Burleigh Grimes. Earl Sheely, who had gone hitless throughout the series, struck the winning blow for the Buccaneers, a home run against the upper facade of the right field stand in the eighth with two mates on base. Bill Terry hit for the circuit in the fourth, inside the park.

Grimes gave just seven hits registering his sixth successive victory over the Giants since being traded by them to the Pirates a year ago last winter. Three of the seven drives were in the first inning. Fred Fitzsimmons pitched well until Sheely parked one in the eighth. Carl Mays worked the ninth round.

All of the runs were batted in by the two first basemen. The score:

CUBS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF SERIES WITH ROBINS

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 9—(AP)—The Cubs made a clean sweep of their three games at Ebbets field by defeating Brooklyn easily here today in the final, 11 to 2. The Robins entered the ninth with three small hits and no runs, but Jake Flowers touched Percy Malone for a home run after Harvey Hendricks had singled. Five Brooklyn pitchers were knocked over by the Cubs. Malone won his fifth game of the season.

Hack Wilson hit his fifth home run. While Hazen Cuyler had two doubles, a single, a pass and a sacrifice in six trips to the plate. The score:

Susie Says

WANTED: Several Good Republicans who are willing to serve their city as aldermen, councilmen, etc.

Now don't rush, gentlemen, there is plenty of room for all of you if you are sincere. And from what I hear there is plenty of jobs for all of you.

What's that I hear? What's the pay? Why ask such questions, isn't the honor and glory enough pay? Show your public spiritedness and volunteer your services without thought of remuneration.

Well, if you must know the pay is five bucks for every night you attend a council meeting, and plenty of abuse. The last named being given you in great quantities.

Now's the chance for you buzzards who have set back and criticized those that are the present incumbrances to come forward and see if you can do any better.

Now I am not a betting woman but I'll lay anybody five to one that whoever gets elected will be given the grand and glorious razzberry by those not in office.

There politics are hot stuff. Those that are in 'em want to get out and those that are out are wanting to get in. In or out they are never satisfied, so why worry.

Seems to me there isn't such a whole lot of interest in the coming election as there might be. Now why is this? Is everybody satisfied the way things are going?

When a town don't have its political squabbles you can make up your mind that it's in a rut and ain't getting out on the broad highway of progress. Show me a town where there's a good political scrap on and I'll show you a livewire burg.

The only squabble I know of is that for the berth of water commissioner. Johnny Mitchell, from the West Side, is going to give battle to Charlie Hagberg, of Main street, for this position.

Just this battle has got the people talking about politics. So you see it takes these differences to liven up interest. No matter which one wins out at the caucus it's all right with me. They are both good fellows and know their onions.

Now all you republicans who think you'd make good councilmen or aldermen see Georgie Charbonneau and maybe, now remember I said maybe, he'll consider running you on the ticket. Of course you're being elected is not guaranteed.

Let's have a little pep in this coming election just for a change.

It's a mighty open winter we're having, ain't it?

ALEXANDER'S GOOD PITCHING HELPS CARDS BEAT BRAVES

BOSTON, May 9—(AP)—The effective pitching of Grover Cleveland Alexander enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to defeat the Braves 5 to 1, in the third game of their series today. The victory gave the visitors the series, two games to one.

The home team's single run was achieved in the fifth by virtue of Bell's double, Mueller's sacrifice fly and Maranville's single.

The hitting of Douthit and Hafey and the defensive play of Maguire were outstanding features. In the seventh, Selbold walked the first three men who faced him but the Cards did not score. The score:

INDIANS RALLY IN NINTH TO BEAT RED SOX

CLEVELAND, May 9—(AP)—A ninth inning rally gave Cleveland a four to three victory over Boston here today in the final game of the series. The Indians won two of the three games.

J. Sewell's long sacrifice fly brought in Jamieson with the winning run. The game was replete with thrills, Cleveland coming from behind after the visitors had assumed a three run lead, and Boston having seven runners stranded on the bases during the last three innings.

Baseball Practice

The Y. M. C. A. baseball team of the Industrial league will practice tonight at the Academy campus, starting at 6 o'clock.

NORWICH JUNIOR TWILIGHT LEAGUE WILL BE OPENED ON JUNE THIRD

Tentative plans for a Junior Twilight league were made last night at an organization meeting held at the Duwell club. It was decided that the league would open on Monday, June 3. Considerable interest was manifested by the representatives of the various teams who are seeking admittance to the league.

There were six teams represented at the meeting with two teams sending word that they would like to enter. The teams represented at the meeting were: Taftville American Legion, Jewett City American Legion, Duwell A. A., Y. M. C. A., Elks and the Gamma club. The Rotary club and the Baltic Social and Athletic club were not represented.

James J. Pedace was the unanimous choice for president of the league and other officers were: Henry Bamber, vice-president; W. Howard Demarest, secretary and treasurer; directors, D. B. Fournier, John E. Wilson, A. E. Jodoin, F. Leslie Conklin, Robert Woodmansee and William Stavrou. Two more directors are to be named at the meeting of the directors on next Tuesday evening.

The tentative plans call for a six or eight-team league with those teams that were members of last year's league being given the preference. The two new clubs were the Gamma and the Baltic S. A. C. It was announced that the playing of the games would be at Duwell field.

The teams are allowed 15 men. No boy who reaches his 18th birthday before Jan. 1, 1930, is eligible to play. There will be a board of umpires to handle the games and settle disputes. Schedules and other rules will be adopted at the meeting to be held next Tuesday evening.

For the opening night a big time is planned with a parade and suitable formalities at the field.

WALLACE-KAPLAN BOUT AT GARDEN THIS EVENING

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP)—Boxing history will go back almost three years in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night to find out, for one thing, if repetition is always the rule.

Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, will get his second chance to knock out Louis (Kid) Kaplan, rugged punching machine from Meriden, Conn. Wallace turned the trick the first time in December of 1926, knocking Kaplan out in the fifth round of the retired featherweight champion's first match as a lightweight.

Since then Wallace smashed his left thumb in a match with Jimmy McLarnin and Kaplan was knocked out by the slugging Irishman. Comeback careers have brought both back to the cross roads of three years ago. Wallace is rated a 7 to 5 favorite.

HEBERT HOLDS FORDHAM TO TWO SCATTERED HITS

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP)—Gene Hebert let Fordham down with two hits today and gave Holy Cross its second straight victory over Fordham. The score was 6 to 0. Hebert also beat the Maroon in the first game at Worcester.

The Crusaders took a three run lead in the third inning on a home run by Hurley, followed by Hebert's single with full bases. They clinched the game with two more counters in the fifth. Captain Bob Cooney started on the mound for Fordham but gave way to Murphy in the third. The score:

Holy Cross 030 020 100—6; 6; 0.
Fordham 000 000 000—0; 2; 3

Hebert and Phelan; Cooney, Murphy and Liebel, Landers.

SCHMELING ON WAY TO MONTREAL FOR CONFERENCE

HALIFAX, N. S., May 9—(AP)—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight contender, arrived here today from his homeland and left immediately for Montreal to discuss with officials of Madison Square Garden his match with Paulino Uzcudun on the milk fund charity fund card in New York, June 27.

AMHERST PITCHER HURLS NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME

AMHERST, Mass., May 9—(AP)—Al Nichols, pitching star of the undefeated Amherst baseball team, today twirled a no-hit, no-run game against the Williams nine. While he was throwing out the Purple batsmen in almost one, two, three order, his teammates collected four runs on eight hits. Nichols was also able to score with Gottsisel and Captain Dean, who crossed the plate twice. The latter pounded out the only extra-base hit of the game, a double in the sixth inning.

The game was Nichols' fourth victory of the season, the others being made against Harvard, Princeton and Bowdoin.

BILLY TIRRELL PLAYING WITH WESLEYAN FRESHMEN

When Wesleyan freshman team opened its season with a 16 to 2 victory over Loomis Institute Wednesday at Middletown, Billy Tirrell, left fielder and leadoff man on the state championship Academy nine last year, was in that same position for the collegians. Tirrell was at bat three times, had one hit, a single, scored two runs, had five putouts, two assists and one error. Not such a bad day. Billy was also hit by pitcher.

YALE TAKES LOOSE GAME FROM TUFTS

NEW HAVEN, May 9—(AP)—Yale won a lobsided game from Tufts college today, 11 to 2 scoring all their runs in the third, fourth and fifth innings. Tufts used three pitchers all of whom were hit hard and received faulty support. Every Yale player scored a run and all but Taylor hit safely. Thompson pitched his third straight victory. Score by innings:

WESTERLY

WINDS AND TIDES MERELY DELAY MARRIAGE CEREMONY

At 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the parsonage of Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church Westerly Lighthouse Keeper Harlan Willis Roode, who arrived in Westerly on the 6.29 p. m. train, was united in marriage with Mrs. Charlotte Marie Russell, daughter of Horace Nelder of Westerly. The witnesses were the Bride's father and an uncle of the groom, Howard Gardiner.

Rough water over the nine-mile stretch from Stratford Shoal Light into Bridgeport harbor Tuesday held up Mr. Roode, formerly Westerly boy, who was planning when he came home on furlough to marry Mrs. Russell.

Mrs. Arthur E. Thompson of Pawcatuck underwent a serious operation at the Westerly hospital Wednesday afternoon.

WANT CARPENTER WILL CASE TRIED IN PROVIDENCE

At the third day's session here of Washington county superior court Thursday, Associate Justice J. Jerome Hahn was on the bench.

Judge Hahn stated that the case of Francis A. Kenyon vs. United Electric Railway company would take three days for trial and as Friday day was a legal holiday it would be assigned to be taken up first Monday. The jurymen were again excused to report at 10.45 a. m. at Westerly Monday morning next.

To follow this railroad case was set down the action of law, Lloyd Chesebrough vs. A. Matarese.

With the petit jurors out of the court room, Judge Hahn listened to the motion of Attorneys James Collins of Providence and Samuel H. Davis of Westerly to have the fourth trial of the Carpenter will case a change of venue and the case taken from Washington county and set down for trial in Providence county. Opposing the motion was Judge James O. Watts of Wakefield.

Judge Hahn was informed by Mr. Collins that already 48 talismen of Washington county had heard the case in previous trials and that it had come to the Rhode Island supreme court twice. He declared that Wanton R. Carpenter, the testator, who died July 14, 1923, was so well known in Washington, Kent and even New London counties, as he had followed auctions for fifty years as a trader, that it would be difficult even in 100 talismen to pick a jury in those counties who had not heard of Mr. Carpenter, the will, or formed an opinion that would prevent them from properly serving as juror.

The will contest began Sept. 10, 1923, in the probate court in South Kingstown and was appealed to the Washington county superior court at South Kingstown and tried by jury, Nov. 22, to Dec. 7, 1923, then went to the supreme court, which set aside the verdict. Back in superior court at Kingston, a verdict was reached in favor of the will after it had been tried May 18 to 25th. By reason of interference with a juryman by Arthur Carpenter, a new trial was directed and at Westerly the case was heard before Judge Carpenter, March 22 to 26th, 1927 and resulted in a disagreement. For the fourth time it was tried before Judge Sumner in Westerly, May 18th to June 8th, 1927 and again Justice Sumner directed the verdict set aside and remanded the action to the Washington county superior court as it had matters for a jury to decide upon and the judge was convinced that the trial jury were not of sufficient ability to pass upon the case.

Depositions were read by Mr. Collins to show that the case had attracted so much interest in the various towns that it would be for the interests of fairness to have the case taken into Providence county. Judge Hahn directed that a brief review of the arguments be submitted not later than Monday next and he would endeavor to reach a decision.

William D. Cross Still in Hospital.

Word received by Westerly friends of William D. Cross, former New Haven railroad towerman at Stonington, report him still a patient in the Chester, Pa., hospital, suffering from an infection of the foot, for which he has received treatment for two months.

NEW WHITE WAY PLAN TO BE CARRIED OUT

Workmen were engaged Thursday in building a brick cistern in the center of Dixon square from which will lead the conduits in which electric light and power lines will be drawn. The conduits are being laid on Granite, Elm and Broad streets in the civic center of Westerly in the endeavor to place all wires underground. New and beautiful electric fixtures have been received and will be erected on ornamental poles for a beginning of a new white way system of street lighting.

A new 8-ton roller has been received by the Westerly highway department to be used for rolling down the new surfacing material of kyrock, similar to that placed a year ago on the adjoining sections of High and Canal streets with much favorable results.

EPISCOPAL CONVOCATION HELD ON THURSDAY

The Narragansett convocation of parishes of Episcopal churches, comprising Phoenix, Apponaug, East Greenwich, Wickford, Cranston, Narragansett Pier, Wakefield and Westerly, met Thursday afternoon at the Episcopal church of St. Peter's by the Sea, Rev. W. H. B. Allen, rector. The delegates from Christ Episcopal parish, Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector, Westerly, included Mrs. John Holland, Mrs. Walter Krebs, Mrs. David A. Lowry, Mrs. Fred Luec's and Walter Havens. Alternates were John Holland, Francis W. Taylor, Mrs. F. W. Taylor, David A. Lowry and Mrs. G. Edgar Tobin. Presiding at this convocation, which is held quarterly, was Rt. Rev. James DeWolf Perry, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Rhode Island.

WEDDING.

Cottrell-Tangeman.

In New York Wednesday a wedding of Westerly interest was that of Miss Violet Tangeman, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius H. Tangeman, of New York and Newport, and Arthur Maxson Cottrell, Jr., son of Arthur M. Cottrell and the late Mrs. Cottrell, of Westerly.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. William B. Jourdan, 410 Park avenue, by Rev. Roy Murray, rector of St. Mark's school, which Mr. Cottrell attended.

Mr. Jourdan gave his niece in marriage. She had no attendants. Philip W. Cottrell was his brother's best man.

Only members of the two families and a few intimate friends were present owing to the recent death of the bride's parents. Mr. Tangeman died December 17 last and Mrs. Tangeman March 27.

The bride was graduated from Miss Porter's school, Farmington and passed a year studying in Europe. She made her debut three years ago.

Mr. Cottrell after graduating from St. Mark's school studied for two years at Georgetown university. He is now with the Farmers' Loan and Trust company, New York. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Cottrell will live in New York.

FUNERAL.

John E. Michael.

The funeral of John Edgar Michael, one of the last of the Narragansett Indians was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, 3 Crafts court. Rev. LeRoy Perry of Providence was the officiating clergyman. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, and the floral pieces were beautiful. Burial was at River Bend Cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Perry. The bearers were Arthur Weeden, French Grayson, Charles Greene and McKinley Jones.

Walter Carpenter arrived Wednesday night on the Colonial express from Philadelphia to be the guest of his sister, Mrs. Wilbur G. Cheever and family for a short time.

Miss Elizabeth Hoag has returned from a short visit in Providence.

J. G. Cullen of Hartford, a summer cottager at Weekapaug Beach, was a Westerly business caller Thursday.

Joseph Kelley returned to Providence Thursday afternoon after three days' stay in Westerly.

Pawcatuck lodge, No. 93, A. F. and A. M., Robert Vennard, master, held a stated communication Thursday evening in Masonic hall.

Mrs. D. Kimball Hall arrived in Westerly Wednesday from New York to take up her summer residence at Avondale.

Past Grand High Priest Arthur N. Nash, of Palmer chapter, No. 28, R. A. M., Pawcatuck, will be in attendance Monday and Tuesday at the annual convocation of the grand chapter, Royal Arch Masons of Connecticut, at the Masonic temple, Hartford.

There's Frosted Magic in the new FRO-JOY 2-FLAVOR PINT PACKAGE

CHILDREN love the melt-in-your-mouth creaminess of the new Fro-joy 2-flavor pint package. There's frosted magic in each luscious spoonful.

And back of each spoonful is the magic of modern, scientific methods which guarantee its purity. Every utensil used in making Fro-joy is sterilized nightly with live steam. Each batch of country cream and milk, of fruit and sugar, must pass a test even stricter than government requirements. Each package is wrapped three times and sealed, to guard Fro-joy purity right up to the moment of eating.

Serve Fro-joy often. It is an expertly balanced food, full of vital elements—phosphorus, calcium (lime), soluble iron—which are called "Youth Units" because they renew vitality, health, youth itself!

VITALIZED AGRICULTURE

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Out in Missouri they're trying an experiment with what they call "vitalized agriculture," in some of the schools.

"Vitalized agriculture," it may be remarked, is just high-brow for "pepped-up farming." As the experiment is being conducted in the public schools, of course the pedagogical appetite for big words had to be considered. Hence the polysyllabic title.

The idea is two-fold; first, to make boys and girls take an interest in schools and schooling; second, to use this interest towards changing their deep-seated hatred of farming into an understanding love of it. The experiment is only a few years old, yet, and has been tried in only a few schools. But, wherever tried, it has proved a howling success.

It is difficult for one so far away to learn how the idea started or who was responsible for it. But the general character of its development may be seen in the story of Helen White and the Barnett school in Daviess county, Mo.

The school itself is in a strictly rural district, eight miles from a town or a railroad. The schoolhouse is,—or was, five years ago—an utterly cheerless barrack, set on a site given the district because it wasn't considered worth paying taxes on. The farmers of the district kept up the school because the law required them to, and the 14 or 15 boys and girls went to it because their old folks made 'em. They learned things by note which they didn't care a whoop for, out of books which they came to hate, and acquired an early aversion to all study which blasted their whole lives.

Then, one day, a miracle came into the Barnett district, in the shape of a 16-year-old farmer's daughter, driving her dad's somewhat rickety old Ford. Nobody knew it was a miracle at the time. The demonstration came later.

Helen White had just been graduated from high school and teachers' training school. And she wanted a school to teach. She seems to have been a born teacher. And if that sort of apostle isn't a miracle, then you can make your own definition of that word. Rebuffed by various trustees and school commissioners, after the manner of the scribes and pharisees and high-priests of all generations, because of her youth and zeal, she at last persuaded the hard-fisted trustees of Barnett school, by an offer to teach at a low salary, to give her a try-out.

Three months later the school supervisor came to Barnett school in the regular routine of duty. It was a school day but the schoolhouse was empty. Search disclosed the whole boodle, children and teacher, out in the coal shed at the back. There was a rude work-bench along one side of the shed and a few tools hung above it. Some of the boys were making a hog-trough while the others looked on and the teacher answered questions and directed the job.

"What on earth are you doing?" asked the amazed supervisor.

"Teaching arithmetic and making 'em like it," replied the spunky little teacher.

"Where are your text-books?"

"Don't need them all the time," answered Helen White. "These children,"—the oldest was but 14,—"are learning in nature's way, along the line of their own experiences." And then she explained.

Hog-raising was one local farm industry. But the farmers all complained that they couldn't get hog-troughs to suit either themselves or the hogs. So Helen and her farm lads and lassies set their wits to work. They designed all sorts and shapes of hog-troughs with pencil and paper; till they had evolved one which obviated the feeders' objections. This taught them addition and multiplication. Then they had to buy the lumber, and the whole school competed to see who could write the best, neatest, most business-like and complete letter to the lumber-yard, eight miles away, asking the price of the needed stuff. While waiting for the answer, they went out into the woods and measured several tall trees, their height, girth, etc., by the simple methods of the timber-scout, and figured how much sawn lumber each would make. This taught them more arithmetic, and, instead of hating the very word, they joyously drank it up and called for more.

When the estimates arrived from the lumber yard there was call for more measuring and figuring. Then came a lesson in applied economics. How were they to raise the money to buy the lumber? It was decided to make a quilt and sell it. The children fished scraps from the parental rag-bags and had a merry time cutting them to shape, and learning geometry at the same time. Some of the scraps were cotton and some were woolen and some silk and some linen. This led to a study of these staples. The agricultural college sent them bulletins on all four and this started a course in reading. For every one was interested in knowing how for example, the wool from father's sheep was washed, carded, spun, woven into cloth. It was much better than droning a dull piece out of a dull book about something a thousand years or a thousand miles away.

Well, the quilt was finally finished and sold and resold 'til it brought in almost $40. Then the lumber was bought and the hog-troughs built. And the pork-producers reported that they were the best troughs ever, and wanted more. Whereupon, the canny Helen set her charges to looking up the hog, his breeds, his diseases, his food, etc., etc. She sent for all sorts of bulletins and the children simply tumbled over each other in their eagerness to find out all about pigs. Another course in reading, you'll observe.

At the same time that the children were finding school a pleasure instead of a bore, the parents were getting interested, too. A visitor who chanced to see a group of children at work on the school-grounds one Saturday, said to Helen:

"I thought Saturday was a holiday. Can you get these youngsters interested enough in school to come and work on a holiday?"

"I can't get them to keep away," laughed the teacher. "They often work all through the recess period, stay 'til six o'clok instead of tearing away at four, and they want to come every Saturday and work around."

Eh? Do you still maintain that the day of miracles is past?

Next in order comes something which even the most de-vitalized and routine-going teacher can appreciate. As Helen White's success gradually became known, she also came into demand from bigger and richer districts than Barnett. The trustees who accepted her at a hand-to-mouth salary had to increase it three times in order to keep her. And when, after four years, she went to a wider field and a bigger income than Barnett could furnish, the trustees reported: "Our children are away ahead of those in any other district in the county." They sent out an "SOS" for another teacher who could keep up the stroke. Other districts, seeing, have also believed, and now there is a regular state university course in 'vitalized agriculture," which is graduating teachers to take up and continue the work.

The Kansas City Star, from whose wonderfully edited columns I have taken the story of Helen White and her Barnett school, remarks upon it:

"The average boy and girl of the farm has a deep and abiding hatred for the ordinary one-room rural school, with its bleak surroundings, bare walls, meager equipment and its dull routine of studies.

"Who can blame them for this dislike of a curriculum copied after that of the city school, and bearing no relation to life in the country?

"This may be largely responsible for the widespread discontent among farmers and may be a reason why so many boys and girls of the farm never go beyond the grades taught in the one-school room, and why so many of them have their faces set toward the city, to which they emigrate as soon as they are big enough to break home ties."

This school problem is one which the common sense of the nation—if there is any such thing left—will have to take in hand sooner or later. The sooner the better, too.

We are throwing enough money into the educational furnaces to warrant better metal than theyare turning out. In 1914 we spent $781,000,00 for educational purposes. Twelve years later in 1926, we were spending $2,744,000,000, an increase which the bureau of economic research figures at more than 250 per cent. In 1926 it cost an average of $63 for every pupil in the public elementary schools; $195 in public high schools, and $423 in colleges.

The increase in enrollment is stated at 17 per cent; that of cost, as above, 250 per cent.

It seems to some of us that the increase in cost is grossly disproportionate to the betterment in product.

Or to any canon of common sense efficiency, for that matter. Country schools are especially hard hit. With shrinking farm populations and lessening farm values, the cost of maintaing the once universal district schools has got to be so burdensome that consolidations are everywhere being resorted to, thus far with small effect in lowering tax burdens.

How far this is due, as the Star intimates, to the silly craze for copying city methods and city manners and city expenditures which is devitalizing what is left of the country, no one can say definitely.

But one thing is sure; country children, as a rule, simply abominate the country school, as it is, with its deadening routine of textbook rules and exceptions.

Such schools need the breath of life blown into and through them. And it should be a breath of country life, too. Not city life, however admirable that latter may be in some respects.

We're certainly spending enough money to warrant us in demanding better results.

THE FARMER.

It isn't necessary to mention your lawyer in your will; he is sure to get his share.

COMMODITY DEALING IN HAVANA IS SLOW

HANAVA (AP)—Lethargy envelops Havana's Lonja del Comercio, the city commodity exchange.

In the big building, which occupies a city block and whose lofty five stories for many years dominated Havana, transactions move slowly. Rice and bean merchants long for the return of good old bustling days.

The commercial exchange building was completed in 1907 to supply a need for better commercial relations between importers of foodstuffs.

It stands facing a plaza once jammed with mule teams and carts but not devoted to parking space for business men's motor cars. It flanks the long line of wharves which extend from O'Reilly street to the big terminals at the far end of Havana harbor.

The association in control of the Lonja was founded in 1883. When it moved to its present building in 1908 reports show that imports of oil, garlic, rice, beans, olives, almonds, saltfish and meats were only $33,585 annually. It reached its high peak in 1919 but has been declining since then.

The cause of this situation is that Cuba's appetite for garlic, Spanish wine, rice and beans has been sharply curtailed by widespread poverty.

NEW COTTONSEED TRADING MART EXPECTED TO STABILIZE PRICE

MEMPHIS (AP)—The only open futures market for cottonseed in the world has been established here in the heart of the southland's richest cotton producing delta lands and home of the world's largest inland cotton market.

Cottonseed, at one time considered useless, but now in demand for various purposes, heretofore was sold by producers at prices agreed upon by buyer and seller. Officials of the new market believe it will stabilize prices for the seed as well as its numerous products all over the world.

Establishment of the market followed the rapid expansion of the Memphis Cotton exchange, which has grown from an institution with receipts of nearly a half million bales annually in 1873 to one handling more than 2,000,000 bales each year.

The growth of the market is reflected by the fact that Memphis handled 10.47 per cent of the cotton of the United States last season, compared to 7.09 per cent during the season of 1908-09.

One hundred and seventeen cotton shipping firms whose connections include every cotton consuming district in the world are listed on the exchange.

ROAST BEEF OUSTED BY BRITISH SALADS

LONDON, (AP)—The well fed Englishman is beginning to reach for a salad instead of a steak, much to the chagrin of the butchers.

British imports of meat have fallen off sharply; the number of cattle in England has dropped from 11,800,000 in 1913 to 8,130,000 today. Imports of fruit, on the other hand, have almost doubled in the last two years.

Some observers attribute the decline in meat eating to the modern vogue of slenderness. Others, among them some butchers, say the spread of the week-end motoring habit has led the Englishman to spend more money on petrol for his automobile and less on Sunday roasts.

Be that as it may, the "roast beef of old England" appears to be losing its grip on modern British appetities.

RUSSIA TURNS JUNK INTO HUGE PROFITS

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia exported $5,000,000 worth of "rubbish" in 1928. Most of it was shipped to America, England and Germany.

Every morning at dawn the dump yards of Moscow at the edge of the city are crowded with hundreds of men and women. They are bending over fresh piles of rubbish dumped there during the night, each armed with a long stick having at its end a claw-like hook.

They pull out bits of rags, old shoes, tin cans, broken bottles, corks and similar refuse. This is sorted and sold to the government junk and rag yards.

Soviet trading organizations believe that within a few years this export item will yield between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 annually.

NEW WORLD OFFERS BEST U. S. AIRPLANE MARKETS

NEW YORK (AP)—The western hemisphere promises to furnish the predominant market for airplanes made in the United States.

Out of 162 planes shipped abroad during 1928, 127 of them went to countries in North, South and Central America.

Of the remaining 35, Asia and Australia took 25, leaving the total number of planes exported to Europe during the year at the low figure of 17.

Canada, with a total of 62, topped the list. Peru and Mexico followed next in order, with China and Australia fourth and fifth respectively.

TREES AND ELECTRIC WIRES CAUSE STATIC

DANVILLE, Va. (AP)—Most reception interference troubles can be traced to grounded high voltage wires coming in contact with trees, according to W. Van Nostrand of the radio supervision service of the federal department of commerce.

Sudden bursts of static which interrupt programs have been traced to power wires the insulation of which has decayed and which were striking trees. The resulting electrical discharges immediately were reflected in the sensitive receivers.

PUBLIC'S ADVICE SOUGHT IN UNIFORM SCHOOL PLAN

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The public's advice in mapping out an up-to-date course of study for schools is being asked by the state superintendent of public instruction in letters sent over the state.

Nomadic workers, drifting with their families from place to place, from farm to city and back, create a need for uniformity in schools, according to Virgil Stinebaugh, director of high school inspection.

Children taken out of one school easily can make adjustments in another if courses are smiliar.

"It is not intended, however, to restrict initiative of local school officials or make all schools [illegible] to a set standard," [illegible] said.

SHORTHAND PRACTICED IN EUROPE CENTURIES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The stenographer's art is an old one. Evidence that shorthand existed more than a century ago has been found in Spanish textbooks at the University of Texas library.

One text, published in 1811 by the author, Don Guillelmo Atanasio Xramillo, relates that it was a modified form of a shorthand book in once studied. References to a public examination indicates that shorthand was of somewhat general importance.

Another text, written in Spanish and published in 1821 by Don Francisco De Paula Marti, says there were more than 50 methods of shorthand in French and English at that time.

U. S. Imports Glands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Argentine exports to the United States of animal glands used in pharmaceutical products decreased in value by half in 1928 but grew in volume from 16,[illegible] pounds to 66,000. The United States imported medicinal imports from Argentina included $2,000 worth of gall stones.

Green Things Growing

O, the green things growing, the green things growing,
The faint sweet smell of the green things growing!
I should like to live, whether I smile or grieve,
Just to watch the happy life of my green things growing.

O the fluttering and the pattering of those green things growing!
How they talk each to each, when none of us is knowing;
In the wonderful white of the weird moonlight
Or the dim dreamy dawn when the cocks are crowing.

I love, I love them so—my green things growing!
And I think that they love me without false showing;
For by many a tender touch, they comfort me so much,
With the soft mute comfort of green things growing.

And in the rich store of their blossoms glowing
Ten for one I take they're on me bestowing!
Oh, I should like to see, if God's will it may be,
Many, many a summer of green things growing!

But if I must be gathered for the angel's sowing,
Sleep out of sight awhile, like the green things growing.
Though dust to dust return, I think I'll scarcely mourn,
If I may change into green things growing.

DANIELSON

MISS LUCY BEENEY BECOMES BRIDE OF C. A. GRIGGS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 9—There was a very beautiful wedding ceremony at St. Alban's church tonight at 7 o'clock when Miss Lucy Ethel Laurie Beeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Beeney of the West Side, became the bride of Clarence Andrew Griggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Griggs of Abington. The marriage service was conducted by the rector, Rev. J. Rees Jones.

Apple blossoms and laurel were used by members of the Girls' Friendly Society in decorating the church in most effective and attractive manner. A large number of relatives and friends attended and were escorted to their places by the bridesmaids, acting as ushers.

For the processional march the organist, Mrs. Frederic O. Armington, played the wedding march from Lohengrin.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. H. F. Sweet, as matron of honor, and by four bridesmaids—Misses Kathleen Varney, Thelma Coogan, Eloise Babson and Ethel Birch, all of these bridesmaids, with the exception of Miss Babson, having been bridesmaids for Mrs. Sweet when she was married two years ago tonight, the other bridesmaid at that wedding being Miss Arlene Babson, sister of Miss Eloise Babson.

The bride was very beautiful in a gown of white satin and tulle veil, caught with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of calla lilies and lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor was gowned in flowered chiffon and wore a black picture hat. Her bouquet was of sweet peas in shades to harmonize with her gown.

Miss Varney wore blue georgette, Miss Babson green georgette, Miss Coogan yellow georgette. Miss Birch salmon pink georgette. Each wore a hat to match the gown and each carried a bouquet of Marguerites. The matron of honor and bridesmaids were a strikingly beautiful group.

Everett Griggs, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Arthur W. J. Beeney. Guests were in attendance from Hartford, Norwich, Willimantic, New London, Putnam, Abington, Warehouse Point, Pomfret, Providence and various places in this immediate vicinity.

For the recessional Mrs. Armington played Mendelssohn's wedding march.

After the wedding there was a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Griggs in St. Alban's parish house and they received the congratulations and best wishes of the many that greeted them.

The occasion was an especially happy one for members of the Beeney family, for it marked the thirty-first wedding anniversary of the bride's parents as well as the second anniversary of the wedding of the bride's sister.

The bride, who received many beautiful gifts, presented her matron of honor with a beaded bag and her bridesmaids with vanity cases. The groom's gift to his best man was a silver cigar lighter.

Shortly after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Griggs left on their honeymoon trip, which will take them to Washington, D. C. The bride's going away gown was of tan and brown georgette and she wore a hat to match.

Upon their return they are to make their home in Hartford, where both have been employed.

These are very busy days for the members of Harmony court, No. 12, Order of Amaranth. During the week Mrs. Lizzie Withington entertained at a benefit whist. A very enjoyable evening was spent, with guests present from various places, including Norwich, Sterling, Central Village, Waurezan, Brooklyn, Putnam, Wrentham and Newtonville, Mass.

The first women's honors went to the royal matron of the court, Mrs. Annie B. Knox; first men's honors to Arthur Metcalf, the associate patron; and consolation to Mrs. Metcalf.

Recently sixteen members attended the grand court session in Bridgeport, where Past Royal Matron Ethel G. Ingalls carried out her duties as grand warder, and Royal Matron Annie B. Knox was installed as grand wisdom for the ensuing year.

A play planned for this month has been given up for lack of a proper auditorium in which to present it.

Friday evening, this week, about 20 members will attend a reception in South Manchester, given by Chapman court in honor of Mrs. Adele Bantley of that place, who is now the grand royal matron of the grand court, Order of Amaranth in Connecticut.

At the next meeting of the court the initiatory degree work is to be carried out and a program and social hour will be conducted after the business meeting.

The court is meeting temporarily in Odd Fellows hall until the Masonic temple is ready.

Mrs. Lillian L. Daniels died very suddenly this morning at Central Falls, R. I. Mrs. Daniels was a sister of Mrs. F. E. Bitgood of Main street and was known to many people in Danielson. She arose this morning before other members of the household were about, ate her breakfast and went to her place of occupation at the city hall. She had been away from home hardly more than ten minutes when she was stricken and died.

It was announced this morning that a trial is to be given a plan of cleaning that section of Main street from the Westfield Congregational church through the business section and southward to the bridge over the Assawaga river by flushing the street surface with water from fire hydrants, the work to be done once each week, and after midnight, when there is little traffic and when the flowing water will cause the smallest degree of inconvenience. E. C. Hopkins head of the Crystal Water company, has agreed to allow the use of sufficient water for this purpose without charge, provided the work is done under the supervision of Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department.

Special note will be made at the Sunday morning services at the Baptist church of the fact that a beautiful national flag of silk and four by six feet has been presented to the church by the department of Connecticut, W. R. C., in honor of Miss Lillian E. Bailey, who was the department commander the past year and who presided at sessions held at the annual encampment in New London the past week. Members of McGregor, W. R. C., are to attend the morning service in a body and are to meet in the vestry of the church at 10.25. Members of McGregor post, G. A. R., and of Colonel Edward Anderson camp, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, also have been invited to attend.

Directors of the Danielson Rotary club have elected Principal Ernest R. Warren of Killingly high school as president for the ensuing year, Alfred L. Reed as vice president and re-elected Burdette C. Hopkins as secretary and Harold A. Roberts as treasurer. The board of directors includes E. R. Warren, A. L. Reed, N. Loroe Greig, Richard D. Bangras, Herbert H. Pepler, Thomas Hope, S. W. Bard, past president. Secretary Hopkins and Treasurer Roberts also serve on the board as ex-officio members.

The borough of Danielson, co-operating with the chamber of commerce, has agreed to place a dozen rubbish cans at advantageous places about the borough for the reception of much of the refuse that is usually thrown about carelessly by the average person, and will arrange to have the contents of these cans collected and disposed of weekly. In connection with the institution of this arrangement an appeal is to be made to the public to use these cans for the disposition of various kinds of waste matter, usually thrown in the street, in order that Danielson may reach up to its ambition to be one of the cleanest and best kept towns in southern New England.

When members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., meet the coming Thursday they will elect officers for the ensuing year and hear reports from the Continental congress held in Washington the past month. The meeting is to be held in the vestry of the Westfield Congregational church.

While visiting here today and speaking of violins, John Morse of Putnam mentioned that he has made 224 of the instruments during his long career.

Rev. William Swainson of Dayville will be the moderator when the 67th annual meeting of the Windham association of Congregational Ministers is held in the Storrs church Tuesday of next week. Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson will lead the devotional service at the opening of the morning session.

Many more people visited the exhibit arranged for the Week of the Blind in the town hall today. Today's committees assisting at the hall were representative of the Methodist Episcopal church, the Nazarene church and the Danielson Girls' club.

Thursday evening of next week members of the Minnitexit Hook and Ladder company are to have a social session at the central fire station.

Treasurer Sidney W. Bard of the Brooklyn Savings bank had the replica of the famous Portland vase on display at the bank today and it is to remain there for several days.

This morning at St. James' church a large class of boys and girls received their first communion, on the feast of the Ascension.

Arthur C. DeVere of Bridgeport is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

Thomas Moran, resident in the Allen hill section of Brooklyn, is an appendicitis patient at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester.

Trout fishermen continue to bemoan the fact that the water in favorite streams is too high and the weather too cold for successful outings.

Such progress has been made with preparations for the textile exhibit to be held here in June by the Eastern Connecticut Mills association as to forecast a real success, with all available space taken by exhibitors.

There will be reference to the fact that Mother's day is being observed in different churches of Danielson next Sunday.

Tax Collector James R. Walsh said this afternoon that taxes are coming in well. Collections are now in excess of $100,000, and about as much more remains to be collected.

Dr. and Mrs. George M. Burroughs and Miss Laura Jacobs, who have been in Bermuda for nearly a fortnight, are expected to return here during the early part of the coming week.

Reminder! Wednesday, May 15, is the last day for paying town taxes. Collector J. R. Walsh at office, town hall building.—adv.

Out at North Foster the name of the town is to be painted on the roof of the barn as a guide to aviators, particularly for the men flying the Boston-New York planes.

UNION

WINNING PUPILS NAMED IN SPEAKING-SPELLING

A very interesting and enjoyable program was given at the speaking and spelling contest at the town hall Tuesday evening, May 7. Supervisor M. B. Robertson presided. The music supervisor, Miss Charlotte K. Beckwith, of Stafford Springs, led in the musical part of the program. She also sang three beautiful solo selections. The pupils, some of whom are very small, show marked gain in their attainments in music during this year. The judges and referees for the contests were: Miss Emma J. Kinney, librarian, Putnam public library; Miss Dorothy Bowen, teacher, Eastford primary school; Charles F. Beckwith, Stafford Springs. When Mr. Beckwith announced the decision of the judges in the speaking contest he spoke with warm appreciation for the efforts of all the speakers. Following are the winners of first and second places: Raymond Slokep, The Last Leaf, Holmes; Helen Bradway, Santa Filomena, Longfellow. In spelling, Helen Bradway was first and Winifred Moore second.

There was an attendance of about sixty at the L. B. A. social Thursday evening, May 2. An excellent supper was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Mabel Horton, Mrs. Ruth Bradway and Mrs. Ida G. Moore. Tolland County Club Agent Donald C. Gaylord was present and as a part of the program the Rock Meadow Cackling club held a business meeting, such as they are accustomed to hold at their schoolhouse each month. This was followed by an interesting talk by Mr. Gaylord on 4-H club work. There are now about 45 4-H clubs in Tolland county.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Rizner and two children of Middletown spent the week end with Mrs. Mary Rizner and family.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harris of Southbridge, Mass., spent Sunday at their Mashapaug cottage.

William P. Beeching returned to town last week after spending the winter in Virginia.

There is to be a mothers service at the church Sunday morning at 10.30 (standard time, as usual). It is expected that some of the children will take part in the service. All children, no matter how young they may be, have been invited to come with their mothers. Fathers know they are always welcome.

At a meeting of the school board for the town of Canterbury all teachers for the town were re-engaged excepting two, Mrs. Garland of Baldwin district and Miss Brown of North Society, who desired a change in appointment.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Few of the many applications received by the feder ' radio commission for new broadcasting station licenses are being granted.

There are 616 stations now operating on the 89 channels and, owing to the present congestion, the commission is opposed to any substantial increase.

Although the "standing room only" sign has been hung out for some time, the petitions of prospective broadcasters arrive at the rate of six to 12 a week.

Nearly all are from persons desiring to operate small stations serving local audiences and a big majority come from localities where the broadcasting quota already has been filled.

There will be a U. S. civil service test for teachers in the Philippines: teachers of secondary English, 2,000 pesos to 3,200 pesos a year (about $1,500 to $1,600) men and women. Normal school demonstration teachers, $1,500 to $1,700, women only.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM, May 9—Mayor Charles A. Richard has appointed the highway commission as a committee to investigate the desired layout of Main and Pomfret streets requested by Charles Seder, realtor, so as to enable him to engage architects to draw up plans for his proposed three story building to be erected on the site of the present Central block, soon to be razed. Following a conference of the highway committee Wednesday evening at the regular meeting adjourned, the committee reported favorably on the figures submitted by Mr. Seder. In view of this Mayor Richard set Tuesday evening May 21 as a date when the council will convene and a hearing on the re-lay out of the thoroughfares will be heard. action of the council to be taken according to the public view. There is little doubt but what the council will ratify the plans of Mr Seder, thereby speeding up the work of the building project in the business section.

Notices of the unsafe conditions of sidewalks existing on the property of about 100 property owners in the city together with a demand that these be repaired and placed in a satisfactory condition on or before July 1 are to be served by the city clerk upon the owners of property whose sidewalks are in this condition. Clerk Thomas P. Ryan at the request of Mayor Richard read a lengthy list of hazardous sidewalks in the city and upon a motion it was ordered that the work of repairing be completed on or before July 1.

Several building permits were granted at last evening's meeting and important among those granted was one to the Carxill Trust company to tear down a wooden block owned by the banking concern, situated on Main street adjoining the Congregational church property. The block is to be torn down to give way to a new and modern banking building.

Twenty-four thousand gallons of asphalt oil are to be purchased by the city to be applied to the streets. The contract for the purchase of the petroleum was awarded to an oil contracting concern whose headquarters are in Boston.

George W. Baker, chairman of the Putnam chapter of Red Cross has applied to the council urging them to include in the list of appropriations the sum of $750 for use in the Red Cross work in the city. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Permits from property owners asking that curbing be laid along the street lines of their property were read last evening. The matter was referred to the highway committee to investigate.

The police report for the month of April as tendered by Capt. of Police W. J Jarvis showed a total of 28 arrests. The report was accepted and placed on file. With the reading of the bills for the current the council adjourned until next Tuesday evening when the public hearing on the Seder block street layout will be taken up.

Thomas E. Sweeney, Webster correspondent of a Worcester newspaper, on yesterday completed an investigation and unearthed the fact that two masked bandits on the morning of April 29 entered the home of Ernest Pitak, of Dudley, about eight miles from here and at the point of a gun robbed the wife of the merchant of $5,500. Word of the incident, typical of the early days of the west, reached the ears of the newspaperman and after two weeks of investigating various rumors forced the woman to acknowledge the robbery. Chief of Police George H. Reynolds of Dudley cooperated with Sweeney in working out the mystery and is now conducting a criminal investigation attempting to trace the bandits.

The police believe that ignorance and illiteracy played a large part in the holdup. The woman for fear of gaining an undue amount of publicity declined to report the happening to the police. It was not until her children had whispered tales of the wrong doing, did the press learn of the deed.

In questioning the woman the police learned today that the robbery took place on the morning of April 29. The woman told Chief Reynolds that on the morning in question, a few hours after midnight she was awakened by knocks at the door. Her four children were asleep and her husband, a victim of rheumatism, was unable to move. When she partially opened the door, she was pushed aside and two men, their faces half hidden by masks entered, leveled two revolvers at her back, threatening to take her life if she resisted and attempted to give alarm. Money was demanded. Complying with the request she went to her bedroom and procured the currency, and promptly turned it over to the two armed men, whom she alleged fled in a high powered car.

When asked how she came to have such a large sum of money unprotected in her home the woman informed the police that she had mortgaged her property to complete alterations and on the afternoon of April 28 had drawn the money from the Webster National bank. She furnished Chief Reynolds with a satisfactory description of the robbers as she remembered them. According to word today the men described had retained rooms in a Webster lodging house, but departed sometime in the afternoon of April 28. The two names given the police by the inn keeper are said to have come to Webster from Philadelphia.

Several Putnam boys are planning on participating in the annual Windham county track and field meet to be held at the Brooklyn fairgrounds on Saturday, May 11. Those carrying off first second, and third honors in Saturday's county event will become eligible to take part in the state meet to be held in Middletown on May 25. County Secretary L. Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A., was in this city today completing the list of entries. Several boys now taking part in the Putnam high school track contests are to represent this city in the meet on Saturday.

Three masses were celebrated this morning at St. Mary's church in honor of the feast of the Ascension. The last mass was at eight o'clock and was a solemn high mass.

Electrical engineers and a corps of assistants after two days of strenuous work at an early hour this morning completed the task of equipping the Bradley theatre with the talking picture apparatus. Two giant loudspeakers adorn the stage and when timed with the reels of film throw the voices of the characters through a new porous screen recently installed.

The first showing of talking moving pictures in Putnam took place at 1:30 o'clock when three reels were shown before a few onlookers and the electricians, Manager James F. Mahoney, Connecticut resident manager of the Putnam Theatres corporation, said this morning that the test screening, in which the voices of the stars were actually heard, noted that the "talkies" will be a complete success in the theatre since the amusement edifice, remodeled a year ago was draped with trappings on the walls which will absorb all distortion and reverberation of undesirable sound waves.

Leon A. Talbot and J. Otis Fox, Putnam representatives in the general assembly completed their duties in the house on Wednesday and made their last official trip to the capitol city this morning to attend to a few business matters. The five months during which the legislature was in session Representatives Talbot and Fox were absent but a few times, and only when the pressure of the business demand that they remain in Putnam.

Putnam in general seemed pleased with the work and the cooperation of these two men, today. Both are democrats and are the first of their party ever to represent Putnam in the state legislature, they carrying the town by an overwhelming majority in the fall election last year.

Regular rehearsals are now taking place by the characters for the presentation of the Putnam parent teachers benefit drama "The Hoodoo." Those taking part are all residents of this city and in some way or another are connected with the school organization. The event is to take place in the Bradley theatre on May 17, according to plans now being formulated by the committee in charge.

Exalted Ruler Lionel H. Charron of the Putnam lodge of Elks has appointed a committee to make arrangements for an outdoor celebration of Flag day on June 14. The public exercises are to be held in the evening and will be featured with a parade. Flag ceremonies and speaking will take place on St. Mary's field adjoining the rectory of St. Mary's church.

The young man who had just returned from Africa fancied he was a great explorer, and was guilty of considerable exaggeration in his accounts of his travels.

He was seated in the drawing room with a circle of admiring friends.

"Yes," he was saying, "and as I fought my way through the impenetrable jungle, strange wild birds swooped down and attacked me, pecking fiercely at my head—"

"Say!" broke in a sceptic, "they were woodpeckers!"—Detroit News.

NEW QUAKE INSTRUMENT RECORDS STORM AT SEA

NEW YORK (AP)—Recording of storms at sea on extremely delicate seismographs is reported by S. K. Banerji of the Bombay observatory.

Some of these storms were 500 or more miles in the Bay of Bengal.

Mr. Banerji says the instruments recorded three distinct types of ground tremors, identified as coming from the storms, presumably the pounding of waves. These were the southwest monsoon, storms in the Bay of Bengal or the Arabian sea, and local disturbances.

Banerji, in writing to the British scientific journal, Nature, predicts that this use of earthquake recording instruments will open to meteorologists a new method of forecasting storms.

He says the vibrations appear as soon as a storm forms, and do not cease until it has passed completely inland.

PROFITABLE BEES MOVED 2,000 MILES WITH OWNER

ABILENE, Kas., (AP)—Fifty hives of industrious bees, who worked their owner's way through college, have been moved nearly 2,000 miles to a new home in Amherst, Mass. Clayton Farrar, their owner, paid his way though Kansas state agricultural college with money derived from the honey. He also helped to finance his brother's education.

When Farrar became an instructor in Amherst college's agricultural department, the bees went with him.

PANHANDLE RAILROADS SPLIT UP VAST RANCHES

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Vast ranches of the Texas panhandle, once the subject of ballad and story, are disappearing as railroads invade the treeless plains.

Last year 350 miles of newly constructed railroad lines brought hundreds of midwestern farmers to the Panhandle. Nearly 200 miles of railroads may be built this year. Increased colonization has split up many ranches.

Panhandle land now sells at $20 to $50 an acre. In 16 counties of the south plains area, only half of 8,000,000 acres is under cultivation.

Modesty is one of the things that cannot be successfully counterfeited.

PASTOR CUTS SERMONS TO BOOST ATTENDANCE

UPTON, Mass.—(AP)—Shorter sermons are held out to parishioners of the First Unitarian church of Upton as an inducement for attending services during the spring and summer.

The Rev. Dr. A. Nicholas Kaucher has pledged sermons of one hour instead of the usual hour and a half.

Liggett's Rexall

ONE CENT SALE

May 9th, 10th and 11th

Thursday, Friday and Saturday Only

WHAT IS A ONE CENT SALE?

IT is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price, then another item of the same kind for one cent. As an illustration: The standard price of Klenzo Dental Creme is 50c, you buy a tube at this price and by paying one cent more, or 51 cents, you get two tubes, and save 49 cents. Every article in this sale is a high class standard piece of merchandise, just the same as is sold every day at regular price. No limit—buy all you want, but on Thursday, Friday and Saturday only!

A PROFIT SHARING METHOD OF ADVERTISING

THIS sale was developed by the United Drug Co. as an advertising plan. Rather than spend large sums of money in other ways to convince you of the merit of these goods, they are spending it on this sale in permitting us to sell you a full size package of high standard merchandise for one cent. It costs money to get new customers, but the sacrifice in profit is justified, as we know the goods will please you.

Pyrofax Gas Service

Makes a genuine gas range possible for every suburban and country home

WHAT woman who has to put up with slow, smelly, troublesome fuels does not hope for a genuine gas range some day? Now that hope can be realized with Pyrofax which makes real gas and a real gas range possible for every home.

Pyrofax is genuine gas, derived from natural gas, stored in steel cylinders and delivered to thousands of country and suburban homes by a national service. This perfect fuel has banished forever the old-fashioned, makeshift kind of cooking service. Now every country kitchen can have a handsome modern gas range and a fuel as perfect as city gas.

Cost of equipment, including gas range, exclusive of gas, $150 and up, depending on the type of equipment selected and the cost of installation. A small down payment and easy terms, with a year to pay, can be arranged. Call or phone today.

In the spring the young man's judgment turns to Hi-test TYDOL

Emerald Green in color for your protection

It's Spring! So who can blame the boy if he lets his right arm rest gently about the shoulders of the Only Girl as they speed along the blossom scented countryside?

But there are hills to climb. And moist, mud-caked roads to conquer. And gear-shifting and romance don't mix very well.

So in the Spring, the young man's fancy . . . and good judgment . . . turn soundly to the selection of Hi-test TYDOL.

For "reduced gear-shifting" is only one of the advantages of Hi-test TYDOL. There's instant starting. And double acceleration. And anti-knock. And silken, silent super-power. All "extra cost" advantages . . . but without the extra cost!

What wonder that new pumps for this emerald green TYDOL are springing up like mushrooms and working overtime to keep up with the demand! You can't hide such super-value from wide-awake motorists.

Burgess Bedtime Story

The Disobedient Duckling
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Those who think they know it all
Find they're riding for a fall.
—Old Mother Nature.

There was one of the Ducklings of Beauty the Wood Duck who was headstrong. In a large family there are sure to be one or two who are headstrong. This Duckling was smart. Yes, indeed, he was smart. Probably that is why he was headstrong. He was one of those who do not like to mind just because they might to. He wanted a reason for everything.

"You should mind," said his mother, whenever I tell you to do a thing or not to do a thing. You need no other reason than that I have told you to do or not to do a thing. That is reason enough. If you do not mind, you will come to a bad end, and a sad end, one of these days."

The little Duckling said nothing, but he was thinking. Yes, sir, he was thinking, and his thoughts ran something like this: "That's no reason at all. I don't mind minding when I can see a reason for it. Mother is apt to be a little overworried. She is sometimes foolishly afraid. Why, right this minute I can take care of myself better than she can take care of me." It was almost as if Mother Wood

"That is talk, just talk," said he to himself

Duck had heard him. Yes, sir, it was so.

"We are going up to the other end of the pond," said she, "and I want all of you to follow very closely. I won't do for any one of you to drop out. There are dangers all the way. But if you will stay with me I will see to it that no harm comes to you."

The headstrong little Duckling heard what his mother said, but it went in one ear and out the other, as the saying is. He heard, but he didn't mind to heed. That is, he didn't intend to heed if there should be anything to attract his attention. "That is talk, just talk," said he to himself. "I haven't seen a thing to be afraid of since I've been on this pond. I don't believe there is anything to be afraid of. Anyway, I'm not afraid. If I see anything interesting, I'm going to look at it. I can always catch up."

Presently the headstrong little Duckling did see something that interested him. It was close in shore. He couldn't quite make out what it was. He looked about hastily with those bright little eyes of his. His mother and his brothers and sisters were intent on where they were going. None were looking at him. He dodged in among some lilypads. The wind had blown one of these so that it had half turned over. The Duckling hid behind it. Then he chuckled. He thought himself very smart, very smart, indeed.

"Now," thought he, "I can do what I please. I saw something over there near the shore that I want to have a closer look at. I'll just swim over and look at it and then I'll hurry on after the others. Mother will never know that I haven't been at her tail-feathers all the time. However am I to learn independence if I am never to be independent? I think mothers are foolish anyway. They are afraid of every little thing. Of course, I know there are some real dangers, but I haven't seen any around this pond and I am not going to worry about what I haven't seen. I wonder where Mother is going anyway. Well, I'll go look at that thing and then I'll hurry and catch up."

Horses Still Popular

OTTAWA, Canada—(AP)—There were 3,376,394 farm horses in the Dominion in 1928, valued at $255,469,000. Compared with 1925, there is a decrease of 177,647 in number, but an increase of $9,705,000 in value.

BEAUTIES OF FOREST AT CHICAGO BACK DOOR

CHICAGO—(AP)—The task of making Cook county's rambling forest preserves a chain of primeval beauty at the city's back door has been entrusted to George G. Sauers, assistant to the director of the Indiana department of conservation.

Sauers, who is 36, for 10 years had full charge of construction, development and administration of the Indiana park system. During his term of office the Hoosier park system has grown to be one of the finest and best administered in the country.

SOUTH DAKOTA GOVERNOR BACKS POULTRY PROJECT

PIERRE, S. D. (AP)—Clement Hunsley, a Hughes county farm boy, is particularly eager to make his poultry contest project successful this summer. It is the only one in the state sponsored by Gov. W. J. Bulow.

The contest, designed to stimulate interest in standard bred poultry, is supported by the Kiwanis club of Pierre. The governor is a member. Each Kiwanian agrees to sponsor one contestant who may borrow as much as $7.50 from his "associate" to buy chicks or eggs.

If young Hunsley sees fit to borrow funds for his required investment he will give Governor Bulow his personal note for the amount, to be paid without interest at the close of the contest.

"HOT DOGS" AND ART UNITE IN NEW ROADSIDE STANDS

WASHINGTON, (AP)—King "Hot Dog," who holds sway along the nation's arterial highways, is devoting some of his leisure time and wealth to art and beauty.

New roadside stands, combining beauty with utility, are replacing the unsightly ones of the past.

The American Automobile association reports that the campaign inaugurated by the Art Center in 1927 upon the initiative of Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is producing notable results in all parts of the country. Unsightly stands are being torn down and more artistic ones are being erected.

The automobile association estimates that 59,000 roadside stands did a $250,000,000 business last year in catering to tourists. The number of hot dogs consumed is estimated at 850,000,000.

SCHOOL FOR SALESMAN PROVES GOOD EFFORT

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(AP)—Birmingham real estate dealers are positive that one never gets too old to learn something in school.

For six days, for a half hour each day, the dealers attended a real estate school and at the end of the week a tabulation of reports showed more property had changed hands during that period than during any other previous week of the year.

HORN PLAYING HEALTHY, MUSICIAN DECLARES

BOSTON (AP)—Playing a wind instrument develops and strengthens the lungs, says Frank Burgstaller, Boston musician.

Mr. Burgstaller decides the notion that the vibrations from playing a big bass saxophone or other low-pitched horn might have an adverse effect upon the health. He says that the theory that such playing might affect the brain is "just an idle rumor that seemed to get around because it appealed to people."

"Do you think if I believed it I would start my own boy on the French horn?"

His son, a well-set up boy of 15, has been studying the French horn five years. He says he has never had a cold or other sickness since he began.

MARK TWAIN'S DEATH DOUBTED IN MISSOURI

HANNIBAL, Mo.—(AP)—Mark Twain declared reports of his death circulated during his lifetime were "greatly exaggerated." Consequently a Missouri high school girl suspected a few weeks ago that he might still be alive and sent the following letter:

"Mr. Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens)
"Chamber of Commerce,
"Hannibal, Mo.

"Dear Sir:

"Would you please send me some material concerning your life, Mr. Clemens? Would be glad to receive any material you might furnish me either in facts or pictures. We are making books in American literature class on several men's lives, you being one of the particular ones."

The secretary of the Hannibal chamber of commerce received the letter and wrote to inform the young lady that the latest reports of Mr. Twain's death undoubtedly were correct.

It sometimes happens that a man is not on speaking terms with his wife because she does all the talking.

First Showing of
The New Straight Eight by PIERCE-ARROW

HERE at last is the automobile which for weeks has had a good part of America on tiptoes, awaiting a first glimpse.

A swift, slender automobile which so beautifully combines bigness with freedom from bulkiness, as to set a new fashion in fine motor cars. That's the new Straight Eight by Pierce-Arrow—and nothing finer ever bore this distinguished name.

All the fine traditions that have been Pierce-Arrow's from the beginning find ultra-modern expression in this, America's finest motor car. It arrives at the psychological moment to meet the greatest waiting demand in Pierce-Arrow history.

Body by Pierce-Arrow—and Pierce-Arrow in every part!

125 Horsepower Engine • • 85 Miles per Hour • • 133-inch and 143-inch Wheel-bases • • 59¾-inch Rear Tread • • 72-inch Over-all Height • • Ample Head-room • • Wide Doors • • Pierce-Arrow Coach-work • • Non-shatterable Glass • • Fender or Bracket Headlamps optional without extra charge.

Pierce-Arrow mechanical detail embraces every device of proved character known to the engineering of fine motor cars

TUTTLE'S SANDY BEACH

The cloud of bewilderment which has settled over Cape May, N. J., as the result of the mysterious skimming of cream from milk bottles deposited in the early morning hours has been penetrated. A vigil maintained by the police disclosed that the forays which long have annoyed housewives were conducted by a band of squirrels, evidently driven by the cold weather to seek food from new sources.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Announcement.

Mr. Edmond Cote formerly with the Interstate Furniture company has resigned his position and is now with the Silberman Furniture store, 37-41 Main street, Norwich, where he will be glad to see all his old friends and patrons.

"Miss Norwich" Contest.

That the quest for Miss Norwich will be a real success is assured by the way the local merchants are cooperating with the contest officials in providing a wonderful wardrobe for the fortunate young lady that is chosen as the official Miss Norwich of 1929. Already a number have announced their gifts and with many girls sending in their names as entrants to the contest the entire affair is going to be a real big success.

Among the merchants and their gifts are the following. From the well known firm of Malloye, Jewelers comes the wonderful gift of a genuine Bulova wrist watch known as the "Miss Liberty", certainly there is not a girl in Norwich that will not be proud to own such a gift. From Barney's Women's shop, Miss Norwich will receive the choice of any afternoon frock in their store, this certainly gives the winner a wide choice for there are many beautiful garments to select from. To top off her outfit Miss Norwich will receive a Gage hat from Mandell's while Hawkins the Florist will provide a beautiful arm bouquet. That she may be perfectly attired as to footwear Mandell's Shoe Shop will give her the choice of any afternoon shoes in their well known store, while the Model Bootery will provide the necessary evening slippers. While Miss Norwich will be a beautiful girl all girls need a little touching up now and then and the City of Norwich Gas and Electric department will provide a Universal curling iron for her use. It is expected that by tomorrow night all of the merchants will have announced their gifts and it will be a complete wardrobe that will be given to Miss Norwich.

The contest is open to all girls in Norwich and vicinity who are within the ages of sixteen to twenty six, unmarried and with no professional stage experience. All girls will appear in afternoon frock or evening gown all next week starting Monday night at the Palace theatre, as the contest will be held nights only. One girl will be selected by the audience each night and these six girls will appear in bathing costume Saturday night when a group of local judges will choose one girl and name her the official Miss Norwich of 1929 and award her the wonderful wardrobe given by the local merchants. Then in July she will be sent with all expenses paid to the beautiful Spanish Galves at Revere Beach, Boston, where she will compete for the title of Miss New England of 1929. The winner of this contest will receive a five thousand dollar wardrobe, a beautiful thousand dollar diamond studded Bulova wrist watch made in honor of Miss New England and a twenty five week theatre contract at a real salary. When the rules are so simple and the effort only needed, where is there a girl in this city that should not try for the title? Many of our leading stars of the stage and screen received their start in such contests. Among the many are Clara Bow, Mary Brian and many other lesser lights. Entry blanks are obtainable at the Palace theatre or merely send in your name and address and telephone number and you will be notified as to all other details. Send your name in now.

"Burton's Agency Sells Another"

Mrs. Alice Baker has sold her two-apartment house located at No. 36 Twelfth street to Bernard and Julia Breen of this city, who will occupy one of the apartments after extensive alterations have been made.

The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Mrs. Rosa E. Burton.

Breed Theatre

Boys, here's a new one!

Every boy has seen Ken Maynard, the famous western star, and his equally famous horse, Tarzan, work together in their various motion pictures, and possibly wondered how they could train their pony or dog to perform many tricks as well as Tarzan. You don't have to wonder any longer, for Ken is writing a series of special articles telling exactly how it is done and how to make your pet do as many tricks as Tarzan.

Ken will tell you how Ringling Bros., Al G. Barnes and other big circuses train their animal acts, and how he trained Tarzan to be one of the most valuable horses on the screen.

A glimpse of "The Royal Rider," Ken's latest feature, now showing at the Breed theatre, will show several new stunts that he and Tarzan perform.

Here's how you can get these personally signed instructions from Ken:

Get in touch with the nearest Ken Maynard club—or if there is none of these in your neighborhood, write a personal letter addressed to Ken Maynard at the First National Studios in Burbank, giving your name, age and the type of your pet. Also include which picture of Ken's you liked best, and where you saw it. Ken will answer you, telling how you can go about training your dog or pony to do the tricks you see Tarzan do on the screen.

All ready—boys—let's go!

Broadway Theatre

Texas Guinan is here in her first talking picture—and it is all-talking picturing life in a night club—and presenting the world's most famous night club hostess as just that! Vitephone is heard in all sounds—and there are sounds of every sort from jazzy shrieks, groans and caterwaulings—to the report of a gun—at which point the revelry which has been going on as merry as the proverbial marriage bell—is suddenly changed to melodrama.

Tex Malone's partner in her club has "squealed" to a rival night club proprietor whose place has consequently been padlocked. The rival bides the right moment to "get" Tex and he gigolo. Tex always anxious to keep up the beauty of her chorus, coaxes Bee Walters to leave her young vaudeville partner to head the "Bandit Ballet." There is a climax to the act—which includes the firing of revolvers loaded with blank cartridges. The rival cleverly inserts a real bullet and awaits results. The gigolo is shot and the young lover of the girl is accused of the murder.

It is then that the mother love of the hostess comes to the surface. She reveals the fact that the boy is her son, and proceeds to fight for his freedom. Miss Guinan shows not only the bluff, kidding, wisecracking sest for which she is famous but shows real ability in portraying the part of the mother. Eddie Foy, Jr., comes naturally by his gift of character interpretation, Lila Lee charms, and John Davidson is successful as a modern Mephostophiles. Both direction and staging are expert. Don't fail to see Texas Guinan's "Queen of the Night Clubs."

Palace Theatre

As fine a show as ever played in this city greeted the two very large crowds that attended the Palace theatre yesterday afternoon and evening, consisting of five high class acts of big time vaudeville and a high class screen entertainment. Heading this exceptional show are the very snappy pair of Cooke and Valdare, a smart, fast act of dazzle, done European style, with several settings of unique merit.

Miss Evelyn Smith, the marvel of New York, lived up to her reputation and proved more than a marvel.

Lillian Steele & Co. just kept you in an uproar with the new type act, "Love Lessons."

Scoville and Corday, in Tenth Avenue, carry you right to the big city as you want the big city to be, full of fun and song, and they dance their way right into your hearts as well as sing their way to Tenth avenue, a very clever act cleverly done.

Neil Kirk is just the kind of boy who makes life worth while. You will agree that he can please as he offers a little bit of everything that's good.

"Old Shoes," which opened at the Palace theatre yesterday, is a most unusual and human story with about the strongest cast that could be assembled for the characters in this photoplay. Noah Beery is cast as Joseph Winkins, a southern gentleman farmer who seldom, if ever, soiled his hands with hard labor. Many believed the man had an unbalanced mind, while others believed that he was only playing a part.

Excursion to New York

The New Haven Railroad has announced special coach train excursion to New York from this city next Sunday, May 12. Train will leave at 6:30 a. m. (Eastern standard time), returning from New York at 9:40 p. m. This will give ample time for sightseeing in the metropolis. There is probably no other city where so much can be done or seen in a short space of time as in New York city. One can visit the famous collection of art in the Metropolitan Jusieum of the American Museum of Natural History. A visit to the Zoo in the Bronx Park will appeal to many, while a trip to the Statue of Liberty will attract others. There are innumerable places to be visited and sights to be seen—all easily accessible from the Grand Central Terminal.

There is considerable interest being manifested in the excursion and, as the number of tickets is limited, early purchase to avoid disappointment is advised. As an additional attraction, for those who desire to leave Worcester earlier, giving a longer stay in New York, tickets will be accepted on the State of Maine Express, leaving at 12:45 a. m. (Eastern standard time).

A man's narrow mind is seldom due to the fact that he minds his own business.

MARKET CLOSED WITH IMPORTANT ISSUES DROPPING FROM 1 TO 3 POINTS

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP)—The credit impasse under which the stock exchange has been laboring all this week broke today, with call money dropping from 14 per cent to 10, but nervousness over the federal reserve directors meeting after the close prevented any substantial recovery, and most important issues were 1 to 3 points lower at the close. Sales totaled 3,647,310 shares.

The reserve directors made no change in the rediscount rate of 5 per cent as had been foreshadowed by the failure of the Bank of England or the Boston bank to make any upward revisions of their rates, but the recent remarks of Governor Young of the reserve board to the effect that rediscount rates could not indefinitely be kept below open market rates had left Wall street with another Thursday case of nerves.

The federal reserve broker's loan figures disclosed an increase of but $19,000,000, which was much less than had been expected. New York banks withdrew $115,000,000 from the market, presumably to meet month end requirements, and in addition were forced to increase their borrowings at the reserve by $32,000,000. Their withdrawals were more than made up by increases in the accounts of out of town banks and "others," the latter showing a gain of $77,000,000.

Despite the drop in call money today, the credit outlook remained clouded. Bankers pointed out that requirements of about $500,000,000 for financing of several new and additional stock and bond issues already announced will be required in the next two months or so, as well as additional funds for other large new financing projects under contemplation. The Federal Reserve bank reported another large inflow of gold during the week, amounting to more than $24,000,000, largely coming either directly, or, apparently, indirectly from Germany. It is expected, however, that the higher discount rate of the Reichsbank will prevent any further flow in this direction.

The extraordinary stringency in call money this week should little explanation save the extreme sensitiveness of the money market since the reserve started its curtailment policy, and the delayed return of funds to this center after the month end payments. The recent break in wheat prices may have caused withdrawals to strengthen margins of speculators, but bankers were not inclined to the belief that such withdrawals were large.

A few stocks broke sharply after the 14 per cent, renewal rate was posted, General Electric losing about 9 points, Columbian Carbon 12 and Radio 4, but the major part of these losses were regained in the late trading.

Some of the oil stocks improved on reports of better prices and higher consumption of gasoline and a rumor that Venezuelan producers would curtail production to the 1928 output. Barnsdall A, Tidewater Associated and Pure Oil reached new high ground.

The day's news was rather unsettling, particularly another break in wheat prices, and the declaration of Winston Churchill that the Young reparations plan was "unacceptable." A few more favorable earnings statements drifted in, and General Motors declared the expected extra dividend of 20 cents announced after the close. U. S. Realty increased its annual dividend rate from $4 to $5.

United Corp., the Morgan-Drexel-Bonbright Holding company, made its debut on this market, and was turned over in large volume, selling up nearly 3 points above last night's loss on the curb to 67 7-8. It has recently sold as high as 69 3-4 on the curb. General Motors was heavy, losing more than a point in selling on the theory that the extra dividend already had been discounted.

Tobacco stocks were again accumulated on the prospects of an end of the cigaret price-cutting war, American Tobacco common and Class B both rising more than 4 points. There was heavy accumulation of Consolidated Gas, attributed to United Corp. and Canadian interests.

In the commodity markets, wheat broke 4 cents a bushel, on a bearish crop report, again establishing new lows, but rallied a little on covering. Cotton was unsettled during most of the session but closed steady.

Foreign exchanges were dull because of the religious holiday in most European centers. Sterling again eased slightly, Cables touching $4.85 1-8. The Canadian dollar was a little firmer, reaching 99.40 5-8 cents, the highest in several weeks.

COLCHESTER

L. W. BROWN SHOWS TROUT WEIGHING 24 OUNCES

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, May 9—Lloyd W. Brown was wading the brooks on the outskirts of the village Thursday in search of trout. He returned with a fine string, one of which was 17 inches long and weighed 24 ounces. The fish was on exhibition in the E. R. Holmes store window Thursday afternoon and attracted much attention from passers-by. This is the largest trout caught in this vicinity so far this season. Mr. Brown is elated over the fact that he has beaten his own record, he having caught an 18-ounce trout about a week ago. Joseph Ezekiel Falk and John Welles Goodrich are close rivals of Mr. Brown, they having made some good catches, but Mr. Brown's recent catch of a 24-ounce specimen leaves them far behind in establishing the season's record. Messrs. Falk and Goodrich state, however, that they have broken their lines several times in attempting to pull in trout much heavier than Mr. Brown's prize beauty. They are now equipping themselves with some extra stout fishing tackle and within the next few days they predict that they will beat Mr. Brown's record. Incidentally, Henry Tarnowski has been awarded a medal by the local sportsmen for having told the biggest fish story of the season.

Successful Play

There was a large attendance at the presentation of the three-act play, "The Time of His Life," given under the auspices of the senior class of Bacon academy in Grange hall Wednesday evening. Miss Pearl M. Tiffany, the domestic science instructor, directed the production, which was presented very effectively and showed the result of much careful rehearsing.

Selectman Kramer has men at work repairing the Pleasant street and old Dr. Foote roads.

D. A. R. CHAPTER HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

When Col. Henry Champion chapter, D. A. R., held its annual meeting in the Nathaniel Foote chapter house Wednesday afternoon, the officers elected were: Regent, Mrs. F. G. Buck; vice-regent, Mrs. H. J. Bailey; secretary, Miss A. M. Wickwire; assistant secretary, Mrs. Malcolm Leal; treasurer, Miss Anne Clark; historian, Miss Susan Pendleton; registrar, Mrs. N. N. Hills; board of management, Miss E. G. Day, Mrs. Malcolm Leal, Mrs. C. H. Norton, Mrs. R. S. Brown and the officers. Among those in attendance at the meeting were: Miss Susan Pendleton and Mrs. Anne Gilbert, of Hebron; Mrs. Frank Clark and Miss Anne Clark, Amston; Mrs. N. N. Hills, Mrs. George K. White, Mrs. A. D. Williams and Mrs. E. W. Day, East Hampton, and Mrs. C. H. Norton, Mrs. Myrtle Finley and Mrs. R. S. Brown, of North Westchester. Mrs. R. S. Brown and Mrs. C. H. Norton were hostesses of the afternoon, ice cream and macaroons being served after the business meeting.

Birthday Gold Piece

About 15 friends tendered Deacon Lucius C. Brown a birthday surprise party in the basement of the Baptist church Wednesday evening. Refreshments were served and games were played. During the evening, Mr. Brown was presented a $10 gold piece by those present.

BEAUTIFUL FLORAL FORMS AT FUNERAL OF MRS. PURCELL

(Contributed.)

The funeral of Mrs. John H. Purcell was held from her home on South Main street, Tuesday morning, at 8:30. At St. Andrew's Roman Catholic church, Rev. Father Philip J. Mooney sang the high mass of requiem. The bearers were William Purcell, Augustus Cramer, Thomas Rudden, John Maurice and Charles Chapman, nephews of Mrs. Purcell. Mrs. Purcell will be sadly missed as her pleasing disposition won for her a large circle o' friends. She was a most loving and devoted mother. The floral tributes at her funeral were beautiful and included a large pillow of roses and swee' peas, inscribed "Wife," from her husband, a spray of pink roses from Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, of Camden, N. J., wreath of pink roses from Mr. and Mrs. Leon Miner with word "Mother", wreath of sweet peas and snap dragons from Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Sorrell, with word "Mother," wreath from her two sons, John and William Purcell, pillow of red roses from Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Costello, of Bridgeport, wreath of pink and white carnations from her grandchildren in Bridgeport, spray of roses from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris.

BAND WILL BROADCAST WHILE GOING TO COAST

NEW YORK (AP)—When Paul Whiteman and his orchestra go to Hollywood to make a talking movie their weekly program on the CBS chain will continue without interruption.

Two of the programs will be given while en route, one from Chicago and the other from Denver. The party, which will include radio technicians, and Ted Husing, announcer, will go by special train.

The move to the Pacific will mark one of the first major broadcast series from east to west.

JOSEPH SANDORA, NEW LONDON, DROVE PAST A MOTIONLESS TROLLEY CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 9—Joseph Sandora, 2nd, 457 Ocean avenue, tonight was ordered to present himself in the police court tomorrow charged with violation of the state law in driving by a motionless trolley car while the latter is receiving or discharging passengers. Patrolman George Bruhns ordered the driver into court as the result of Sandora passing an Ocean Beach car on Montauk avenue tonight while passengers were alighting at the corner of Moore avenue.

William B. Broadbent, 9 Frederick street, reported to the police this afternoon that his automobile was struck by a car carrying Connecticut registration, at the corner of Church and Meridian streets, and that the machine was disabled so that it had to be towed to a garage. The identity of the owner of the colliding car was not ascertained by Broadbent.

At Home Memorial hospital, Mrs. Stephen Phelps and daughter, of Groton, were dismissed today.

PROBLEM OF STREETS MAKES COUNCIL ANXIOUS

It is expected that the city will spend some $18,000 or $20,000 soon in improvements on Main street, the changes being the cutting off of the sidewalks and the laying of cement shoulders to close up the cut. Eventually other streets will need to be treated in the same way.

The city has few parking places and the number of autos is increasing rapidly. It is among the possibilities that the east side of North Bank street to Federal street will some day be opened up for parking purposes. The buildings on the water side of that highway are not such as are highly valued and they could be bought and torn down for less money than some other contemplated changes would cost. It is among the reasonable certainties that Montauk avenue will, in the years just ahead, be supplied with a permanent surface of cement. That work would probably be provided for by a bond issue, the interest on which would be less than the expense of maintenance under the present system of scraping two or three times a year and the filling of gullies that are a menace to autos. The highway is the principal avenue of the city and is used by nearly all who go to and come from the seashore. Ocean avenue, a portion of which is a state road, is in much better condition for travel than is Montauk avenue though the latter is in greater general use. The avenue also leads to the only public baseball field in the city. There are two large school buildings on the avenue and as a residential district it has real estate of great value. There is little heavy auto traffic, therefore the surface would not be subject to the wear that many other streets get. The city council is considering a petition calling for a yearly appropriation to do the surfacing. That money cannot be provided with the present income of the city.

Fires Are Few

New London has had so few fires of consequence that the department may go stale a bit, from lack of practice.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Flanagan

At her home, 342 Broad street, this afternoon, Mrs. Margaret Keefe Flanagan died after illness of several weeks. She was a daughter of Patrick and Margaret Keefe, and was born in New London. She is survived by her husband, John Flanagan; two daughters, Misses Margaret and Abbie, and two sons, John, Jr., and James. Her sisters are Miss Katherine Keefe and Mrs. Bridget Nellan.

Mrs. Ambrose Edwards

Mrs. Ambrose Edwards, 55, of 92 Washington street, died today at St. Raphael's hospital, New Haven, where she had been a patient but a short time. Mrs. Edwards is survived by a son and daughter; a sister, Miss Margaret Ford, of this city, and a brother, Rev. Michael Ford, of Bridgeport.

Three Heedless Drivers

A. Y. Levin, New Haven, and G. W. Smith, 23 Bragaw street, were arrested today charged with violation of the city's parking ordinance. Ralph Harris, 453 Bank street, was arrested, charged with parking in restricted area. The three drivers will be in court tomorrow. Two cases of intoxication will also be tried.

Report was made to the police this evening that a piece of metal protruded an inch or two above the surface of the planking on the Ocean avenue highway bridge and is causing damage to automobile tires.

Louis K. Pettigrew has sold a house and lot on Addison street to Bessie M. Ockford.

Jeremiah Twomey has granted a renewal of lease of the store, 58 Bank street, to John Elion. The new lease dates from May 1, 1929, and is for 10 years at an annual rental of $1,620.

An automobile driven by Samuel Muscarella, 35 Moore avenue, struck Robert McQuillan, 11, of 274 Connecticut avenue, this morning on Jay street, near Franklin. The boy was knocked down, but sustained only slight bruises.

Dr. Charles Kaufman is acting city physician for a few days, during the absence from the city of Dr. George P. Cheney.

OBITUARY

Giam B. Musante.

Giam B. Musante, well known business man, for many years a member of the firm of Leverone & Musante, died this afternoon at his home, 382 Williams street. Mr. Musante had been ill for many months. He was of advanced years and is survived by his wife, four daughters, Mrs Rose Leverone and Misses Irma and Sylvia Musante, this city and Mrs. Maria Condon, San Francisco, Calif., and by a son, Mario Musante, of this city. Mr. Musante about three months ago was obliged to relinquish his business duties and had since been confined to his home.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

DR. C. F. FERRIN'S FUNERAL HELD THURSDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 9—The funeral of Dr. Carlisle F. Ferrin, whose sudden death of heart disease occurred Monday, was held this morning at 11 o'clock at his home, 215 Glenwood avenue and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, including a representative number of members of the medical fraternity. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. The bearers were Drs. Daniel Sullivan, Thomas A. Woodruff, Alfred Labensky, Thomas J. Murray and E. Oliver Winship, also Joseph R. Kennedy. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Nick Sealato of Norwich; Mrs. Thomas Sullivan and infant son, 80 Maple avenue; Mrs. Walter Beaney, Westerly; Homer Carroll, U. S. coast guard; James Kristianson, Groton and Miss Nellie Carver, 23 Harrison street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Forfeited Bond.

John H. Hambro, New York, was due for a hearing in the justice court at East Lyme last night charged with reckless driving. The driver failed to appear and his bond of $50 was declared forfeited. Hambro was arrested Sunday by state police officers.

Montville Women Paid Costs.

Mrs. Mabel Johnson and Mrs. Louisa Hubbard, both of Montville, were presented in a justice court at that town last night, charged jointly with breach of the peace. Both cases were disposed of by a nolle being ordered and the payment of the costs of the court by the two women. Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Hubbard were arrested Monday by state police when each accused the other of applying vile and vicious names during a words quarrel.

Two drivers were arrested today in the town of Stonington by state police on a charge of reckless driving. The drivers, Maurice Joy, 36 Lowe avenue, Providence and Richard A. Norine, Everett, Mass., will be tried in the Stonington town court Tuesday next.

TUGS LOCATE CRAFT SUNK WITH BIG COPPER CARGO

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 9—After working all week, tugs of the Merritt-Chapman Scott company this afternoon succeeded in locating the sunken vessel Wineco with its $75,000 cargo of copper. The spot was marked by a buoy and the tugs returned to this port to make salvage preparations.

College Trustees Meet

At the annual meeting of the trustees of Connecticut college held at the institution this afternoon reports for the year were read. Dean Wilbur L. Cross of New Haven, who has been appointed chairman of a committee which will select a successor to Dr. Benjamin T. Marshall as president, was unable to attend the meeting.

The Parish Aid society of Bishop Seabury Memorial church, Groton, will purchase vestments for a choir that is to be formed in the church, according to a vote taken at a meeting held yesterday.

The town of Groton is planning to observe Memorial day with a street parade and a patriotic meeting.

PERMANENT AIRPORT IS ASSURED FOR CITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 9—Attorney Samuel H. Gruskin and Robert Tetrault of this city are to establish a permanent airport in New London. The first steps were taken yesterday when an order was placed for a new D-25 Wright Whirlwind motored airplane with the L. & H. Aircraft company of Hartford. Owing to the fact that immediate delivery cannot be secured on the plane, final plans for the venture have to be deferred.

C. V. RAILROAD READY TO GIVE LAND FOR TRANSFER

Councilor Whiton, in a report made to the city council this week, stated that the waterfront east of the Allyn property, which is to be taken by the city by condemnation proceedings as a site for the C. G. academy, is owned by the New London Northern R. R. company, which in turn is leased by the Central Vermont road, now in the hands of a receiver. Owing to the mixup in title, the railroad has agreed to give the property to the city for transfer to the government.

NIANTIC RIVER YIELDS BASS WEIGHING 14 LBS.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 9—Earl Sisson today caught what is believed to be the largest striped bass taken from nearby waters. Mr. Sisson was fishing in the Niantic river and near the Golden Spur, when he hooked the bass. When weighed the fish was within an ounce of 15 pounds.

MEN ATTEMPT ASSAULT ON HOME STREET WOMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 9—Mrs. Peter Chretis, 20 Home street, was attacked by a pair of brutes at her home last night. While she was alone in the house two men, whose identity has not been established, made an attempt at rape. Mrs. Chretis was unable to furnish the police with a description of her attackers, other than to state that she believed the men were Hebrews. Mrs. Chretis heard a signal at her door about 11:30 and when she opened the door was confronted by the two men. One seized her by the throat and attempted to force her to the floor. Mrs. Chretis yelled for help and her cries brought neighbors to her assistance, one of them notifying police headquarters. Sergt. Patrick Murphy, Automobile Patrol Officer, and Patrolman Clarence Wells were sent to the house, but the men had escaped.

Joseph Mariano was in the police court this morning charged with violation of the traffic laws in passing an automatic traffic signal on Bank street, set at danger. He was fined $10.

William S. McCraw, 627 Ocean avenue, and William Enos, 64 Colt street, were charged with reckless driving. Each was fined $10 and costs. McCraw was arrested when detected driving at about 45 miles on Montauk avenue without reducing speed. Enos was taken into custody for the same kind of driving on Ocean avenue.

Andrew E. Barron, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; William McCarthy, Hotel Winthrop; John T. Matson, 33 Lowell street, Malden, Mass., and James Carter, 45 Bilman street, charged with parking overtime, failed to present themselves in court and forfeited their respective bonds of $2.

Frank Larkie, Shapley street, charged with non-support, was placed upon probation upon his promise to contribute a sufficient amount weekly for the keep of his wife and children.

Philip Monte, West Coit street, charged with breach of the peace, had his case continued a month. Monte was arrested last night by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Dennis Murphy upon complaint of Mrs. Monte.

Northfield Club Meeting

Members of the New London Northfield club are to meet Saturday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. Miss F. C. Hatch, secretary of the Alumnae association, will be the principal speaker.

At the meeting of the Annie Laurie club in Eagles hall last night five members were admitted. After the business meeting the 27 members present had a social hour and refreshments.

At an all-day meeting yesterday, members of the Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist church sewed on mattress covers for the equipment of the Girl Scout camp. The affair was held at the home of Mrs. Charles E. Spaulding, who served luncheon at noon.

Mrs. Thomas H. Shipman, of Thames street, entertained members of Osprey Rebekah lodge last night at bridge. Ten tables were in play and the winners of prizes were Mrs. W. M. Ayres, George Jackman, Mrs. Raymond C. White and LeRoy Ennis.

At the annual campfire of the auxiliary to Murphy-Rathbun post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, last night, there was a large attendance from both auxiliary and post. There was a program of speaking and entertainment.

Members of the Harbour and Faire Harbour clubs held a banquet tonight in the ballroom of the Hotel Mohican at which prizes were awarded the winners in the recent bridge tournament.

Members of the Woman's auxiliary to Home Memorial hospital plan a meeting at the Community house, tomorrow afternoon. After sewing, tea will be served by Mrs. Arthur L. Kebbe and Mrs. E. A. Henkle.

CHESHIRE REFORMATORY FOR EIGHT OFFENDERS

Sheriff Sidney A. Brown took the following prisoners to Cheshire reformatory today: Charles Krlewski, William Welzrock, Louis Perkins, Ralph Wolfe, Raymond Brooks, Charles E. Pigram, John T. Burns and Edward Demers.

The Goshen minstrels gave a snappy show last night in the auditorium of Bulkeley high school for the benefit of the Italian Ladies' Aid society. After the performance there was a dance.

A card party was held in the ballroom of the Hotel Mohican last night by the local chapter of U. S. Coast Guard Chief Warrant and Warrant Officers' association.

Rev. William J. Greene, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian-Universalist church of this city, attended the 97th Universalist convention held in Norwich yesterday and today.

DR. GEORGE P. CHENEY SAILING FOR EUROPE

Dr. George P. Cheney left today for New York and will sail for Europe tomorrow. While on the continent most of his time will be spent in France. Upon his return he will be accompanied by his daughter, Miss Adria Cheney, who has been studying in Paris for the past two years.

TWO MORE CASES OF SMALLPOX FOUND; VACCINATION CLINIC OPEN

Two more active cases of smallpox, both arising from one that has recovered, were discovered in the city Thursday at the home of Aveline and Isabel Gunsalve, husband and wife, of Edwards avenue, Hinckley hill. The two now found with the disease are Mr. Gunsalve and Margie Butler, who lives with the family.

In consequence of this development, Dr. E. J. Brophy, city health officer, decided to reopen the vaccination clinic at once, and this will be done at 4 o'clock this (Friday) afternoon in the health department rooms at the courthouse with Dr. Paul F. Gadle in charge.

About four weeks ago Mrs. Gunsalve was taken ill and called a doctor. According to Mrs. Gunsalve and a neighbor who was present, she asked the doctor if she had smallpox and he told her that the eruption on her face and body was due to an acid stomach. She was sick in bed about two weeks and since then has been circulating about town, visiting many stores and public places.

Thursday afternoon, Dr. Gadle reported two cases of smallpox in the Gunsalve household, one being the husband of Mrs. Gunsalve and the other Margie Butler. Dr. Gadle did not see Mrs. Gunsalve when she was sick.

These two new cases are definite smallpox, according to Dr. Brophy, and Mrs. Gunsalve has some scars which, taken with the history of a grip-like feeling followed by a rash, make the health authorities feel that she had the smallpox four weeks ago. Since she has been moving about freely for the past two weeks, it is feared by the health authorities that many susceptible people may have been exposed to contagion and may become ill with the disease.

As in the case of other victims, there is no evidence in these cases that these persons have ever been successfully vaccinated.

As long as people decline to be vaccinated, we are liable to have smallpox crop out all summer, declared Dr. Brophy Thursday night. It is the duty of everyone who has not been successfully vaccinated within the past five years, he continued, to have this done at once.

During the past month there have been many visitors at the Gunsalve house and it will be impossible to trace them all, which makes an added source of danger. Mr. Gunsalve, who is now ill, is reported to be about 70 years old.

Dr. Brophy called attention to the fact that in the Watters case the boy was sick for two weeks before the health authorities knew anything about it and during that time many visitors called at the house. Therefore, the only safeguard is vaccination.

Dr. Brophy will have the vaccination clinic reopened this (Friday) afternoon at 4 o'clock and it will be open daily thereafter from 11 a. m. to noon and from 4 to 5:30 in the afternoon.

RED MEN OF STATE ELECTED THEIR OFFICERS

At the business session of the Red Men of Connecticut, at their annual two-day convention in Greenwich, the following officers were elected Wednesday: Great sachem, Frank P. Haggerty, Greenwich; great senior sagamore, Frank Firth, Bristol; great junior sagamore, Harry C. Goodwill, Southington; great prophet, Frank A. Sears, Naugatuck; great chief of records, William Saunders, Waterbury, re-elected for 28th time; great keeper of wampum, Albert H. French, West Haven.

It was voted to hold the next state convention in Bridgeport and to send the organization's paper, Connecticut Red Men, to all members of the order.

FIND LARGE STILL IN OPERATION IN PRESTON

About 1 o'clock Thursday faternoon a large still with equipment was seized by the state police at the home of Roman Fedvicyck, 87, in Preston, just over the city line. Officers Arthur Whitmarsh and Elmer McKenzie found a quantity of liquor in gallon jugs and quart bottles in the house. The still was in operation when the state police arrived. Fedvicyck was arrested on a charge of violation of the liquor law.

EXTENSION LADDER FOR GREENEVILLE ENGINE CO.

The board of fire commissioners have added a new 30-foot extension ladder to the equipment of Engine No. 2, at the North Main street fire station. The ladder has been fitted to the left-hand side of the pumper. The cost of the extension ladder is between $75 and $100. If the new ladder proves satisfactory similar ladders will probably be added to the other pumpers.

The present ladders on the pumpers are about 20 feet long and considerable difficulty has, at times, been experienced at fires in reaching places over 20 feet from the ground.

MAYOR FROM PALESTINE VISITED SUBMARINE BASE

Mayor David A. Bloch of Tel Aviv, Palestine, who spoke at a gathering of local Jewish residents Wednesday evening at the Community house, left Norwich Thursday morning for New York. A stop was made at the submarine base at the Navy Yard where Mayor Bloch and party were escorted on a tour of the base.

Boys' Airplane Model Club

Plans for forming an airplane model club in Norwich are to be talked over at a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. this (Friday) afternoon at 5 o'clock for all boys who would be interested in the formation of such a club. When organized, the club would be affiliated with the Airplane Model League of America, which is sponsored by The American Boy magazine and several publishing companies.

Contests for all different types of airplane models will be held in June for both indoor and outdoor models. Members will learn to build some of the following models: R. O. G. High Climber, Mystery Climber, Mystery Tractor, Indoor and Outdoor Pusher, Twin-Pushers, Stinson-Detroiter.

Gifts For People's Forest

The state has just received two important gifts of land as additions to the People's Forest at Barkhamsted near Winsted in Litchfield county. One is from Mrs. Harris Whittemore of Naugatuck, who has contributed 26 acres of woodland along the Farmington river, which will be used as a public camp ground, and is in memory of her husband.

The other gift is a tract of 90 acres given by the Connecticut Daughters of the American Revolution and will probably be added to by them in the future. This tract will be known as the "D. A. R. Tract on the People's Forest." Both tracts will later be marked by tablets.

To Fill C. T. M. Quota

With the time-limit for application for membership in the Citizens' Military Training camps drawing near, an intensive campaign is under way this week to fill the remaining 153 applications of the state's 597 quota.

From July 5 to Aug. 3, youths ranging in age from 17 to 24 will gather from all parts of the state at Camp Adams, Newport, traveling expenses prepaid by the government, for a month's training.

Military training will be confined to morning hours. Afternoons will be devoted to outdoor sports. In the evenings, lectures, dances and concerts are to be held.

Eastern Connecticut Health

According to the weekly morbidity report issued by the state department of health for the week ending May 4, the following cases of communicable diseases were reported in eastern Connecticut: Whooping cough, Groton (B) 3, Willimantic 2. Scarlet fever, Mansfield 2, Plainfield 5. Measles, Groton (B) 1, Groton (T) 22, New London 23, Stonington 13, Mansfield 1, Brooklyn 4, Danielson 12, Hampton 3, Windham 1. No smallpox cases were reported this week.

DR. SOHN GIVES HIS IMPRESSIONS OF VIENNA

Some of his observations upon Vienna are sent to The Bulletin in a letter from Dr. Boris J. Sohn of this city, who is now in the Vienna capital for a course of study.

Dr. Sohn writes as follows:

As a result of the war Austria has been reduced to an insignificant country. The part of the imperial Austria which forms the present republic, has been cut out of the body of a large empire, as a result of which it has to contend with great difficulties, having been torn away from the component parts, which had advantageously complemented each other industrially and agriculturally.

The population of the Austrian republic which numbered until the war something like 46,000,000, has been cut to the unbelievable minimum of 6,000,000. .3Ongo.w tlp as 000 people.

The population of Vienna today is about 2,000,000, less than it was some 6-7 years ago. The burden of the taxes placed on the population by the government in order to meet the war debts, is making a painful and almost unbearable impression on the people.

Vienna is no longer the gay city, or as it was known in the recent past as the "Paris of Austria."

There are about 150,000 unemployed today, which, for a country like Austria, is regarded as a large number.

In 1928 there were about 24,000 motor vehicles in the entire republican, of which number 14,000 were passenger cars. This number amounts to one car for every 325 inhabitants, while the proportion in the United States is one to every 6 inhabitants.

There's a steady increase in tourist traffic. Austria was visited in 1928 by approximately 1,500,000 tourists, mostly Americans. Vienna had entertained about half a million visitors in 1928.

Everything in Vienna may be said to breathe an artistic spirit. This city had always enjoyed the reputation of a center of art and culture—a city whose opera, orchestra and concerts are famous the world over. There are here beautiful museums which contain a wealth of pictures and other collections of plastics by the most famous artists of the world.

As a center for post-graduate medical study, Vienna—with its enormous hospitals and clinics—is unparalleled. Vienna is rich in magnificent buildings, which testify to the greatness of the architects who have lived here at all times.

The Vienna university was founded in 1365. Only few universities can compare with it in scientific importance. In 1928 there were about 11,000 students, half of this number being foreigners—indicating its fame and reputation in foreign lands.

Yet every inhabitant of this small republic thinks of America as one great dreamland, and cherishes the great hope of, at least once, visiting our great country.

American products are sold here in enormous quantities. Austria, like many other countries in Europe, is using American typewriters and adding machines, almost exclusively. The Eastman kodak products are very popular here in Vienna, and are preferred to the European-made products.

The most popular and extensively used American article here (and I am told that this is true for the rest of Europe) is the well known Gillette safety razor. The inhabitants here regard this as one of the greatest practical inventions of low cost, which has a place in practically every home.

American made electric refrigerators are well known here. Palmolive soap is widely advertized and sold in large quantities; this is also true of the two well known brands of the American made soap powders, "Lux" and "Rinso."

Since after the war, Europe has taken to the habit of chewing gum, Wrigley's is well known here and is sold in large quantities.

Of the moving picture stars of America, the one most popular and liked here is Charlie Chaplin.

ALMSHOUSE TO BE KNOWN AS RIVERSIDE HOME

The Norwich selectmen have followed a practice that is becoming prevalent in the state in selecting some other name than almshouse for the place where the town takes care of indigent persons. The almshouse on Asylum street will hereafter be known as Riverside home, this name having been adopted at a meeting of the board of selectmen, who are William S. Murray, Charles H. Bushnell and Patrick T. Connell.

At the present time there are 36 men and 14 women who are cared for at the almshouse, which is in charge of Superintendent Charles E. Ellis.

CHOICE BETWEEN FINE AND TERM IN JAIL

In the city court Thursday morning, John Snurkowski, 24, of 19 Prospect park, was found guilty on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and for sentence was given the alternative of paying a fine or going to jail. He was fined $200 and costs, with $100 remitted, and was given until this (Friday) morning to pay the money or else go to jail for 30 days.

Snukowski was arrested early Sunday morning in the Thamesville section following an accident in which a machine driven by himself and another operated by Elmer W. Wright of Plainfield, N. J., were involved. According to testimony presented by the defense Wednesday, Snukowski had been at a party at Thamesville prior to the accident and had only drank a bottle and a half of beer during the entire evening. Several policemen testified that he was under the influence of liquor when he was brought into police headquarters, following his arrest.

Pythian District Meeting

New London Knights of Pythias are formulating their plans to entertain a district meeting on May 15 at which an attendance of between 500 and 600 is expected.

Grand Chancellor Lewis I. Beehler of West Haven has issued a circular requesting all lodges of the state to send delegation to this district meeting. The grand officer of Connecticut will also be present and the grand officers of Rhode Island have also been invited.

NORWICH TOWN

ALBIE L. HALE AT REST IN MAPLEWOOD CEMETERY

Funeral services for Albie Loomis Hale, of Norwich Town, were held at his residence, Lathrop avenue, Wednesday at 2 p. m. Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, of which Mr. Hale was a member, conducted the services. In addition to selections of Scripture and the prayers, Mr. Bailey read a poem entitled "Christus Consolator," by the late Rossiter W. Raymond, an uncle of Mrs. Frank G. Hale. Among the beautiful floral offerings was a bouquet of blue and white violets contributed by some children of the neighborhood, a simple tribute indicating the fondness which the children had for Mr. Hale. The burial ritual in Maplewood cemetery was carried out by the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, of which Mr. Hale was a member. Church & Allen were the undertakers in charge.

PLAY SUNDAY EVENING AT CONGREGATIONAL CH.

Sunday evening in the auditorium of the First Congregational church at public services, a one-act play entitled "The Return of the Prodigal" is to be given by a cast of eight characters, in oriental costumes. The play is based on the well-known parable in the Gospel of Luke. The play was awarded the first prize in a recent religious drama contest held by the Drama League of America. The solo parts during the play will be given by Arthur R. Blackledge, of Scotland road. The scene is a large estate in Galilee in the days when the temple was standing. Those who will take part in the drama are: Elad, a landowner of Galilee, Rev. G. F. Bailey; Beniah, his elder son, Reginald Avery; Joseph, the prodigal son, Charles W. Barber; Shemel, a wealthy neighbor, James F. Connolly; Abigail, his daughter, Mrs. C. W. Barber; Bichni, an old servant, Arthur W. Avery; neighbors, Miss Lucille Browning, Crosby Peck. The organ accompaniments will be given by Herbert L. Yerrington, church organist. The play is given under the auspices of the Men's department of the League of Service in the church. Miss Sadie Dawson has been directing the rehearsals, which have been in progress for some weeks.

Junior League Social.

Thursday afternoon the Junior Epworth league of the Methodist church had election of officers. Following the business session refreshments were served and games played. The affair was in charge of Florence M. Bennett, the superintendent, assisted by Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter.

At the Sacred Heart church, Saturday, there is to be an anniversary requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of John McNamara.

Cleared Over $100

When the Children of Mary society of the Sacred Heart church held a recent dance at Samuel Huntington school, the net proceeds amounted to over $100. Miss Katherine Casey was the general chairman, assisted by other members of the society and parish.

Chief Signalman Robert Wells Sterry, who returned recently from several months' cruise in southern waters on U. S. S. Camden, was a visitor Monday evening at the home of his parents, Mr and Mrs. Charles C. Sterry.

At Poquetanuck Meeting.

Supervisor of Schools James F. Connolly and Mrs. Connolly of Sentry Hill were in Poquetanuck Wednesday evening when the May meeting of the Parent-Teachers association was held in the parish house. Supervisor Connolly presided and gave an instructive address. Those from Norwich Town who provided music during the evening included Miss Margaret Connolly, Miss Ruth Sterry and Theodore Sterry, a trio of violinists; and Miss Louise Sterry, piano accompanist throughout the evening. They gave a delightful program of old time songs and popular selections. Supervisor Connolly spoke briefly on "Equal Opportunities in Education."

Mr. and Mrs. John Dwyer of Webster, Mass., were callers recently at the home of Mrs. Dwyer's relatives in Norwich Town, where they were dinner guests.

The children of the grades of the First Congregational Sunday school, have been invited to attend the rally, this (Friday) afternoon, at 4.15, in the Sunday school room, of Park Congregational church.

Camp Fire Ceremonial.

Dakonya group of Camp Fire girls connected with the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church held a ceremonial meeting in the vestry Wednesday evening and had as special guests the mothers of the members. The program: Piano solo, "A Night in May," Barbara Fellows; "Sweetheart of All My Dreams," vocal solo, Virginia Ward; piano solo, "Blue Morn Waltz," Muriel Rose; quartet, Doris Rose, Virginia Ward, Bertha Backus and Florence Gembel in vocal selections; Roll-Ar onica solo, by Charlotte La Pierre.

Doris Rose, president of the group, spoke a word of welcome to the mothers, Betty Browning and Natalie Bailey announced the program. TARIFF BILL ATTACKED BY MEMBERS OF BOTH PARTIES

In the House the Principal Differences Centered on the Proposed Schedules For Sugar, Leather, Hides and Boots and Shoes—In the Senate There Was Flare-Up Over the Bill Framed by the Republican Members of the House Ways and Means Committee—The Bill is Not Expected to Reach the Amendment Stage Until Next Week.

WASHINGTON, May 10—(AP)—While gaining the support of the republican delegation from Pennsylvania, the tariff bill was attacked again in the house today by some members of both parties, the principal differences centering on the proposed schedules for sugar, leather, hides and boots and shoes.

The senate also experienced another flareup over the bill framed by the republican members of the house ways and means committee. The proposed increase to 2.40 cents a pound on Cuban sugar drawing the fire of Senators Walsh of Massachusetts and Copeland of New York, both democrats.

After debate had proceeded for two and a half hours in the house, adjournment was taken to permit a republican meeting to appraise the dissatisfaction in the party ranks, especially that which was sprung from the western farm group over the proposed agricultural rates and the leaving of many articles of interest to them on the free list.

Other conferences will be held for the ultimate purpose of agreeing to a rule restricting adherents to the bill to certain sections. The measure is not expected to reach the amendment stage until late next week.

While dissatisfied with a few phases of the measure, the republican delegation from Pennsylvania decided to support the bill in its entirety.

"We are going to stand back of the measure and the recommendations of the Pennsylvania members on the ways and means committee," said Representative Porter, chairman of the group.

Indiana and Michigan republican delegations also met. The former named a committee to urge the ways and means committee to propose amendments on onions, wool and mint duties but the Michigan group merely discussed the bill informally.

Representative Hull of Tennessee, a democratic member of the ways and means committee, obtained permission to file a minority report on the bill tomorrow.

Senator Copeland termed the proposed sugar duty as "robbery" and said every housewife would have to reduce her budget on other necessaries to buy sugar.

Chairman Smoot, of the senate finance committee, contended the New Yorker would vote for "robbery" whenever New York's products were concerned, and said it was the intention of the republican party to apply tariff benefits to all sections of the country alike.

Senator Walsh asked Smoot if he had ever seen the tariff commission report in 1924 recommending a reduction in the sugar tariff and the Utah senator said he had not.

Speaking for the proposed new sugar rate, Representative Timberlake of Colorado, chairman of the sub-committee that revised the sugar schedule, said the price of sugar today was the lowest it had been for many years and the American people should not object to paying a slightly higher price for sugar when it meant placing a depressed industry on its feet.

He said he still favored limiting free sugar importations from the Philippines, and that he would advocate independence for the islands whenever their industries grew to the point where they would injure like domestic commodities.

Representative Hudspeth, democrat, Texas, asked Timberlake why hides were left on the free list. The Colorado member said he was in the minority on that item during the formulation of rates. He promised to support the cattle raisers in their effort to obtain a tariff on hides.

Representative McKeown, democrat, Oklahoma, criticised the failure of the measure to impose a tariff on hides, copra, jute, and crude oil, while Representative Connery, democrat, Massachusetts contended the shoe industry of Lynn, Mass., would be ruined unless boots and shoes were taken from the free list.

Although sugar, hides, boots and shoes, cattle, bricks and cement were mentioned by various members as items which should be put to a special vote, Tilson said the tentative rule left blank spaces for such proposed duties to be acted on in this manner and that such rates would have to be decided later.

Representative Dickinson, republican, Iowa, spokesman for a group of western republicans from ten states, who want the agricultural schedule thrown open for amendment, indicated that he was satisfied to rest his case in the hands of the ways and means committee in view of the sentiment which, he said, had been manifested in favor of certain changes since the bill came out.

HOUSE CONFERENCE FAILS ON TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, May 10—(AP)—A conference of house republicans, called to map out a tentative program for consideration of the tariff bill for amendment purposes, broke up after a two-hour session late today without reaching any agreement.

Republican Leader Tilson announced that Chairman Snell of the rules committee, had submitted a tentative rule upon which no action was taken, calling for the close of general debate, May 16, and a final vote by May 23, but that it was likely a few more days would be needed before a vote could be taken.

The majority will meet again at the call of the chairman, Representative Hawley, of Oregon, on 24 hours' notice, Tilson said.

Divergent Views On Death Of Huntington

Detective Jenkins Says Suicide — Medical Examiner Pratt Explains Case of Homicide.

WINDSOR, May 10—(AP)—Six handkerchiefs, five of them blood-stained, one a woman's and two bearing different initials, were in the pockets of Walter Treadway Huntington, Harvard junior, when his body was found, Medical Examiner Henry N. Costello revealed in his official report of homicide to the coroner late today.

The report was filed at about the same time that the funeral of the young student, announced for tomorrow to deceive the curious, was being held. With services private and only members of the family present, he was laid to rest in Cedar Hill cemetery, at Hartford, eight miles away.

Three hours earlier today, County Detective Edward J. Hickey reported obtaining evidence, and a motive, sustaining his suicide theory in the case, and at the same time, Dr. Aaron T. Pratt, medical examiner for Windsor, issued an official finding of homicide, based on the autopsy in the performance of which he assisted Dr. Costello, called in from Hartford.

Detective Hickey had given as the motive for suicide "an incurable disease, and the Huntington family, which includes the widowed mother, the dead student's brother, Clark, and sister, Mary, and a cousin, Charles Huntington, had announced themselves reconciled to the suicide belief. It was revealed that the sister and brother, in their hurried trip to Cambridge, had carried away evidence which sustained the disease theory.

Dr. Costello, in his report, does not substantiate this theory. Instead, he refers to an "injury" without making apparent whether he believed it was self-inflicted, caused by the youth's falling after being shot, or due to disease. He described it as a cut "a half inch long."

The handkerchiefs, indicating that Huntington was not alone when he died, strengthened the investigators' idea a woman was connected with the shooting, this idea having arisen when two farmers had reported seeing on several occasions a car, with a dark-haired slender girl and a youthful-looking man, parked on the road 15 feet from the lot on which the student was found.

One of the men's handkerchiefs, according to Dr. Costello's report, bore the initial "C" or "G." This was found in the right hand outside pocket of the youth's suitcoat—he also wore an overcoat—and was wet and stained with blood. Also bloodstained was a handkerchief, in the left hip pocket of the trousers, with the initial "." The woman's handkerchief, one of three found in the right hip pocket, contained bits of tissue which Dr. Costello described as "resembling brain tissue and mucous." The other two handkerchiefs in this pocket, one white, the other white with purple squares, Dr. Costello said, were also stained with blood. The sixth handkerchief was in the left pocket of Huntington's shirt and was clean.

Dr. Costello said rigor mortis was "not well marked." In the afternoon, investigators had said that when the body was removed, about 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, two hours after it was found, it was still warm and limp, and blood still flowed. As it was first believed the student had died between midnight Tuesday and 1 o'clock Wednesday morning, the problem of ascertaining what he did from the time he left home at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday night until his body was found further perplexes the authorities. Hickey says that young Huntington spent most of this time wandering on the lot in an effort to decide on self-destruction. Adherents of the murder theory say he might have been spending that time with a companion or companions who plotted slaying him.

DETECTIVE HICKEY AT WORK ON HUNTINGTON CASE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 10—(AP)—County Detective Edward J. Hickey of Hartford, Conn., who is in charge of the investigation into the death of Walter T. Huntington, Harvard junior, at Windsor, Conn., Wednesday, made a flying visit here today. He conferred with Captain Patrick J. Hurley, chief inspector of the Cambridge police and Martin Hester, a classmate of Huntington's at Harvard.

Hickey's only statement after the conference was "Captain Hurley furnished me with valuable information." He left immediately for Windsor. Hester said he was questioned regarding Huntington's habits while at Harvard.

Senate Denies Hoover Salary Fixing Power

Rejected 46 to 32 Proposal to Give the President Power to Name Salary of Farm Board Chairman.

WASHINGTON, May 10—(AP)—Preparing for a final vote early next week on the farm relief bill with its disputed export, debenture, section, the senate acted upon the first of a mass of proposed amendments today and accepted one which would give congress instead of the president the power to fix the salary of the proposed farm board's chairman.

The remainder of the amendments are expected to be disposed of Monday. The senate recessed over the week-end.

The proposal to give the chairman of the farm board a salary of $12,000 a year, the same as other members of the board, was offered by Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, and adopted by a vote of 46 to 32.

The bill as it was reported by the senate agriculture committee gave the president power to name the chairman and fix his salary.

The Thomas amendment was indorsed by Senator McNary of Oregon, chairman of the committee, who contended that to delegate to the president the power of fixing salaries would "be contrary in my judgment to the fundamental law." The amendment was supported generally by the same democrats and republican independents who disregarded Mr. Hoover's objections to the export debenture plan, and also by a number of senators who upheld the president's opposition to debentures.

Among those who voted with the democratic - republican independent group was Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, who yesterday complained because "Senator Borah and other pseudo-republicans" disregarded President Hoover's view on the debenture proposal. Earlier, Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, also mentioned by Fess, had announced that he would speak Monday on "Pseudo-Republicans."

Among those who voted for the debenture plan but today voted to give Mr. Hoover the right to fix the salary of the board chairman were Senators Howell of Nebraska, Norbeck of South Dakota, and Schall of Minnesota, all of the republican independent group.

PURCHASE OF NEWSPAPERS THROUGH LOAN BY I. P. & P. CO.

WASHINGTON, May 10—(AP)—Their purchase of four southern newspapers through an $870,000 loan by the International Paper and Power company and unsuccessful negotiations, also supported by that concern, involving more than a dozen other newspapers in the south were described today by William Lavarre and Harold Hall before the federal trade commission.

Lavarre and Hall, who were witnesses at the commission's hearing investigating newspaper financial interests of the International Paper and Power company, testified that the $870,000 loan completely financed their purchase of the Augusta, Ga., Chronicle, the Columbia, S. C., Record, and the Spartanburg, S. C., Herald and Journal.

The loan was made on notes given by them to the International Paper and Power company's subsidiary, the International Paper company, and the notes were secured by the newspapers' stock.

Lavarre testified that the arrangements for the financing of the newspapers' purchasers were made last November by Hall and himself with Archibald R. Graustein, of Boston, president of the International Paper and Power company.

He said he and Hall had made one trip through the southeast inquiring about buying newspapers before they approached the International concern and that after the loan was negotiated they made other trips through that section, with the expenses paid by the International.

AN ELDERLY MAN WAS FOUND DEAD IN HIS BOAT

CLINTON, Conn., May 10—(AP)—Captain Charles C. Hill, 73, who for many years ran a passenger launch between the Thimble Islands and Stony Creek during the summer season, was found dead in his boat at the foot of Waterside lane, late today. He had been in ill health for a long time and is believed to have dropped dead from heart disease.

He was preparing his launch for the summer months during which time in the past 30 years he had made many acquaintances. He is survived by his widow, four sons and a daughter.

FOREST FIRE BURNING ON ARIZONA MOUNTAIN RANGE

NOGALES, Ariz., May 10—(AP)—A forest fire, burning over a five-mile front, was spreading rapidly through the heavily timbered Patagonia mountain range ten miles northeast of here, officials reported today. A large force of men was rushed into action to fight the flames.

"—As Advertised."

How many times have you seen those two words in the course of a day's shopping: "This article for sale—as advertised."

And those two words are as welcome as they are familiar, for they form a bond of confidence between the merchant and yourself. They are his guarantee to you of worth and value. When you buy an article under those conditions you know you are getting the specific article as represented.

You have learned to depend upon advertised goods. You know the maker and seller have confidence in them and you know that they are approved by the critical investigator—the buying public. You know from experience that buying goods "as advertised" is the best investment you can make.

EXPLOSIONS AT HANOVER, MASS., KILLED THREE MEN

Series of Blasts Wrecked Five Small One Story Buildings of the National Fireworks Company—Two Men Are Missing and Ten Others Were Hurt—Windows in Buildings at a Considerable Distance Were Shattered and Structures Eight or Ten Miles Distant Were Shaken.

HANOVER, Mass., May 10—(AP)—Three workmen were fatally injured, two were missing and ten others hurt here today as a result of a series of explosions which wrecked five buildings of the National Fireworks company.

The dead were Edgar Knight, Frank Buldf and Robert Perry. The missing were John Hanbury and John Swenska. All lived in this town, which is 13 miles from Brockton. None of the injured was believed to have been seriously hurt.

The only explanation for the first explosion came from Perry just before he died at the Brockton hospital. George J. J. Clark, treasurer and principal owner of the company, said. He said Perry told a nurse that he was placing a tray of dried powder on a rack when in some unknown manner the powder exploded.

Windows in buildings considerable distance away were shattered by the force of the explosions and structures eight and ten miles from the plant were shaken. Fire apparatus and ambulances from surrounding towns were sent to the scene to aid in the rescue work.

Although Hanbury, a private fireman at the plant, and Swenska were officially missing, fragments of bodies found in the ruins of the buildings caused searchers to believe the men were dead.

The plant was made up of 250 small one-story buildings with tin or iron roofs.

The first explosion occurred shortly after 2 o'clock. The foremen of the plant, trained for such an emergency, gathered the employes and led them off the company property. As the flames resulting from the first blast spread four additional explosions were caused until five of the buildings were wrecked. All windows in a two-story administration building were shattered.

The damage was estimated at $5,000. Of the buildings wrecked, three were known as mixing houses, one was used for automatic loading and one for drying powder.

REPARATIONS CONFERENCE AWAITS REPLY OF GERMANS

PARIS, May 10—(AP)—The third month of work by the reparations conference draws to its end with the Allied experts waiting on the German delegation for a specific declaration of the German position regarding the proposal of Chairman Owen D. Young for a plan of annuities to settle the German reparations problem. Until that declaration is forthcoming, the second Dawes committee, which tomorrow concludes its third month of labors, is virtually deadlocked.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German delegation, has until Tuesday, May 14, to make known in writing just what are the conditions under which he will accept the annuities proposed by Mr. Young.

Discussions in private virtually have eliminated ten of the 12 conditions which Dr. Schacht had previously mentioned to Mr. Young.

The two which remain, however, are of major importance and upon their manner of presentation depends the subsequent development of the committee's work.

It is understood that Dr. Schacht will work with Sir Josiah Stamp, chief British delegate, tomorrow and Monday. The result of their efforts probably will be reported to the delegates of the creditor nations on Tuesday, and the latter will then decide whether they can accept Mr. Young's figures with those conditions attached.

The two remaining conditions are supposed to be:

First, the demand by the German experts that the committee's report to the various governments recommend that the final agreement comprise the understanding that Germany may demand revision of that agreement by another international conference of experts, whenever the economic and financial situation of the reich should prove unfavorable to continued payments under the new plan.

Second, the abandonment by the Allies of the lien on German railroads and industries, to the amount of 16,000,000,000 marks, as guarantee for the payment of annuities, which would be replaced by a simple undertaking on the part of the German government.

GOV. TRUMBULL REVIEWED PARADE IN RICHMOND, VA.

RICHMOND, Va., May 10—(AP)—Climaxing a colorful day in celebration of 140th anniversary of the Richmond Light Infantry Blues, Gov. John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut; Gov. Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia; Mayor J. Fulmer Bright, of Richmond, and other dignitaries, this afternoon, reviewed a brilliant assemblage of the oldest and most historic military organizations of the United States.

Participating in the events were First company, Governor's Foot Guards, Hartford; Second company, Governor's Foot Guards, New Haven; Putnam's Phalanx, of Hartford; the massed bands of both companies of the Governor's Foot Guards; the Mattatuck Fife and Drum corps, of Waterbury, serving with the Phalanx; Centennial Legion units and color guards representing the oldest military organizations in the 13 original states; the Richmond Blues battalion and band, the Blues Veterans' corps; the Richmond Grays and the Richmond Howitzers.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY WAS WOUNDED BY "SLASHER"

BOSTON, May 10—(AP)—A "slasher" working in broad daylight here today attacked Ralph Mills, 14-year-old high school student, inflicted a six-inch gash in the boy's throat and fled with several enraged onlookers in pursuit. The boy was in a serious condition at the Massachusetts General hospital tonight after an operation had been performed.

According to Thomas Keenan, 16, companion of the Mills boy, they were walking along the Charles river esplanade, when a man, walking toward them, slashed at Mills. A search of the vicinity revealed a sharp piece of tin.

Police were hopeful that the assault would lead to a solution of nearly 50 mysterious slashings and stabbings which occurred in Greater Boston in recent months.

WHEAT AT LOWEST FIGURES FOR THE SEASON IN YEARS

CHICAGO, May 10—(AP)—The pendulum paused in the grain pits today. The selling habit seemed at least to pall on the traders after a week in which wheat values here were depressed to the lowest figure for the season in years.

For a time today the bears had their way again, but the downward movement was checked at the end and the principal American markets were fractionally higher, although May wheat on the Chicago board of trade was 1-4c a bushel lower than yesterday.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT HAS BEEN DISSOLVED

LONDON, May 10—(AP)—The London Gazette tonight published the king's proclamation dissolving the British parliament which rather exceptionally has lasted within a few months of its full statutory term of five years.

In customary archaic phraseology the proclamation calls on the new parliament to assemble at Westminster June 25.

King George's proclamation also releases all the machinery for holding the new general elections on May 30, and tonight more than 2,000 large-sized copies of it were issued to lord mayors, mayors and sheriffs throughout the country for public exhibition.

The concluding ceremonies in parliament were gone through very quickly today in the presence of a small attendance of members. Most of the others had already scattered to their constituencies to begin in earnest their election campaigns.

All eyes in England automatically turn tonight to the general elections campaign and its hazards and struggles. The king's proclamation today inaugurated an electoral battle which will conclude on May 30.

With the substantial increase in number of candidates by the conservative and labor parties and the great increase in liberal candidates, the general election will see a remarkable number of three-cornered contests. Prospects of the party leaders and of the ministers in Premier Stanley Baldwin's government are the subject of much political comment.

BRILLIANT SCENE AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE

LONDON, May 10—(AP)—The scene at Buckingham Palace tonight for the second court held by Queen Mary was almost a parallel of that of last evening although more debutantes were presented and the rooms were very crowded. There were nearly 1,500 guests.

A large proportion of the presentations tonight were of representatives of the dominions and colonies. Eight American women made their curtsies to her majesty, the same number as was received at the first court of the season.

Just as the public during the wait in the mail last evening picked out the American tennis star, Helen Wills, on whom to center their attention, so tonight Eileen Bennett, young English player, stood out among the debutantes.

The Americans presented tonight were: Mrs. George Barnett, Virginia; Miss Marie Cullum, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Paul Grenning, California; Mrs. George Lawrence, Jr., New York; Margaret McKintrick, Missouri; Miss Catherine Norcross, Georgia; Miss Margaret Tyner, Illinois; and Miss Adeline Winston, Georgia.

NAVY FLIER REACHED ALTITUDE OF 39,140 FEET

WASHINGTON, May 10—(AP)—Official announcement that Lieut. Apollo Soucek of the navy has approached the sun nearer than has any other mortal was made today by the National Aeronautic association.

The flyer reached a true altitude of 39,140 feet in his little biplane over the Naval air station on Wednesday. This was determined today at the bureau of standards, where a barograph carried in the plane was calibrated. The National Aeronautic association recognized the mark as a new world's altitude record.

Now Lieut. Soucek is bent on another goal—a new world's altitude record for seaplanes. He expects to begin flying toward it within a month, and the plane in which he made the record will be equipped with pontoons immediately.

STUDENT FLIER DROWNED WHEN PLANE FELL IN BAY

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 10—(AP)—Peter Henry Mang, of New York, a student flier of the Pensacola naval air station, was drowned in Pensacola bay off Gull Point today, when the seaplane he was piloting crashed during a practice torpedo run.

The plane nosed into the water at great speed, pinning Mang in the cockpit. His mechanic, J. Franklin Seratt, of Muskogee, Okla., was not injured.

FATAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT IN DERBY

DERBY, May 10—(AP)—One person was killed, another is expected to die and a third occupant of a roadster automobile was seriously injured at 8 o'clock tonight, when their machine crashed into a parked car and set afire. Joseph Lyndall, 102 Central avenue, Plainfield, N. J., was killed outright, and Adam Walsh, Beaver street, Ansonia, was taken to Griffin hospital, Ansonia, critically injured. Otto Nelle, 221 Derby avenue, Derby, was seriously injured.

21 ARMY PLANES TO "BOMB" NEW YORK AND CINCINNATI

SAN DIEGO, Calif., May 10—(AP)—Twenty-one army planes left Rockwell field here today to "bomb" New York and Cincinnati and engage in other theoretical maneuvers along with more than 150 other planes operating from Wright and Norton fields, Ohio, from May 15 to 26.

The flight from San Diego to Dayton and Columbus was to be made in easy hops under command of Major Carl Spatz, commanding the Seventh Provisional group at Rockwell field. Spatz recently commanded the army airplane "Question Mark" when it broke the world's endurance record in Southern California.

When the planes taking part in the "attack" on New York leave Dayton they will go by way of Middletown, Pa., where they will be refuelled from the air as the "Question Mark" was recently when it broke the endurance record.

The purpose of the maneuver is to demonstrate the usefulness of aerial refuelling on long distance non-stop flights for attack.

TICKETS FOR RETURN FLIGHT OF ZEPPELIN TO GERMANY

NEW YORK, May 10—(AP)—The first ticket for the return flight to Germany of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, which is scheduled to come to this country next week, was bought today by Max E. Teigman of Passaic, N. J.

The Hamburg American line announced that tickets had been reserved also for Richard J. Burke of Tucson, Ariz., Joachim D. Rickard of Boston and Brockton, Mass., W. H. Gannett of Augusta, Me., John W. Schnitzler of Froid, Mont., Herbert S. Siebel of Saginaw, Mich., and David H. Quinn of Boston.

Five more tickets will be sold. They are $2,000 apiece.

Gannett is a publisher. He has been an aviation enthusiast.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The senate agreed to limit debate on the farm bill on Monday.

A republican caucus failed to take action on adoption of a rule for consideration of the tariff bill.

The order barring newspapermen from the jail in which Harry F. Sinclair is confined was lifted.

The senate recessed over the week and after defeating numerous amendments to the farm bill.

The nomination of Former Governor Colquitt of Texas to membership on the railway board of mediation was confirmed.

BRIDEGROOM OF A WEEK CHARGED WITH HOLD-UPS

MEDFORD, Mass., May 10—(AP)—Louis L. Bussie, 20, a bridegroom of a week who was arrested here and said for Niagara Falls, N. Y., police on charges of taking part in hold-ups in that city and in a bank robbery at Batavia, Ill., was taken back to Niagara Falls today. He waived requisition here.

SAFE ROBBERY IN MERIDEN ONE OF NINE REPORTED

MERIDEN, May 10—(AP)—Information received by the local police this afternoon from nearby cities indicated that the safe robbery committed here early this morning was one of nine staged between Milford and Hartford by a gang of safe crackers during the night. Gasoline stations were the scenes of all of the robberies.

Hartford was hit hardest by the safe crackers, six of the breaks being staged in that city. Meriden, Wallingford, and Milford each reported one.

The scene of several safe robberies during the past two months, Bridgeport is believed to have been the starting point for the gang.

The robbers failed to open the safes in this city and Wallingford. The Milford robbery netted $65; while two of three of the safes tackled in Hartford netted money, the amounts not known. In all of the jobs, the robbers hammered off the combination dials of the safes.

A WOMAN ARRESTED FOR BUYING LIQUOR

ELGIN, Ill., May 10—(AP)—A gallon of liquor found in bed with the 12 year old daughter of a hotel keeper will be used as evidence in a case Monday, which the Kane county prosecutor predicted would set a precedent in that a buyer of liquor will be prosecuted for the first time in Illinois courts.

The mother of the girl, Mrs. Helen Ambrose, was arrested on a charge of buying liquor and State's Attorney George D. Carbary said she had agreed to plead guilty and accept a fine of $125, including costs.

Mrs. Ambrose, who is the first woman in the state arrested on a charge of buying liquor and who very likely will be the first to be fined on that charge operates a hotel here with her husband, John. He recently was fined for selling liquor.

TO DEDICATE NEW BRITAIN MASONIC TEMPLE TODAY

NEW BRITAIN, May 10—(AP)—The dedication of a $25,000 Masonic temple will be held here tomorrow with George R. Sturges, Woodbury, grand master, in charge. Members are expected to attend the ceremonies from all sections of the state. During the afternoon the grand lodge of Connecticut will meet in the new temple in executive session. The ceremonies will begin with the opening of the new building and will continue until Monday night when a ball will be held.

JUSTICE CLARK CLEARED OF IMPEACHMENT CHARGES

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 10—(AP)—Justice J. W. Clark of the Oklahoma supreme court, was cleared of impeachment charges late today by the state senate. The senate court voted acquittal on nine charges and dismissed the tenth article preferred by the house of representatives. Justice Clark was accused of irregularities in office.

JUDGE REVERSES DECISION IN FUNERAL EXPENSE SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 10—The May civil term of the Windham county superior court will close in this city Friday of next week with a short calendar session, it was announced today by Judge L. F. Waldo Marvin of Hartford, presiding during the term. Judge Marvin will return to this city the latter part of June or early in July to preside over a short calendar session and possibly two jury cases. This forenoon's session was devoted to the case of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, administrator of the estate of John Marks vs. Albert G. Marks of Malden, Mass., administrator of the estate of Mrs. Marks. The suit is for a recovery of expenses incidental to the funeral of Mrs. Marks, who was the mother of the defendant. Mrs. Marks died in Colchester, March 17, 1924, and her husband died on April 28 of the year following.

The account bill of the Hurlburt-Rose Corp. of this city, which conducted the funeral, amounted to $428.75, and the total expenses of the funeral were $460.75. Town Clerk Fenton and Clement J. Hurlburt were the first witnesses, the defendant then taking the stand. He claimed that a final account of his mother's estate was accepted by the probate court of Colchester on April 4, 1928, and that he paid the funeral bill through his father, whose death later occurred. Probate Judge John Condren of Colchester testified to the course taken by his court. Following brief arguments by Attorneys Samuel B. Harvey and Irving E. Miron of Putnam, representing the plaintiff and defendant, respectively, Judge Marvin stated that he would reserve his decision.

A short calendar session was held immediately after the calling of the docket. During this brief period Judge Marvin rendered judgment in favor of Wladyslaw Korlowski against Peter Niash, et ux, to the amount of $455.85, upon the presentation of an affidavit by Attorney Miron, counsel for the plaintiff.

Cases ordered from the docket were: Philip J. Gilbert vs. George Tawyea; Noel Dupre, administrator, vs. Albina Caouette; Clifford C. Lounsbury vs. Jack Ogushiwitz; and Ernest E. Dupre vs. Albert DeForge. A continuance of one week was ordered in the case of the Webster National bank vs. Edward J. Keegan, et al. A continuance of three months was ordered in the case of Martha McBride vs. Theophilas Thomas McBride. The case of Clarence M. Ellison vs. The Bouas Motor Sales company was continued until the next short calendar session. The case of Mrs. Apolonia Kuna vs. Powdrell & Alexander, Inc., of Danielson, an appeal from the finding of the compensation commissioner, was granted a continuance. The case of the Eastern Connecticut Bond & Mortgage company vs. Edward L. Olsson, et al., was allowed to stand on the docket. An answer was filed today in the case of Samuel B. Harvey vs. Fannie Elgart, administratrix.

Cases assigned for next week were: Diego Zagara vs. Diego Zagara, Tuesday; Fred Gee of Windham Center vs. Noel E. Millane of Middletown, Tuesday; Mildred R. Rathburn vs. William J. Rathburn, Tuesday; Mary A. Vertefeuille vs. Moise Vertefeuille, Tuesday; Alfred J. Goulet vs. Amedee Proix, Wednesday; Mary Cremin vs. Daniel J. Cremin, Wednesday; Community Hotel corporation vs. Prague Bros., Wednesday; Abraham Silverstein vs. Jason H. Kingsly, P. A., Wednesday; W. D. Pearlburger vs. Bowne Bros., Friday; Abe Goldstein vs. S. Diamond, Friday, and Jean B. Paulhus vs. Emma Hahn, Friday.

The case of the Jordan Hardware company vs. Nathan Gilman of Boxrahville was heard during the brief afternoon session. The company alleged that on Dec. 9, 1926, it sold to the defendant an oil burner priced at $295, together with the exchange of an old burner belonging to Gilman. The burner was delivered on Oct. 22 of 1926, plus a control valued at $16. The terms for the burner proper were $195 cash and the balance in 60 days, but at the conclusion of the 60-day period the amount outstanding against Gilman was $116. Judge Marvin found in favor of the plaintiff concern to receive $122.24, including interest of $16.24. William P. Jordan was the only witness in the case, which was presented by Attorney John B. Harvey.

A settlement has been announced in the case of Rachel Stein and Ida Hoffman vs. Jacob Tropp, which had been assigned as the first case for today.

The retail merchants of the city are expected to gather in numbers at the chamber of commerce offices Monday evening when the functions of a credit bureau will be explained by Alfred C. Moreau, manager of the Hartford Credit bureau. The credit is based on the individual's record and does not establish ratings on the individual account. In view of the growing necessity of guarding against poor accounts it is expected that Willimantic, through the Merchants' division of the chamber of commerce will fall in line with many of the cities of this section in establishing a credit bureau.

Unless the town school committee instructs the Natchaug grammar school janitor or some other person to operate the traffic control lights on Jackson street while the children are coming to or leaving the school, the police committee of the common council will take it out on traffic by keeping the lights working at all hours. Whether this will remain in force after the close of the school term was not stipulated, the only statement being to the effect that inasmuch as a change of the signal light system did not meet with any co-operation from the school board, such a change had been withdrawn. A sigh of relief went up from the hundreds of automobile drivers who use Jackson street when the police committee set the signals at caution for the entire time, except when the children were crossing the street. The control box was removed so that it could be conveniently operated by someone connected with the school, but evidently this was not done and an officer had to be detailed to do traffic duty in front of the school. Now the signal has been turned on full, red, amber and green, and the officer has been withdrawn from this extra duty. There is hope, however, that next Monday night at the May meeting of the common council the police committee will come to some agreement with the members of the school board who plan to be present to petition for police protection at the Natchaug and Windham street schools.

OBITUARY

Gustaf Albert Hedin

Gustaf Albert Hedin, 68, died at his home, 4 Oak street, this morning after several weeks' illness. He was born in Sweden, April 21, 1862, a son of Johannes and Hanna Hedin. The deceased, who had been a resident of this city for many years, leaves his wife, one son, Frederick H. Hedin of Manhelain, N. J., and a sister, Mrs. Clara Hedin of Worcester, Mass. He had been employed as a grocery clerk by Frank Lambe for many years, later working at the American Thread company plant until about one year ago, when he retired.

The Mansfield Grange will entertain the officers and members of the board of directors with their wives and the employees of the Willimantic Trust company at Storrs next Monday evening. Arrangements have been made to accommodate 33 at this outing. Supper will be served in the college dining hall, to be followed by a program in charge of Director Charles A. Wheeler of Storrs. The party will be guests of Mansfield Grange, No. 64, from 5:45 to 10 o'clock and entertained with a musical event.

A petition to settle for damages to a Ford sedan that was struck by a small tree that was blown against the machine during the wind storm last Wednesday night has been filed with the board of selectmen of the town of Ashford. The machine was being driven through West Warrenville at the time by Joseph Bennett of West Ashford, who was accompanied by a New Britain young man and the Misses Irene and Emma Bilts of Ashford. Miss Irene Bilts received scratches on her hands but other members of the party escaped injury. The windshield and window of the right door of the sedan were broken. First Selectman Leon Gardiner investigated the accident and will make a report at the next meeting of the board.

Vincent Koseszka of 10 Lafayette street was given a suspended jail sentence of 30 days in police court this morning when found guilty of assault upon his wife and intoxication. He was ordered to pay the costs of the case. A bond of $10 was declared forfeited for non-appearance in the case of Merton H. Lewis of 309 Percelis avenue, Rochester, N. Y., charged with violating a city ordinance by passing to the left of a traffic signal at the head of Railroad street. Lewis posted the bond following his arrest Thursday by Officer Arthur Hurley.

The Staniford property, comprising a tract of land on the west side of North street in Windham Center, has been sold by Hannah Challenger of that place to Elisha W. McGuire of Brooklyn, N. Y., according to a warranty deed filed at the town clerk's office today. Another deed filed today shows the sale of three tracts of land 23-100 acres, eight acres in the town of Lebanon and the third of 32 1-2 acres in Windham, by Abraham L. Beller to Molly Fleischman.

The Knights of Columbus Boys' band, assisted by San Jose council, No. 14, will stage a benefit dance at the town hall the third week in May with music by the Knights of Columbus Boys' orchestra.

A successful dance was held at the Al-Pierre Taharin this evening by the student nurses of the training school of St. Joseph's hospital as a first annual event. Music was furnished by the Peerless orchestra. The proceeds are to be used for the training school.

The 137 manholes in the city are now receiving their spring cleaning by street department employes under direction of Supt. Edwin O. Sumner.

Town Tax Collector Albert J. Piche will hold a special session Saturday afternoon for the accommodation of property owners liable to tax payments on the 1928 grand list who are unable to appear at his office during the week.

Mrs. Edward Mansemann, Mrs. William Kegler, Mrs. Gerald Brooks, the Misses Helen and Anna Connor and Miss Margaret Fay motored to Hartford Thursday evening to witness a theatre performance and dine at the Bond hotel.

MAY BASKET HANGING PRECEDES SOCIAL EVENING

An elaborately decorated May basket was attached to the door at Mrs. George Lillibridge's home Wednesday evening. Following the usual marathon, the party were invited to "Come in, won't you?" the reception being one of marked hospitality. During the evening the party enjoyed playing a long list of games, old and new. Capt. Charles H. Palmer regaled the company with deep sea fishing stories, for he is the skipper of a coastwise schooner, hailing from the port of Stonington. "Doc" Wallace recounted hair-breadth escapes in Mt. Misery's wooly wilds. Another sat at the board that night, Lloyd Congdon, deputy game warden. He had to tell of his perilous calling as he trod the trackless wildernesses. John Potter, also qualified as a silver-tongued orator, which is nothing new for him. At midnight a bountiful repast was served. Others present were: Mr. Palmer's family, Miss Julia Sayles, Paul Geist, Jr., Mrs. Congdon and her daughter, Miss Ethel.

Eastern Star Visitation

Faith chapter, O. E. S., entertained Thursday evening. Over 100 were present, the guests being Danielson chapter, No. 77, and Moosup chapter, No. 47. There were also visitors from Norwich and Montville. Several of the members of the visiting chapters contributed pleasantly to the evening's entertainment with brief addresses, sandwiches, pickles, cake, ice cream and coffee were served by an efficient committee.

Georgie L'Homme had a birthday party Wednesday, being five years old. He had 18 guests. A large birthday cake held five candles and there was a supper of sandwiches, fancy cookies, cake, ice cream and lemonade. The favors were May baskets filled with bon bons. He received many gifts, including a sum of money. Radio broadcasts, with occasional piano selections, contributed to the evening's entertainment. Mrs. L'Homme was assisted by Mrs. Chester Stafford and Mrs. Odena Touchette, the latter of Goodyear. Children entertained were: Bobby and Junior Stafford, Verne Thornton, Jr., George and William Gill, Salim and Jennie, George and Beatrice Arremony, May and Mildred Ferguson, Norma Larus, Jerome Buckerbraum, Richard and Robert L'Homme, of Jewett City, and Irene Touchette, of Goodyear.

Ice Early Friday

Between midnight Thursday and sunrise Friday, the mercury dropped to 30 degrees, which places May 10 in the record class. F. L. Kanahan and Frank I. Hay reported ice as thick as window glass. There was frost in several places in the borough. Early automobile drivers arriving from Providence reported fruit tree blossoms frozen in Moosup and Sterling.

A telephone call to The Bulletin correspondents Friday stated that the Shetucket river is formed near South Windham by the junction of the Natchaug and Willimantic rivers. At Norwich, the informant said, the confluence of the Shetucket and Yantic rivers forms the Thames, adding that the Quinebaug flows into the Shetucket at the Taftville railroad bridge.

DRIVER AND HELPER CAMP OVERNIGHT IN VAN

A big moving van, Thursday night, proved semi-convertible, for the operator and his friend pulled up beside the state road curb, right in the center of the borough, and after fastening a heavy canvas over the back made things comfortable for the night. Passers-by peered through the cracks in the side of the covered body, but after the flash lights were doused, there was nothing to be made out. A great pile of padding and quilts on the floor showed where the occupants of the improvised hotel were checked in. Friday morning came, 6, 7, and no move from the sleepers. People began to congregate. Warden E. J. Jodoin was notified. Somebody hove a brick from a doorway in the Anthony block. This writer got busy and joined forces with the warden and nearby undertaker. Soon two frowsy heads were poked out from under the curtain. "What the H— time is it?" said one. "What burg is this?" chimed in the friend. Some solicitous and altogether friendly man in the crowd pointed to the parking sign, then passed a whispered bit of advice that ended up with a loud "Beat it." The pair shot into the cab, one saying to the other, "Quick! step on it." One of the two did that. The big van gave a couple of snorts, a cloud of black smoke squirted out from underneath, and down the line they went, with a couple of yards of bedding trailing out behind.

Prints Local Story

The current Catholic Transcript (Hartford), which is read by a great proportion of the over 500,000 Catholics of Connecticut, has for its first page leader the story and cut of the ceremonies Sunday when Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, D.D., blessed the new St. Mary's school, Jewett City. The Transcript reprints the entire account as given in The Bulletin Monday.

LEFFINGWELL

IMPROVEMENT LEAGUE PUTS ON SNAPPY MINSTRELS

The Leffingwell School Improvement league held its May meeting last Friday evening at the schoolhouse. The president, Stanley C. Spicer, presided. The entertainment committee gave a very enjoyable minstrel show, directed by Joseph Haser. Those taking part were Messrs. Aldi, Levy, Kelly and Ellis. The end men were Milton Caroline, Raymond Johnson, Thomas Greenwood and Clarence Spicer. Stanley C. Spicer was interlocutor. Miss Mildred P. Leffingwell was the accompanist. The opening chorus was Carolina Moon, Old Folks at Home and Alabama Bound. Raymond Johnson sang Sweetheart of All My Dreams, Thomas Greenwood sang Outside. Mr. Kelly, West of the Great Divide; Mr. Aldi gave a novelty dance with Clarence Spicer playing the ukelele. Milton Caroline followed with a solo, Sweetheart of Sigma Chi, and Clarence Spicer sang I'm Wild About Horns on Automobiles. Mr. Levy sang The Sunshine of Your Smile. The closing chorus was Precious Little Thing Called Love and When That Midnight Choo Choo Leaves for Alabamy. Local jokes cracked by the end men excited much merriment. At the close sandwiches and candy were served. Over eighty were present and all declared it the best entertainment yet given at any Leave meeting. The committee for the June meeting is: Entertainment, John Hracik and Milton Caroline; refreshment: Mrs. Stanley C. Spicer and Mrs. Henry Durr.

Mrs. Ray L. Beard visited her mother, Mrs. John O. Johnson, of Baltic, Saturday.

Tuesday evening the Woman's union of Leffingwell held a supper in the vestry, with Mrs. Forrest C. Leffingwell in charge. The menu consisted of baked beans, pork, brown bread, potato salad, relish, pickles, coffee and cake. A good sum was realized.

Callers Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. John L. Ross' home were Mr. and Mrs. A. Frank Gardner of East Great Plain.

Wednesday the Woman's union held an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth P. Elliott, on West Main street, Norwich. Nine members were present and spent the day sewing.

Alex Weid of Montville was a recent caller at the Old Homestead farm. Recent caller at the Old Homestead farm.

DANIELSON

RECEIPTS FOR BLIND AID MAY REACH $2,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 10—The prospects seem good this afternoon for receipts from the Week of the Blind sales in the Danielson and Putnam territories, these including surrounding communities in which sales have gone on during the present week, reaching $2,000. Secretary Stetson K. Ryan of the State Board of Education for the Blind said this morning that $1,500 already had been received from sales since last Monday morning. On the strength of this, it appeared entirely reasonable to assume that the sales of today and Saturday, expected to be the biggest of the week, would reach the $3,000 mark.

All of this money has been received from the sale of articles made by the blind. Every cent of it will go to the blind people who made the articles that have been sold and are to be sold before the exhibits here and Putnam close Saturday night.

Saturday afternoon some blind children from the nursery at Farmington are to be at the exhibit and the superintendent, Lillian M. Russell also will be present. The children will do some dances, gymnastics and take part in games. Saturday evening there is to be another entertainment the last of the week.

Secretary Ryan and his co-workers are deeply appreciative of the splendid interest shown in the exhibit, the generous purchasing of articles and the fine co-operation from churches, organizations and individuals. The week has been one of the most successful held in the interest of the blind anywhere in Connecticut.

The prospect now is that the much talked of row of shade trees on the southerly side of Davis park between Main and Broad streets, will be cut down. The town has voted a special appropriation of $700 to do the work and the selectmen are to advertise for bids. While the instructions of the selectmen, under the vote of the special town meeting, are not explicit as to this, it appears that the selectmen must concern themselves in letting the contract for the removal of the trees not only with having them cut down, but also removed and the street surface, which likely will be disturbed on its northerly side, placed in good condition. The agitation for the removal of these trees has continued for a number of years. They are very pretty trees, but it so happens that they make the traveled way through that section of Reynolds street narrower than many feel it should be, and they also overshadow another row of trees set just inside the park limits, and are hindering their growth. First Selectman Charles A. Tillinghast said this morning that bids for the removal of the trees will be asked in the near future. It is hoped to obtain a bid for the removal of the trees that will be considerably under $700 leaving some of the special appropriation available for putting the street surface in good order after the trees are gone.

After being removed from his home at Killingly Center last night, Ulysses Grant Jessup, 46, died within three hours. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker A. F. Wood of Danielson. Mr. Jessup had been a resident of this town for a number of years. Before going to Killingly Center to make his home Mr. Jessup was a resident of Danielson on Academy street. He had been engaged during his residence here at his occupation as a carpenter. Mr. Jessup was born in Pattison, N. Y., August 11, 1883, a son of Ulysses G. and Mary J. Dolan Jessup. He leaves his wife, two daughters, Frances and Amelia, a son, Louis, his mother, resident in New York state, and a sister, Mrs. Sarah Taylor of Dayville.

A death last night in Foster was that of Herbert Edward Baxter, for many years a school teacher and up to the time he became ill about three weeks ago in charge of the school at Hopkins Mills. Mr. Baxter was born in South Foster, April 6, 1865, a son of Edward and Catherine E. Potter Baxter. He leaves his wife, who before their marriage was Miss Lucy W. Aldrich, two sons, resident in Massachusetts, and a daughter, Miss Mary Baxter, who is at home.

A death last night at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam was that of Mrs. Nettie E. Carmen, 55, a resident in the Mashentuck district of this town. Mrs. Carmen was the widow of Frederick C. Carmen and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Davis. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker A. F. Wood. Mrs. Carmen was a resident of Mains. She leaves two sisters resident in Providence and a brother who lives in New Hampshire.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ella Round, who was a resident on Dolly Cole hill, east of here in Rhode Island, were held yesterday at the church in Hopkins Mills cemetery. The bearers were four nephews—Ernest Hopkins, Milton Hopkins, Harold L. Hopkins and Byron W. Pickett. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

A prediction that old-timers have been making ever since the weather man turned on the heat an early day in April and sent the mercury up to 85 in Danielson and vicinity came true this morning. The prediction said that such heat at such an early date could result in May in one pretty certain thing—a killing frost. Well, not only a frost but a freeze came to Danielson this morning, when the temperature dropped down to 28 degrees, and ice formed on water contained out of doors. However, it does not appear that the sudden backward slip of the temperature resulted in any great harm to crops, for the very good reason that very little planting has been done as yet, owing to incessant rains and unseasonably cold weather.

Real estate for sale: The Timothy B. Hopkins estate property, consisting of about 6 1-2 acres of land with all buildings thereon standing is now for sale at an attractive price. Excellent proposition for development purposes, hotel, and gas stations or for a public institution of any description. J. C. Witter, agent.—Adv.

John Osborne died this afternoon at his home in Elmville. Yesterday Mr. Osborne worked as usual in the mill where he was employed, came home, became ill and died as the result of a heart attack. He was 75 years of age, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Osborne, was born in that town and lived all of his life there. He leaves his wife, who before their marriage was Miss Mary Jane Brophy and a son, John, by a former marriage.

Mrs. Louis Kohler of Railroad street is a patient in the isolation ward at the Backus hospital. No visitors are allowed to see Mrs. Kohler because of the smallpox epidemic.

The Well Child conference will be held in the town hall next Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Danielson and infant daughter have returned from Florida, where they spent the winter season.

Be sure and see our special Mother's day boxes of chocolates, one and two lbs. Moss the Druggist.—Adv.

If Saturday proves fair, there will be numbers of Danielson people at the fairgrounds in Brooklyn to watch the events in the annual field and track meet of the Windham County Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. N. A. Witter had members of the Roundabout club at her home this afternoon for a meeting.

The Ladies' Prayer circle and members of the W. C. T. U. are to have a joint meeting in the parlor of the Westfield Congregational church Tuesday afternoon.

Eric Gibert is at Mt. Monadnock, N. H., to remain through the summer season.

East Killingly is arranging for its usual observance of Memorial day, with a procession and exercises at the church in the morning.

Mrs. Edward Ingamells will entertain the members of the Fortnightly club at her home on North Main street Tuesday afternoon.

Motherhood in Our Modern Age will be the subject of Rev. Harding W. Gaylord's Mother's day sermon at the Westfield Congregational church Sunday morning.

Rev. William Swainson, Mrs. Arthur Bruton and Frank Burnett are delegates from the Dayville Congregational church to the church conference to be held at Storrs next Tuesday.

County Agent Raymond E. Wing, Miss Alice Billings, home demonstration representative, and the boys' and girls' agent, are to attend the meeting of Brooklyn grange next Tuesday evening and are to speak.

Transposition of a letter on a sign the state has erected at the Killingly-Plainfield line on the Waureegan road has caused many to take a second look to see just what is the matter with it. It reads "Plainfield."

For Mother's day and this Saturday two pints Fro-Joy brick ice cream for 39 cents. Moss the Druggist.—Adv.

Mrs. George Crocker of Providence, formerly resident here, was a visitor with relatives and friends here today.

This morning on a false alarm from Box 512 the firemen were given a run up to the Connecticut Village section of Danielson. The same box rang in last evening for a chimney fire in that section.

NEW BELL FOR ST. MARY'S BLESSED BY BISHOP McAULIFFE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 10—The bell of St. Mary's soon to grace the re-constructed belfry of St. Mary's was received into the church on the occasion of Rt. Rev. Maurice McAuliffe's visit to the parish Thursday evening. The auxiliary bishop officiated at the blessing service of the new bell.

The bell was suspended between an arch in the sanctuary of the church and was elevated to a height of about three feet. Following the confirmation of the diocesan blessing the bishop was the first to strike a note on the bell. The beautiful tone echoed and re-echoed through the church to the delight of the capacity congregation who had gathered in anticipation of an opportunity to hear the tone qualities of the largest bell in the city. Several parishioners who had contributed to the subscription fund assisted the bishop in the service and each struck the bell once.

Bishop McAuliffe in recognition of the accomplishment of Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's, in a brief sermon congratulated the clergyman and the members of the parish. Following Bishop McAuliffe's remarks, Father Bellerose spoke a few words, heartily acknowledging the assistance given him by the parish which enabled him to purchase the bell. Father Bellerose said that he hoped the work of hoisting the bell in the belfry would be completed within two weeks and the bell would be officially dedicated on Memorial day.

(Since St. Mary's church was founded three bells have been part of the church equipment. The first was purchased by Rev. Eugene Vygen in 1875 another was acquired by Rev. Father Van Den Noort several years later and the third is the bell blessed last night, the work of Father Bellerose.

The week for the blind will come to a close on Saturday evening. So far the officials of the state board of education of the blind sponsoring the exhibition feel that the demonstrations in this city have been a decided success. The support of the people of the city of Putnam has been amazing. The sales of the articles made by the blind of the state have been exceedingly high. An amount of $2,000 was originally set to be raised from the sale of objects during the week and already a substantial portion of this amount has been realized with hopes of "putting Putnam over" before the close of the exercises Saturday evening.

Be sure and see the Putnam Parent-Teachers association play "The Hoodoo" to be given at the Bradley Theatre, Friday evening, May 17. Reserved seats 75c, none higher.—adv.

City Health Officer Peter A. Gardner said this afternoon that several residents and property owners in the city who failed to take advantage of national cleanup week, held last week will be forced to do so, if they do not begin to clean up their grounds and erase eyesores in the residential districts. Mr. Gardner stated this afternoon that the attitude of a few has tended to lower the beauty of surrounding property owners' grounds who made efforts to have their premises beautified during the week municipally set aside for cleaning up.

The report of the city health commission for the week consisted of but one case of chicken pox. Officer Peter A. Gardner seem elated over the high mark attained in the general health standing of the community. According to Mr. Gardner Putnam's disease rate is low compared to other towns and cities in the state, the size of Putnam.

Workmen commenced operations this morning in the wrecking of the fire gutted City hotel on South Main street. The north wall, the condition of which was so that life was endangered, was partially removed tonight. It was not stated by the owner of the property, Zepherin Harquoil, as to when he expected to have the site cleared. Building wreckers were handicapped in their work today because of the condition of the structure, destroyed in a fire three months ago. The debris has become weighed by the heavy rains of the past month and the supporting strength of the floor beams has been lessened making it hazardous for any great number of men to work on the structure. The City hotel has become one of the worst of the group of eyesores in the business section of the city and merchants interested in the civic beauty of the community seemed elated over the attitude of the owner this morning in commencing the work of razing the ruins.

Earl C. Rogers of the Putnam Inn left last evening for Richmond, Va., to take part in the convention of the Putnam Phalanx. Mr. Rogers is a member of the General Israel Putnam Phalanx of Connecticut, a division of the Governor's foot guard. He expects to return some time next week.

Dr. Mary F. Cushman, of Ochilesso, West Central Africa, was the speaker at a gathering of the Men's forum of the Congregational church Thursday evening. Dr. Cushman, one of the few physicians devoting her life to work in the uncivilized and remote corners of the earth, is now in this country on a furlough. Her experiences have placed her in demand as a speaker. The doctor has established a tent hospital in the heart of the African country. Her corps of assistants consist of two other white women and a few natives whom she has trained since she first commenced the practice of her profession. In her talk to the church members Dr. Cushman stressed the severe handicap she is slowly overcoming, connection with native which craft and superstition. The story of medicine in Africa as related by the noted woman physician and surgeon proved to be unusually interesting and enlightening.

The operetta "Captain Crossbones" was presented to a capacity audience Friday evening by the pupils of Tourtellotte Memorial high school in the school auditorium in North Grosvenordale. The elaborate costumes and scenery depicting the days of pirates bold, were most realistic and were the work of those taking part. Principal W. L. Colby of the school coached the drama.

Hugh Murphy, Pomfret stage driver, narrowly escaped serious injury today when his car overturned on the state road in the vicinity of the Gary schoolhouse at about 12.30 o'clock. Mr. Murphy was on his way to Pomfret when a front tire on the vehicle blew out and threw the car out of control. It headed for the side of the highway, grazed a telegraph pole and capsized. Mr. Murphy worked his way out of the wreckage uninjured. A wrecking crew from a local garage towed the badly battered car to this city.

The mystery surrounding the case in which two masked bandits are alleged to have held up and robbed Mr. Egustus Pitak of Dudley of $5,000 on the morning of April 23 was partially lifted today when State Detective Edward J. McCarthy of Worcester learned that a Webster woman was implicated and has been missing from her home for several days. Since Thomas E. Sweeney, Worcester newspaper correspondent, unearthed the fact that the woman has been fleeced of the purse at the point of a gun the police have been conducting a lengthy investigation and late last evening the Worcester criminologist was called to aid the local authorities.

After a three hour grilling of residents in the vicinity of the Pitak home Detective McCarthy learned that a woman had been taken into the confidence of the suspected holdup man, Michael Roman of Philadelphia, who during his stay in Webster was known as a man of leisure. Detective McCarthy told newspapermen that an effort to apprehend the trio will be made at once and the search will be centered in Rhode Island, for reasons which the police declined to make known today.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY HEARS REV. A. C. ADAMS

The Newell Missionary society held its May meeting at the parsonage Thursday afternoon with an attendance of twenty one. The hymn, "Over the Ocean Wave," followed by the reading of the 103 Psalm by the president. Prayer was offered by Rev. Arthur C. Adams. The roll-call and report of the annual meeting was by Mrs. Finegan, acting secretary. Rev. Mr. Adams from Johannesburg, So. Africa, then addressed the meeting. He has spent three years in Africa as a social worker especially among the acquits and in the gymnasium. He told about the workers in the gold mine some of them working a mile below the surface, hard labor at small wages, about 35 cents per day. The food consist mostly of corn meal mush. The youths have a great desire to learn but have little opportunity. The address was listened to with much interest. After a hymn and Mizpah benediction, a social hour was enjoyed. The hostesses, Mrs. William J. Allyn and Mrs. Everett Decker served, assisted by Mrs. Allen, cake, cookies and tea.

The roll-call of Lebanon Congregational church is to be held Sunday, May 19. All church members have been requested to be present, making it a rally Sunday.

THE OUTSIDE ROUTE.

When problems arise in many cities relative to automobile traffic, parking restrictions, one way streets, parallel routes and the widening of streets are resorted to in order to obtain relief. Even then there are times when the speeding up of traffic is considered in order to better move the volume.

Frequently it is the case that these methods result in objections being raised and it isn't always that they furnish a satisfactory solution. Automobile traffic is a serious problem that calls for widespread attention and it is not surprising that efforts are being made to divert traffic away from the center of cities when such a thing is possible.

This is getting attention in the construction of new roads. Where main lines of traffic have hitherto gone through the center of cities, encountering local congestion and adding to it, the effort is now being made to go around the city for the relief that it will give to the city streets and for the elimination of the delay that it will mean to the tourist. When cities can be skirted by through traffic it is the wise thing to do. It reduces the number of vehicles using the business streets and it reduces the need for some of the street widening efforts.

Every city has an interest in getting good roads so that it can attract more business. That is a desirable thing to do but there is a marked difference between encouraging those to the city who are going to stop and buy and requiring those who are not going to stop to go through the main part of the city. Travelers who are headed for points far beyond prefer in many instances the short route through a city and that short route in most instances means going through the outskirts. With good roads provided for such routes their use would be general, would relieve the city congestion and reduce the traffic. Those desiring to stop to eat or to buy would not be turned from their course by an alternate route. They would nevertheless be disposed to accept and use it if they could save time by doing so. Thus the idea has its value both for cities and for those traveling long distances.

CROOKED HELPERS.

At Springfield two men who had been employed to aid in the enforcement of the law have been caught in the detestable practice of claiming that innocent persons were guilty of violations of the law, testifying to such effect in courts and bringing about the conviction and penalizing of guiltless individuals.

That they should be promptly arrested and charged with the serious offense of perjury indicates that the authorities are cognizant of the treatment they should receive. Nothing much more contemptible can be imagined. It is bad enough when there are so many instances where there is no question as to the evidence, but when innocent persons are "framed" it is time that those who engage in such a practice were made an example of. There can be no ground for leniency in such cases. Even though they have admitted their guilt they should be given a taste of that medicine which they were forcing upon those who didn't need it.

The practice of getting such assistance in the enforcement of the law is always made the object of much criticism. It is often necessary in order to get about the devices of the law breakers, but it is to be expected that such helpers will give honest testimony, even though law breakers are concerned. The Springfield cases show that the police as well as the public have been imposed upon and it will not be surprising if the authorities use different methods in the future in selecting their assistants.

It was the only course to take under the circumstances when the judge of the court under which several persons were convicted through the false testimony should order the release from jail of the persons who had been sent there for violations. Whatever may have been the circumstances under which the persons wrongly convicted were suspected, the double crossing of such persons, the police and the court by the crooked spotters placed a blot on that method which is bound to be remembered for a long time. Its handicap in the prosecution of all such cases is going to be difficult to eliminate.

SINCLAIR JAILED.

The jailing of Harry Sinclair has been the cause for much publicity, much more so than usually surrounds the placing of even a wealthy person behind bars.

The reason for this, like the importance of the sentence, lies with Sinclair himself. He attracted special attention to his case by the manner in which he set out to defy the senate committee in its inquiry. He obtained legal advice and followed it, but he failed to accomplish his object. He refused to answer the questions which the committee considered important. He kept the testimony which was sought a secret. He did not tell what might have been detrimental to himself or to others, but in doing so he has now had a chance to realize that he was in contempt of the senate.

Wealth and high priced legal advice have accomplished great things in one way and another. They have been played for all they were worth in order to keep Sinclair from jail but they failed. And it was because they failed that the case was brought into such prominence.

Sinclair's sentence isn't a long one, but if we can judge by his attitude there was about anything that he was willing to do but to go to jail. It was accompanied by the loss of the chairmanship of the oil company with which he was long and prominently identified. He didn't like the idea of that and fought it to the last minute, but the restraint and the humiliation of going to jail for any length of time were painful.

There are those who plunge into schemes, figure how they can get around the law and succeed. There are those who get caught quickly and are promptly and properly penalized. There are those who come near succeeding in their defiance of the law and Sinclair will now have an opportunity to mull over the advisability of keeping out of jail by other means than defying a senate committee and following the advice of counsel. From all indications the sentence that has been imposed in his case though short, is going to have as good an effect as a much longer one imposed in the case of those who are able to shake off the disgrace of it much easier.

NEW ENGLAND FARMING.

Commissioner Buckingham of the state agricultural department understands that every locality has its farm problems. When it comes to the New England farmer or the Connecticut farmer there is an opportunity for providing relief but in doing so much rests on the shoulders of the farmers themselves.

They have their own particular problems and they must not only deal with the actual cultivation of the crops but they must look well to the problem of marketing them and of competing with those who are endeavoring to get the benefit of the New England market.

Commissioner Buckingham has recently set forth the importance of cooperation, efficient farm management and concentration of effort to the production of crops that can be grown in competition with other sections. It is folly to suppose that agriculture can be carried on in the same way that it was a century ago while others who are seeking to serve the same market are employing present day methods.

The commissioner gives sound food for thought when he declares, "We are living in an age of exacting competition and extensive organization. The farmer who is trying to market the products of his farm as an individual is at a distinct disadvantage, for the efficient market of agricultural products depends on a stabilization of prices, a leveling of the supply to meet the demand as to time and place, a knowledge as to consumer preference, as to form in which farm products should be offered for sale and many other factors, all of which are beyond the control of the individual who lacks both bargaining power and exact knowledge of market trends."

INVADING THE PARKS.

Many people like to see a circus, and every child is sure to answer in the affirmative if offered a ticket for a big show, so that a circus can be said to be popular without any stretch of the imagination. But when it comes to establishing precedents for the sake of making it possible for a circus to do business, when such a precedent may cause no end of trouble in the future, there is ground for objection.

At least that is the feeling in New York city and it is not surprising. The proposition is that one of the largest and best playgrounds in the city be opened up for a circus, the proceeds of which are to go for the milk fund being raised each year in that city.

The whole matter seems innocent enough on its face for all are interested in the milk fund and most everyone is interested in a circus, but the problem arises when it comes to deciding how many other good and worthy causes shall be given the privilege of using the park for circuses or similar attractions. It is even contended that if this particular park is given over to use for a circus there will not be a long time before there will be a demand for Central park and circuses will become a general attraction at all the parks of the city until the city becomes thoroughly satisfied in its desire to see such shows. One hesitates to say when that would be, but New York ought to be able to stage such an attraction at some other point.

When the bars are let down in such a case it simply serves to encourage others to get a similar privilege. The difficulty comes in making flesh of one and fish of another, and many have found that the least troublesome solution lies in sticking to past practices and playing no favorites.

The man on the corner says: Not many are bragging about the advantages of being born poor.

It isn't recalled that the institution where Harry Sinclair is stopping has had such a prominent inmate in a long time.

Someone might whisper to Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth that these are days for peace in Washington as well as elsewhere.

Probably you have noticed the contrast on bridges today where auto owners are warned they must make no less than 35 miles an hour and those where horses must go faster than a foot.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

One of the great blessings that we here in America enjoy as a most glorious heritage is freedom of thought. To put it mildly, no other nation surpasses us in having such a grand privilege. Every schoolboy knows the reason why the Pilgrim Fathers left the old world for the new. They yearned for some place where they could think and act without fear of political or ecclesiastical molestation. It seems strange in the atmosphere of today that the time ever was—and that not so far distant—when to violate the rules of conformity as to thought and expression meant either the sword or the dungeon. But it was very general before some of those great historical reformations which lifted up the personality of the individual man into a kingdom all his own. And this he will never lose. Nothing puts greater emphasis upon the advancement of the world of thought and action than independence of private judgment.

A correspondent to the Norwich papers living in the eastern part of the state complains of the devastation made by deer in that section. They are making havoc with the meadows and destroying everything they can find to eat in the gardens. This correspondent is entirely justified in her comments upon the situation. It must be very trying for the farmer to look upon this destruction, and to realize how powerless he is to prevent it. He can drive them off, but they return as soon as he is gone. He cannot shoot the deer, whereas if the prowlers were human beings he could have them arrested for trespassing. All he can now do by way of protection is to have his property watched night and day. This of course would be an expense as great as that done by the deer. One cannot escape the question, what real benefit comes from the culture of the deer when the farmer has to pay?

Quite recently the local papers have informed us that measures have been taken to abandon the present county home site. Doubtless the county commissioners studied the situation thoroughly before making this announcement, and are convinced that the step is necessary. And yet there are many who cannot escape the thought that from some angles the present site is ideal. It is quiet, it is healthful, it is picturesque. It is easily accessible and it is near the geographical center of the county. It has one modern structure of beauty and convenience. We must, of course, admit that the grounds are somewhat limited and if there should be a large increase of children its capacity would be overtaxed. But as the present plan of looking after unfortunate homes in such there is reason for believing that the maximum demand has been reached. It is hoped that the matter will be thoroughly sifted before any actual change will be made.

Is any man, however intelligent, justified in criticising another man's religious belief, as long as all beliefs more or less involve speculative theology? If it is true—and science says it is—that there are no two faces just alike, is it not just as likely to be true that the inside of the human noddle presents just as wide a variation as the outside? In other words, it is fully as unlikely for any two minds to think alike as it is for any two faces to look alike. Truth is so big a thing that no man has yet lived big enough to see it on all sides. Let any two trained authors attempt to describe some common thing and then mark their disagreements! Everything a man says or writes is an organic part of that man's individuality, and no two men are just alike. What we greatly need is to stop calling the other fellow a fool because he does not see things as we do.

What a stupid old world this would be if it was everywhere marked by a dead uniformity! Suppose that drab were the only color that the human eye was permitted to see; scrub oaks the only form of vegetation; monkeys the only animals among the lower orders to be gazed at; the miseries of life the only expression of the social order; dense fogs as the only revelation of weather conditions; the reports of congresses and parliaments as the only criteria of literature, and a few oblong feet of solid earth as the final resting place of human beings! Well might we then ask if life were worth living. One has good reasons for believing that the above illustrations are parallel to that condition of being that would logically follow uniformity of belief. But quite the reverse along all lines of human experience the objective world does all that is possible to impress upon us the fact of infinity.

We poor erring mortals may be prone to complain about the weather that has marked the present spring thus far, but we are very likely to forget how vigorously vegetation is growing, without which the following months would be barren of fruitage. Did you ever see the grass greener for more abundant in the month of April than this year? Are not the buds and tiny leaves giving evidence what in all human probability is going to be a little later? If that garden of yours is still too wet to plow to advantage, remember it is storing up forces to resist the burning heat that is sure to come in June and July. There is some reason for the great abundance of rain we have had this spring, whether our massive intellects understand it or not. Just pack away in that cranium of yours this unfailing promise: "While the earth remaineth, seed time and harvest . . . shall not cease."

Did you ever think how universal growth is? With the exception of the polar regions and some of the world's saharas one finds growth everywhere. All places fit for man to inhabit furnish him with means of subsistence. Those portions of the earth that are visited by frequent famines can trace their misfortunes to man's violation of natural laws, for the most part. Of course, he is not responsible for earthquakes and cyclones. Where it is possible for him to live, nature, in one way or another, "spreads a table before him." All that is needed on his part is intelligent co-operation with natural laws. It is likewise true that the more we develop the great possibilities of nature as a producing power the larger will be the fruitage. This is one of the leading marks that distinguishes civilized from barbarous peoples. Here we see a marked contrast between China, India, Arabia, and the United States, Great Britain and Belgium.

The importance of growth is also a matter that man nowhere in the world can afford to ignore. Its constant has been the earth's productivity for the most part that we do not realize what would happen if the whole earth should have one universally barren year. The poorest year gives us some surplus, but there has never been enough produced in a single year to feed all mankind for two successive years. Again, and from a different angle, what would be the result if the little babies did not grow? But you say that this is absolutely impossible; no, not impossible, but highly improbable. If for ten years there was no growth along physical, mental and moral lines, with the middle-aged growing older and the old passing away, what would be the inevitable result if there was nothing to draw from but babies? From every possible viewpoint growth is one of the biggest and far away the most important things in the world.

SANTO DOMINGO SEEKS PROSPERITY'S RETURN

At the request of the president of the Dominican republic, American experts have visited the island of Haiti preparatory to drafting a budget and a program for fiscal housecleaning.

"Taste of progress has whetted the Dominican desire for more progress," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

Would Emulate Porto Rico

"Prosperity is returning to Santo Domingo after an absence of 409 years. Foreign trade more than doubled in 13 years and more than quadrupled in the last 20 years. Five times as many children are in school as there were 10 years ago. The Dominican republic is proud of its record—until it looks east to Porto Rico and southeast to Barbados. If the fertile valleys of Santo Domingo were as intensively populated as neighbor Porto Rico's acres, 7,000,000 inhabitants would swear allegiance to the Dominican flag; if as dense as Barbados' population, 31,000,000. Only a million Dominicans thrive on the tropical abundance of an area equal to Vermont and New Hampshire.

"Two republics, the Dominican and the Haitian, divide the island of Haiti. The Haitian republic occupying the western third of the island is peopled almost entirely by descendants of slaves. They speak French. The Dominican republic, often called Santo or San Domingo, after the name of its chief port and capital, occupies the eastern two-thirds of the island. It is peopled largely by mulattoes who speak Spanish.

How Geography Splits Island

"Two republics, two peoples, and two languages are possible because of the topography of the island. No less than five mountain ranges furrow the island. Nor are these toy mountains. Mount Tina in Santo Domingo is the highest peak in the West Indies and its 10,300-foot elevation tops the highest point in the United States east of the Rockies with footage to spare. High ranges separate Haiti and Santo Domingo like the Pyrenees barricade France from Spain.

"Of all the lands he discovered, Columbus liked Espanola (Haiti) best. 'In it there are many havens on the sea coast,' he wrote his patron, 'to comparable with any others I know in Christendom, and plenty of rivers, so good and great that it is a marvel . . . the mountains and hills, and plains, and fields, and the soil so beautiful and rich for planting and sowing, for breeding cattle of all sorts, for building towns and villages. There could be no believing, without seeing.' Travelers of later times share Columbus' optimism and enthusiasm.

"In response to the discoverer's last wishes his remains were brought to the New World for burial in his favorite isle.

Haven of Famous Explorers

"Columbus discovered the island in December, 1492. Within 40 years it ascended to the proud heights of capital and focus of Spain's spreading empire in America—and descended. Cortez, Pizarro and Ponce de Leon sailed, conquest bound, from the walled city of Santo Domingo.

"Gold and silver collected in Santo Domingo and awaiting shipment on the treasure fleet to Spain lured to the incomparable havens of Columbus daring rascals who preyed upon the galleons. These pirates lived on dried or buccaned meat. The buccaneers of Espanola, first of their black order, terrorized the West Indies for a century.

"The star of Spain's empire moved west, waning as it went; the million to three million Haitian Indians Columbus found were wiped out. A kindly people, they are now virtually extinct. The headstones by which the world remembers them are a few familiar words: potato, tobacco, cassava, canoe, hammock.

Then the Decline

"Slaves were introduced in 1506; Drake raided the walled capital in 1586; the island fell into eclipse. By 1819 the population of Santo Domingo had been reduced, it is estimated, to 63,000.

"The recent establishment of air service with Florida may serve to popularize features of Columbus' paradise that have escaped attention of tourists; the inland lakes, one 70 miles in circumference, more salty than the ocean, and 100 feet below sea level; the dry desert of Azua; the tangled mahogany forests of the eastern provinces; La Vega Real, the Royal Plain of Columbus, as wide as the Shenandoah valley and almost as long, home of spreading coffee, sugar, cacao and tobacco farms; and Samana bay, so spacious and well protected that the United States once considered leasing it instead of Guatanamo bay as a West Indies naval base.

Sugar is King

"An arterial highway system begun while the island was under the administration of the United States from 1916 to 1924, connects the chief towns. One road runs from Port au Prince, Haiti, to Santo Domingo City.

"Sugar is king in the republic. England, Canada and Germany buy heavily of the crop, which ran to 412,000 tons last year. The country looks forward to the time when it can bring production abreast of Porto Rico, which, by area comparison, exports 20 times as much sugar. Cacao, the chocolate bean, comes next in line. Yucca and corn and cacao trees grow side by side in a triple agricultural system. Bananas, guavas and coffee trees also go hand in hand on the same acres.

"In the Dominican republic there is a bit of the United States of which few people know. A colony of American slaves emancipated by a Florida planter was established about 1830 in the Samana peninsula. The colony has persisted and has grown in numbers. Every stranger from the north who has labored to make his wants known in a Spanish-speaking land greets with delight the 'way down south' dialect that he discovers in the Samana villages."

Method of Protecting Children from Diphtheria "Simplicity Itself"

By Shirley W. Wynne, M. D., New York Commissioner of Health
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

One of the causes of needless sacrifice of human lives is that brought about by diphtheria, a disease which in New York city sacrifices annually about 600 young lives, to say nothing of the thousands of children made ill by the disease. With our present knowledge, there is absolutely no need for a single death from diphtheria.

We not only have diphtheria antitoxin as a specific cure for the disease, but in toxin-antitoxin we have an effective means of preventing the disease.

The method of protecting children against diphtheria is simplicity itself, merely three injections of toxin-antitoxin, a week part. The child experiences no discomfort and there are no bad after effects. In response to these injections the body gradually manufactures itself an antitoxin, which, at the end of four or five months, is sufficient to prevent the individual so treated becoming ill with diphtheria. Not only is this the case, but the protection thus brought about appears to be permanent. About twenty per cent of the children so treated do not produce sufficient antitoxin in response to three injections to safeguard them against diphtheria. If such children are given a second course of treatment almost all of them may be made immune to diphtheria. That the injections are absolutely free from danger is indicated by the fact that already hundreds of thousands of children have been immunized with toxin-antitoxin without any ill effects whatsoever.

In the face of the demonstrated efficacy of toxin-antitoxin as a preventive of diphtheria, parents have a moral obligation to protect their children by this new method. Experience has shown that the greatest danger from diphtheria is in the early years of life. All children should receive toxin-antitoxin as soon as they reach the ninth month of age.

If all parents will make this a routine practice, diphtheria—that great foe of childhood—will soon be wiped out. Let me urge parents to take their young children to their family physician at once and have him give the three simple injections that are necessary.

Sunday Morning Talk

The Race of Life.

Life is a race and one in which we have all entered. In every race, there is always the start and the finish. A person in training for short distance running will spend a great deal of time in learning to start well because the finish depends largely upon the start. There are several things necessary in order to run well in any race. Proper clothing must be worn, so as not to interfere with the free movement of the body. The shoes must be light, flexible and made to keep the feet from slipping. The body must be trained in order to stand the extra strain upon it.

There is a great variety of races, both as to kind and distance. The race of life may be compared to an obstacle race in which the contestants are all handicapped. The handicapping and the obstacles are different in every case. Some people have great obstacles to overcome; some are handicapped by bodily ailments, disposition and environments and have not the same chance as others. But most of us are handicapped by loading ourselves down with the things that hinder our running, instead of following Paul's advice to "lay aside every weight and sin which doth so easily beset us "running with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus." We cannot tell how long the race will be; we cannot see the end. The goal is not in sight, so we must run patiently; and in order to run well, we must look to Jesus for help. Every runner in the race of life needs to be "shod with the preparation of the Gospel of peace," and to take Christ as his trained and 1st viser. We may be sure that if we take Christ as our trainer for the race of life we will win the prize.

What kind of a start have you made in the race? Have you taken Christ for your friend and adviser? Are you seeking, "first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness," that all the necessary things of life may be added unto you? If you have not there is no better time than now; make the start in the Christian life and keep in the course, and you may be sure of victory and the victor's crown.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 10 — How many otherwise well informed Americans realize that the very fundamentals of American liberty—free speech, a free press, the right to bear arms and even the right of religious liberty—are nowhere affirmatively guaranteed to them by the constitution of the United States?

To most Americans it must occur as a rather startling notion that the federal constitution merely prohibits congress from invading or abridging any of these rights.

Affirmative assertion of them is a jealously guarded privilege of each sovereign state for itself. The federal government knows them only as inhibitions set upon it by the constitution.

That was the picture drawn for the senate by King of Utah during the wrangle over the Heflin resolution.

He challenged the burly Alabaman to show any constitutional warrant for his proposal that the senate rebuke those guilty of assault upon him at Brockton, Mass., after a speech there on his favorite theme—Roman Catholic political activity.

States' Rights

"The founders of this republic had greater fear of the federal government than they did of their own sovereign states and themselves," Senator King said.

"They kept the power within their own hands to provide for religious freedom and freedom of speech and the press and the right to keep and bear arms. The lessons of history had taught them that those rights which we nominate as 'personal rights' are endangered more from centralized governments than from local governments."

Senator Heflin made no attempt to meet that contention. He rested his resolution upon the first amendment to the federal constitution, which merely says that "congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peacefully to assemble, and to petition the government for redress of grievances."

A similar inhibition upon congress, safeguarding the right to keep and bear arms from the central government, marks the second amendment. And nowhere else in the federal constitution is there any mention of these rights.

Too Much Territory

Explaining the circumstances which had written even these negative provisions as afterthoughts rather than the original subject matter of the constitution, which was to weld the colonies into a great nation, Senator King said there was "widespread fear" that the central government would seek to exercise powers not specifically conveyed to it by the states.

The first group of amendments were framed to embody a bill of rights, he added, and their purpose was to narrow, not to enlarge, the grant of power made to the central government.

His objection to the form of the Heflin resolution, King declared, was based on the fact that it sought to "ascribe to the federal government power and authority it does not possess and which the American people never will be willing to confer upon it."

Little Talks on Thrift

Make Your Dollars Work for You

Have you any dollars working for you?

The advantages of financial thrift are due to the fact that you then have dollars in ever increasing numbers yielding you the proceeds of their labors.

It was reported recently that a deposit of $70 had been made in a savings bank with the stipulation that it was to be left untouched until the year 2224. At the bank's current interest rates, this $70 will have grown to approximately $14,000,000 when the stipulated year arrives.

It is said that all the wealth in the United States could have grown from $6,500 with interest compounded semi-annually at 6 per cent in a little over 300 years.

The equivalent of $24 given by Peter Minuet on May 6, 1626, to the Indians for the purchase of Manhattan Island would today represent a sum of about one billion dollars if the $24 meanwhile had been kept intact with accumulations of interest compounded semi-annually at 6 per cent.

The sum of $1,000 if invested at 6 per cent compounded semi-annually would in 100 years become $369,360.

These amazing figures are here made use of simply to illustrate the reproductive power of money. Dollars beget dollars much more rapidly than most of us realize. While it may seem almost within the range of the miraculous, that $1,000 can become more than a third of a million dollars in 100 years simply through the processes of compound interest, we should bear in mind that every dollar we have working for us is piling up accumulations for our benefit in exactly the same manner.

No sum of money is too small to be saved or invested. Very great fortune in the world had its real origin in very modest savings.

But we should bear in mind that dollars do not become our servants until we have saved them first. No interest is paid on good intentions. If it is only $1, put it to work for you today. Others will follow more easily and more quickly than you suspect.—By S. W. Straus, President American

Arm Chair Journeys To Other Lands

Bathtubs Backward Because Of British Law

LONDON (AP) — Few travelling Americans who poke fun at the plumbing British builders put into houses here are aware that it isn't altogether a matter of builder's choice.

"Built-in" bathroom fixtures of the type now fashionable in the United States, for instance, are more or less against the law in England, and the English are a law-abiding race.

The legal ban on ultra-modern bathrooms is only "more or less," because if one has a private water supply one can make one's own regulations.

Thus a few hotels and other large establishments drawing water from their own wells enjoy bathroom luxuries which the ordinary householder, connected with the public mains, could not install without breaking the law.

Specifically, the law regulating plumbing (enacted by parliament in 1871) seeks to prevent any direct connection of plumbing fixtures with the public water supply.

In practice, according to one London architect, it discourages the adoption of any bathroom innovations and trains the builder to avoid argument with authorities by keeping his plumbing old-fashioned and his pipes as much as possible out in the open, where anyone can see what's wrong with them when they go wrong.

"I've seen only one built-in tiled bathroom of the type so colorfully pictured in American magazine advertisements," said this architect. "It was part of an American plumbing supply exhibit near, but not in, the British museum."

This statement is controverted, however, by an American of long residence here, who says he once saw an ultra-modern bathroom in the home of a wealthy Englishman, who had installed the last word in bathtubs for the comfort of his American guests.

As for himself, the host insisted on having a portable tin tub brought into his bedroom each morning.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Memorial Day in Plainfield

Mr. Editor: As Memorial day is about to be observed again, we are reminded of the day by our old timer Overseas Man. He says the Legion post in Moosup is seeking to take over the work of Memorial day, that is, according to the Moosup Journal. Well I apologize for the Journal at this time, for it is not the first time it has made similar errors. Overseas Man is probably as patriotic as the fellow that was helping the disabled men of the town immediately after the war by getting their compensation for them and using it for his own pleasures and when Memorial day come about he had taken a trip to a much more comfortable climate. But then we expected it from him.

Well Overseas Man: probably S.O.S man: Thursday, May 30th the ex-service men of the town of Plainfield will gather for another Memorial day service and I wonder if you will fall in with the boys or do as you have been doing for the last five years, just stand by and keep your hands in your pockets as the colors go by. I believe you will.

ALBERT C. DE-FORGE.

Where Are Sons and Grandsons of Veterans?

Mr. Editor: Concerning the question of Memorial day in the town of Plainfield would like to ask where are the sons and grandsons of the veterans of the Civil war.

Why not leave the plow in the furrow for a time, and come forward and help to settle the question, and show some of the fighting spirit of their forefathers. There are many in town, why be indifferent?

CENTRAL BAPTIST WOMAN'S LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS

Mrs. Henry A. Jatkowski was elected president of the Woman's League of the Central Baptist church at its annual meeting held Friday evening in Bushnell chapel with an attendance of over 100. The business session was preceded by the banquet, which was served at 6.15 o'clock with the following appetizing menu: Fruit cup, chicken pie, mashed potato, peas, strawberry sauce, pickles, rolls, nuts, ice cream, coffee.

The tables were tastefully decorated in a color scheme of yellow and white. There were neat May baskets and vases filled with apple blossoms and jonquils.

The devotional service was led by Mrs. Mary Whiteman. Mrs. H. H. Pettis, the retiring president, was in the chair at the business session and the annual reports, all of which were very encouraging, were given by officers and heads of the various departments. As each chairman made her report she presented Mrs. Pettis a gift symbolical of her committee Mrs. Pettis was also given a large beautiful May basket.

The officers elected, as named by the nominating committee Mrs. Emory H. Davis, Miss Ruth Hamilton and Mrs. Charles A. Haberberg, are: President, Mrs. Henry A. Jatkowski; first vice president, Mrs. Gilbert S. Raymond; second vice president, Mrs. H. H. Pettis; secretary, Miss Helen L. Denison; treasurer, Miss Ruby Vaughn; auditor, Mrs. Shepard B. Palmer.

Chairmen of various departments: Religious education, Mrs. C. C. Gildersleeve; programme, Mrs. C. Edward Smith; social service, Miss Alice M. Dean; friendship, Mrs. Charles S. Two pleasing violin selections by Miss Stewart were Hungarian Dance, No. 6 (Brahms) and The Spring Song (Mendelssohn).

The vocal numbers, given by Miss March in beautiful voice, with violin obligato, were Little Gypsy Wanda, As Through the Street, From the Bohemians (Puccini), Where My Caravan Has Rested (Lohr), Fiddle and I (Goodeve) and Gypsy Love Song (Herbert). These were sung in Gypsy costume.

The supper was served under the chairmanship of Mrs. Henrietta Tefft, who was assisted by Mrs. Jennie Davis, Mrs. James Parker, Miss Nellie Rathbone, Mrs. Walter Phillips, Mrs. Ethel Rogers and Miss Genevieve Eno.

The hostesses comprised Mrs. James M. Young, Mrs. Mary Whiteman, Mrs. Emory H. Davis, Mrs. Ambrose Sullivan, Mrs. John Hill, Miss Anna Storms, Mrs. Henry Pettis, Mrs. Eugene Smith and Mrs. E. Y. Messinger.

AUTO CAUGHT BETWEEN POLE AND TROLLEY CAR

In a collision between a trolley car and an automobile owned and driven by William N. Thomas, R. F. D. No. 7, Norwich, at the entrance to Uncas-on-Thames at 11:35 Friday night, the Pontiac sedan of Mr. Thomas was almost completely demolished.

Mr. Thomas was coming out of the driveway at the sanatorium and did not notice the approach of the trolley until too late to avoid the crash. His car was caught by the left front side of the trolley and pushed against a telephone pole in front of the waiting room. The automobile was wedged between the trolley car and the pole and is a complete wreck. Besides Mr. Thomas there were three other passengers in the automobile. All escaped injury.

The trolley car was in charge of Conductor George Tibbetts and Motorman George Conrad. Mr. Conrad endeavored to stop his car when he became aware that Mr. Thomas was going to cross the tracks instead of stopping. The trolley was delayed for several minutes until a wrecker could be summoned to remove the automobile.

OBITUARY

Charles T. Ludwig, Jr.

Following an illness of some time, Charles T. Ludwig, Jr., 30, died Friday about 12 o'clock, noon, at his home, No. 12 Peck street. He was born in this city, the son of Charles T. and the late Mary J. Ludwig. In Cleveland, Ohio, nine years ago he was united in marriage with Marie Boudreau and since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig made their home in this city. Mr. Ludwig was a chauffeur and was a member of St. Patrick's parish.

Surviving are his wife, one child, Charles, Jr., a sister, Miss Eleanor Ludwig, at home, and one brother, Charles Ludwig of East Hampton, this state. Mr. Ludwig was well and favorably known to many Norwich people who are grieved to learn of his death and who extend sincere and heartfelt sympathy to the family.

Paul H. Swanson

Ill for five weeks following an accident, Paul H. Swanson, 39, son of Adolf and Anna Swanson of Baltic, died Thursday morning at 8 o'clock at his home in South Auburn, R. I. He was born in Sweden, April 2, 1890, coming to this country at the age of 5, and was united in marriage with Margaret Johnson in South Auburn, on June 24, 1916. Besides his widow, he is survived by a son, Paul, Jr., his mother in Baltic, and five sisters, Mrs. Bertha Johnson of North Grosvenordale, Mrs. Ida Phillips and Mrs. Gertrude Taylor, Baltic, Miss Mildred Swanson, Willimantic and Mrs. Fred Cruthers, Norwich, and two brothers, Gustave Swanson, Baltic, and Joel Swanson of Milwaukee, Wis. News of his death was received with profound sorrow by his many friends.

In one of his characteristic speeches made when he was director of public safety, Brig. Gen. Smedley Butler told 800 policemen, firemen and Frank guards, in Philadelphia, to wage relentless war on gangsters. "Shoot these half-breed bandits—stand up and fight—throw them out of town," he said.

MASONS BEGIN CAMPAIGN FOR $50,000 MASONIC TEMPLE BONDS

Stirred to enthusiastic effort by the promise of obtaining for Norwich a beautiful Masonic temple that many a city of greater size might look upon with envious longing, three teams numbering 94 men of the Masonic fraternities of the city will be hard at work over the week-end in the campaign to place $50,000 in bonds to secure the amount needed to complete the construction of the temple.

The team members met in the new temple at the corner of Washington and Sachem streets Friday evening at 8 o'clock for an inspection of the progress of the work so far and then had lunch in the splendid banquet room on the basement floor.

Then James L. Case, campaign director, called the meeting to order and Howard L. Stanton, honorary chairman of the campaign, who is president of the Masonic Temple corporation, spoke earnestly of the value of the new temple to the fraternity and to the community and was followed by Arthur M. Brown, campaign chairman, who explained the reason why this campaign was necessary.

Mr. Brown stated that of the $230,000 subscribed to bonds in the previous campaign, the sum of $200,000 had already been paid in and now a total of $250,000 is needed. The contractors on the various details of the construction work of the new temple have rendered splendid service, Mr. Brown said, have lived up to their contracts thoroughly and the temple has been built for less money than anyone thought possible. The Masonic fraternity of Norwich, Mr. Brown said, will receive the best value for money expended of any similar piece of Masonic construction work in a wide territory. He advised the team workers to tell the story and urge those to whom they spoke to invest in the bonds even if they were at a somewhat lower rate of interest than other investments might promise.

Charles L. Stewart spoke for the team members and Rev. Alexander H. Abbott addressed the workers in an eloquent way as he spoke of the obligation to respond to the appeal in this cause and of the value of Masonry to the community and to the individual.

Campaign Director Case then explained the plan of the campaign which is to be carried on by the teams in three divisions, numbering 94 men in all, of which Division A, with Judge Nelson J. Ayling as commander, is assigned to place bonds of $1,000 or over; Division B, with Charles L. Stewart and E. O. Rodier as commanders, bonds of $500, and Division C, with Wilbur S. Williams and F. Russell Smith as commanders, bonds of $100 to $200.

The first-named division has eight members, the second ten, and the third 76. Reports are to be made at a breakfast at 8:30 Monday morning in the old Masonic temple, at a luncheon at 12:30 and at a supper at 6:15.

The membership of the divisions is made up as follows:

Division A—Nelson J. Ayling, commander; Herbert M. Lerou, Arthur M. Crown, William G. Park, Walter F. Lester, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, William H. Oat, Howard L. Stanton.

Division B—Charles L. Stewart and Ernest O. Rodier, commanders; E. Allen Eldwell, Nathan A. Gibbs, George A. Keppler, Roy B. Judd, Charles A. Saxton, Joseph C. Worth, Benjamin T. Hall.

MISSIONARIES FROM AFRICA SPEAK AT PARK CHURCH

The missions department of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church held its May meeting on Friday afternoon in the parlors of the Osgood Memorial. Miss Edith Bliss chairman, presided and led the opening devotional service.

Announcement was made of the parish house meeting for next Friday when Mrs. Willis Austin will read two plays and Mrs. William Crowe Jr. will sing.

Rev. Arthur H. Adams of Johannesburg, South Africa was the speaker for the afternoon and held the close attention of his audience as he alluded to beauty of the country, the vast mining operations and the civilization of the cities. Johannesburg is called a city of 270,000, but that means only white. If the blacks were added it would be half a million.

The color line is sharply drawn and produces restlessness and bitter feeling. The blacks are needed for the heavier forms of labor but the whites reserve for themselves all positions of higher rank so that the black, though educated and able is not allowed to enter.

The Bantu Men's social center was started by Dr. Frederick Bridgman, an American missionary, who saw the need of providing a place for the blacks similar to the Y. M. C. A. for whites. Twelve hundred alert, bright boys avail themselves of these privileges and its good is already being felt as joint conferences of white and black occur and the Bantu acquires individual and racial consciousness.

Mr. Adams showed pictures and curios at the close of his talk and then the audience went upstairs to the Sunday school room where a get-together of the Young People's department of the Eastern district of Connecticut was convening, filling every available seat. This was one of a series, others having been held in Willimantic and Putnam.

After songs, responsive readings and prayer by Mr. Adams and the Children's Creed given by a class from the United church, Mrs. George L. Ingalls introduced Dr. Charlotte Cushman, a missionary physician from Angola, Portuguese West Africa.

In imagination the children travelled with her from coast to mountain, by train or auto road, saw lions and other wild beasts, walked in the narrow African paths, watched women and girls working in the fields and using the two-handled hoe, or carrying heavy loads on their heads.

Dr. Cushman remarked upon the Bantu politeness, never laughing at her mistakes in the new language, and of their eagerness for genuine doctors to replace the witch doctors, and for the Bible.

After a collection, Mr. Adams showed a battle ax, spear, cub leopard skin and other things, while he told of his work with the Scouts or Pathfinders as the Bantu society has to be called. He drew forth great enthusiasm from local Scouts who hope to hear him again.

Such an enthusiastic rally closed of course with the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers."

CONTRACT FOR SALEM ROAD AWARDED AT $48,828.45

The contract for the new road from Dolbeare's corner in the town of Salem, on which work has been underway for a week has been awarded at $48,828.45 to D. Arrixoni & Sons of Middletown, according to an announcement just made by State Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald. It is for 9,476 feet of native stone water-bound macadam on the Montville-Colchester road along the west shore of Gardner lake.

Other announcements of contract awards are as follows:

Town of Sterling: About 9,891 feet of waterbound macadam on the Ekonk Hill road, J. Mascetti Co. of Torrington, $46,130.50.

Town of Bolton: About 3,600 feet of waterbound macadam on Bolton street, to J. A. Altieri & Petruccioni Co., Waterbury, $31,954.30.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Henry Gevers

The funeral of Mrs. Henry Gevers was held at the parlors of Church & Allen Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock with the service conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. The burial was in Maplewood cemetery where Rev. Mr. Ricketts conducted the committal service. The bearers were John Cousins, Charles H. Haynes, Ernest Houston and Herman Houston. Relatives and friends were present and there were a number of beautiful floral tributes.

GAVE MISSIONARY PAGEANT AT METHODIST CHURCH

A missionary pageant was impressively presented at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church Thursday evening under direction of Mrs. Robert Bigood of New London in connection with the World Service extension programme of the Methodist Episcopal churches. The mission programme has six projects, namely, home missions and church extensions, education, hospitals and homes, prohibition and public morals, extension relief for retired ministers and widows.

Dr. Reeves Calkins of India gave an interesting address on "Stewardship" as a part of the service, in which Rev. Frederick Baker of Norwich, Rev. Myron Genter, district superintendent, Norwich, and Rev. John Carter of Jewett City, also participated. The Methodist churches of Norwich Town, Baltic, Versailles and Gardners Lake were represented at the meeting. Miss Olive Roberts presided at the organ.

Among those who took part in the pageant, which was introduced by Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor, who also pointed out the different articles used in the church, which were on exhibition, were the following: Rev. George Warren Potter, Mrs. Potter, Mrs. Charles Browning, Lewis E. Aldrich, Mrs. Aldrich, Mrs. Edwin Floyd, Miss Florence Edwards, Miss Mary Gray, Miss Mary Crowell, Miss Bessie Boardman, Mrs. Christopher Allen, Edward Lichenstein and Miss Taft.

Molter, who had as guests in her car the general chairman of the Norwich Town section, Mrs. William Weaver and Mrs. Lester Smith, Mrs. Richard Carter and Mrs. Arthur Fulton; Mrs. Robert R. Agnew, who conveyed in her car Mrs. David M. Dean, Mrs. John Olsen and Mrs. Arthur R. Blackledge. The new clinic at Backus hospital was visited at first, then the United Workers home, No. 9 Washington street. From there the party motored over to the new Sheltering Arms, Mc-Kinley avenue, thence to Rock Nook Children's home and in the late afternoon back to the United Workers' for sandwiches, cake and tea.

Frederick Fuller of West Mystic, district manager of a large garment house, was a business caller in Norwich Thursday morning. Also was a caller at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb.

Mr. and Mrs. William Green and Miss Bertha Daniels of Willimantic, were dinner guests recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver of Huntington Green.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marsh have moved from Norwich to the lower tenement in the Smith house at 30 Town street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Dowling and family who for nearly two years occupied the Tyler Stanton house on Sentry Hill, moved from Norwich Town this spring.

Mother's Day Service.

Sunday evening in the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church there is to be a special Mother's day service. Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich is arranging a special musical program for the Junior choir. The well known violinist Henry Ladd whose playing was so much enjoyed at a service recently will play a number of selections among them "Cavatina" by Raff and "Love in Idleness," Macbeth. Lewis E. Aldrich will sing "Mother Love" and the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter will give a special sermon entitled "The Mother of Jesus". This service will begin at 7.15 daylight time and is open to the public.

A number of members and friends of Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church attended the missionary pageant Thursday, held in Trinity Methodist church, Norwich. Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter had one of the principal parts playing "The Church." Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich was the "Messenger." Lewis E. Aldrich was "Manhood," and Rev. George Warren Potter was "Latin America."

SIX HUGE AIR BOATS TO FLY ON NEW LINE

NEW YORK (AP)—The largest fleet of flying boats and amphibians ever assembled for air transport service will be used on the projected 5,000-mile international mail and passenger air service recently organized as the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires line, Inc.

This fleet, authorized by the line's board of directors, will consist of six Consolidated 32-passenger Commodore flying boats, already in production, and eight ten-passenger Sikorsky amphibians, delivery of the first of which is expected soon.

The line, organized by J. E. Reynolds, president of Trimotor Safety Airways, Inc., will function as the operating concern under the terms of a 20-year air mail contract awarded to the Trimotor company by the Argentine government.

The passenger transportation time between New York and Buenos Aires, the two terminals, will be cut to approximately one week, according to the schedule drawn up. The fastest steamship schedule now is 21 days.

The giant Commodores, first built for the United States navy and known as the XPY-1, will be especially designed for the service.

IL DUCE WISHES ITALY SUPREME IN ASTRONOMY

ROME, (AP)—Rome soon is to become the astronomical headquarters of Italy, through the acquisition of a great telescope and the erection of an observatory.

The telescope was ordered at the wish of Mussolini, after he learned that Vienna had three observatories, Paris two, Berlin two, Madrid one and even Belgrade one, but that Rome had none.

The observatory will be located on the Monte Mario, one of the famous hills around the Eternal City. It is hoped to bring Italy back to the position it occupied half a century ago when Rome was reputed at the head of other nations in manufacturing astronomical instruments and in the science of astronomy.

SIX H. P. FRENCH CAR HAS AUTOMATIC CLUTCH

PARIS (AP)—An automatic clutch that all but eliminates gear shifting and is credited with many other advantages is to be put on the six horsepower car of one of the leading French manufacturers.

Centrifugal motion causes two segments to expand in a drum much like a brake drum, which is attached to the flywheel. Contact is made gradually at slow motor speed, giving a smooth start on high gear to the light car. Whenever the throttle is closed or for any other reason, such as momentum going downhill, the car runs faster than the motor, the clutch disengages.

PLAN STYLE SHOW FOR DANIELSON TEXTILE EXHIBIT

About 125 members of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association were guests of the Occum members Friday evening at what was unanimously voted one of the best get-togethers ever held by textile men in this section. Early in the evening an appetizing supper of potato salad, crab meat, rolls, cake and coffee was served in the vestry of the Versailles Methodist Episcopal church. After supper the business meeting at which President Alfred R. Boutilier presided was held at Totokett hall. Plans were made for the style show to be held in connection with the textile exhibit at Danielson which the association is sponsoring. Frederick L. Babcock, editor of Fibre and Fabrics of Boston, popularly known as the Father of the Association, announced that he would offer $45 in gold as prizes for the best costumes made from goods by mills represented in the association.

The executive committee was intrusted with the arrangement for the annual summer outing. When the meeting adjourned the members of the church choir presented in a very commendable manner a three-act comedy entitled, That's One On Bill, which proved a headliner on the program arranged by the Occum members. The cast of characters was as follows: Uncle Jimmy, Louis Erlbeck; Bill Hailey, Herbert Richards; Battling Benny Bozo, Donald Allen; Harry Dover, Arthur Heap; Ned Collins, John Benkel; Patricia Niles, Miss Alma Boutilier; Lil Hailey, Miss Gladys Carlson; Mab Allen, Miss Mildred Phillips; Mrs. Hailey, Miss Lily Hargraves; Rosy, the maid, Mrs. Emily Erlbeck. The stage appointments were by Schwartz Bros.

THREE DOCTORS DECLARE LINDSEY SMITH INSANE

A sanity commission consisting of Dr. E. J. Burdsall, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve and Dr. J. W. Callahan, in the case of Lindsey Smith of this city, accused of embezzlement, reported in the superior criminal court here Friday morning before Judge Allyn L. Brown that Smith was insane. Judge Brown ordered Smith committed to the Norwich State hospital and he was taken there later in the Backus hospital ambulance. He was not in court and it was reported that he was sick in bed.

A charge of theft against Raymond Thompson, 27, of this city was nolled on payment of $25 upon recommendation of the state attorney. It was charged that Thompson had stolen $70 from a lodging house in Franklin square, but State Attorney Brown said it was doubtful if the charge could be proved and another man had exonerated Thompson, had pleaded guilty to the charge and served a four months sentence.

Without any explanation being made postponement to the next term was made in the cases of Harry Trefes of Stonington and Stanley Sanford Peters, accused of arson on April 10 in a restaurant at Stonington.

Mrs. Katherine Perrino, alias Katherine Ramestella, 51, of East Lyme, was sentenced to 10 months in jail. Previously she had pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Julia Locarno of East Lyme. The Locarno woman died in a New London hospital, following an illegal operation performed by the Ramestella woman.

AUTOMOBILE HITS TROLLEY AT PARK CHURCH CORNER

The Studebaker sedan owned and driven by Louis Schatz of Yantic was badly wrecked in a collision with a trolley car at the corner of Broadway and Williams avenue shortly before ten o'clock Friday night. Mr. Schatz was driving up Broadway and was in the act of crossing Williams avenue when he saw the trolley, driven by Motorman Earl Fitzgerald, approaching from his left. Mr. Schatz attempted to turn to his right into Williams avenue but his car crashed into the forward end of the trolley and was pushed along Williams avenue for a distance of 10 or 12 feet, landing on the sidewalk against the stop coping of Park church lawn.

The step, front door and two windows in the trolley were broken. The front left spring of the automobile was broken and the mudguards on the left side were crushed. Mr. Schatz and his mother who was in the car were uninjured except for a few scratches by broken glass. Sergeant Casey and Officers Shahan, Gwiazdowski and McFadden investigated the accident.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States voted confidence in the Federal Reserve system.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Briggs, of Broadway, will spend Sunday in New York.

Mrs. Vincent Cahill, who has been residing in California and of late has visited her brother, John E. Cassidy, in Waterbury, is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll, of Washington street.

Harry W. Cardwell and Miss Alice M. Cardwell will leave town the coming week and will sail shortly after midnight Friday on S. S. Roma for Naples. From that point they will tour by automobile Italy, Switzerland and France, planning to be absent three months. They will be accompanied by their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Cardwell, of Denver.

Mrs. Flint Brayton and little sons, Peter and James, are visiting Mrs. Brayton's mother, Mrs. Frederick Fischer Meyer, in South Orange, N. J.

On Friday, when Mrs. M. E. Maguire, of West Thames street, entertained with a luncheon for eight it proved a birthday surprise for Mrs. Harry E. Higgins. The table decorations were miniature Maypoles and the favors were May baskets. At bridge, the prizes were won by Mrs. Alfred M. Ha

HAGEN CAPTURES BRITISH OPEN GOLF TITLE FOR FOURTH TIME

(By Frank H. King, Associated Press Staff Writer)

MUIRFIELD Scot. May 10—(AP)—With 292 strokes of a master golfer, Walter Hagen today won his fourth British open championship, Johnny Farrell, six strokes behind and Leo Diegel, trailing the leader seven strokes, finished second and third respectively and aided their team captain in avenging the American defeat in the international team matches at Moortown.

Hagen led the Americans to the most sweeping victory scored by golfers from overseas in a British championship competition. Eight of the American entrants finished among the first ten, only Abe Mitchell and Percy Alliss tied for fourth place at 300, standing in the front rank for Great Britain.

Repeating his performance of last year Hagen jumped into the lead early today and with two fine rounds of 75 each added to his 67 yestrday and 78 Wednesday, he held a commanding lead enabling him to win with the same figure that gave him the British title in 1928.

A whipping gale from the southeast made scoring conditions today as difficult as during the stormy start of the championship. On the first two holes, Hagen whittled Leo Diegel's two stroke lead away. At the end of the third round he was four strokes up on Alliss, led Mitchell and Diegel by five and was six ahead of Farrell.

Farrell, the open champion of the United States, realizing the great golfing risk involved in an almost impossible attempt to catch Hagen, reconciled himself to a stern fight for second place and played beautiful golf for his small but admiring gallery, composed largely of Irishmen.

Hagen largely won his fourth British title on the greens.

With a great crowd cheering lustily Hagen received the cup emblematic of the championship on the spacious eighteenth green. It was presented by A. W. Robertson-Durham, captain of the honorable company of Edinburgh golfers.

"Harry Vardon has his name on this fine old cup six times. James Braid has won it six times and I have won it only four times, said Hagen. "They are still up on me but I am coming back again.

"We brought two British trophies over from America with us and we lost the first one to your British Ryder cup team easily. We were beaten but we pulled ourselves togethr and decided to get all the harder for the championship, and I was lucky enough to win."

Smiling Johnny Farrell answered calls for "Johnny," "Johnny," by saying, "Walter has expressed my sentiments," but Leo Diegel, called on in turn for a speech, complimented the Muirfield crowds for their sportsmanship.

Percy Alliss and Abe Mitchell, the leading British players, were called and Alliss, speaking for both, congratulated the Americans on their great showing. "The best golfer won," said Alliss.

If Hagen won the title on the greens, Diegel lost it there. On eight of them he took three putts. "The wind wrecked me," he said. "I could hardly stand up in it." After a disastrous third round of 82, the professional champion began to regain control of the ball and his fourth round of 77 included few mistakes, but it was too late then to recover the lead that had slipped away from him this morning. Only at the very last was he able to summon his sizzling putting touch of yesterday to his aid. At the 18th he dropped a long one for the 299 that gave him third place.

British hopes for championship honors also were blown away on the putting greens. Mitchell took three putts on three greens in his third round, and four on one.

"I was lucky," said Hagen describing his victory, "but I managed to work up a fine putting touch that held all through the 36 holes today. All the time I expected sixes but managed to escape them." Hagen's six at the 14th hole of the third round was his first six in 121 holes of British championship golf. He went through the full 72 holes last year without a six.

The champion attributed his victory today to his short game but every shot he made and every decision he formed in golfing strategy was that of a master.

DENNY MURPHY PLAYING FINE BALL WITH READING

Denny Murphy, Taftville boy, is going great guns with Reading in the International league, according to latest reports. In a double-header which the Keys won from Montreal Wednesday, 3-1 and 2-1 Murphy had a prominent part. He caught Ed. Holley, former Chicago Cub in the first game when Holley allowed but one hit. Murphy had two singles in four trips to the plate. He went in as a pinch-hitter in the second game batting for J. Fowler, pitcher, and doubled. Murphy is sharing the catching burden with Styles, former Philadelphia Athletic receiver. Reading is a Chicago farm.

GRAMMER SCHOOL FIELD EVENTS SLATED FOR MAY 24TH

At the Fairgrounds on May 24th there will be held a number of races for grammar school athletes of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. A number of pupils will be entered from each school in the various events which include the 75, 100 and 220 yard dashes and a number of other runs and field events. Much interest is being shown among the pupils of the higher grades of the schools. The meet is open to all schools in the city.

Troop 10 Wins

Troop 10, Sacred Heart church, easily defeated Eccleston's All-Stars 15-7 in a seven inning game at Norwich Town green Thursday afternoon. The troop batted the pitcher for 19 hits. The batteries for the winners was Gallager, Cormier and Little. The troop will challenge any other team averaging 13 years of age.

The Shyma Club will play Plainfield Red Stars, Saturday, 11th, on Providence St. Grounds, Taftville. Game starts at 3 p. m., (D.S.T.).

CUBS STAY AT TOP BY TROUNCING GIANTS

NEW YORK, May 10—(AP)—The Cubs remained in first place, one game ahead of the Cardinals, by defeating the Giants, 11 to 4, here today in the first game of the series. The Cubs hit Greepwich, Scott, Henry and Judd for thirteen hits and twenty one bases, including homers by Charlie Root and Kiki Cuyler and a triple by Riggs Stephenson.

Root really won his own game with his home run in the sixth with two Cubs on base, but was unable to finish. Mike Cvengros relieved him in the Giant sixth after a run had been forced over the plate. Another feature of the game was the Cubs starting battery of Root and Grace who drove in seven of the eleven runs.

Root permited no Giants to reach base in the first four rounds. Lew Wilson made a sensational catch at the expense of Ott. The score:

PIRATES OVERCOME BIG LEAD TO BEAT PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, May 10—(AP)—Pittsburgh today defeated the Philadelphia Nationals 13 to 9 in the opener of a two game series marked by ineffective pitching.

The Phillies got off to a 7 to 0 lead in the opening inning and then saw this lead thrown away by Willoughby and Ferguson. Green the third Phillie hurler to see action, was no more effective.

Pittsburgh used Swetonic, Brame, Hill and French to halt the Phillies and Brame who once toiled for the Athletics was the official winner.

Chuck Klein, Phillies, made his third home run of the season with two men on base in the first inning. Grantham, Pirates, also made a home run. The score:

FRANKIE WOODS LOSES DECISION AT BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, May 10—(AP)—Steve Culver, 140, Bridgeport, outpointed Eddie Corbett, 138, Bridgeport boxer in the feature six round bout on the Puritan A. C. card here tonight.

Other results:

Jim Bones, 125, Bridgeport, outpointed Mickey Summers, 125, Newark, N. J.

Joe Hanlon, 178, Milford, got the referee's decision over Frankie Woods, 176, Taunton, Mass., in four rounds.

Irish Harry Sullivan, 122, Savin Rock, knocked out Larry Gordon, 120, Waterbury in the second round of a four round bout. Teddy Barnes, 125, Bridgeport won a decision over Ernie Knapp, 140, Bridgeport in four rounds. Lou Morrelli, 135, Torrington, outpointed Tommy Carroll, 136 Bridgeport in four fast rounds. Jim Sweeney, 130, Torrington, outslugged Harry Goldberg, 145, New Haven, in a four round go.

Tomorrow's Mother's day.

What does that mean to you? Let's stop for a minute and consider what it is.

Every one of us has had a mother; some have her now, while with others she is only a sweet and loving memory. Sunday is set aside for us to pay honor to a loved one.

Whether she be bobed haired or has silver locks she was the one who sacrificed her time and gave you her loving care when you were young. It was her love that guided you in your early years.

No matter what you are today if you'll only be truthful with yourselves you'll find that her teachings in those tender years were of the best. She loved you, you were a part of her life, and she lived for you.

She guided your first tiny steps, she taught you your first words and she brazzed about you to the neighbors as all good mothers do. Then in later years she worried over you, fearful that your feet would stray from the right path.

She fussed for you and she never went to sleep until you were safe at home. And if you were a boy there were many anxious hours that you caused her. She was your mother.

Do you appreciate her? Those who have mothers who have passed to greater life can recall her loving memory. Those whose mothers are still with them can remember her with some little token.

And, believe me, no matter how intrinsic that little token she will appreciate it and there will be a tear-drop in her eye. Just a tear drop of love and happiness.

Try it and see, it will do your soul a lot of good. Just a little remembrance for mother tomorrow.

AGGIES CLASH WITH TRINITY TODAY AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, May 10—The Connecticut Aggie nine tackles the Trinity team Saturday, in the second game in two days for the local aggregation. The pitching department suffered a severe blow with the injury of McCombe, who has been pitching the most consistent ball of any of the Aggie hurlers. As Mullany was used in the game against Wesleyan, the pitching duties will fall upon the shoulders of either John Kolb or Hooper, the latter stepping in if Kolb is not ready. Hooper has not pitched a contest since he was a freshman, but has a fast ball that may be used in good form against the Blue and White batters.

If Hooper toes the slab, Yuskevich will do the catching. Ryan, who has caught all the games so far this season, will perhaps take over the initial sack, as the offensive attack will be weakened with the Aggie regular out of the lineup. Moore will have his old position at the keystone sack, with Tombari at short. These men have played together at the pivot position for the past three years, and work well together. Darrow keeps the hot corner, at which position he started against the Wesleyan team.

The game is a part of the junior week programme, which week will terminate Saturday night. The Aggie frosh will play the Gunnery nine at Washington. The yearlings have a 50-50 record this year, having won from Westminster by a shutout score, with Roever in the box. Rhode Island succeeded in licking the frosh in the second start, in a hard played contest, timely hitting winning for the Clamsters. Alexander will start Roever in the box against the Gunnery nine. He is a southpaw with plenty of hooks, and a baffling change of pace. The rest of the team will have Kalawaik at first, Veniaminoff at second, Cookson at the hot corner, with Goldberg at short. The outfield will start with Viti, Josephson and Buller. Tourville will get the catching assignment.

RUTH HITS HOMER AS YANKEES SWAMP TIGERS

DETROIT, May 10—(AP)—The Yankees increased their winning streak to eight games by defeating the Tigers 10 to 5, in the series opener here today, and at the same time registered a gain over the Athletics, who lost in Cleveland. The champions now top the league by one and on-half games.

Babe Ruth hit his sixth home run with two on in the fifth and Bob Meusel followed with another in the same round after Gehrig had walked. The Tigers, however, tied the score with a four-run outburst in their own half of the inning, and it remained for the Yankee battery, George Pipgras and Bill Dickey, to break up the game definitely by leading another New York rally in the eighth.

Pipgras won his third victory in five starts, and registered his second complete game of the year. He would have escaped with one run against him but for an error by Durocher with a doubleplay in sight.

Harry Heilmann featured the Detroit attack with a home run with one on base. The score:

BROWNS BREAK STREAK NOSING OUT RED SOX

ST. LOUIS, May 10—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns brought an end to a losing streak which had reached four games and recorded their first victory of the present home stay by winning from the Boston Red Sox today, 4 to 3.

McGowan, who exchanged places with O'Rourke in the batting order singled in the fourth inning with the bases filled. Ogden pitched masterfully except in the third when the Sox bunched four hits with a Brownie error to get their three runs. The score:

ACADEMY WILL CLASH WITH FAST WINDHAM TEAM AT CAMPUS TODAY

Windham high comes to the campus today the latest threat to the Academy's winning streak, which has reached nine games. This is the opening home league game for the Wildcats, who at present lead the loop with three victories and no defeats and seem headed for their fifth straight title. The game will start at 3 o'clock.

Weisgraber to Pitch

Butsy Weisgraber, star right hander, will in all probability be Coach Brigham's choice for mound duty this afternoon. Weisgraber has turned in some brilliant exhibitions in the past couple of weeks and is looked up by Academy followers to steer his team into their tenth straight win today. There will probably be no change in the starting lineup of the state champs over that which played Wednesday at Westerly. Capt. Jack Marks will probably be on the sidelines once again as his injured ankle still has to be favored and the local mentor will probably keep him rested so as to be in shape for Bulkeley next Saturday.

Windham is coming here today with grim determination. They are planning on working a big upset and giving the Red and White a real trouncing. Coach Callaghan has saved Warren for this game and Willimantic fans are placing much hope on him to pull N. F. A. down quite a bit in the league scramble.

Windham Important Game

Windham has always been rated as a major rival of the Academy, probably next in importance to Bulkeley. Championship of the three principal cities in Eastern Connecticut, Willimantic, Norwich and New London, was the Academy's in 1928 along with their other laurels and they are planning on taking a step in that direction today by working on Windham.

A large crowd is expected to watch the Academy's murderer's row against Mr. Warren. Few pitchers have gone the distance against the Wildcat sluggers this year but maybe Mr. Warren will be the one that not only can last nine innings against them but can also tame them.

Hank Morin and W. H. Nichols, the latter of Windham are the umps.

DR. FREELAND WINS THE PREAKNESS, EASTERN FEATURE

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., May 10—(AP)—Dr. Freland won the Preakness $50,000 added money, feature of the eastern racing season here today. Minotaur, was second and African, third. The winner and African were coupled in the entries.

Dr. Freeland, chestnut son of Light Brigade and Toddle, owned by Walter J. Salmon, and ridden by L. Schaefer, also is a Kentucky candidate.

The winner's time was 2.01 3-5.

The Nut came in fourth for a share in the added money.

Dr. Freeland paid $9.70 on a $2 mutuel ticket to win, $5.60 on the betting to place and $6.10 to show.

Minotaur paid $11.40 for place and $8.30 to show and African, coupled with Dr. Freeland paid similar prices.

Minotaur also is a Kentucky derby candidate, as is the African, not nominated for the Kentucky feature.

Dr. Freeland with L. Schaefer up, closed up on Minotaur, which had gone into the lead at the furlong pole, and wore the leader down to win by a length. African circled the field and closed a big gap after a slow start, while the Nut finished gamely after getting into trouble in the early running.

Minotaur, a Sun Briar Irish Lady 2nd colt, ridden by Halbert, is owned by Charles Grafanini, New Orleans sportsman, who picked up his crack horse last fall for $2,500 in a claiming race at Havre De Grace.

African, owned by R. T. Wilson, Jr., is a son of Olambala and Grace Foster, and was ridden by R. Leonard.

Beacon Hill, the Harry Payne Whitney Reliance in a bid to win the Preakness for a third time in a row, was half a length behind the Nut for fifth place, followed by Folking, Grey Coat, Essare, Harry F. Sinclair's Leurcite and Soul of Honor, while Earle Sande had no better fortune riding his own Hermitage than he had in his unsuccessful bids for the Preakness in other years as rider for other owners, and came in last today.

The race paid $53,350 to the owner of the winner, of which he had contributed $1,025 himself as fees; $5,000 to Minotaur's owner, $3,000 for African's third place and $2,000 to the Warm stable, owner of the Nut.

BOSTON TEAM LOOKING FOR GAMES HERE MEMORIAL DAY

The baseball team of the Selwyn association of Boston is looking for a game with any team averaging 17 years of age for Memorial day. The Selwyn Associates are sending down several runners to participate in the Duwell club ten-mile run and would also like to bring along their ball club. The game may be played either before or after the race. The Norwich team must be a uniformed team averaging 17 years of age. Send information and amount of guarantee to James Clark, 22 Greendale road, Mattapan, Mass.

Trounced Cubs 11 to 1

The B. S. A. C. trounced the Versailles Cubs, 11 to 1, at the Versailles diamond Friday evening. Charron was the hitting star of the game with a home run and a triple and two singles in four trips to the plate. The B. S. A. C. will play the Jewett City Pirates at Slater diamond Sunday.

JIMMY QUINN WINS THREE FIGHTS AT PROVIDENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PROVIDENCE, May 10—Jimmy Quinn, Norwich, Conn., featherweight favorite, won all three of his bouts tonight on decisions in the 126-pound class at the Arcadia arena here. Quinn gave a beautiful exhibition of boxing polishing off his three opponents in brilliant fashion. In his first bout he took a decision from Jerry Steriti of Boston; his second victory being over Al Gauthler of Springfield and his third over Tony Gannino of Revere, Mass.

VANCE INEFFECTIVE AGAINST BATS OF THE CARDINALS

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 10—(AP)—The Cardinals defeated Dazzy Vance by 4 to 0 in the first game of the series here today, and so kept the pace set by the league-leading Cubs, who downed the Giants in Manhattan. Sylvester Johnson let the Robins down with seven hits, well scattered.

Vance fanned eight in the first four innings, but his effectiveness faded later in the game. The hitting of Douthit and Frisch was a feature.

The Brooklyn infield was rearranged due to the illness of Bancroft and Bissonette, Wright's bad arm and the split finger of Flowers. The score:

REDS MAKE MOST OF ERRORS BY THE BRAVES

BOSTON, May 10—(AP)—The Reds defeated the Braves 5 to 3, in the first game of their series here today. The visitors scored three unearned runs in the sixth inning after "Rabbit" Maranville, tribal shortstop, had made his initial error of the season. It was the Braves third straight loss.

The other two runs came in the fourth frame, when Joe Stripp hit a homer with one on. Lester Bell contributed a circuit clout in the eighth with the sacks empty. Earl Clark Braves gardener, set a new league record with 12 putouts in centerfield. The score:

BRAXTON HOLDS SOX TO FOUR HITS, SENATORS WIN

CHICAGO, May 10—(AP)—Gapland Braxton held the White Sox to four hits today and Washington took the opener of the series by a 4 to 2 score.

Bob Weiland, the youthful southpaw, baffled the Senators for five innings during which they reached him for only one hit. He weakened in the sixth and seventh, however, nad was removed with three runs against his record.

Hoffman, playing right field for the Sox, injured the back of his neck when he rolled against the right field bricks after pulling down a drive by Cronin in the fifth. The score:

WESTERLY

TROOPER GAVE ALARM FOR GRASS AND BRUSH FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, May 10—Arbor Day was observed by Westerly firemen in responding to two alarms, the last being a brush and grass fire which might have destroyed timberland had the pumpers not gone into action. Two houses and several outbuildings were endangered and 100 acres of field and underbrush were burned over in the forenoon. The fire gave two companies of firemen a stiff battle before brought under control. The fire was started when a pile of rubbish being burned by Mrs. Lucy Finizie in the back yard of her home on the Noosneck road got out of control and spread to an adjoining field. Mrs. Finizio and several women neighbors were fighting the blaze, when a state trooper of the Hope Valley barracks appeared and sent in a call to Westerly fire department. By hard work, the firemen were able to save the house of Charles Murray and that of G. S. Tripp. About all of the land burned over was on the John Austin farm.

A chimney fire at 6.30 Friday morning gave the firemen a brief battle at the home of James Hamilton on Oak street. An alarm was turned in from box 63.

GOLDEN WEDDING DAY OF MR. AND MRS. T. T. LARKIN

On Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Larkin of Ashaway observed their golden wedding, many friends calling to tender congratulations.

Mrs. Larkin before her marriage was Miss Annette Maxson. Both she and Mr. Larkin were born and have spent their lives here. They have resided in the same house ever since they were married.

The ceremony 50 years ago was performed by Rev. Henry Clark. There were 14 guests present of whom only four are living.

Gave Operetta.

The lecture room of the First Baptist church, Westerly, was filled on Thursday evening when the junior choir of the church presented "Cinderella," an operetta. Miss Una Clark, choir director, was in charge. Between the acts music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Richmond, Miss Betty Alger, pianist and John Parker, violinist. Miss May Gould played a piano solo during the third scene of the operetta. The cast called for eight principals and a chorus.

Those participating were: Miss Ruth Nichols, in the title role; Miss Dorothy Gould, as the mother; Miss Beverly Smith and Miss Pauline Pitcher, step-sisters of Cinderella; Miss Dorothy Wedlock, fairy godmother; Ellsworth Peckham, Prince Charming; Roger Gould, a herald, and Harold Edmond, court jester.

THREE UNDERSIZE TROUT COST ANGLER OVER $15

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, May 10—Although Friday was a legal holiday Judge Oliver H. Williams held a short session of third district court. James Meikle of 109 Lincoln avenue, Pawtucket, R. I., entered a plea of guilty to the possession of three trout under the legal length of seven inches. The complaint was brought by Deputy Commissioner John H. Farnsworth of Westerly. Meikle was fined $5 for each trout and payment of costs. He paid. Meikle, according to the complainant was stopped near the Barberville bridge last Sunday and had the three trout in his bag. Deputy Farnsworth stated that he had received a telephone call concerning the case and someone had tried to influence him. He said that the defendant had told him before court that he would receive a letter this morning. The defendant testified that nothing had been said with the intent or spirit of intimidating the officer.

Judge Williams told the defendant that the greatest error was made when he became a party to intimidate or attempt to intimidate an officer.

Meikle explained to the court that he was out with a party fishing and there were several children with them. He admitted catching one of the trout in question, but said the other two were caught by boys in the party.

Rev. John M. Collins of Wallingford, Conn., was the guest Friday of the family of John Reardon.

Arthur M. Cottrell and daughter Miss Kate Virginia, returned to Westerly Thursday evening from New York, where they attended the wedding of Mr. Cottrell's son, A. M. Cottrell, Jr., and Miss Violet Tankema.

Earl F. Saunders returned to East Greenwich, the middle of the week after being called to Westerly to attend the funeral of his aunt, Susan J. Greene, whose death occurred Sunday.

C. Star Barker formerly of Hackensack, N. J., has returned to Westerly, his former home, to take up his residence here.

A miscellaneous shower was given by the S. D. B. society Thursday evening at the home of Miss Elizabeth Hiscox, for Miss Ruth Victoria Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Davis, whose marriage with Ernest Ring of New Haven will take place June 17th.

Miss Florence Clarke of Shannock was in Westerly Friday.

Misses Hilda and Frances Young returned to Haverham Thursday from a visit in New London.

MYSTIC

MRS. PURDY DIES FROM BURNS WHEN CLOTHES CATCH FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

MYSTIC, May 10—Residents in Mystic and Old Mystic were horrified by the tragic death of Mariona A. Clyde, widow of Dr. Alexander M. Purdy of Mystic, at the home of her mother Mrs. B. F. Clyde, in Old Mystic today. At 6.30 this morning Mrs. Purdy put wood in the fire place where a fire had been the evening before, poured kerosene on the wood, not knowing live coals were in the ashes and then lighted a match. When she bent over and lighted the wood it exploded, setting her clothing on fire. She opened the door and rushed out in the yard, screaming. She was followed by the woman employed there, and by her mother with rugs to smother the flames, but her clothes were already burned from her body. They telephoned for Dr. Maine, the family physician, in North Stonington and he made record time reaching there. Drs. Allyn and Meyers of Mystic were summoned also. Dr. Maine reached the home first and Dr. Allyn soon followed. They dressed the burns, but the three doctors stated that Mrs. Purdy was so badly burned she could not live. She passed away at 3.30 in the afternoon after intense suffering.

Mrs. Purdy was ill in the late fall and winter for many weeks and had recovered and was able to be out and about.

She is survived by a son, Francis, her mother, Mrs. B. F. Clyde, two sisters, Mrs. Helen Francis of Bennington, Vt., and Mrs. Hazel Pucklyn, of Mystic and by a brother, Frank B. Clyde, of Old Mystic.

MRS. A. M. PURDY BURNED WHEN CLOTHES CAUGHT FIRE

Mrs. Addie C. Purdy, widow of Dr. A. M. Purdy, was painfully burned on Friday morning. While lighting a fire her clothes caught and were burned from her body. Three doctors were called and did all that was possible to make her comfortable.

Many at Recital.

A large crowd attended the song recital given by Miss Martha Kalms in the Congregational church Thursday evening. Miss Kalms has a beautiful voice. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Frank Kahl. SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
Getting the Answer

Is there any memory greatest
Ever difficulty keener,
Than the old familiar problem
Wrestled with so long ago?
"If a field is mowed in four days
By five men, how many more days"
(Oh, the irony of asking!)
"Will it take three men to mow?"

Drove the schoolroom's drowsy humming,
Through the open window coming,
Cross that field of crimson clover,
Comes the bloom of belted bee,
Yet that endless tale of mowing,
What's the good of ever knowing,
'Cept you had to get the answer
Or she wouldn't let you free.

Then the fearful thrill of turning
To the thumbed back page and learning
That you really, truly, had it.
Hardly hoping that you might.
Has life since then held a pleasure
That can equal half the measure
Of the joy we felt on finding
That we had the answer right?

Poem for a Breakfast Room

Crystal prisms and curtain chintz,
Wicker and silver and old delft blue,
Open windows and sparkling air,
Lit with gold where the sun shines through,
There is no place for woe and gloom,
Here in this happy morning room.
Linen fragrant from wind-blown flax,
Flowers gay in a flame-bright bowl,
Berries gleaming in yellow cream,
Bread from wheat grains brown and whole—
Here in this room, who could be sad?
This is a place to make one glad.
Honey from far, gold-banded bees,
Butter from meadows where buttercups bloom,
Hungry and glad my dears once meet
Here in this sun-cleansed morning room
(God of the morning, until night,
Keep these shining faces bright).

Somebody's Mother

The woman was old and ragged and gray,
And bent with the chill of the winter's day;
The street was wet with a recent snow,
And the woman's feet were aged and slow.

She stood at the crossing and waited long,
Alone, uncared-for, amid the throng
Of human beings who passed her by,
Nor heeded the glance of her anxious eye.

Down the street, with laughter and shout,
Glad in the freedom of "school let out,"
Came the boys like a flock of sheep,
Hailing the snow piled white and deep.

Past the woman so old and gray
Hasten'd the children on their way,
Nor offer'd a helping hand to her—
So meek, so timid, afraid to stir
Lest the carriage wheels or the horses' feet
Should crowd her down in the slippery street.

At last came one of the merry troop,
The gayest laddie of all the group;
He paused beside her, and whispered low:
"I'll help you across if you wish to go."
Her aged hand on his strong young arm
She placed, and so, without hurt or harm,
He guided the trembling feet along,
Proud that his own were firm and strong.

Then back again to his friends he went,
His young heart happy and well content.
"She's somebody's mother, boys, you know,
For all she's aged and poor and slow;
And I hope some fellow will lend a hand
To help my mother, you understand,
If ever she's poor and old and gray,
When her own dear boy is far away."

And "somebody's mother" bow'd low her head
In her home that night and the prayer she said;
Was: "God be kind to the noble boy,
Who is somebody's son and pride and joy."

"The Lessons We Learn"

Fate is not always so unkind
As we would oft suppose,
Though she may hide from range of view
Her meaning to disclose.
At times we think misfortune's rule
Is darkening all our lives,
But it may prove the lessons taught,
A blessing in disguise.

Why should we grieve though all our hopes
Seem shattered to the ground?
Though days may bring us woe and pain,
Life's path still winds around;
We traverse byways of defeat
And mountains of despair,
But still these make life's joys more sweet,
Life's sunshine seem more fair.

As sure as we are traveling
Life's way with all its gloom,
We'll find some flowers along the path
Just bursting into bloom.
Though we have not yet reached the goal
For which our heart does yearn,
We've never yet found on our way
A lane that has no turn.

Although we grope is deepening gloom
A path oft rough and rude,
There's never yet a wind so ill
But blows somebody good."
So just brace up and smile along,
Until the storms have passed,
Remember well the maxim true:
"He laughs best who laugh last".

Father and I

In father's house, I call to mind,
The carpets were the cheapest kind,
The furniture was plain, but good,
And made to last as such things should.
Dad's luxuries were very few—
Once in four years his suit was new,
They didn't "paper" every spring,
Nor did Caruso nightly sing
Inside a box that had catarrh,
Nor was there any motor car.

Our house is furnished in the best,
Each year the whole thing's newly dressed;

A Health Verse

The cow's your friend for Vitamin A,
Brown bread is full of B;
Peas, spinach, cabbage give you C,
And liver and eggs yield D.

A few limericks:
Man wants but little here below,
That saying causes mirth;
It may have been in days gone by,
But now he wants the earth.

As a rule a man's a fool.
When it's hot he wants it cool,
When it's cool he wants it hot—
Always wanting what is not.

Plan for more than you do,
Then do it.
Bite off more than you can chew,
Then chew it.
Hitch your wagon to a star,
Keep your seat,
And there you are—
Go to it!

ROOTING HARDY SHRUBS

Dear Editor and Cornerites: I want to tell Pyrethrum how I rooted some hardy shrubs. One time I wanted a rosebush that was a beauty and there were no young shoots coming up out the ground, so I thought I'd try and root one myself. I slipped it just as you would any plant and put it in water and kept it there till the roots came. Of course, I tried a good many before I had any luck.

Some cut their slips off the plant, but I always put my thumb right where the slip joins the main stem and press it down and it will snap right off. Don't cut any of the stem off. You know, a slip always has sort of a thick part right where it joins on to the plant, and you will find that by keeping it in water little roots will sprout out of the thick part. I've tried other shrubs, too, and had luck just by trying. Hope this will help you.

Will send in a pie recipe that's very good:

Lemon Meringue Pie: Bake pie shell first. For the filling take one cup of sugar, 1-2 cup flour, mix thoroughly; pour over 2 1-2 cups hot water; beat three egg yolks and pour slowly into mixture and then the juice and rind of one lemon. Cook in double boiler.

Meringue: Whites of three eggs, two tablespoons confectionery sugar; beat until foamy; spread on top of pie and brown. Cool the mixture before putting on the meringe. Hope some of the sisters will try it.

When I make a lemon-filled cake I use this filling for it, and it's delicious.

What cold weather we are having! Some day I will tell you of the nice Social Corner cook book I have by saving most of the recipes printed in the Corner. They come in handy, too. Best wishes to all of you.

LETTUCE GROWING

Dear Editor and Social Corner: O. D.: If you will buy Hanson's improved lettuce and transplant when about two inches high and put in a trench and on each side of row put phosphate but do not let touch roots and you will probably have no trouble in having it head up. Nitrate of soda is also good. It will seem lonesome to go to the Corner without Mila, as only for her kindness many times I should not have gone. She will be greatly missed by a great many.

By Jingo: Choosing a husband reads O. K., but one never can tell beforehand. I am wondering if you are married.

Let's hope for warm and pleasanter weather. Best wishes to all the Corner.

MOTHER'S DAY

Dear Social Corner Sisters:
I love the dear silver that shines in her hair,
And the brow that's all wrinkled and furrowed with care.
I love the dear hands that's so toil-worn for me,
Oh, God bless you and keep you, Mother Machree.

Yes, the hands so toil-worn for all of us are mother's hands. Every time I look at those hands I cannot help but think of the work they have done for me, and many the times the tear-drops start when I think of all the things my mother did for me, and I thank God that I can remember and try in a little way to repay. That I cannot fully repay all that she did for me I realize, but God has been good to leave her with us for a little while longer. It can never be too long.

I dread the day when I will not be able to welcome my mother at my door.

There is no love like mother love, there is nothing on earth so pure and strong as mother love, and this generation should stop for a while and think of mother, for many there are these days that think of mother last not first as they should.

But you always notice that if anything happens or any trouble comes up, every one is glad to have their mother to run to.

And the trouble and worry so many children bring on their poor innocent, trusting mother.

What little comfort do some mothers get out of life after they have raised a family and seen them go out to homes of their own.

Mother was so proud of them, but now they have forgotten, or almost forgotten, her. There is no place in their homes or hearts for the one who should be dearer than all else to them. There is no time to write a few lines to her that is watching and waiting for one little word of love and kindness, and let me say right here that one little kind word or act is worth more to a mother than all the costly gifts we can buy her.

When I do anything for my mother and she thanks me, it almost chokes me when I think of all the thankless jobs she did for me.

You know, mother seldom asks us to do anything for her, if we are out far-sighted enough to sense an occasion and grasp it, we surely miss something worth while.

If we could only remember that we have only one mother and make the most of it while we have her, what a grand old world this would be.

I don't think there would be half the badness in the world if every one would remember their mother oftener.

Many a boy or girl that tell their mothers that they are old fashioned will live to regret it. They may not think it hurts, but it does cruelly.

The old fashioned mothers are best, and many the one will live to find it out.

Of course you've all mothers that you love the best
And with them no others compare;
'Tis the least that can be said in return for her love,
For she is a jewel so rare;
Well, I'm an old fashioned one, loving and kind,
One such as God would divine,
But why need I say any more about her?
For you all have mothers like mine.

MOTHER'S DAY POEM

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I guess you all will think that I have forgotten the Corner page, but I have not. It has been a long time since I have written. I have been sick about all winter, but I am on the gain now. As Mother's day is most here I thought I would send a piece of poetry that I recited in school when I was 12 years old. Mother liked it and it will be quite nice for Mother's day:

Dear Mother, I'll come home again!
Oh, mother, dear, I sigh in vain,
To live my childhood over again,
And see thy dear, love-beaming eye;
Outshines the stars up in the sky;
Oh, mother, dear, bright sunny days
That give such joy and heavenly bliss
As by thy knee I used to pray,
Or climb to steal affection's kiss.
Oh, mother, dear, those early scenes,
The flowery fields and meadows green
As thoughts come back I heave a sigh
And wish for happy days gone by.
Long since I left my native shore,
But now my heart beats just as then,
Tho' miles of sea between us roar,
Dear mother, I'll come home again.

Sister Ready: I was so glad to meet you that day. If I could get out more and meet my dear friends I would feel much better.

True Blue: I miss your smiling face. I know you are lonesome for your dear friend, White Dawn. I miss her. I thought she was lovely.

I hope I will be able to come the 14th, as I enjoy the meetings. I was calling on a friend on the East Side and when I got ready to go home they had an auto take me. I am glad all the sick are getting better. I was glad to see Joan and Windy Belle. I am taking a walk every day when it is pleasant, and I feel better. Best wishes to all the sick and hope they will be able to get out and get the sunshine.

THE TOOTHBRUSH PROBLEM

Social Corner Members: I find some very good suggestions and hints to save time, money, health, strength etc., in the Corner, and I would like to let others know of a plan of mine.

As there are five in our family you will also find five toothbrushes. They are not the best to be had but find they answer the purpose as well as the more expensive. They were bought at the 10 cent store, totalling 50 cents, one an amber color handle which is mother's and the four others have white handles. Of course to look closely each brush has different shaped bristles and different sizes according to age and mouth. We think it a very important task to tend to teeth daily and never want to use another brush but our own.

Sometimes when in a hurry of when brushes were not in accustomed places they would be used by wrong owner so I decided to paint the handles of brushes each a different color so we could always tell our own at a glance. Pink was the color our small daughter selected, red was the color of sonny's, just past three, the baby who is starting to use brush which handle I left white, while dad's I dipped in dark blue. The paints are leftovers from other jobs done around the house. Any color can be used as it takes just a tiny bit to dip the handles so I usually dip three or four brushes of each color which last quite a long time and when accustomed to the color they never mistake other brushes for their own. We have this very satisfactory and will always keep it up. Best wishes.

A NEWSY LETTER

Dear Editor and Friends: We are having some nice weather now. Hope it lasts. But we have got to have our line storm yet. Hope it holds off for a while.

We have lost three nice writers the past week in the deaths of Rural Delivery, Kentucky Wonder and Peggy Alder. We all send thanks to the club for the beautiful flowers. Peggy Alder was a most beautiful woman.

Ma of Greene Gables: You don't know who I am! Well, we have known each other for many years. Just come to our next meeting and see who I am. You may meet a surprise.

Can someone send in the recipe for old-fashioned vinegar pies? My mother used to make them, but I can't remember how she made them.

Last Rose of Summer: I promised to send in my fishing trip. I can't send it in this week, but perhaps next week.

Icaville, Providence Rose: If you have lost your pen, just let me know and I will send you one by telephone.

Hope all the shut-ins can get out in the sunshine.

Ann Tenna: I do hope you are better.

Skipper: Will answer soon.

My heartfelt sympathy goes out to all those who have lost their dear ones is my prayer. God be with you all.

NONESOPRETTY (Club No. 4).

GUIDING THE CHILDREN.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: Please may I visit you again? We all want our children to grow up to be loving, kind, and unselfish. In order to help our children, my husband and I have employed the following plan: If it is near my birthday, Mother's day, or any other special holiday I know my children and husband will be out on a happy shopping tour, trying to find something "that'll please mother." Their father acts as a guide and gives advice, so that their small allowance will be spent to the best advantage.

If the gift is for father they come to me. Even our three-year-old, although too young for an allowance, has her share in the fun.

In this way the children learn how to save, buy, and in doing so they express themselves in the gifts they give.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I have attended your gatherings with Oleander and have enjoyed them so much, would like to join the Corner and be a member of Club No. 2.

Golden Glow: Can you guess who I am?

I will take for my pen name

CLUB NO. 3 TO MEET IN LEBANON MAY 23

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: When I looked at April 13th Corner page, thought it was time I helped fill it.

I miss so many of the first writers.

Aunt Jerusha: I often think of you and uncle and the good time we had at Remember Me's house that day, but had forgotten the mirror. Would love to meet you again.

Bo-Peep: I enjoy your letters. Are you Bo-Peep No. 1 that went to Willimantic with us on horse sled in snow storm? If so, are you at your home?

Someone asked how many belong to the grange. I joined the grange about 40 years ago and am still a member, belonging to Lebanon grange, No. 21.

Dorinda and Aunt Sarah are planning to have a Social Corner meeting May 23 at the Baptist church in Lebanon. All the invited.

Eliza Jane: Can't you get a bunload started for your old home town?

Don't forget to bring your dishes and something for the dinner. We will hope for a good day and good crowd.

Don't Worry: Long time since I saw your name in the Corner.

Yes, Theoda, I am living in Hartford, except week ends, and will be home for our meeting May 23. Won't you come and bring a crowd with you?

Tomato Soup Cake: One cup of sugar, two tablespoons shortening, one can tomato soup, one teaspoon soda dissolved in soup, one teaspoon each of cinnamon and nutmeg, one-half teaspoon cloves, salt, one cup raisins, one-half cup nut meats, two teaspoons baking powder sifted in about three cups flour. Bake 45 minutes. With more fruit, it makes nice fruit cake.

With best wishes for the Corner.

AUNT SARAH (Club No. 3).

MAKE THE KITCHEN CHEERFUL

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: There have been several letters recently about having "cheerful kitchens" and I think there is a good deal to say regarding this subject. Now that the housecleaning season is here (for I doubt everybody has finished) it is just the time to make changes. I fully agree with other sisters that light colored painted walls are preferable to darker tints. At the windows I like to see just as pretty and dainty curtains as in other rooms. This new style called the "cottage set" either to buy them ready made or to make them yourself, has many designs with various colors. They are certainly attractive, both from outside appearance and combine for cheer on the inside. There are so many pretty shade pulls you can get for 10 cents each that it is worth the price. If new pulls are needed.

I have several in design of a little parrot sitting in a ring of green celluloid and suspended by fine silk cord of same color. I think it is quite cute, looks as though the little parrot was really enjoying his swing.

Then regarding calendars, which are of every variety in subject and design. I think it is best to select something that will be cheerful to look at and remind us of something pleasant, rather than give us thoughts of sadness and gloom. My illustration to explain my true meaning: In the early part of the year I was in the meat market one day where I am a regular customer and the market man offered me a calendar, a choice from four different picture subjects. Two of them I wouldn't consider and the other two were in direct contrast to each other. One represented a flock of sheep, standing on the snow-covered ground and in a cold, bleak, alone, and no shelter, and prospect of the poor animals freezing to death. The other calendar picture was of three little children with happy smiling faces, standing near the edge of a brook, watching six baby ducks taking their first swim, and naturally a mid-summer day. I decided it would be more cheerful, and to share in thought (for 365 days in 1929) with these children and downey ducklings, than shiver with helpless sheep in a snow storm for a year. I enjoy a vase of flowers on the kitchen shelf when the blooms of any kind are available.

We all have our days of depression either from physical ailments of other conditions outside, but if our material surroundings are cheerful in these simple ways it will help somewhat to change the current of thought while at our kitchen duties. This same suggestion is commendable to each and every room in the house, but we sometimes hear it said, "Any old thing is good enough for the kitchen." We are advised in the Good Book to, "Be of good cheer for I have overcame the world."

I believe if we are to obtain good cheer we must put forth effort and do our part to receive it. Now that Mothers' day is to be observed Sunday, many of us older ones will wear the white flower in her memory and to the mothers living it will be a cheerful greeting to receive a card or a few flowers if convenient from children who appreciate their mother, while she is here.

My sympathy to all in sickness and sorrow, and may the sunshine and good cheer return soon.

CLUB 6 MEETS MAY 21

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Today has been such a lovely day but cool in the shade. I imagine when the hot weather does come it will come with a rush. I have set out some perennials and they are doing fine; shall plant only a few seeds, as it takes so much time to take care of them.

Black-eyed Susie: You must have a double. I was waiting for the bus today when a lady went past driving a car that looked just like you.

Beth C.: Hope you were none the worse for my party, if all the cards were hearts. Wish the other two could have been with us, then we would have been an even dozen. That's about all I can handle.

Please, all take notice: The next meeting of Club 6 will be held May 21 in the parlors of the Episcopal church at Westerly. It is only a few steps beyond the hall where we usually hold our meetings. Beers is to be hostess, and it was easier for her to take charge of it there than in the hall.

Zulieka: Hope you can meet with us, as there will be no stairs to climb. I want to thank the many who sent me birthday cards.

E. L. M.

SHE GOT FOOLED

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Well, it was a good thing it was not April 1st yesterday, for those who went down to attend a meeting could have called it a fine April fool. I invited another sister to go with me to the Corner, and gave her a half hour to get ready. When Nellie Bly laughed then I knew what had happened. I shall be on hand next week anyway. I would have gone today to Willimantic only I am going to attend a meeting at Hanover. This morning it is so cold! I do hope we will soon have some warm weather. I think everyone will feel better.

Black-Eyed Susan: You must be all done with that housecleaning.

Lonesome Pine: I think you must be all done cleaning also.

Red Rose: I have not started that dress. You know, Slow! Well, I am going to have two of my daughters home for Mother's day.

By Jingo: Your letter was fine.

Good wishes. Good health to all.

SIGHT SEEING IN WORCESTER AND OTHER TOWNS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I've been asked to write something to our Social Corner page and as I have been invited by several friends to take several auto trips within the past week or so, perhaps I can give you a faint picture of some of the places in and around Worcester. One place that interested me immensely is the Metropolitan reservoir that is situated in Clinton, Mass. It is a reserve water supply for Boston. It is a very wonderful sight to stand on the bridge and see the water rushing down the spillway forming white caps over the rocks into a huge scrge. This large body of water is unusually high just now because of continued rains of late. This Metropolitan reservoir is an artificial lake and was formerly a part of the town of Old Boylston. It is the largest reservoir of its kind in the world. I have been told it measures 25 miles around. A large fountain is near the entrance and when the sun shines bright on this fountain it is a beautiful sight as it shows all colors of a rainbow. Another wonderful piece of construction work is a railroad and trestle built over this place which is hundreds of feet high. We just missed seeing a passenger train pass over these tracks and disappear out of sight into a side of a hill where there is a tunnel. I've been told these grounds and reservoir were under construction in 1915. This public place is open to visitors daily. The largest crowds can be seen on pleasant Sundays when they turn out in hundreds. As we were driving along taking in all the pretty scenery we came into this large tract of beautiful pines and cedar trees, and a little farther we noticed a white line in the green grass and this is what we read: The State Forestry. These words were made out of small white stones telling the autoist what this place was. We kept on our way and in a little while we were climbing a high elevation. I was told it was Green Hill park and that a wealthy gentleman owned this property of about 50 acres and gave it to the city of Worcester. It has a large golf course besides other places of amusements. On the top of the hill is a beautiful large residence which is sometimes opened to the public for parties. As we drove slowly along to see what we could see our driver said: "See the buffalo." and sure enough there were nine head of tame buffalo feeding quietly in their inclosure. This was a very unusual sight for they are not very common now, except in large parks. Well it was getting toward evening and we turned homeward. Some one in our party said they were getting hungry, as the refreshing air had sharpened our appetites. We reached home safely and relished a hearty supper. These outings are connected with two different parties who have autos and are thoughtful enough of me to invite me to join them in their trips. Many thanks to these kind friends as I never would get very far if I had to walk. I can truly say I have improved much since I came to this place. I don't want to make this too lengthy so I will bring this to a close with best wishes to each and every Cornerite. I am as ever

STRANGER IN THE CITY.

WHEN KOCHIA WRITES.

Dear Social Corner Folks: I am writing again very soon but I just want to answer Kochia's letter. What do you think, I got a letter from the office, a great big one with great lawyer like writing on it. At first I was a bit startled, I didn't know but I had done something wrong and some lawyer was writing to me. Well, at last I got up courage to open it and, lo, and behold, my old friend Kochia had written to me. He said he got a great "kick" out of my last letter in The Bulletin and I just want to tell him I near got a "kick" when I was reading his letter for in it (Oh girls, I blush to say it), he called me "my dear," and the good man was looking over my shoulder when I was reading. Sure Kochia is a wild kind of a fellow. Well there was no harm done and it was very kind of him to write to me. I heard lately that he has a "weakness now," and that is playing bridge. Careful, boy, the bridge might break and the water is deep. A little bird told me all this. Don't shoot the bird.

Oh how I wish these cold winds would stop blowing but after all we are much better off in this part of the country than in many others with such terrible storms and winds as they have had. Patience, patience, summer will come. Wish one and all happiness and good health. I am as ever,

MA OF GREEN GABLES.

SUGGESTIONS FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Perhaps this little suggestion would assist one who is just beginning to do her house work or the bride-to-be.

Previous to my marriage I did very little cooking or meal planning. After a few harassing experiences I conceived this idea to aid me in entertaining. Being newlyweds we were the first to be invited to Mrs. So and So's house upon our return home. I hastened to jot down our hostess' menu, also any other new idea with salads or delicacies, which she served. If I was not sure as to the preparation of a certain dish I endeavored to find it in a cook-book and made a note under the rightful menu.

When I felt uncertain what to serve at a dinner in returning hospitality I used the Jones menu for the Smiths, and when Jones were guests, the Smith menu. Frequently I conceived some individuality of my own which I thought improved Mrs. So and So's menu.

In a short time my little book was overflowing with helpful suggestions with the realization that someone had used the menu with success. I could do likewise. With perfect ease and satisfaction I put forth my effort to make a cordial evening for our guests—one in which they enjoyed the food as well as the feeling of warm welcome from a cheerful and free-from-care hostess.

SPEAKING OF MOTHERS

Dear Soical Corner Editor and Friends: May is the month dedicated to mothers, and long may it live, for we could not get along without mothers. We all know that back of almost every man-made achievement there is a mother somewhere whose love has been an inspiration, and that back of most of us is her dearness and devotion. Mothers are a sort of background. They are the warp that the fabric of life is woven upon, and a mother's love is truly the "only thing of earth unbought." We all know that, and we older ones know, too, that one of the compensations in growing old is in knowing of the durability of mother love. Love is supposed to be only for the young, but this is a mistake. Young people know little about it.

The strong tide of life in youth may lead them to think only of loving and being loved, as that that time love is but one of the many enthusiasms of the soul and shares with a hundred other fires of warming and lighting life. But it is only as our faculties fail and one by one the illusions fade, when ambition has shown its seamy side and pleasures of the world have been found hollow, and hope is sickened from experience, that love still abides. Love needs no setting for the old heart. The old mother that carries the portrait of her child in her bosom and their image in her heart knows what love is better than the youth who thinks they cannot live without it.

I love to think of the good old fashioned mother with long skirts and a topknot, a big broad bosom where one could lay their head and rest and cry while she talked their troubles out. Seemingly there are few mothers like that any more. Nowadays mothers just seem to stay so young that all they seem to be to the child is just a nice big sister. Haven't modern mothers in an effort to arise to the occasion in coping with modern youth perhaps gone a little wild on this keeping young for the children's ideal. At all events, they've certainly never stayed so young as now, nor been such "pals" with their children, sometimes to a shocking degree. The old-time fear and respect for the parents have been abolished, but what of real value have the parents put in the place?

The saying that "God made mothers" is a sweet thought and a pretty compliment to motherhood, and yet if it were true I wonder if we would find all mothers in these days worthy of that trust, and if all honor we've cast at the feet of motherhood is really deserved; if it hasn't made some mothers a bit willing to occupy their thrones without always being willing to win their right to be there. For just the mere fact of motherhood does not always prove to be a good mother—not even when she may have made a very loving one, for there is so much more to motherhood besides love, and sometimes that very love is deadly; a blind, stupid loyalty, and often it tricks such mothers into being bad mothers without realizing it. Because they give them only this blind clan love to children which smothers them and pampers them and unfits them to stand on their feet one day and look the world in the eye with the right view on it and themselves and their importance to it. I believe there are mothers today who should never have been mothers—but nature has tricked them into it. They had motherhood thrust on them, but they are unfit for it.

As women they might shine in different walks of life, yet as mothers they are bunglers. If is not their vocation and the art of being a fine mother is a closed book to them because it's too much trouble and they are uninterested. Yet they muddle through somehow. But does mere muddling through entitle them to the laurels of magnificent motherhood simply because they've passed on the torch of life to their children? Somehow that old fashioned mother with long skirts and broad bosom did have unchanging belief in God and her conception of right and wrong. She didn't try to understand her children as much as to help them to understand her. She may have been a bit stern with restless youth after fool notions, but she was real and sincere, her judgment could be counted on. Her old fashioned experience and faith and knowledge could heal and she was a safe anchor to children if storm tossed by their own foolishness, and she could make them feel she knew best—not because she was as young as they but just because she was older. Big sisters are fine comrades, but they cannot take the place of a real mother, yet under the best of circumstances motherhood is a thorny path, beset with pitfalls, it is not an easy job, and it's given only to the really good mother to travel it from start to finish without disaster.

Life holds us fast unto the last
And all the needs for strife is past,
When older grown, we sit alone
With all the pleasures we have known.

But looking back along life's track,
We loose the strings 'round memory's pack;
With eyes aglow once more we know
The happiness of long ago.

Where hearth fires burn our children return;
No joy is lost for which we yearn,
And age can find these shrines behind
A charm to which our youth was blind.

ZULIEKA.

TRIBUTE TO THREE MEMBERS

Dear Editor and Corner Writers: This letter is dedicated to the memory of the thre writers for our Corner page who have recently passed on to the Great Beyond, all within a week's time: Rural Delivery (George C. Spooner of Sterling), who was one of the first writers for the Corner and always was an active member, not only doing his part, but urging others to make the page set aside for the Corner as interesting as they could; Peggy Alder (Mrs. Lucy Shippee of East Killingly), who had been in poor health for about two years, but prior to that time she wrote many interesting letters and received much pleasure from reading the Corner letters and meeting the different writers; Kentucky Wonder (Mrs. Effie F. Bailey of Danielson), another one who was always ready and willing to do more than her share, know this because we have worked with her at several meetings of Club 4. She not only knew how to manage the dinner but always had something interesting for the program. My sympathy to those who mourn the loss of these dear ones.

As I recall it at this time, Club 4 has lost four members other than the ones I have just written of: Just Me (Miss Clara Stokes of Dayville), Lydia (Mrs. Willie Covell of Abington), Five Willows (Mrs. E. Cummins of Putnam) and another sister of Putnam whose pen name or real name I do not remember at this time. Some of the sisters can help me out on this, and if they know of any others I hope they will write about it. Of these departed members, two are at rest in Danielson, two in Dayville, one in Abington, and the other two I do not know where.

I am very much in favor of Nonesopretty's proposal that Club 6 have a memorial day for their deceased members; also that it should be in June, as that is the month in which Club 4 was started. I would suggest that all go who can and that plans be made to meet in some one cemetry, then all proceed to the other cemeteries where our members rest.

Bay State: I enjoyed your little visits very much. Glad you could be with us at East Killingly. Hope you reached home safely.

Try Again and her helpers certainly know how to put on a good time and with all the nice food donated we could not have other than a nice dinner. During the program Try Again not only took the whole bake shoppe (as Arlessaid) but brought down the whole house. Why not send that piece to the Corner page, so more can have a good laugh?

If it ever comes warm enough to discard the woolen bathrobes, here are a few things which should be done before storing them for the summer: If any buttons or snaps are missing, replace them, mend all torn places, then wash in lukewarm soapsuds, taking care not to twist them, or the material is likely to shrink and warp. If the suspuds become dirty, replace them with clean water and fresh suds. Through the process of washing and rinsing, try to keep the water at even temperature. If possible, place the garments on wooden hangers to dry, as clothespins are likely to pull them out of shape. Do not expose them to great heat. A warm room or a sunny out-of-doors is best for drying.

Effie Ma: Zany and I missed that visit from you and husband last summer. Remember, there is another one most here, according to the calendar.

My sympathy to all sick and sorrowing ones and the wish that they may feel better soon.

TWICE TWENTY.

TULIP TIME IN KNOXVILLE, TENN.

Social Corner Editor and Readers: An old friend and lover of tulips in Knoxville recently wrote us of the wonderful yard of tulips that her son has, and is very proud of.

This is what she writes: "Clarence spent six months in Holland, a year or more ago, to learn the propagating and culture of tulips and brought the bulbs with him to see if they would be a success here the same as they are in their native country. From the result it looks as if Holland hadn't anything on this section for tulip growing.

"I can't describe the grandeur of our front yard. Clarence has 40,000 blooms out; 300 varieties, every color. Had visitors by the hundred Sunday (today). I believe we had 1,000 callers, in all walks of life. He made them all welcome.

"The beauty of so many I can't describe. The Knoxville Sentinel gave him the enclosed writeup:

"'Rainbow in Yard of Clarence Morris; Lake of Tulips in Bloom.

"'If you want to visit the Magnolia Gardens, Charleston, S. C., and can't, the next best thing is a peek at Clarence Morris' lake of tulips, 1641 Highland avenue. A rainbow has fallen and spattered over a 150-foot square of Morris' front yard. There are 300 varieties of tulips in thousands of various blooms and shades. Morris' lily-like tulips look precisely like lilies, gaudily hand-painted. Some stalks possess four blooms and some in four different colors. Morris believes he has the only four-bloom stalks in the United States. He doesn't sell tulips; merely cultivates them for himself and you to enjoy. And everybody's welcome to visit his tulips. They will last three more weeks.'"

The people of Knoxville can now sing of "Tulip Time in Knoxville," instead of "Tulip Time in Holland."

QUID-NUNC.

SUGGESTION FOR CLUB 2'S DINNER

Dear Corner Members: As I have not any replies to my request for phone calls for a pan or two of beans, also salad, I shall leave it to you who have been willing in the past to bring them for the dinner of Club No. 2, May 14. Trust when the dinner is over that all will be satisfied instead of not having enough to eat. We try to give you all that is brought. Again I want to say, each one "Must" bring food. It's food we want but if one or two can't bring or come at last minute call, please give the regular 15 cents for dinner and 15 cents extra for your food not donated. We know who does and who does not bring.

We hope you all will enjoy the play Georgette is putting on. She is getting to be quite a director of amateur plays.

By the appearance of our Social Corner page it looks as if the ink was dry in some of the writers' pens. Why not try and keep our page full?

Silver Locks: In a weekly paper we have, in the magazine section, was printed your piece of The Church Organ, by Will Carlton.

After the playlette why not have a few poems on mothers? As Mother's day is here, what better part can we take than to give a little time, thought and poems to the mothers living and those gone on. We don't realize the great love we have for them until they are taken from us. I, myself, thought I couldn't love my mother more than I did but when God called her and I was alone without her, Oh, how much I loved her, and to you who have a living mother how happy you must be in that mother and daughter's or son's love. She willed to me a daddy of whom I have had the care for 30 years. He is in his 87th year. He has been kind, thoughtful and careful of every act in my home and when he may be called to join his companion in Heaven, may it be said I was faithful to my trust in my duty to both mother and daddy. So when these trusts are ours, just think we, too, will be somebody's trust in years to come. We should do our best to make others happy in their road down the hill of life. I always remember what my family doctor told me, that when roses were sown we would reap roses, if we sowed whirlwinds, we would reap whirlwinds. So I want in my last days to reap as I sow, kindness to my own and to others as well.

From my departed mother's favorite flower my pen name was taken:

CALLA LILY (Club No. 2).

FINE TIME PLANNED FOR CLUB NO. 2.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: When Social Corner Club No. 2 meets in the Buckingham, May 14, you are cordially invited to come and bring a friend and your sewing.

I have something up my sleeve that I want to ask your advice and help about. Then, too, don't plan on leaving after dinner because five of my helpers and myself have about an hour's entertainment rehearsed for you. Did you enjoy our last playlet? Well we have tried again to please you.

When I was several years younger than I am now, my aunt used to tell me not to form my opinion too quickly of a person. I needed to "summer and winter" with them first before I would really know them. Now I have fallen down on that, as did many of my friends at "Pleasant Pines."

I'm glad the Queen of Ravania didn't hear our first opinions of her, also Princess D'Ovar.

Do come and see how we changed our ideas.

Sister Ready: Hope you can come as I want to ask you about our June meeting.

GEORGETTE (Club No. 2).

A CHRISTMAS BOX

Dear Social Corner Members: I have a Christmas box, a square gray box with a Christmas seal pasted in the corner of the cover. Last year it was a different box but I outgrew it, but this is large enough not to be outgrown right away. In it there are, of course, red ribbons, some folded red paper, gay cord. There is an artificial poinsettia, a sprig of artificial holly, four gay holders which I made last month of pieces left from a dress.

I am making a new toy that I saw on my last trip to the city which took me back to childhood days, and will be just right for a certain three-year-old. Also this year there is something different in the box, which is the gay insides of Christmas envelopes received last December. These are for paper chains for the Christmas tree. Also many of this year's Christmas cards are in the box, as they have Santa Clauses on them, to cut out for the kiddies, and special verses to copy and other uses. We must have something home-made about our Christmas here to have it complete. Also just this week I put a short end of new yellow cloth in the Christmas box for a doll's dress for a certain six-year-old. Thus the box is filling up. What if it shouldn't be big enough, after all?

FOUR WINDS.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor of the Social Corner and Sisters: I would like to become a member of your happy band of Social Corner sisters. Have been a reader of the Corner for quite a few years. Will take for my pen name

BULLISH OPERATIONS IN MARKET WERE CENTERED IN THE UTILITIES

NEW YORK, May 10—(AP)—With call money available at six per cent. for the first time since early April, bullish operations were confidently resumed on the stock market today, centering in the utilities.

Total sales approached the 4,000,000 share for the first time in a week, and the Associated Press index of 20 leading utilities was sent up to the highest level yet reached.

The precipitant drop in call money, which renewed at 14 per cent. only yesterday, together with the vigorous defense of stock exchange use of credit by President Simmons of the exchange, speaking in Chicago last night, threw sunshine into speculative circles for the first time in several days.

The fact that money touched 6 per cent. but for two days after the passing of the money pinch a month ago was recalled but failed to weaken the impression in Wall street that the credit situation had taken a definite turn for the better. The source of the sudden influx of money was somewhat puzzling. New York banks were believed to have improved their reserve positions in the past two days with the belated return of the month end outflow of funds, and it was pointed out that a 14 per cent. call loan rate must eventually draw funds in a prosperous country.

Call money renewed at 10 per cent. but dropped successively to eight and then to six per cent. but even at that rate, funds went begging and were offered in the outside market at five. The action of time money in contrast, however, did not promise any sustained ease in credit.

Shorter maturities were distinctly firmer. Although there was no change in the official rate, little 30-day money was said to be available under 9 per cent.

The day's business news was fairly satisfactory. Reports from the reparations conference were more cheerful, and the U. S. Steel April 30 unfilled tonnage report showed a small gain, considerably smaller than Wall street estimates had indicated, but the first gain for April since 1923, and contrasting with a sharp drop a year ago. The weekly business and trade reviews were a little conservative in tone, but still found general conditions good.

The buying in the utilities centered in the large holding companies, and was believed to have been partly inspired by the recent appreciation in the market value of their holdings. United Corporation shot up six points to a record price at 72 7-8, while North American Company Columbia Gas and Consolidated Gas rose two or three points to a new high record price.

General Electric was a bull favorite, jumping nine points a new peak at 268, reflecting rumors of a 4-for-1 splitup. Chesapeake corporation was also heavily bought, climbing about seven points to a new high at 94 1-2, as a new offer of rights was rumored. Rails generally gave a fair account of themselves, in response to reports of record-breaking car loadings.

Commercial Solvents mounted fifteen points to a new top at 267, and American Can forged ahead nearly seven points. Sparks — Withington Stewart Warner, Timken Roller Bearing, Underwood-Elliott, Vick Chemical, and General Railway Signal were other issues reaching new high ground. Motor stocks were firm. General Motors and Packard selling up about two points and Marmon reaching a new top at 104. Oils were rather quiet, save for Atlantic Refining and Barnsdall, which reached new highs. Coppers were quiet. U. S. Steel mounted more than two points on the tonnage report.

Among the few soft spots were Standard Milling, By Products Coke, American Railway Express and Byers, which sagged two to five points.

In the commodity markets, wheat finally steadied after its precipitant declines, helped by a smaller government estimate of the winter crop than had been feared. Cotton likewise steadied influenced by brisk consumption reports for April and closed practically unchanged. Raw sugar futures were again under pressure, however, and reached new lows for the movement.

Foreign exchanges were firmer, sterling improving a little and the German bank holding steady despite the large loss of gold revealed by the reichsbank statement. The discount of the Canadian dollar was reduced to less than 1-2 of a cent.

BULLISH OPERATIONS IN MARKET WERE CENTERED IN THE UTILITIES

NEW YORK, May 10—(AP)—With call money available at six per cent for the first time since early April, bullish operations were confidently resumed on the stock market today, centering in the utilities.

Total sales approached the 4,000,000 share for the first time in a week, and the Associated Press index of 30 leading utilities was sent up to the highest level yet reached.

The precipitant drop in call money, which renewed at 14 per cent only yesterday, together with the vigorous defense of stock exchange use of credit by President Simmons of the exchange, speaking in Chicago last night, threw sunshine into speculative circles for the first time in several days.

The fact that money touched at [illegible] per cent, but for two days after the passing of the money pinch a month ago was recalled but failed to weaken the impression in Wall street that the credit situation had taken a definite turn for the better. The source of the sudden influx of money was somewhat puzzling. New York banks were believed to have improved their reserve positions in the past two days with the belated return of the month end outflow of funds, and it was pointed out that a 14 per cent call loan rate must eventually draw funds in a prosperous country.

Call money renewed at 10 per cent, but dropped successively to eight and then to six per cent, but even at that rate, funds went begging and were offered in the outside market at five. The action of the money in contrast however, did not promise any sustained ease in credit.

Shorter maturities were distinctly firmer. Although there was no change in the official rate, little 30-day money was said to be available under 5 per cent.

The day's business news was fairly satisfactory. Reports from the reparations conference were more cheerful; and the U. S. Steel April 30 unfilled tonnage report showed a small gain, considerably smaller than Wall street estimates had indicated, but the first rain for April since 1923, and contrasting with a sharp drop a year ago. The weekly business and trade reviews were a little conservative in tone, but still found general conditions good.

The buying in the utilities centered in the large holding companies, and was believed to have been partly inspired by the recent appreciation in the market value of their holdings. United Corporation shot up six points to a record price at 72 1-8, while North American Company, Columbia Gas and Consolidated Gas rose two or three points to a new high record price.

General Electric was a bull favorite, jumping nine points a new peak at 285, reflecting rumors of a 4-for-1 splitup. Chesapeake corporation was also heavily bought, climbing about seven points to a new high at 94 1-2, as a new offer of rights was announced. Rails generally gave a fair account of themselves, in response to reports of record-breaking car loadings.

Commercial Solvents mounted fifteen points to a new top at 367, and American Can forged ahead nearly seven points. Sparks Withington, Stewart Warner, Timken Roller Bearing, Underwood-Elliott, Vick Chemical, and General Railway Signal were other issues reaching new high ground. Motor stocks were firm. General Motors and Packard selling up about two points and Marmon reaching a new top at 104. Oils were rather quiet, save for Atlantic Refining and Barnsdall, which reached new highs. Coppers were quiet. U. S. Steel mounted more than two points on the tonnage report.

Among the few soft stocks were Standard Milling, By Products Coke, American Railway Express and Byers, which sagged two to five points.

In the commodity markets wheat finally steadied after its precipitant declines, helped by a smaller government estimate of the winter crop than had been feared. Cotton likewise steadied, influenced by British consumption reports for April and closed practically unchanged. Raw sugar futures were again under pressure, however, and reached new lows for the movement.

Foreign exchanges were firmer, sterling improving a little and the German bank holding steady despite the large loss of gold revealed by the reichsbank statement. The discount of the Canadian dollar was reduced to less than 1-2 of a cent.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Prohibition raids, common these days, were not unknown in Norwich 50 years ago. Just a half century ago this week the police raided a place on the West Side, securing six bottles of champagne and several other bottles containing liquor. That week the City Guards held their spring parade, mustering about 45 men. A telephone, the Edison patent, was installed at police headquarters the same week.

Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of May, 1879, are as follows:

Monday, May 5, 1879—The first monthly meeting of the Norwich Natural History society was held at the Free Academy Saturday evening. An interesting paper by Prof. William Hutchison relative to the sinking of a lead in a block of Portland stone being placed on Franklin square a few years since was read. Supplementary remarks on the general subject were made by members of the society. Fourteen new members were received. The society has made a promising beginning.

The three mission schools that have been conducted at Norwich Town during the past winter by Miss Sarah L. Huntington, as superintendent, aided by a half dozen lady assistants, and the whole under the auspices of the United Workers, held a union festival at White's hall Saturday afternoon.

A telephone has been put in at the police headquarters. It is the Edison patent.

The City Guards held their spring parade under the new order to parade by companies in this city Saturday. They mustered about 45 men and spent the afternoon at Williams park, where they went through the tactics very finely.

Tuesday, May 6, 1879—Our congressional report this morning shows how faithfully the Hon. John T. Wait is serving his constituents. He introduced into congress yesterday several bills of local interest, among them one for the continuance of work at the New London navy yard.

Charles H. Phillips of this city has resigned his position on the police force and will remove to Middletown, where he will be engaged in wood type manufacture.

A large delegation of the friends of the late Dennis Murphy residing in this city went to Baltic to attend his funeral Sunday.

A delegation of Masons of this city will visit the Mount Vernon lodge at Jewett City this evening.

Work on the Laurel Hill widening job was well begun Monday.

Wednesday, May 7, 1879—Another of our old and respected citizens, Mr. George Colt, died early yesterday morning at his residence on Church street after a long and distressing illness.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Miner of this city made them a surprise visit Tuesday evening at their residence on East Main street, the occasion being the fifth anniversary of their marriage. An immense rolling pin was presented the couple in token of the crisis they had reached and the ever imperative demands of the stomach for its service in all the walks of life.

Mr. John Goodman of the Western Union Telegraph office in this city has been transferred to take charge of wires for the same company in Providence, R. I. He made a large number of friends while in the city who will learn with regret of his departure.

The Happy Workers connected with the Universalist society gave an entertainment in the church vestry last evening.

The railroad commissioners will examine the Norwich & Worcester road today from this city to the state line.

The City Guard held a meeting last evening and voted to accept the invitation of Hedgwick post, G. A. R., to act as an escort on Memorial day.

Thursday, May 8, 1879—At a recent special meeting of the New London County Agricultural society, held to choose an executive committee, appoint judges and other officers for the ensuing year, and to do any other business proper to be done at said meeting, the attendance was large and the interest in society matters unabated. It was voted to hold the fair on the 23rd, 24th and 25th days of September next.

The English sparrows are rapidly increasing in the city. They not only occupy all the houses put up for them but have taken complete possession of the new iron railroad bridge across the Shetucket river. There are already a large number of nests there.

The weather boards on the north side of the Central wharf bridges were taken in yesterday. The beautiful view up the cove and over the broad acres of the town farm is now unobstructed.

Friday, May 9, 1879—The officers of the law made a raid on the place of Al. O'Brien at the West Side Tuesday and succeeded in seizing six bottles of champagne from which the corks had never been drawn and several open bottles containing a little liquor.

Master Shin Shu Tsoong, a Chinese student about 14 years of age, residing in this city, has written the Lord's Prayer in Chinese.

The Powers Concert troupe give a concert at Breed hall next Sunday evening in aid of the pastor of the colored Baptist church.

Saturday, May 10, 1879—The new pastor of the Greeneville Baptist church, the Rev. M. Proctor Favor, has returned to Massachusetts for his family, and is to be absent over Sunday. The Rev. Dr. Pendleton is to occupy his pulpit tomorrow.

The Hon. Lorenzo Blackstone and Mr. John F. Slater leave town next Monday for a western trip to look after certain interests of the Chicago and Alton railroad.

Pinafore and Trial by Jury at the O. D. Ones this evening. The attractions are modestly portrayed in another column, C. H. K., enormous.

The soda fountains are being called into requisition. A suffering people need something cooling.

The Duckling Meets a Monster

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Knowledge you must often gain
At the price of fright and pain.
—Old Mother Nature.

The disobedient little Duckling thought himself very smart. Somehow it seems to be true way with disobedient children. They are quite likely to think themselves very smart, when really they are not smart at all. So this disobedient little Duckling, who had hidden behind a curled up lilypad, instead of following his mother as he should have, thought himself very smart and clever. You see, he was going to do what he wanted to do, and not what his mother said he should do. He was too young to know what danger meant. His mother had told him that there were many dangers in the Great World, but not having met any, he wasn't inclined to believe that there were any.

Mother Wood Duck and the other Ducklings were swimming toward the other end of the pond. It is not surprising that Mother Wood Duck had not missed him. She had twelve children to keep watch of, and that is a job for the brightest pair of eyes. Her head had been turned when the disobedient little Duckling slipped behind the big turned-up lilypad. The Duckling peeked around the edge of the lily-pad until he saw his mother and brothers and sisters disappear behind the house of Paddy the Beaver. Then he shook himself and began to swim toward something that had caught his attention over near the shore. He was curious to see what it was. It was curiosity that was taking him over there. It was something on a big green lilypad. It was sitting there motionless. He didn't know it was sitting; it never entered his head that it could be anything alive. But it was green and yellow and white and he just had to know what it was. He wasn't the least bit afraid. He was simply curious.

Now what do you think it was sitting on that big green lilypad? Why, it was a great big bullfrog. It was one of Grandfather Frog's family, and it was as big as Grandfather Frog himself. Although he did not move, those big goggly eyes of his saw all that was going on around him. He saw that little Duckling coming his way.

"Aha!" said he, and sighed. "Here comes a fine meal. It is a long time since I have had a Duckling. Ducklings are very good eating when they are small enough to swallow. This little fellow is just the right size. I have a feeling that I am going to enjoy him. I have a feeling that I am going to enjoy him very much indeed. I hope nothing causes him to change his mind. Come on, little Duckling, come on!"

Meanwhile, the little Duckling was swimming along with his head held very high and his bright eyes fixed on that big lilypad. He was feeling very important now that little Duckling. It was a great thing to be out in the world all by himself. Yes, sir, it was a great thing to be out in the world all by himself. At least, he felt that it was.

"That's a queer looking thing," said the little Duckling to himself. "I wonder what it can be. My goodness, it looks as if it has legs! I do believe it has eyes! But what funny eyes! They seem to be popping right out of its head, if that is its head. I don't believe it can be alive."

By this time the little Duckling was very near to that big green lilypad. Mr. Bullfrog was all set and ready to receive him. And just then Rattles the Kingfisher, flew overhead, rattling as only Rattles can. It was such a harsh noise and it was so unexpected that the little Duckling was frightened. He half turned as if to swim away. Mr. Frog thought it was now or never and he made a long jump for that little Duckling. His great mouth was open. The little Duckling saw him and in the little Duckling he was a monster—a monster about twice the size of himself.

The next story: "One Thing After Another."

IMPRESSIVE PICTURE AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

At 4 o'clock on the coming Sunday last half of James K. Shields masterpiece, "A Maker of Men" will be shown in moving pictures. This picture story has tremendous gripping power. It is exceedingly appropriate in these days when far too many people are somewhat careless about giving attention to the worth while things of life. The hero of the story has taken a decided stand for what he thought was the right thing for him to do, and although his foster father turns him out of his beautiful home, yet he stands by his convictions to follow the life of service to others, while his father follows his eager desire to make more and more money. Finally the end of life draws near for the latter, and his last days are days of agony, and he is forced to admit that although wealthy his life has been wasted, while his adopted son whom he expelled from his home has spent his life as life should be spent. The whole story is one that strongly appeals to the highest and best in human nature and the picture is well worth seeing. The adult public is specially invited, and youth from 14 years up will be admitted.

Packard Cars.

The influence of women has long been recognized as an important factor in the sale of automobiles, and now comes the announcement by a leading motor car company of a display of cars which will be exclusively for women. From May 11th to 18th, the Packard Motor Car company of New York will be host in its showrooms at Broadway and 51st street, and at its branches and many dealerships throughout its territory, to the many women whose interest in motor car styling equals their interest in clothes. Tea will be served at varsonns from three to five in the Adams lounge of the New York building, and there will be music.

For this event the choicest cars in the three series of Packard Eights have been selected for display. Particular stress has been laid upon color combinations and appointments to please the feminine fancy. Packard offers an almost limitless color range for its larger models, and several entirely new color motifs are included in the showing.

The showrooms have been tastefully decorated with smilax and spring flowers, and the ladies lounge, where there will be afternoon tea service, has also been dressed up for the occasion. A showing of novel and unusual accessories is featured, as well as an extensive exhibit of upholstery materials that is expected to be particularly attractive to Packard's guests. The newest and smartest designs in tailored broadcloth upholstery are shown from the looms of the leading manufacturers. There are also cars upholstered in a new rayon material that makes available a colorful, attractive upholstery material in a wide variety of designs for the woman who seeks the unusual for her personal car.

In the display of cars in the showrooms, interest centers on the individual custom-built models and on open cars. The latter are finding more and more popularity with women motorists as "second cars," and Packard reported an unusual sale of open cars to women during Packard's record month this March. Wide favor is also being enjoyed by convertible Packard models, outstanding among which are two five passenger convertible cars, custom built by Dietrich.

Other custom cars shown are formal town cars, sedan-limousines, roadsters and phaetons, by such distinguished bodybuilders as Rollston, Holbrook and LeBaron. The most of these cars are on the 145 inch chassis of the DeLuxe line of Packard Eights. On this same chassis, Packard itself builds and presents its most luxurious cars.

Models from the Custom Eight Packard line which has a 140-inch wheelbase, and from the smaller Packard Eight line complete the display.

Bradley Theatre

While Putnam is in a true sense of the word, is many years away from a metropolis, it is keeping pace with the electrical developments offered by science to the amusement world. Manager James E. Mahoney, Connecticut resident manager of the Putnam Theatres corporation, of which the Bradley theatre of this city is a link of the chain of motion picture houses on the Connecticut circuit of this corporation, formally announced Wednesday afternoon that the Bradley will screen for the first time on Sunday, May 13 an all-talking Vitaphone production.

Manager Mahoney and a group of theatre officials listened to a test operation of the recently installed talking apparatus Wednesday morning and according to those who listened to the "talkies", they are easily adapted to the Bradley. The giant amplifying horns which will be used to reflect the voices of the screen characters have been installed and are mounted upon the stage. The production booth on the third balcony has been remodeled for the installation of the new equipment necessary to produce the talkies.

Breed Theatre

Joan Crawford and Nils Asther, loom as a new team of screen lovers in "Dream of Love," which opens tomorrow at the Breed theatre as a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature.

In this brilliant picturization of the old French play, "Adrienne Lecouvreur," Miss Crawford and Asther give the finest and most forceful performances of their careers and win new laurels as dramatic artists.

Fred Niblo, who directed the modernized version of the old play which Sarah Bernhardt made famous, surrounded the featured couple with an elaborate supporting cast, including Alleen Pringle, Carmel Myers, Warner Oland and many others of note.

Miss Crawford, fresh from her triumphs in "Our Dancing Daughters," and with John Gilbert in "Four Walls," gives an outstanding portrayal of the coast dancing girl who rises to stage stardom in the little Balkan province where her lover was pretender to the throne. Asther, who recently appeared opposite Marion Davies in "The Cardboard Lover," is dramatically romantic as the Crown Prince who is willing to give up the throne for the gypsy girl.

Christian Science Services

Wednesday evening meeting, 7:45. The reading room, 40 Main street, is open every day except Sundays and legal holidays from 2 to 4:30 p. m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mr. Edmond Cote, formerly with the Interstate Furniture company, has resigned his position and now is with the Universal Furniture store, 27-31 Main street, Norwich, where he will be glad to see all his old friends and patrons.

Contest for Miss Norwich

Although the quest for the title of Miss Norwich was announced but a few days ago, the interest is at high tide for the Palace theatre management has been here busy answering phone calls from contestants as to details of the contest. One of the many questions is when the girls must appear, as many local young ladies are anxious to enter but cannot appear during the afternoon due to school and work and for this reason all girls will appear nights only.

This is the first time a beauty contest has aroused so much local interest and it is expected that fully two score girls will grace the Palace theatre stage starting next Monday evening and throughout the entire week.

It is not necessary for girls to appear in bathing costume for all girls will wear either afternoon frock or evening gown. One girl will be chosen by the audience each night, the six winners by Saturday night will be viewed by a group of local judges and one named Miss Norwich of 1929 and awarded the trip to Boston to compete for the title of Miss New England of 1929.

The local merchants are cooperating very splendidly and the wardrobe to be given to the winner includes many beautiful and costly gifts as follows: Mallove Jewelers will present a Miss Liberty Bulova wrist watch, Barnett will provide any afternoon frock in their store, from Mandello comes the gift of a Gage hat and from the Model Bootery a pair of evening slippers. The City of Norwich Gas and Electric Dept. will provide a Universal curling iron and Hawkins will give all necessary flowers. Mandels Shoe Store will provide her afternoon shoes and the remainder of the gifts will be announced in a day or so.

All girls that are to enter the contest should get their name in at once so that the contest director can arrange all details for each girl so secure a coupon from the Palace theater or phone your name to the manager and you may be the fortunate young lady to receive the wardrobe and the trip to Boston to compete for the title of Miss New England.

Violinists—Frank Dodge, William Hazard.

Mother's day will be observed at the morning service. The pastor's topic is "Mother's Day and Companionate Marriage."

Palace Theatre

The show that comes to a close at the Palace theatre today is one of unusual merit as five of the finest acts of vaudeville and feature picture as can be obtained are presented for your entertainment. This high class show opens with Lillian Steel & Co. in Love Lessons, an act that will hold you like nobody's business. Evelyn Smith, New York's wonder, is still the wonder girl of the stage and gives you something to wonder about. Scoville and Corday, in the new skit, Tenth Ave., will carry you back to the city of bright lights and whoopee. This is the finest act in its class on the road today. Neil Kirk is a show all by himself. Cooke and Valdare close these five acts of fine vaudeville with their own act that has been the marvel of the year, in a high class European novelty act.

"Old Shoes," closing at the Palace theatre today is a new theme in screen stories far from the beaten tracks, and has a powerful cast of players whose names are known the world over. Each part in this feature photoplay fits every player like a glove. Noah Beery, John Harron, Ethel Grey Terry, Zasu Pitts, Russell Simpson, Sally Edwards, Edward J. Kimball, Vivian Daniels and other well known players have worked to make "Old Shoes" one of the most impressive feature pictures of the year.

The decline and fall of the Hope Chest is just one of many indications that our modern life is slowly but surely strangling romance, according to Hedda Hopper, who plays the leading role in "Hope Chest," Universal's Technicolor production which will be shown at the Palace theatre next week. In this production Miss Hopper is supported by Lawrence Gray, Lilyan Tashman, Otis Harlan and Hobart Bosworth.

Miss Hopper, who is a blonde beauty, is a native of Hollywood and is a niece of the famous Louella Parsons, movie critic. She is a graduate of Hollywood high school and was a member of the school's famed Pep club. She was chosen for the role of Dorothy Gulliver, 1929 Women's baby star, who enters the ladies training role opposite Lawrence Gray, who is Universal's "Romeo" leading man, which will be shown on the screen of the Palace theatre starting tomorrow.

In "Honeymoon Place," Mr. Lewis and Miss Gulliver play the roles of one of these modern young couples hasty to wed and with the inevitable quarrel brooding threats of divorce. Of course they finally discover how much they love one another.

A startling scene in which live lions are housed in an apartment of men, women and children is shown in "The Hero of the Circus," a Universal Thrill feature, coming to the Palace theatre tomorrow. The production was made by the Pittaluga Italian company of Italy and stars Maciste, a strong man and screen giant idol of Italy.

MONTVILLE

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Union Baptist church, Mrs. F. P. Rogers was elected president. Other officers were elected as follows: First vice president, Mrs. Ray Woodmansee; second vice president, Mrs. Mark Furber; third vice president, Mrs. Harry Bogue; secretary, Mrs. Harriet Furber; treasurer, Mrs. A. J. Huggard; assistant treasurer and collector, Mrs. Woodmansee. The committees for the coming year were selected as follows: Relief committee, Mrs. Thomas Church, Mrs. F. J. Hope, Mrs. E. L. Nield; work committee, Mrs. Alice Mitchell, Mrs. Woodmansee, Mrs. C. Everett Chapman and Mrs. Harry Bogue; flower committee, Mrs. Mark Furber. The slate of officers and committee members was presented by a nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Woodmansee, Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Furber. The treasurer's report showed that the society has been busy the past year, since $438.18 had been earned and $393.74 expended, leaving a balance in the treasury of $28.89. This with $55.73 which is in a savings bank, makes a total balance of $84.12. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Mitchell served ice cream and cake. Those present were: Mrs. F. H. Rogers, Mrs. Harriet Furber, Mrs. Percy Allen, Mrs. C. E. Chapman, Mrs. A. J. Huggard, Mrs. Harry Bogue, Mrs. F. J. Hope, Mrs. Fred I. Phillips, Mrs. Church, Mrs. Woodmansee, Mrs. Mark Furber, Mrs. A. Mitchell, Mrs. Wells Lyman and daughter Elizabeth, Miss Jean Lyman and Miss Ruth Shaffer.

AIRPORTS ARE UTILITIES IN KANSAS, OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Two southwestern states, Oklahoma and Kansas, have created institutions that put airports in the same status as other municipal utilities. Cities now may issue bonds to establish airports and maintain them by taxation.

Oklahoma claims it was the first state to inaugurate a program, in cooperation with the United States department of commerce, for the establishment of standard airports. Thirty-three landing fields, to be connected this year, have been financed by Oklahoma cities.

A local investment of $3,000,000 in airports and $15,000,000 in all phases of aviation is planned. Already $1,750,000 has been invested in landing fields, for the 12 inter-state and transcontinental lines that cross the state.

EXCESS "HONKING" MEANS PARIS ARREST

PARIS (AP)—The impatient motorist who insists upon "honking" his horn in a traffic jam is in line for arrest by Paris police.

The motorist who fails to use his horn when it should be used as a warning to pedestrians is in for a similar experience. Three hundred and fifty-four motorists were arrested in Paris within a month on charges of lack of use, or excessive use of horns.

CURTISS PURCHASES REED METAL PROPELLER INTERESTS

NEW YORK (AP)—The Reed Propeller company, organized by S. A. Reed, inventor of the all-metal airplane propeller, has been purchased by the Curtis Aeroplane and Motor company with Frank H. Russell, vice president of the Curtiss company, as its new president.

The Curtiss company, after working with Mr. Reed in the development and perfection of the steel propeller, became the first licensee in this country, manufacturing the Curtiss-Reed static-pitch blade used on all Pulitzer race winners.

The Reed Propeller company will continue to operate as a separate concern and will remain as licensor of the Curtiss company.

In the recent home-rule agitation in Scotland it was brought out that "in Glasgow today there are more Englishmen than there are Scots in London" and that 30 per cent of Edinburgh university professors are from south of the border.

BODY OF MRS. ABBIE M. BAILEY, DROWNED AT NEW LONDON RECOVERED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 10—The body of Mrs. Abbie Marshall Bailey, colored, about 35, daughter of Alexander Marshall, 171 Poquonoc road, Groton, was found on the shore at Goshen Point this afternoon. The body was in an advanced state of decomposition for it had been in Long Island sound many weeks, the woman having committed suicide, Feb. 24. Identification was established by Sergeant George Webber and Officer Bernard Kenerson, Groton state police by means of a number in the back of a watch found on the body. The watch had been repaired at a local jewelry store and its registry showed that it was owned by Mrs. Bailey. The young woman's father also identified a diamond ring, a wedding ring and the watch. Acting Medical Examiner Rosa Block viewed the body, after which he ordered it removed to an undertaking establishment.

Mrs. Bailey went to Ocean Beach on the February afternoon and walked to the pier. No one saw her as there were no strollers on the boardwalk. Going to the head of the pier, Mrs. Bailey deposited her bag near a stringer and then jumped into the water. During the day a stranger went to the pier and upon finding the bag he took it to police headquarters. Efforts were made at the time to recover the body, even to U. S. Coast Guardsmen dragging in the vicinity of the pier.

This afternoon two nurses at the Edward S. Harkness juvenile hospital on the Harkness estate, in walking along the shore observed the body and had the police notified. The state police were supplied the information of the finding of the body and took charge of it until it was removed to an undertaking parlor.

NEW LONDON, May 10—Claiming that Gordon W. Simms, of Main street, was occupying the place in his home which rightfully belonged to himself, Putnam Burhoe, 326 Crystal avenue, made complaint to Acting Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer this afternoon following Burhoe being severely beaten by Simms, after the two men had quarreled when Burhoe declares that he discovered Simms leaving the Burhoe home, after Burhoe had been unable to gain entrance to his home. Burhoe went to his home shortly after noon and was surprised to discover all the entrances locked. He also failed to get his wife to open the door. Burhoe took up a position where he could obtain a full view of the house and in a short time was rewarded by seeing Simms emerge. The two men exchanged hot words and Simms, it is claimed, attacked Burhoe, giving the latter several vicious blows on the head and face. Burhoe related his story of what had occurred to the acting prosecuting attorney. A warrant for Simms' arrest was issued and given to Patrolman Dennis Murphy to serve. Simms was arrested at his home, but was released shortly after for he provided a surety on his bond of $100 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow.

SIGLAR GIRL'S BURNS LATER PROVE FATAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 10—Marguerite Siglar, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Siglar, 1 Mitchell court, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. The child suffered second degree burns as a result of her clothing having caught fire this morning. The chances of the little girl's recovery are slight for the burns, which are confined principally to the upper part of the body and legs are severe. The child was alone in the house with her mother when the latter went to another part of the house leaving the girl at play. The girl found a few matches, which she playfully ignited. The girl's clothing was ignited and in an instant she was enveloped in flames. The shrieks of the little one caused the mother to rush to her assistance and tearing off the burning clothing the flames were subdued, but not until the garments had been practically burned from the body. Medical assistance was summoned and after emergency treatment, the girl was rushed to the hospital.

The girl died at 8:35 p. m. at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

Mrs. C. C. Van Paulsen, wife of Lieut. Commander Paulsen of U. S. Coast Guard, is to give a recital in the parlors of the Second Congregational church, under the auspices of the New London branch, American Association of University Women.

When a dance is held at Sloan's academy by members of the enlisted men of the Coast Guard academy, the hostess will be Mrs. Frances Dillenkofer.

Members of Circle No. 8 of the First Baptist church were entertained last night by Mrs. Alfred Cole.

U. S. C. G. ACADEMY TO GRADUATE TWENTY-EIGHT

The largest class in the history of the local Coast Guard academy will be graduated May 15. Twenty-eight cadets on that date will become officers and elaborate plans have been made for the affair. Many local citizens of prominence have arranged social functions for the days preceding commencement.

In spite of a vigilant search no trace of the pair who brutally assaulted Mrs. Peter Chretis in the kitchen of her home at 20 Cottage street, has been found. Mrs. Chretis was brutally beaten in the struggle that followed the attack, consequently has been unable to furnish an accurate description of her assailants.

At a meeting of Anna Warner Bailey chapter, D. A. R., of Groton and Stonington, held yesterday afternoon in the Monument house, Groton, Mrs. C. Y. Vincent was re-elected regent; Miss Alice Satterlee first vice regent; second vice regent, Miss M. Adelaide Randall; recording secretary, Mrs. C. S. Woodhull Davis; corresponding secretary, Mrs. George I. Bilderback; treasurer, Miss Sarah W. Avery; registrar, Mrs. Billings F. Crandall; historian, Mrs. Roswell Sawyer.

Warden George R. Hempstead today took the oath of office for service in the town of Groton for the eighth consecutive term. He with other officers of the borough was elected at the 26th annual election this week.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Warren G. Chapman

The funeral of Edna W., wife of Warren G. Chapman, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 144 Monument street, Groton and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. The bearers were Frank Gorton, Edward Luce, Mark Bush, J. A. Thompson, Henry Marquardt and Henry Gamber. Burial was in Union cemetery, Niantic.

Frank Kalka has sold a building lot on Vauxhall street to Edwin Cruise.

Samuel Chertoff has sold to Edward I. Raymond a building lot on Thames street.

J. D. Avery, Inc., has been granted a renewal of lease of the building, corner of Rosemary and Williams street. The new lease is for eight years and dates from Aug. 1, 1928, although it was only filed for record today. The lease calls for the payment annually for the first three years of $2,520; for each of the next three years, $3,000 and for each of the last two years, $3,200.

J. N. LAPOINTE'S DEATH REVEALS UNPAID TAXES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 10—By the death of Joseph N. Lapointe several days ago, it is revealed that he was indebted to the city in the sum of $1,598.68, representing assessment on levies of four years that Mr. Lapointe had not paid. Property belonging to him on Pequot avenue was today ordered by Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander sold at public auction. The sale was set for July 15 at 11 o'clock in the forenoon. The taxes Mr. Lapoint had not paid are as follows: For the year 1924, $412.34; 1925, $226.33; 1926, 453.71 and 1927, $492.30.

Sandora Gets by Easy

Joseph Sandora, 2nd, of 457 Ocean avenue, was in the police court this morning charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law prohibiting an automobile passing a trolley car while the latter is receiving or discharging passengers. Judgment was suspended. Sandora was arrested last night by Patrolman George Bruhns and upon request of Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey. The latter officer alleged that while a trolley car was at a standstill on Montauk avenue, corner of Moore avenue, earlier in the day, Sandora speeded by the trolley and made his get-away.

A. Y. Levin, of New Haven; Ralph Harris, 453 Bank street and G. W. Smith, 23 Bragaw street, charged with violation of the city's parking ordinances did not appear to defend the charge so their respective bonds of $2 were forfeited. The only other cases presented were for intoxication. A man of 60 who has been arrested about 35 times, was sentenced to the workhouse for six months. The other was given suspension of judgment.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered suspension of the drivers' licenses of Rido Benvenuti, 68 Goshen street and Ralph H. Harris, U. S. Coast Guard.

Last night a dinner was held by members of the Harbour and Faire Harbour clubs at the Hotel Mohican, celebrating the conclusion of the annual bridge tournament between the two organizations. Music and dancing followed.

At a meeting of the Woman's club held at the Community hall, Blackhall street, last night, Mrs. Sarah Sulsman was re-elected chairman; Mrs. William Lippa, vice chairman; financial secretary, Mrs. I. E. Riner; recording secretary, Mrs. Fannie Katz; treasurer, Mrs. Gussie Friedman. These officers will serve for six months.

NORWICH MAN'S STOLEN OVERCOAT IS FOUND

Peter McKelvey, employed by the Norwich Nickel Plating company, Norwich, notified the police tonight that he had recovered his top coat, stolen in this city on the night of April 24. McKelvey drove to New London and parked the auto on Bank street, near Jefferson avenue, leaving the garment in the car.

A fellow, one of several in New London of late, umbrella repairers, was arrested on Bank street tonight, charged with vagrancy for the man was begging.

BABIES BUT NO HUSBAND—SHIRLEY FLECK BACK AT FARM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 10—Too many babies and no husband was the cause of Shirley Fleck, former Waterford young woman, being tried in the Waterford town court today charged with adultery. As a result of the actions of the Fleck woman in the past and her recently becoming a mother for the third or fourth time out of wedlock, resulted in Judge Frederick N. Dimmock committing her to the State Farm for Women at East Lyme. The Fleck woman was arrested at New Haven yesterday by State Police Officer Arthur Johnson. She has already been an inmate at the farm, but practically every time that she is discharged her conduct results in her becoming a mother and without a husband to support her off-spring.

Antone Joseph was arrested today charged with violation of the city's traffic laws in passing an automatic traffic signal on Bank street that was set at danger. He will be in court tomorrow. Another traffic violator ordered into court is Peter Gianopolis, Bread street Grove, charged with parking overtime.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

The wonders of Vitaphone are presented in new guise in "The Desert Song," the brilliant operetta which takes its place as the first musical play ever transferred to the screen in its entirety.

Warner Brothers, pioneers of the talking picture, have taken another step forward in the production of this famous stage play accompanied by all the tuneful melodies of Sigmund Romberg, its composer, played by the Vitaphone Symphony orchestra, and with a magnificent chorus of 100 voices.

The use of such a large number of people brought up new problems in voice recording, but the difficulties were surmounted with complete and astonishing success, and the result was a Vitaphone production which far excells all previous efforts.

"The Riff Song" and all the other inspiring choruses of "The Desert Song" come to the audience in volume as melodios as it is remarkable. The desert settings are exceptionally beautiful.

Important roles in this epoch-making production are played by John Boles, Carlotta King, Louise Fazenda, Johnny Arthur, John Miljan, Marie Wells, Jack Pratt, Myrna Loy, Edward Martindel, Otto Hoffman, Robert E. Guzman and Del Elliott. "The Desert Song" was directed by Roy Del Ruth, and Harvey Gates made the screen adaptation. It will be the attraction at the Broadway theatre beginning tomorrow evening.

Announcement.

Mr. Edmond Cote, formerly with the Interstate Furniture company has resumed his position and is now with the Silberman Furniture store, 37-41 Main street, Norwich, where he will be glad to see all his old friends and patrons.

Just one century ago the competition for trade on the stage coach lines between Boston and Providence became so keen that passengers were carried free and provided with a dinner and a bottle of wine each.

THIRD BAPTIST BOYS HAVE OUTING AT MOHEGAN PARK

On Friday afternoon and evening a very enjoyable outing in the form of a baseball game and a wiener roast was held in the Mohegan park. Rev. O. P. Campbell, Rev. Floyd Carr, Mr. William Lund, Rev. Harry Brothwell and Rev. and Mrs. Kilmister, went with a group of boys from the Third Baptist church to the park. After a strenuous game of baseball the boys made a strong attack upon the wieners. Mr. Lund made the outing a real success by giving his time in building the fire, making the coffee and transporting the supplies. It was a great time for the boys of the Third Baptist and Central Baptist churches.

On Monday evening 7:15, Boy Scouts meeting. Thursday evening 7:30, midweek service. Topic, "Saving Faith."

The Girls' Guides held their weekly meeting at the home of Miss Mildred Turner on Central Ave., Thursday evening. A social hour was enjoyed with refreshments served by Mrs. Turner. Two visitors, Phyllis and Isabelle Turner, were present. Among those attending were Mildred Turner, Mildred Hoelck, Rose Morton, Marion Clarke, Marjorie Flynn, Eileen Disco, Lois Flynn and Ethel Disco. The girls will hold their next meeting at the home of Miss Rose Morton on Marjorie street next Thursday evening.

Mrs. Hannah Gallagher of Newport, R. I., is at the home of her brother Edward Gleason on Golden street extension for a few days.

Miss Anna Conway of New York is spending a few days at the home of Miss Esther Collins on Durfy street.

Captain Blackburn of Engine company No. 2, and his men were testing the company's hose Friday.

K. B. Class Met

Mrs. John Brennan of 117 Fourth street, was hostess on Thursday evening to the K. B. Sewing class of Auxiliary No. 18, A. O. H. A very busy hour was spent in the making of May baskets and lamp shades. During the social hour Miss Rose Brennan rendered several piano solos which were enjoyed. Mrs. Mary Sabourin, Mrs. Adeline Levitsky and Mrs. Mary Sullivan sang several solos in a pleasing manner. Mrs. Brennan, assisted by Mrs. Timothy Brennan, served sandwiches, cake and coffee. Next week the class meets with Mrs. Simon Fahey of North Main street.

On Sunday, Mother's day, Rev. Norris of St. Andrew's church will preach on "The Influence of a Good Mother."

The Greeneville N. M. Sewing circle met at the home of Mrs. Thomas Harrington on Central avenue Friday evening with a large class attending. The first period of the evening was devoted to sewing of fancy articles and a social hour followed. Refreshments were served. The dining room was prettily decorated in green and gold. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Harry Richmond and Mrs. Alvin Barrows. The circle will be entertained at the home of Mrs. William Day on Boswell avenue on next Friday evening.

TAFTVILLE

Through error it was stated in Thursday's Bulletin that Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Lussier of Norwich avenue had moved to Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Lussier are to make their home in Giasgo.

Miss Helen C. Aberg of North Third avenue and Miss Lois C. Pingree of Saylesville, R. I., have returned to Miss Aberg's home in town after a visit in Mansfield with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Porter Staebner and family.

Rosario Guertin has resigned his position with the slashing department of the local mills.

An instrumental and vocal entertainment given by a quartette from the Hartford Theological Seminary of Hartford was given Thursday evening at the Taftville Congregational church. The vocal numbers included college songs and sacred music and there were features on the piano and organ. The affair was arranged by Rev. William Penner, the pastor, who is also a student of the seminary. The tickets were in charge of Miss Gladys Kinder. There was a very good attendance.

Day-old chicks continue to arrive in large numbers at the local postoffice. Most of the poultrymen to whom they are consigned report that the losses in transportation are very negligible.

Parts of Norwich avenue were gone over by men employed by the state highway department Thursday. Rough spots were "touched up" and tarvia was applied where needed.

FATALLY CRUSHED UNDER TRACTOR AT HIS FARM AT TRADING COVE

George A. Bullard, 54, proprietor of Temple Spring farm, near Trading Cove, was instantly killed Friday afternoon when a Fordson tractor which he was driving on his farm with double plough attached tipped over and crushed him. No one saw the accident.

Mr. Bullard was at work in a field about a quarter of a mile from his farm which is on the Lebanon road, three quarters of a mile from Trading Cove. At the end of the field was a low spot, soft and muddy, over which the front wheels of the tractor passed safely, but the large ribbed rear wheels sank deeply into the mud so that the tractor reared up and tipped over backwards. The gasoline tank struck Mr. Bullard in the chest and abdomen, crushing the chest and the abdominal organs.

The accident was discovered about 6:30 in the evening by two boys of the neighborhood who are in the habit of doing odd jobs on the Bullard farm after school. They were on the way to the farm as usual when they observed the tractor in the field upside down. Going on to the house, they told Mr. Bullard's daughter-in-law what they had seen and she asked them to go back to see if anything had happened, which they did, and Mr. Bullard's two sons were summoned.

A team of horses was secured, the tractor was drawn forward and righted, disclosing Mr. Bullard's body crushed deeply into the mud. It lay back downward with hands still on the steering wheel which had been broken.

Dr. W. T. Driscoll was hastily called, but Mr. Bullard had evidently been instantly killed. Dr. John J. Donohue, medical examiner for the town of Montville, was called and conducted an investigation, after which Undertakers Church and Allen were given charge of the body.

Mr. Bullard was born in Brooklyn, this state, 54 years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Bullard. In Worcester, 34 years ago, he was united in marriage with Mary Allen, who survives him. About 23 years ago Mr. and Mrs. Bullard came to Norwich and for the last 24 years had made their home at Temple Spring farm. Mr. Bullard was a member of Norwich Grange, No. 172, Patrons of Husbandry.

Surviving are his wife and four sons and daughters, Donald Bullard, at home, Roger Bullard of Uncasville, Mrs. James Rutherford of Norwich and Mrs. C. Richard Potter of Charlestown, New Hampshire. There are also four grandchildren, Nancy, Grace, Marjorie and Mary Ann Bullard.

Mr. Bullard, through his long residence in this section, had many warm friends by whom he was well liked and highly respected. He was well known to the members of Norwich Grange. His numerous friends and acquaintances were shocked to hear of his tragic death and their heartfelt sympathy is extended the surviving members of the family.

DEPARTMENT REPORTS AT WOMAN'S GUILD ANNUAL

Reports from twelve departments that showed a year of active and successful work were made Friday afternoon when the Woman's Guild of the United Congregational church held its annual meeting at 3 o'clock at the Community house. After the devotional exercises which opened the meeting, Mrs. F. W. Lester, the president, conducted the business session. The treasurer's report showed that the budget for next year of over $700 has been raised and that there is a substantial balance in the treasury.

After the reports had been presented, the election of officers was held and the list presented by the nominating committee was unanimously elected as follows:

President, Mrs. F. W. Lester; vice president, Mrs. Edward A. Rich; secretary, Mrs. W. M. Zumbro; treasurer, Miss Mabel H. Mitchell; missions department, Mrs. Edward Adams; Sodalitas, Miss Alice Brwoning; girls work, Mrs. A. H. Abbott; hospital, Mrs. A. C. Freeman; ways and means, Mrs. Herman J. Tubbs; programme, Miss Elizabeth Huntington; flowers, Mrs. W. A. Buckingham; social activities, Mrs. Marcus Leith; buildings, Mrs. Ozias Dodge; Young People's, Junior Group, Miss Miriam Campbell; parish districts, Mrs. A. J. Sinay.

The nominating committee consisted of Mrs. W. F. Lester, chairman, Mrs. A. C. Freeman and Mrs. J. A. French.

Tea was served for a social hour which followed the business meeting, the refreshments being in charge of Miss Mary A. Portous. Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard poured.

There was an interesting display of articles made by three groups of girls, the Junior Guild, H. G. L. club and B. O. H. club, consisting of dolls, post cards, cradles, and other toys which are to be sent to Miss Betty Cushman, at Weng Chang school, Foo Chow, China, as Christmas presents for her pupils. Miss Cushman is the girls' missionary of the Congregational church.

CAPT. JOSEPH PEREUE WAS FORMERLY OF TRADING COVE

Capt. Joseph H. Pereue, formerly of Trading Cove, who died Thursday at Frankforth, Mich., is survived by his widow, who was formerly Charlotte Averill of Montville, five daughters, Misses Elizabeth and Josephine Pereue of Cleveland, Miss Jeanette Pereue, at home, Mrs. Herbert Stone and Mrs. Lois Bardon of Detroit and a son, Joseph H. Pereue of Detroit. He also leaves two brothers, John Pereue of Frederick, Md., and Charles A. Pereue of Trading Cove and several nieces and nephews.

VACCINATED 177 AT RE-OPENED PUBLIC CLINIC

From 4 to 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon 177 persons were vaccinated at the vaccination clinic in the health department rooms in the court rooms. The clinic was reopened by City Health Officer Dr. E. J. Brophy, as the result of two additional cases of smallpox developing in the city on Thursday and will be open daily from 11 to noon and from 4 to 5:30 p. m. Dr. Paul F. Gadie is in charge of the clinic assisted by the Misses Ellen Tonreen and Marie Gadie, school nurses.

NORWICH YOUNG PEOPLE TO WED IN NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW YORK, May 10—Miss Marion Brewer Briggs, 23, of 253 Broadway, Norwich, Conn., and Elliot Brown Grover, 22, a mill engineer of Taftville, Conn., obtained a marriage license at the municipal bureau today and announced they would be married this afternoon at the Little Church Around the Corner, by the Rev. Randolph Ray. Miss Briggs, who was born in Norwich is the daughter of Lucius and Mary Brewer Briggs. Mr. Grover was born in Jamaica Plain, Mass., a suburb of Boston. He is the son of Alfred and Ethel Peterson Grover.

Discuss Community Chest Idea

The proposed community chest for Norwich was discussed at a meeting of the special committee of the Norwich chamber of commerce appointed to consider this matter, at a meeting Friday morning. The members of the committee are Miss Lucy B. Abbott, Dr. R. R. Agnew, Dr. H. N. Campbell, Dr. J. J. Donohue, John Ferguson, Nathan A. Gibbs, Walter E. Gilbert, E. J. Graham, Edward W. Jewett, John P. Lyston, James A. Mara, Miss Betsy Mitchell, Arthur L. Peale and E. W. Perkins.

Pays Fine and Costs

John Snurkowski, 24, of 19 Prospect park, who has been employed as a jitney driver, paid $111.84 in the city court Friday morning in settlement of the case in which he was fined $200 and costs, with $100 remitted, on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was arrested last Saturday night after a collision in the Thamesville section with an automobile owned by a man from Plainfield, N. J.

Discharges at Backus Hospital

At the Backus hospital Katherine Hartnett of No. 9 Sturtevant street, Agnes Dalgeault, 29 Walnut street, Wauregan, and Louis Simons, 15 High street, were discharged on Friday.

WORKED FOR MEMBERS IN BACKUS HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

While the activity of the membership committee of the Women's auxiliary of the W. W. Backus hospital began last year, new memberships from Norwich and the surrounding towns have been received until the present number of members totals 1,218. This splendid result, with all it means to the hospital of real interest and support, of benefits to the patients that the fine sum collected from the annual dues can supply—is due to Mrs. Aurin Payson, chairman of the committee, and the captains and their workers who so enthusiastically and efficiently carried out the drive. Over 175 women helped in this work, some of whom were from Jewett City and the other towns nearby who appreciate what a first class hospital means to their communities and who, every year, send many of their people to the Backus hospital. The committee wish to make mention of their indebtedness to the Norwich Bulletin and the Evening Record for the generous space given to their drive in the newspapers, and to the Norwich Commercial school for some clerical work done so reasonably and also to the commercial department of the Norwich Free Academy. Those who read the hospital auxiliary notes that appear in the papers each month know how the money collected from the annual dues is being used entirely for the benefit of the hospital, as there are no paid workers in the auxiliary.

The following comprised the teams which worked in the membership campaign:

Mrs. Walter F. Lester, captain; Miss E. J. Jones, Miss Lucy B. Abbott, Miss Grace E. Anslow, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. C. A. Spear, Mrs. Emma M. Wetherbee, Mrs. Witter K. Tingley, Mrs. Edwin T. Phillips, Mrs. Harrison C. Noyes.

DEMOCRATS NAME THEIR TICKET IN CAUCUS WITHOUT CONTEST

Frank H. Quinley and William H. Aldrich, former members of the court of common council, were nominated Friday night as the democratic party's candidates for election as aldermen at the city election next month. The party caucus, held in the town hall, had a fair sized attendance and lasted but eight minutes. William H. Callahan, chairman of the democratic town committee, called the caucus to order at 8 o'clock and on motion of Patrick F. Sweeney, Thomas J. Kelly was chosen as moderator. In taking the chair Mr. Kelly said that the signs are auspicious for a democratic victory. I trust and know that this caucus will nominate men worthy and fitted for the office to which they aspire, he declared.

Joseph F. Williams named Louis F. Waters as clerk of the caucus and Mr. Waters was chosen for that office. He read the warning after which the chairman caled for nominations. They were made as follows:

Alderman, Frank H. Quinley, nominated by Milo R. Waters; William H. Aldrich, nominated by Joseph F. Williams.

Councilmen, Lawrence E. Millea, nominated by Patrick F. Sweeney; Robert J. Swanton, nominated by Earl Mathewson; Leo V. Jacques, nominated by Earl Mathewson; Joseph B. Pysyk, nominated by Henry Gebrath.

City treasurer, Charles S. Avery, nominated by Earl Mathewson.

City Clerk, Louis F. Waters, nominated by Henry Gebrath.

Colector of taxes, Harold T. Robinson, nominated by Cornelius J. Downes.

City sheriffs, Edward M. Riordan, nominated by Joseph F. Williams; Charles W. F. Billings, nominated by Henry Gebrath.

Water commissioner, John P. Corcoran, nominated by Henry Gebrath.

On motion of Mr. Gebrath the town committee was empowered to fill any vacancies that migh occur on the ticket between now and election, after which the caucus adjourned.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

The regular monthly meeting of Mercier assembly, No. 13, Catholic Ladies of Columbus was held Tuesday evening in their rooms with Miss Loretta Gadie, president, presiding.

Mrs. Burke and Miss Sullivan reported favorably on the supper and dance held recently. The degree team has plans for a card party in T. A. B. hall. At a social meeting later in the month the degree will be given to a class of candidates recently initiated.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS.

The regular meeting of Sebequonash council, No. 11, was held at the Buckingham Memorial with a large attendance. Deputy Prevost was present from New London. At the next meeting on the 22nd of May is the visitation by the great officers who will be present. A banquet is to be held in the Buckingham Memorial. Two candidates were voted on. After the business meeting the social committee served coffee, sandwiches and cake. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS.

The regular meeting of Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, No. 16, was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Buckingham Memorial with Mrs. Althea Brown in the chair. Those with birthdays in April and May served refreshments at recess. The chairman of the serving committee announced a meeting of the society on Friday the 17th, for an all day meeting. Invitations were read from Norwich lodge of Elks to attend flag day exercises and from the commander of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., to participate in the Memorial day parade. The president appointed the following aides: Mrs. Mary Austin and Mrs. Lena Pukallus as department aides to the convention in 1930; and Miss Lola Belle Rosth as national aide to the convention at Portland, Me., in September, 1929. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag.

EAGLES.

At the Eagles home Tuesday evening there were twelve tables playing in the pinochle tournament under the auspices of the Eagles this being the sixth night of play. Those receiving the prizes were J. Wall 7970, a gold piece; J. Cobb 7770, a pipe; J. Donohue, 7710, a carton of cigarettes; Mrs. George Nadolny 7580, a gold piece; Mrs. Cochrane, 7420 perfumery; Mrs. Murray, 7340, a silk scarf. The committee in charge consists of John Leirich and Samuel Swartzburg.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich Grange, No. 172, held its regular meeting Wednesday evening in Steiner hall with an attendance of 115 members and 12 visitors. Worthy Master Albert W. Billibridge conducted the meeting at which all officers were present. The members voted to buy the Norwich town school house to be remodeled for a grange hall. The auxiliary presented $100 to the building fund and announced another baked bean, salad and cold meat supper at the Buckingham Memorial, the proceeds to go towards repairing the new home. The lecturer invited the grangers to be present May 22nd of the afternoon in Steiner hall, at which time a lecturer's conference will be held. State Lecturer Mrs. Sarah L. Curtis is to be the speaker and will stay for the evening meeting.

The lecturer's program for the evening was a stereopticon trip to California by William Kendall who made this trip across the country taking pictures of the different scenes on the way. It was very interesting and Mr. Kendall's talk on the different scenes was very educational, with some humor mixed in which made it a very delightful evening. The next meeting May 22 is to be Memorial night. Division A served delicious refreshments of ice cream, cake and wafers at the meeting.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

At Milwaukee, plans for one of the largest Catholic demonstrations ever held in Wisconsin and in the Northwest are under way as part of the program of the annual supreme convention of the Knights of Columbus which is to be held in Milwaukee Aug. 20, 21 and 22. Delegates from every state and territory of the United States as well as from the Dominion of Canada, Cuba and Mexico, in addition to thousands of members of the Knights of Columbus, will go to Milwaukee for the three-day religious gathering.

The convention will unofficially open, if weather permits, with a field mass Sunday morning, Aug. 18, at Marquette university stadium. This will be followed by the exemplification of the fourth degree of the order at the clubrooms of Pere Marquette council. The supreme officers will take part in the ceremony.

A speaker of national reputation yet to be selected will be invited to address a mass meeting at Milwaukee auditorium, Monday night, Aug. 19. The convention will open Tuesday morning, Aug. 20, with a solemn pontifical high mass in the auditorium with the celebrant a high dignitary of the church, probably a cardinal.

The supreme convention committee consists of members of the Milwaukee Pere Marquette council. Robert Witig, resident manager of the R. G. Dun Co., is executive chairman. Archbishop Sebastian G. Messmer of Milwaukee, the oldest member of the American hierarchy, is honorary chairman of the convention.

Visiting glee clubs will be trained to sing in unison, according to plans of John Leicht, distinguished Milwaukee musician, who is in charge of convention music.

POETRY

The Mother's Mission

That I may know some measure of God's love,
That I may claim the friend forevermore,
That come what may, one lives who still holds faith
And proves its strength and power to restore.
That when I fail one yet brings hope to me
That in its light I may take heart again,
That though I stray there still is welcome home,
And true forgiveness is not sought in vain.
That we might know all this and more as true,
O Mothers of The World, God gave us you!
But though ye bear a cross, yet in thine hand
Thou holdest high a torch lit with thy love,
To guide and cheer thy children as they climb
The hillpath that beside their feet doth shove.

—By Gertrude B. Walker.

Mother

Oh, years may come, and years may go,
But there can be no other,
To fill the place, or know the praise,
That you deserve, dear Mother!

Oh friendship's tie is warm and true,
With father, sister, brother,
But none can take the place of you,
Within my heart, Oh Mother!

You gloried in your sacrifice,
And silent, bore your cross of pain,
Because in motherhood's great hour,
You knew that e'en to die were gain.

Unconquered through those paths of pain,
Your weary, aching feet have trod,
Because God gave you grace to know—
To know that Motherhood is God.

Through need, or suffering, or joy,
Whatever comes, you stand the test,
And prove to us, along the way,
That mother love indeed is best.

And so I give you praise and love,
Such praise as I can give no other,
For lips (behind) praise in life or death,
The sacred name of Mother!

—Nova Mesner Burkett, in The Pathfinder.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

If he growls about the early spring, he's a coal dealer.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Old Gentleman (to tot in park)—And whose little girl are you?

Child of Divorce—Mother's, this month.—Exchange.

"And is Wilbur as fat as ever?"

"Fat? He had the mumps three weeks before he knew it."—Army and Navy Journal.

Irate Parent at 6 a. m.—What do you mean by bringing my daughter home at this hour?

Youth—Well, I gotta be at work at seven.—Washington Star.

"And has monsieur looked over my composition?"

"I have. And I may say I think it will be played after the old masters are forgotten."

"Really! I am overwhelmed."

"I mean it. After, but not before."—Exchange.

"Statistics don't go so well with women."

"No?"

"No. I told my wife that the railroads of this country carry two tons of freight for every passenger. And she wanted to know why they allow each customer to take so much baggage."—Santa Fe Magazine.

Two clubmen were playing a bit of bridge. They were greatly annoyed by the remarks and advice of two bystanders. Soon one of the players looked up and said: "I wonder if one of you would take my hand for a moment. I must telephone." The spectator agreed. In a few minutes the other player made a similar request, with a different excuse. The two annoyances played away a while, then struck with curiosity asked the attendant if he had seen the two gentlemen.

"Oh, yes, sir. They're just in the next room playing a rubber of bridge."—Boston Transcript.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Bighorn or mountain sheep of the Rocky mountains are larger and more agile than the famous chamois of the Swiss Alps.

The United States department of agricultural recommends that milk in home refrigerators should be kept at a temperature of 45 degrees Fahrenheit, or lower.

Hadley Humphrey of Amherst, Me., qualified as a lucky hedgehog hunter. He found some hedgehog tracks and was following them when he came upon a den which did not contain a hedgehog but a black bear. All the hunter had was a .22 single shot rifle, but he tackled the bear and the little rifle did the trick. The bear was sold at Bangor at a good price.

A young sailorman, Reuben James, after whom a United States destroyer is named, saved the life of Stephen Decatur, widely known naval officer. The incident occurred in a gunboat action in the war with the pirates of Tripoli. During the encounter young Reuben James stuck close to his commander's side, warding off the attacks made on Decatur from behind. When his right arm was disabled by scimiter cuts he shifted his cutlass to the left and fought on. Soon this arm was useless, too, and the weapon dropped from his hand. At that moment he saw a pirate lift his scimiter to strike Decatur's head as he lay on the deck locked in a death struggle with the Tripolitan captain. As both Reuben James' arms were useless, he deliberately put his own head in the way and caught the stroke aimed for Decatur. It was a mighty blow, but the hard headed sailor was back at his post in three weeks and lived to a ripe old age.

PAYS IN PRESTON COURT FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

Found guilty of violation of the liquor law, Roman Fedwicyck, 37, of Preston, was fined $200 and costs Friday noon in Preston town court. He paid the fine. The accused was arrested Thursday afternoon by the state police, who discovered a still in operation at his house in Preston just across the Norwich town line.

MED. EXAMINER INSISTS HUNTINGTON WAS SLAIN

Detective Hickey Apparently Stands Alone in the Belief That the Harvard Junior Committed Suicide—Investigators Have What They Regard as Indisputable Evidence That Huntington Was Not Alone at the Place Where His Body Was Found.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 12—(AP)—Did Walter Treadway Huntington, handsome and wealthy young Harvard junior, kill himself, as the veteran county detective Edward J. Hickey believes.

Or, was he, as his mother and the medical examiners insist, slain, the motive behind the crime being so far purely guesswork?

That was where the case still stood today while hundreds of motorists trampled the swamp grass about the stake that marks the spot under the budding trees beside a winding country road where his body was found last Wednesday morning.

A prolonged visit of Hickey and several other investigators to the Huntington mansion in Windsor late last night brought out only two new developments, and they do not alter the case.

As he left the house early this morning, after questioning at length Huntington's relatives and two of his young friends, Hickey blew away the "smoke screen," built up by some of his friends who had said he was only saying it was suicide to aid his search for the murderer.

"I still have no reason to believe it was not a suicide."

At the same time he announced he had found in the house another box of .32 calibre shells of the type that killed Huntington. But he had previously found part of a box there, in the young men's room.

Hickey apparently stands all alone in his belief. And he clings to it in the face of formal reports of Medical Examiners Henry N. Costello of Hartford, and Aaron P. Pratt of Windsor that Huntington could not have killed himself.

Huntington was shot from the left side, the bullet entering his head above the hair line and a little behind his ear. He was right-handed. There were no powder marks. His body was found laid out as an undertaker would lay it out, with the hands crossed on the chest. Stuffed in his right hip pocket were handkerchiefs—one of them belonging to a woman and all identified as having come from his home—which gave evidence of having been used to staunch the blood from his wound. The doctors insist that he was unconscious and paralyzed from the instant the bullet entered his brain, and that it would have been impossible for him to do any of these things himself.

In addition, some of the investigators have what they regard as other indisputable evidences that Huntington was not alone. Near the body, they say there was evidence that some one had been violently ill, and that the condition of Huntington's mouth and throat indicated that it was not he. It is now established that no shell was found, and, of course, the gun has not been found.

No motive for the murder has yet been publicly established, however. There has been a lot of talk about a girl and a jealous rival, but except for guessing, no rival nor any girl has actually been drawn into the case.

Gertrude Schultz, friend of both Walter and his elder brother, Clark, is in seclusion at her home in Windsor, but nobody has mentioned her as the possible "girl in the case," and no rival has been mentioned at all.

In the long combination sun room and library of the old Huntington home—the largest house in Windsor—Hickey and his associates questioned members of the family. As they entered and left the room, they were plainly visible from the broad lawn outside. They questioned Mrs. Huntington, Clark Huntington, 15 year old Mary Huntington, Miss Schultz, and Burlette Williams, the dead boy's chum, then lights went on all over the house, and the search began. It was after midnight when Hickey came out and said that all he had found was another box of .32 calibre shells.

MOTHER BELIEVES THAT HUNTINGTON WAS MURDERED

WINDSOR, May 12—(AP)—County Detective Edward J. Hickey's theory of suicide in the fatal shooting of Walter Treadway Huntington, Harvard junior, found support tonight in the statement of Gertrude Schultz, childhood friend of the dead student, that he was "nearly ambidexterous" and therefore could have used his left hand in firing the pistol with which he was killed.

Adherents of the homicide theory, chiefly Medical Examiner Henry N. Costello of Hartford, base their opinion on their contention Huntington was right handed. They say it would have been unnatural for him to have fired the automatic with his left hand. Concurrence in Hickey's theory depends on belief that the left hand was used, for the bullet entered the left side of the head.

"Walter was right handed," Miss Schultz said. "But he could use his left hand almost as well as his right. I have seen him, in playing tennis, use the racquet with either hand with almost equal dexterity."

Miss Schultz, who had a talk this morning with Mrs. Mary Clark Huntington, widowed mother of the dead student, quoted her as saying, "I'll never believe it was a suicide." Mrs. Huntington had been reported by Charles A. Huntington, her nephew, as having become "reconciled to a suicide theory."

The mother's statement followed Hickey's tracing of the six handkerchiefs, including the blood stained woman's handkerchief, which were in Huntington's pockets, to the Huntington mansion, and his announcement of the belief this fact "clinches" the suicide contention.

In the opinion of those who differ with the county detective, notably Dr. Costello and Medical Examiner Aaron T. Pratt, of Windsor, the handkerchiefs indicate that the student was not alone when he died. The "woman angle" entered the case when it became known a woman's handkerchief, containing bloody brain tissue, had been found among the men's handkerchiefs in the student's clothes.

Miss Schultz said that Huntington's mother spoke of his optimism and of his desire to travel two years after leaving college and before settling down to work. The mother, she said, quoted her son as saying, "A fellow doesn't learn a d——d thing about life in college. I'm going to travel awhile when I get through." Mrs. Huntington's comment on this, according to Miss Schultz, was that a "young man doesn't talk that way when he intends to kill himself."

RUTH HANNA MCCORMICK IN SENATORIAL CONTEST

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 12.—(AP)—Political leaders today predicted one of the warmest senatorial contests in the history of Illinois, following announcement by Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick that she will be a candidate for the upper branch of congress in the 1930 election.

The announcement was contained in a letter last night to Judge William E. Crum, of Springfield, and was interpreted as an answer, by Mrs. McCormick to published reports that she would not attempt to wrest the republican nomination from Senator Charles S. Deneen.

Precinct committeemen in Sangamon county (Springfield) have received communications from Mrs. McCormick enlisting their aid and asking them to submit the names of five republicans in their precincts to form a McCormick organization.

Mrs. McCormick is an astute campaigner, and in the recent elections spoke throughout the state in the interest of her own and Governor Louis Emmerson's campaigns. Political observers at the state capital believe the governor, as well as Senator Deneen's junior colleague, Otis F. Glenn, and State Treasurer Omer N. Custer will support Mrs. McCormick in the primaries.

Senator Deneen has been a prominent figure in Illinois republican circles for many years, and it is said his political alignments are set deep enough to make it difficult to dislodge him from his ticket next spring.

STREAMS OF SOUTHWESTERN MISSOURI FLOOD LOWLANDS

TOPEKA, Kans., May 12.—(AP)—Flood waters which caused at least two deaths and extensive property damage in central Kansas raced across the southeastern portion of the state and northeastern Kansas and western Missouri today, interrupting traffic and communications, and adding to the destruction. The first death from the flood in Oklahoma was reported today.

The body of John L. McGehee, Noble county commissioner, was found in a flood-swollen creek, three miles southeast of Red Rock. He apparently had driven his car into the stream in attempting to cross a bridge which had been washed away.

Streams of southwestern Missouri were overflowing lowlands tonight following heavy rains during the last 24 hours.

Rain fell continuously in that section during the last 24 hours, the precipitation totaling 3.77 inches.

FOUR PRISONERS ESCAPED FROM "BREAK PROOF" JAIL

ELDORADO, Ark., May 12.—(AP)—Four men, three of them alleged members of the Asa "Ace" Pendleton gang, staged the second successful escape from the new $1,000,000 "break-proof" Union county jail here today. They locked the jailer and a trusty guard in a cell and escaped in two automobiles.

Two of them—Claude Burnett and Joe Streiter—who are charged with robbing a Junction City, Ark. bank, participated in the first jail break April 3. They and Owen Edwards, all of whom are alleged to be members of the Pendleton gang, were to face trial tomorrow on charges of robbing the Junction City bank. The fourth prisoner to escape was Carl Bray, held on a minor charge.

FOUND BODY OF MAN HANGING FROM TREE

BRISTOL, Conn., May 12.—(AP)—Responding to a call to fight a forest fire, two men today found the body of Wilford Ponerleau, 27, suspended from the limb of a hickory tree, one half mile from where he lived in a boarding house. No reason was learned for his act which was committed with the use of a belt. He was employed as a roller's helper in the Bristol brass corporation mills.

The flames burned over an area of 60 acres in the East Ridge section destroying hundreds of saplings. The warden and his crew of volunteers battled for three hours before a heavy rain relieved them.

EARLY CHURCH SERVICE TO ACCOMMODATE GOLFERS

CONCORD N. H., May 12.—(AP)—Found, a solution for church going golfers.

A service held at 7.30 a. m., today by the South Congregational church, for men and women who planned to play golf or make automobile trips lated in the day, was attended by 60 persons. The number was twice that of those who usually attend the regular summer Sunday morning service. Rev. Carl B. Bare, the pastor said, The innovation will be continued.

COL. LINDBERGH AND HIS MOTHER VISIT MISS MORROW

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., May 12—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, to the home of his fiancee, Miss Anne Morrow, today.

Wearing a red carnation in honor of mother's day, the colonel and his mother arrived early in the afternoon at the Morrow estate where they were dinner guests.

NEGRO SHOT TO DEATH BY MOB NEAR MACON, MISS.

MACON, Miss., May 12—(AP)—Steve Jenkins, 65, Negro, was shot to death by a mob near here last night immediately after he had stabbed and killed Fred McCrayber, 35, a planter. Officers said McCrayber and Jenkins had disagreed over the terms of a share crop contract.

Army Pursuit Plane Fell At Little Rock, Ark.

Staff Sergeant Johnson Was Killed and Lieutenant Roath Was Injured Seriously.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 12.—(AP)—Staff Sergeant Homer O. Johnson was killed and Lieut. C. K. Roath, was injured seriously in a crash here today of one of the pursuit planes of the third attack squadron of the United States Army Air Corps. The thirty-six planes in the squadron stopped here enroute from Galveston, Tex., to Dayton, Ohio, to participate in the army air maneuvers. The crash occurred soon after the plane had taken off at the national guard airport.

The planes took off in flights of three and the plane which crashed was in the third flight from the last.

Witnesses said that it apparently came too close to one of the others in the flight and Lieutenant Roath attempted to make a loop but was at such low altitude the plane dived to the ground.

Johnson lived about 15 minutes after the accident. Roath was taken to a hospital where it was said his condition was serious.

The planes arrived here shortly after noon. They stopped here for lunch and refueling.

A large crowd at the airport witnessed the accident. The field immediately was cleared of spectators. Photographers were not permitted to take pictures of the plane which was smashed up badly.

MOVEMENT OF SQUADRON OF 20 ARMY AIRPLANES

LAWTON, Okla., May 12—(AP)—A squadron of 20 army airplanes, enroute from Rockwell Field, Calif., to Dayton, Ohio, for air corps maneuvers, left Post Field, Fort Sill, late today for Hat Box Field, Muskogee, Okla. Departure of the planes was delayed by unfavorable weather.

AIR PILOT AND BROTHER KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

LOS ANGELES, May 12—(AP)—Raymond Kettenhofen, 23, an amateur pilot, and his brother Gordon Kettenhofen, 36, were killed in the crash of a borrowed airplane in a windstorm near Compton, a suburb today.

WOMAN KILLED WHILE WALKING DERBY TURNPIKE

WEST HAVEN, May 12.—(AP)—Accidents in this town today caused one death by a hit-and-run driver and serious injuries to two others. Marcella Staats, 55, Bridgeport, was killed early today on the Derby turnpike while she was walking alone. The driver of the machine did not stop and when police, who were notified, arrived they found the woman dead, her body badly mangled.

Frank J. Malone, New Haven, was one of four injured, the others only suffering bruises, when their machines struck another car, the driver of which was arrested, charged with recklessness. Malone suffered a fractured skull and his name is on the dangerlist.

James Corcoran, 70, watchman at the county home in Allentown, was struck by a machine while he was alighting from a trolley. He was taken to the hospital suffering two fractured ribs and possible internal injuries. The operator of the machine was arrested for reckless driving.

CUT HIS OWN THROAT AND JUMPED INTO CONN. RIVER

HANOVER N. H., May 12.—(AP)—A solitary motorist drove his car through a fence on the West Lebanon road near here today, and, crawling from the wreckage, slashed his throat with a jack knife and jumped presumably to his death in the Connecticut river witnesses told police here.

The man was believed to have been William R. Smiley, of Providence R. I. He and his wife had been visiting friends at West Lebanon, Mrs. Smiley told police that her husband had left this morning for a short ride but had not returned. The witnesses to the accident were four motorists from Greenfield, Mass., who said they were driving directly behind the car occupied supposedly by Smiley.

Mrs. Smiley said that she and her husband had planned to drive to Oxford today. They have four children.

BELIEVES THAT STRIKERS SET FIRE TO BARN

ELIZABETHTON Tenn., May 12—(AP)—Entirely divergent theories were advanced today as to the responsibility for a fire that last night destroyed a large barn near the American Bemberg plant.

Dr. Arthur Mothure, president of the Bemberg and American Glanzstoff corporation, whose textile plants were closed April 15 by a strike of 5,000 employes, said it was extremely likely that strikers were responsible for the blaze, the second of the day to be traced to incendiary origin.

William F. Kelly, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, declared persons not in sympathy with the strike were responsible.

PASSENGER PLANE WAS FORCED TO MAKE LANDING

BRIDGEPORT, May 12.—(AP)—The big Ford tri-motored Boston to New York passenger plane owned by the Colonial Airways company, ran into a heavy electrical storm as it was approaching Bridgeport airport this evening and was forced to make a landing. The plane was on its way to New York but passengers on the plane became so frightened at the sight of the large dark clouds and the lightning flashes, that Pilot Whitelaw decided to land at the Bridgeport airport. Passengers completed the trip by train and the plane will continue on its way tomorrow morning.

ARRESTED ON CHARGES OF RECKLESS DRIVING

FAIRFIELD, May 12.—(AP)—Within a few hours after Andrew Currence Negro, of 661 Lafayette street, Bridgeport, was killed when an automobile in which he was riding crashed into a pole early today on the Post road at Mill Plain road, Fairfield, James Emerson, of the same address was arrested on charges of evading responsibility and reckless driving. Emerson is being held in lieu of a $1,000 bond and will be arraigned in the town court tomorrow morning.

Doors Of Des Moines University Closed

Action Follows Strike of Students Because of Ousting of the Entire Faculty.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 12—(AP)—The doors of Des Moines university, Baptist institution were barred today after the student riot of last night which broke up a meeting of the board of trustees and damaged buildings, following the ousting of the entire faculty.

Dismissal of the faculty members and the subsequent disturbance was said to have been the outgrowth of a long standing fundamentalist-modernist at the institution.

Dr. Harry Wayman, president of the school recently refused to discharge a professor against whom charges of modernistic utterances were brought and called a meeting of the board of trustees to consider asking the resignation of the complainants including Dr. T. T. Shields, president of the board.

The board yesterday upheld the complainants, however, and ousted President Wayman and his faculty.

How long the school would remain inactive was undetermined. Dr. Shields, who left last night for Buffalo to attend a meeting of the Baptist Bible Union of North America, said it would be closed indefinitely. The fate of the school is expected to be decided at the meeting. Dr. Shields, accompanied by E. A. Roberts, of Cleveland and E. A. Brownlee, of Toronto, had a police escort to the railway station.

COUPLE WERE CHARGED WITH MORAL TURPITUDE

CHICAGO, May 12—(AP)—Charges of moral turpitude, involving Dr. T. T. Shields, president of the board of trustees of the University of Des Moines, and Mrs. Edith Rebman, secretary, were heard by the trustees at Des Moines last week, the Rev. Isaac Page, of Chicago, a member of the board revealed here tonight.

Dr. Shields, president of the Baptist Bible Union, and one of the most prominent leaders of the church in the United States, is about 60 years old. Miss Rebman is 40.

Both denied the charges, according to Rev. Page, and the trustees indorsed their denial completely.

At the same time the board ousted Dr. Harry Wayman, president of the school and his entire faculty, who were accused of modernistic leanings.

ATTEMPTED TO BURGLARIZE A SAFE IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, May 12—(AP)—Three men, including an employe, attempted to burglarize the safe of F. W. Woolworth's 5 and 10 cent store early today but failed when the night watchman they thought they had securely bound, notified police. The men with a gun and their faces shielded by handkerchiefs, forced Edward L. Allen, 72 year old watchman, to phone the store manager and have him come down to "fix a leak in a pipe."

After complying with the demand Allen was taken to the cellar and bound up with rope. The three men returned up stairs to wait for J. H. Wallace, the manager. In the meantime Allen freed himself and soon summoned aid. With police he encountered Wallace on his way to the store.

Upon entering they found two of the men sitting on a counter with a bundle of rope with which they were going to tie up the manager. The two gave their names at police headquarters as Thomas Meade, 30, employed as floor walker at the store, and Stephen Sawacki, 23.

Sometime later police learned that another man was with Meade and Sawacki and when they returned to the store found Adam Guilette, 23, of Hamden, hiding among boxes. The gun he had threatened Allen with was found hidden among the boxes.

Meade was believed to have instigated the plot to rob the safe. He admitted having made a duplicate of a store key entrusted to him to open the store with one day last week. The three were held under $10,000 bonds each.

FOUR PASSENGERS KILLED IN BUS-TRUCK COLLISION

MONROE, Mich., May 12—(AP)—Four passengers were killed almost instantly, another died from injuries and ten others were in a hospital here as the result of a bus-truck collision five miles south of here today.

The bus was bound from Toledo to Detroit.

The bus, county officials declare, crashed into a truck loaded with automobile tires which was parked along the road while the driver is understood by County Prosecutor McAran, to have been making repairs.

E. D. Waring, 26, of Cleveland, driver of the bus, said that he was blinded by lights from an approaching automobile and did not see the truck until it was too late to avoid the crash.

Both Waring and Godfried Frovert, 30, of Detroit, driver of the truck, were held pending an investigation.

Waring was slightly injured when he was thrown through a window of the bus.

TEMPERANCE ELEMENT IN SWITZERLAND DEFEATED

GENEVA, May 12.—(AP)—Prohibition in the United States has not inspired the Swiss to follow the example. Today the inhabitants of the Swiss confederation delivered a crushing defeat to an initiative bill which was not to establish general prohibition but merely to authorize local option as to whether sale of hard liquors should be permitted.

Everyone of the 24 cantons rejected the measure by an overwhelming majority and the total vote was impressively negative. The initiative, if it had been accepted, would have given cities and towns the right to vote on whether liquors containing a heavy percentage of alcohol should be allowed to be sold in their precincts. Beers and wines would not have been affected.

Temperance organizations had waged a strong campaign for acceptance of the law on the ground that the Swiss people were ruining their health by too great consumption of strong liquor.

NEGRO WAS SHOT DEAD DURING QUARREL IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Conn., May 12—(AP)—Jack Perry, Negro, was shot and killed by a man police believe was Sam Thomas, during a quarrel tonight. The shooting occurred near the Stiles and Reynolds brick yard, where both were employed as laborers.

DEBENTURE PROPOSAL MAY RETARD FARM RELIEF BILL

Bill With the Proposal Will Be Passed by the Senate Today or Tomorrow—Then Will Come the Test Between the Senate and the House Over Their Bills—Constitutional Right of the Senate to Initiate the Bill May Be Discussed in the House.

WASHINGTON, May 12—(AP)—Enactment of farm relief legislation in time for application to this season's crops appeared today to hinge on the approaching contests between the house and senate over the right of the senate to incorporate the controversial export debenture plan in the legislation.

Carrying the export debenture proposal, so strongly opposed by President Hoover, the relief bill will be passed tomorrow or Tuesday by the senate. Then comes the contest between the senate and house over their bills. The house by an overwhelming majority passed a measure two weeks ago which was similar in many respects to the senate's bill, but which made no provision for the debenture system offering a bounty on surplus crops sold in the foreign markets.

House leaders have taken the view that the senate had no right to include the debenture section, on the theory that it is revenue legislation which the constitution stipulates must originate in the house. They have threatened not even to receive the senate's bill on this account, thus forestalling even a conference between the two bodies for a settlement.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, and Chairman McNary of the senate agriculture committee, who has the farm bill in charge have been endeavoring to have the house lay aside the constitutional objections, accept the farm bill and thresh out the difference over the debenture section in conference.

By this procedure they believe the house would be able definitely to disclose its position on the disputed section and in the end work to settle the only important controversy which stands between a final agreement necessary to send a farm measure to President Hoover.

Senator Watson has held a number of conferences with house leaders which have resulted in no agreement. He is still hopeful, however, that the troublesome question will yield to negotiations before the senate takes a final vote on the farm bill.

It is the plan of Chairman McNary to press for a final vote on the measure tomorrow. More than a score of amendments however, still are in the offing and it may transpire that a final vote cannot be reached until Tuesday.

Meanwhile the debenture group in the senate has been watching closely for any signs of considerable support for the debenture proposal in the house where leaders have contended a large majority could be mustered against it. Should the house turn down the debenture plan by a large vote, proponents of the plan in the senate have indicated they would yield, and immediately prepare to tack the plan on the tariff bill.

Representative Garner of Texas, the democratic house leader, has said such a move would have the almost unanimous support of house democrats and might bring in enough middle western republicans to win should the latter have any reason to be dissatisfied with the farm schedules in the tariff measure. To put their proposal in the tariff bill would receive even more support than that accorded the debenture section in the farm bill.

An element of doubt was injected into what the house will do with the senate's farm bill as irrespective of what the leaders decide House rules provide that any single member could demand that the bill be refused. Should the question be thus raised the house might be required to vote on the constitutional question in which case the outcome is held to be highly in doubt.

DR. SCHACHT MADE A HURRIED TRIP TO ESSEN

ESSEN, Germany, May 12—(AP)—Some friends of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht consider his hurried visit here from Paris over the week-end as a stroke of genius in shifting responsibility for Germany's further course on the reparations negotiations to the industrialists of the Rhur valley and the Rhineland.

The purpose of his trip was interpreted as nothing less than an attempt to have directors of the Krupp and Thyssen interests and other captains of industry to agree to accept whatever final concession he may deem essential and unavoidable at parts to prevent disbanding of the experts conference without results.

It was understood that Dr. Schacht, supported by his fellow expert Dr. Voegler, laid before some 20 of the leading industrialists the consequences to industry and business if the discount rate is further raised, which he represented as inevitable if no agreement is reached at Paris.

The results of these conversations will doubtless be reflected in the next move by Dr. Schacht at Paris for it may be taken for granted he now has assurance in advance of support of the leading German industrialists.

REPARATIONS CONFERENCE OPENS FOURTEENTH WEEK

PARIS, May 12—(AP)—Today ushered in the 14th week of the conference of international experts on revision of German reparations and the general opinion in the conference circles was that whatever the outcome it would be the final week.

The conference hinges on two immediate points. The first is whether the main conditions to the proposal of Chairman Owen D. Young will be accepted by the allies. The second, which at present is held in abeyance is whether the allied creditors can agree on a distribution among themselves of the reparations annuities on a smaller scale than each had hoped.

The situation in these two respects will be set forth in a report by Sir Josiah Stamp which will be placed before a plenary session Tuesday. Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German experts, spent the week end conferring with leading industrialists of his country, presumably seeking their support for compromise measures.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN TO ERADICATE TUBERCULOSIS

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—Some of the accomplishments of the first great mobilization of science in a fight against tuberculosis under the National Association are revealed here by Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director of the association.

These results, he says, may have a revolutionary effect upon the methods of attacking disease germs.

Seventeen American institutions have pooled their research brains and facilities in a national campaign to eradicate tuberculosis. Through development of a synthetic fluid in which microbes flourish, a technique has been evloved for discovering by chemical analysis all the substances of which the germs are made—their proteins, fats and sugars and how these are built.

The aim is to isolate the specific poison and then to find an antidote. Whatever is accomplished is expected to throw new light on the other germ diseases that still are uncontrolled.

FOUND IN HOTEL DOORWAY WITH FRACTURED SKULL

GREENWICH, May 12—(AP)—The body of James J. O'Connell, 40, a porter at the Maples, a fashionable hotel here, was found shortly after six o'clock this morning at the entrance of the rear doorway with a fractured skull. The discovery was made by Michael Wentzel, watchman, who reported the death at police headquarters. Medical Examiner John A. Clarke and police authorities began an investigation into the cause of death.

Police later believed O'Connell accidentally fell 20 feet from a fire escape and died instantly.

PULITZER PRIZES IN JOURNALISM AND LETTERS

NEW YORK, May 12—(AP)—The annual pulitzer prizes in journalism and letters were announced today by trustees of Columbia university. The journalism prizes were won by persons or newspapers in Chicago, Norfolk, St. Louis and New York.

In the field of letters Julia Peterkin's "Scarlet Sister Mary" was adjudged the best American novel of the year; Elmer L. Rice's "Street Scene" the original American play best representing the educational value and power of the stage; Fred Albert Shannon's "The Organization and Administration of the Union Army 1861-1865" the best book on the history of the United States; Burton J. Hendrick's "The Earlier Life and Letters of Walter H. Page" the best American biography teaching patriotic and unselfish services to the people; and Stephen Vincent Benet's "John Brown's Body" the best volume of verse by an American. All the awards in letters carry prizes of $1,000 except that for history, which carries a prize of $2,000.

The largest journalism prize of $1,000, for the best example of a reporter's work during the year, is awarded to Paul Y. Anderson of the St. Louis dispatch for work which resulted in revealing the disposition of Liberty Bonds distributed by the Continental Trading company in connection with naval oil leases.

Paul Scott Mowrer of the Chicago Daily News is awarded the $500 prize for the best carrespondence during the year, and Louis Isaac Jaffe of the Norfolk Virginian-pilot the $500 prize for the best editorial, which was entitled "An Unspeakable Act of Savagery" and was one of a series of Lynching.

ARMISTICE HALTS ADVANCE OF ARMIES IN CANTON, CHINA

CANTON, China, May 12—(AP)—The Kwangsi armies which advanced on this rich commercial city from three sides have been bought off. The Cantonese military authorities today announced that an armistice had been arranged and the general looting and confiscation which would have been a consequence of capture seemed to be averted. The panic of the populace, who already had been under fire, was measureably lessened.

Although details of the settlement were not revealed it appeared to be another instance of where silver coin was substituted for lead bullets in Chinese warfare. The Kwangsi leaders virtually dictated the terms for the position their armies occupied made capture of the city a foregone conclusion.

It was understood that the Kwangtung government agrees to pay $570,000 Mexican monthly for an indefinite period, to supply additional military supplies and also a large body of troops for patrol duties subject to the command of the Kwangsi clique.

It also was reported that the Cantonese had agreed to allow the Kwangsi leaders to resume their alleged opium trade down the West river which the Cantonese recently interrupted by confiscating opium shipments passing through the city.

MEMBERS OF THE BYRD EXPOSITION ON RADIO

PITTSBURGH, May 12.—(AP)—The members of the Byrd expedition in the antarctic are getting "distance" on their radio.

After having broadcast its regular week-end program to the explorers in little America, station KDKA of Pittsburgh early today gave Commander Richard E. Byrd and his companions an added treat when station 2-ME, Sydney, Australia, was picked up by KDKA and rebroadcast to the frozen southern tip of the world.

Sydney is only about 3,000 miles from Little America, but 2-ME's program was flashed a distance almost equal to the circumference of the globe before it reached Byrd. The distance around the earth is 25,000 miles. It is 10,000 miles from Sydney to Pittsburgh and approximately 11,000 miles from here to Little America.

LOCAL MAN BURNED WHEN OIL IN SWITCH EXPLODES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 12—Lloyd Loree, an employe at the gas plant of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company and son of Superintendent David Loree of the concern, received painful burns on the face and arms Saturday forenoon when the oil in a switch from which he was removing the cell exploded. He is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital where it was stated that while the burns are painful they are surface injuries and not serious.

Charles J. Koss, Jr., of Ashford took an appeal to the superior court after being fined in the Mansfield town court Friday on charges of reckless driving, defective brakes, having no tail light on the truck he was driving and failure to have a registration certificate in his possession. Justice of the Peace Byron D. Hunkins fined the accused $50 for reckless driving, remitting $25 of this fine; $10 for having defective brakes; five dollars for the tail light offense and one dollar for not having a registration. The total fines plus costs amounted to $35.20. Through Attorney W. A. King as his counsel, Koss pleaded not guilty and took the appeal. The charges were prosecuted by Grand Juror Walter F. Storrs. Koss was the driver of a truck owned by Norman D. Baker of Warrenville which figured in a collision with a coupe driven by M. E. Kelsey, a student at the Connecticut Agricultural college, at Mansfield Four Corners last Tuesday morning. Kelsey with a fellow student and resident of Minnesota, E. Hammerberg, were thrown from their machine and received painful injuries. They were patients at St. Joseph's hospital for a number of days. The accident was investigated by State Policemen Terrence A. Griffin and Emil Castagna of the Stafford Springs barracks.

FUNERALS

Charles J. Hurley

Funeral services for Charles J. Hurley were held in Naugatuck Friday with a requiem high mass in St. Francis' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Father Morrison was the celebrant. Burial was in St. James' cemetery. Several local friends and relatives of the deceased attended.

Warren L. Chapin

Services for Warren L. Chapin were held at the home in Scotland at 11 o'clock Saturday forenoon, Rev. Albert Plumb, pastor of the Scotland Congregational church officiated. The remains were conveyed to Granby, Mass., where burial took place in the afternoon with a committal service at the grave. Arrangements were in charge of the J. T. Lincoln company.

Martin Robertson of Putnam, supervising agent for the state board of education was elected permanent secretary of the eastern Connecticut group of superintendents and supervisors of rural and elementary schools held in the normal school building Friday. Monthly meetings are to be held with a different chairman for each. Members of the group in attendance were: W. E. Parker, Danielson; John C. Chapman, Plainfield; George F. Brick, Stafford Springs; John Clement, Jewett City; Fred S. Camp, Norwich, George H. Shafer and Frederick R. Noble of this city and Agent Robertson. Supervisors Charles M. Larcomb of this city and James F. Connelly of Norwich joined their group at dinner in the Nathan Hale hotel.

Escaping the crushing weight of the locomotive of the 10:17 o'clock passenger train from Boston at the station Saturday forenoon a boy, about ten years of age, save himself and a crowd of spectators a heart-beating thrill. The boy ran across the tracks as the train pulled in at the station platform. The engineer applied his brakes and sounded a warning whistle, this action giving the child about a one yard lead on the big engine. Before the train crew could reach him the boy had scampered pell mell up the street and disappeared. The railroad police at once solicited the assistance of the local department in a campaign to stop the practice of small boys from playing on railroad property.

Considerable damage to apple and pear buds was done by the heavy frosts of the past two mornings according to farmers in this section. In Scotland and Hampton the mercury dropped to 32 degrees at daybreak Saturday morning.

Owing to the pressure of studies the Model and Natchaug schools will not take part in the competition for the prize of five dollars to be awarded for the best essay on the history of the Spanish-American war. Mrs. Minnie Flynn of A. G. Tyler Auxiliary No 14, U. S. W. V., stated that St. Joseph's and St. Mary's parochial schools were the only schools competing this year.

RICHMOND BOY DIES AS RESULT OF GUN WOUND

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 10—Blaine W. Richmond, 14, Westerly grammar school student, accidentally shot by his companion, Thurston Rider, 16 after he had gone home from the Academy-Westerly High baseball game Wednesday last, died Saturday evening at the Margaret Edward Anderson hospital.

At the time of the shooting Rider had gone to the Westerly public dump near Burden's pond and had taken his Stevens 22 long rifle to shoot rats. Laying the gun down it was picked up by Richmond, who was accompanied by his two brothers, Arthur and Elmer and Edward King, the latter putting a cartridge in the gun unknown to the boys, who, in struggling to wrest it from each other caused it to be discharged. The bullet entered Richmond's left side, penetrated his stomach and passing below his heart lodged in his liver. An operation attempted to save the boy's life was unsuccessful. Rider was detained at Westerly police station Wednesday night and on the following day was sent for by Richmond who told him that he knew the shooting was unintentional. Chief of Police Brown and Lieutenant Champlin secured statements from the boys covering the affair before Rider was released. He makes his home on the former Westerly town farm, now leased by Arthur Main, who is superintendent of the town dump.

Blaine W Richmond was born in Hopkinton, R. I., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer L. Richmond, who reside in the house on the edge of Burden's pond. Besides his parents he leaves two younger brothers.

TOWN COUNCIL APPROVES PLANTING OF TREES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I. May 12—Westerly town council in special session Saturday morning unanimously adopted a resolution introduced by Councilman Isaac G. Smith, whereby they placed themselves on record as not being opposed to shade trees along public highways. In fact the council, in contradiction to published statements that they approved the large elm trees being cut down in front of the Westerly post office, when the matter was discussed at the last regular council meeting urge the citizens of the town to plant trees along their property edge bordering highways, for shade and ornamental purposes.

When the resolution was passed as the last business of the morning session they adjourned to the front lawn of the town hall, where they were just in time to see cut down the "Library Elm," so-called.

This elm, which has been the source of much discussion with the widening of Broad street and the narrowing of the Wilcox park sidewalk, was removed under direction of the Westerly highway commissioners. The work was superintended by Engineer A. L. Leon for the highway board and performed by Frank Shinocca, Westerly woodsman, and four helpers. The tree was 78 feet in height and yielded about three cords.

The council president, Horace E Burdick, at the Saturday meeting denied statements that the council had refused to vote bills paid for forest fire fighting, when they were properly reported by Forest Fire Warden Sheffield Green, Fire Chief George E. Egger, who was present at part of the meeting stated that he knew of no refusal by the council to pay such bills. He came before the council in reference to his being attributed as a cause of holding up work of improvements by Westerly highway commission. He has stated that a cost of $1,000 will be incurred by the Westerly fire district in placing its fire alarm signal wires underground at the same time as other wires on Broad street are taken down in the work of laying conduits for light and power wires. It is understood that a conduit of the Westerly Automatic Telephone company, which has been under the highway for several years, will be made available.

For the police committee of the council, Rogers E. Trainer brought up the matter of the placing of overhead traffic beacons on Broad street on the edge of the sidewalk when the present Broad street widening work is completed. Protests have been filed to be taken up at the September term of Washington county superior court by owners of the Welch property, corner Broad and Union streets, the Rhode Island Hotel property and at Saturday Town Clerk E. E. Whipple received a formal protest from the trustees of the First Baptist church, property located between the two named. The police committee are to report back to the next meeting of the council with recommendations for placing new traffic beacons at the junction of Elm and Cross streets, High and Canal streets and Canal and Pleasant streets.

Councilman Fraser of the police committee reported that work of improvements in the detention or women's part of the Westerly police station were being held up by lack of proper light and ventilation there. He was instructed to consult with Custodian Sheriff Fred T Mitchell and State Finance Commissioner Peck for the available funds.

The police committee reported the resignation of John Beattie from the Westerly police department to take effect at once, because of ill health.

Chairman Trainer of the police committee stated that the newly-appointed officer, Charles F. Button, approved by the council at its last regular meeting on May 6th, a former taxi driver will begin his new duties Monday.

Real Estate Matters.

May 8. Lease. Walter S. Price to Spiros Tramis, store and two rear rooms of "Columbia," Bay street, Watch Hill, for five years from Jan. 3, 1929 to 1934.

May 11. Elmer T Brown to Milo M Champlin and wife, Mary R, three acres of land with building and improvements, adjoining lands of Farquhar Smith on the west side of Pond road.

DIED FROM INJURIES IN NEW YORK SUBWAY

Funeral services in Westerly were held for Joseph DeBartolo, 18, whose death from injuries received in New York subway occurred in Brooklyn, N. Y. The services were held Saturday morning at 8:30 at the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Burial was in St. Michael's new cemetery, where the committal service was by Fr. Bruno. The bearers were Anthony De Bartolo, Samuel De Bartolo, Louis De Bernardo, Thomas Fiore, Alphonse Quatromani and James LaPietra.

Admitted to New York Bar.

Westerly relatives and friends of Angelo J Zerbarini learn that he was among the 1600 applicants who successfully passed the New York state examinations for admission to the bar, according to an announcement made by the board of examiners. The formality of admission will be held later. Mr. Zerbarini is a graduate of Westerly high school and of Rhode Island state college, and recently completed a course at Fordham law school. He is in the employ of the New York Telephone company.

Hospital Day at Westerly

Saturday afternoon nearly two hundred visitors were at Westerly hospital in observance of National Hospital day. Visitors were taken through the institution by ushers under the direction of Mrs. Elisha Burdick, president of the hospital aid association, and Mrs. Wells Fowler of the reception committee. During the afternoon 40 Girl Scouts dedicated a maple tree in the front lawn. This tree was the gift of Elihu Chesebrough. A second tree, a blue spruce, also was presented the institution by the aid association, and will be planted later. The Girl Scouts dedicated the tree with the regular Scouts planting ceremony. The Scouts were led by Mrs. Thomas Nichols and Mrs. James McIntosh. The hospital was decorated by a committee headed by Mrs. William D. Hoxie in place of Mrs. Roger E. Trainer, who was ill.

TWO DRIVERS FINED IN STONINGTON TOWN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I. May 12—Henry P. Hammacher, of Mystic, Stonington town court prosecutor, made his first appearance as such in court Saturday, with Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck trying cases. Prosecutor Hammacher succeeds Attorney George R. McKenna of Pawcatuck, whose resignation was accepted last week.

Anthony Joseph, 43, of Groton, was before the court, after arrest by Officer John H. Smith of Groton barracks for driving a motor truck on East Main street, Stonington, without a license, as the result of an investigation of an auto accident near the Mystic river drawbridge, May 9th at 6:15 a. m., when Roland LaMay, stepping off the sidewalk, was struck and injured, with possible fracture of a rib. Dr. Myers was driving his coupe east, off the bridge and as the Joseph truck was swun gby him the accident occurred. The accused pleaded guilty to driving without an operator's license, the prosecutor stating that arrangements had been made for payment of doctor's bills. His license expired March 1st, 1923. He was fined 25 and costs of $11.45.

Herbert Palmer, of Groton Long Point and Cleveland, O., given a court summons by Officer James L. Doggert of Groton barracks was before the court on a reckless driving complaint. The court appearance resulted from an auto collision between a Chevrolet car operated by the defendant and a Ford sedan on May 4th at the junction of Greenmanville avenue and Holmes street, Mystic. Measurements showed the auto within one foot of a house, having left the road a distance of 27 feet, after skidding 72 feet.

Defendant's demurrer was overruled and the accused found guilty and fined $10 and costs of $11.95.

COLCHESTER

FINE WORK OF CHIEF MURRAY CONTINUED BY CHIEF BROWN

At the recent annual meeting of Colchester Fire Co., the following officers were elected: Chief, Harold F. Brown; first assistant, Herman Conrad; 2nd assistant, Charles E. Lyman; secretary, James O'Brien; treasurer, Samuel Freedman. Gilbert J. Murray, who requested that his name be not considered for re-election, has been fire chief for the past three years. Under his direction the local fire company has been greatly improved in personnel and training. During the first year that he was in office he was one of those instrumental in having the new 5-horsepower siren installed at the fire house.

The new fire chief, H. F. Brown, makes the statement that he will earnestly endeavor to keep the fire company and fire fighting equipment in as good condition as in the past. Furthermore he hopes to make other improvements. He expects to call the firemen out for drill work at frequent intervals and will endeavor to have every member know how to operate the fire engine and other apparatus. Chief Brown states that those unable to perform their duty will be replaced by new members who will be of practical value to the company. Several new members were taken in at the last meeting. He has asked the warden and burgesses to make monthly inspections of the fire fighting equipment and the new chief declares that he will do everything possible to cooperate with the borough officials to make the Colchester Fire Co., one of the most efficient organizations in this vicinity.

Mrs. Robert E. Greene has returned from several days' visit with relatives in Westerly R. I.

Mrs. Alex Bashiloff of Hall Hill avenue was taken to a Hartford hospital Friday for treatment. Her little son, John has just returned home from the hospital after a minor operation. Her daughter, Miss Annie is still confined to her bed at home making slow recovery from a serious illness with pneumonia.

Special services with beautiful musical program in observance of Mothers' day were held at the Congregational church Sunday morning.

Several local people went buckey fishing near Giant's Neck, Saturday evening.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believes that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently without griping and harm to the system.

W. B. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 82

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and cramps stomach, bad breath, up fevers and colds.

DANIELSON

RENEWED INTEREST IN LOCAL HOTEL PROJECT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 12—Talk of a new hotel for Danielson is having a spring revival, and it all comes about because J. C. Witter is negotiating at the present time for the transfer of what is known as the Hopkins property, on North Main street, opposite Westcott road, to interest hotel concerns seeking a location for a modern hotel in an advantageous community. Danielson has heard talk of and plans for a new hotel for several seasons. It is conceded that such an establishment is one of the most pressing needs of this place. Danielson has its hotels and they serve the public well, but the demand is for a modern establishment that will attract the tourist trade, which is largely lost to Danielson at present. Mr. Witter has been negotiating during the past week with interests seeking a location for a hotel in a southern New England town. The Hopkins property is ideal in that it is located at the junction of two trunk line highways, and was one of the finest residential estates in Danielson, with a large house, spacious and beautiful grounds and six acres of land, with groves, walks and drives. The property readily would lend itself to one of the finest hotel developments in eastern Connecticut. As a resident here and with his business interests here Mr. Witter is interested as much in giving Danielson modern hotel facilities, as a community benefit, as in any other way. At the present time Mr. Witter is in communication with a member of a large hotel association about building a new hotel here. He also has conferred, at the week end with S. C. Wood, in charge of property developments near Westerly and Mystic about developments here. Talk of a new hotel has intrigued the people in the past. It still does so, and it is possible that Danielson's achievement of that ambition is not so far away.

In addition to the Mother's day features of the service at the Baptist church this morning there was the special recognition service during which the church received the beautiful silk United States flag that is the gift of the State Department of Connecticut, Woman's Relief corps to the church. For years it has been the custom of the state W. R. C. organization to present such a flag to the church in which the annual department convention is held. This year, and just a few days ago, the convention was held in the First Baptist church in New London. As that church has both a United States flag and a Christian flag and as Miss Lillian E. Bailey of Danielson, W. R. C. state department commander the past year, is a resident of Danielson, she was invited to suggest to what church or organization a flag should be presented by the department, and Miss Bailey named the Baptist church of Danielson.

This morning, in connection with the recognition service, was asked to say a few words relative to the Woman's Relief corps, its objectives and accomplishments, and this Miss Bailey did in a manner to impress those who heard her with the fact that this great organization of women, with upwards of 200,000 members, has done many things in a noble manner about which the general public has known little or nothing. Since its organization in Denver in 1883, it has spent in excess of $6,500,000 in relief work. In addition to this it has brought cheer and substantial aid to many veterans of the wars in which the nation has engaged. It has done this for the veterans of various wars, and not alone for veterans of the Civil war. One of its special activities has been in National Victory week, and Connecticut members are particularly interested in the inmates of the United States hospital at Rutland. In patriotic work alone the W. R. C. has expended $600,000, and, first and last, since its organization it has made presentations of nearly 30,000 United States flags, one of which is now in the Baptist church here.

This afternoon at one o'clock at A. F. Wood's funeral home on Mechanic street funeral services for Mrs. Nettie E. Carmen, wife of Frederick Carmen, resident in the Mashentuck section of the town, were conducted by Rev. A. E. Gallup, pastor of the Nazarene church. During the service Mrs. Leon Brown and Mrs. Kent A. Darble sang Jesus Cares, and Rock of Ages. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were A. D. Ginson, Edward Max, Willis Ware and Duke Patron.

It was stated today that the Memorial day observance in Danielson will be practically along the lines of other years. The procession is to form at the G. A. R.-W. R. C. hall in the Keystone building and proceed to the Orpheum theatre, where formal exercises are to be held Following these exercises the procession will be formed again and will proceed to the soldiers' monument on Davis park, where the usual exercises are to be held. From that point the procession will move up North Main street and through North street to Westfield cemetery, where the graves of the honored dead will be decorated, and then to St. James' cemetery, where similar honors will be paid the honored dead. The procession will proceed through Mechanic street to the hall and be disbanded.

This afternoon the funeral of U. S. Jessup was held from his home in Killingly Center, with funeral services at the Church of the Nazarene on Academy street at 2 o'clock, Rev. A. E. Gallup conducted the service. During the service the ladies choir of the church composed of Mrs. Kent A. Darble, Mrs. Leon Brown, Mrs. George Miner and Mrs. Julian Rainville, sang I Know My Redeemer Liveth, and Going Down the Valley. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were George Miner, Henry Reynolds, Kent A. Darble, Percy Hammond, Arthur Edwards and Dorine Edwards. A. F. Wood had charge of the funeral arrangements.

This morning's excursion over the New Haven road and with an opportunity for Danielson people to go to New York and back for a day seemed to old timers like a revival of the excursions out of this territory of a generation ago.

These excursions of other days afforded, from time to time, every summer season a chance to go to Boston and back for $1.50 with a coupon on the tickets good for steamer transportation to Nantasket beach, or, as an option, to a big league baseball game. That these excursions were well patronized, goes without saying. Then there was the daily excursion, on a special train, to Watch Hill or Block Island, and, on special occasions, to Mystic Island, no longer a public summer resort. Among those who left here for New York this morning on the first excursion in years out of Danielson over the New Haven road were a few who enjoyed the excursions of long ago, and welcome the prospective return of them.

Danielson never has been troubled a great deal with false alarms for fire, but such an alarm came in last week and serves to remind those who are silly enough to pull in a fire alarm box just to see the apparatus make a run are assuming the risk of a heavy penalty if they should be detected. In uncovering persons who pull in false alarms persons who live near fire alarm boxes can be of great aid in watching youngsters or youths who loiter about them, for usually the false alarms are pulled in by comparatively young persons, so old-time firemen say.

Max Bretschneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arndt Bretschneider of Mechanic street, is in Chicago at present. He is in the engineering department of one of the great western railroads and ordinarily is stationed at the shops in Horton, Kan., but for some time past has been making locomotive tests in Illinois, and is now in Chicago figuring out the results of these activities.

About 70 persons from Danielson and its immediate vicinity boarded an excursion train for New York at 8.35 this morning, availing themselves of the exceptionally low fare to the big town. Many of those who went from Danielson had in mind seeing the baseball game between the Giants and the Chicago Cubs.

It is a matter of community pride that Danielson easily topped all other communities in this area in turning in revenue for the Week for the Blind that closed in the town hall last evening. The purchasing here of articles made by the blind was in very liberal degree.

Wednesday, May 15. Please do not forget the date if you owe taxes to the town. It is the last day to pay without paying interest charges.—adv.

Miss Anna Lajeunese of the West Side remains as a patient at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic, where she has been seriously ill for a number of weeks.

Battalions of fishermen are making an onslaught on the pout in the reservoirs about East Killingly. It is not unusual these May evenings to see 50 people fishing at various points of vantage.

Night Officer Laird Winchell will be in Norwich Monday to appear as a witness at a hearing having to do with the restoration of an automobile operator's license to a man arrested here a few months ago.

Mrs. Thomas Monohan and son James, of Norwich, have been visitors here with Miss Alice Monohan.

An indication of what automobile traffic is to be on pleasant Sundays for the remainder of the spring and through the summer and fall season was the parade of machines over trunk line highways radiating from Danielson.

Mrs. Joseph Natorski and daughter Stephanie, were visitors with friends in New York today.

Chimney swallows have arrived at one of their favorite haunts again—the tall stack in the yard of the Kennedy corporation—where they have arrived for the last three years on exactly the same date in early May. It is interesting to watch them at dusk as they circle about the top of the stack and, one by one, drop into its depths to spend the night.

Francis McDonal and James Moran were among those from Danielson who were in New York today.

Miss Mary Kelley, who has been ill the past week, has recovered.

PUTNAM

BREAKS ANKLE AS HE IS BEING ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 12—Thomas Blake of this city is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital today suffering from a compound fracture of the ankle, sustained when he slipped on a staircase in a tenement house in the Manhasset village Saturday evening following his arrest by Putnam police.

A complaint from a tenant in the village was received by the police asking them to arrest three men who were alleged to be intoxicated and were causing a disturbance.

Sergt. George Liard, Patrolman Durand and Special Officer Benoit responded to the complaint and upon their arrival in the village found the three men, placing them under arrest and charging them with drunkenness. As Blake was descending the staircase, which was poorly illuminated, his condition at the time caused him to slip and fall, his entire weight pressing against his cramped ankle. When the officers helped the man to his feet he cried in agony and an examination revealed the fracture of the ankle. Blake was taken to the Day Kimball hospital where the broken bones were reset. According to information from the hospital this afternoon the nature of the fracture was severe and it will be several days before he will be able leave the institution.

Blake's companions were taken to the station house and were booked for intoxication and will be arraigned in city court Monday morning.

Saturday evening brought the Week for the Blind to a successful close, socially and financially. The goal of $2,000 originally set to be subscribed from the sale of articles made by the blind persons was not reached but the final account of proceeds indicated that the sought after sum was not far from being realized. Stetson K. Ryan, secretary of the state board of education of the blind in behalf of his organization and coworkers was highly elated over the fact today and expressed his sincere appreciation for the interest shown by the people of Putnam and Danielson during the week.

Charles Van Brunt Cushman, wealthy Pomfret horseman and owner of the far-famed Eastland Farms, the richest agricultural spot in the county was host to several hundred horse and sheep lovers on Saturday on the occasion of the annual meeting of the Connecticut Sheep Breeders' association, held at his beautiful estate.

The feature of the day was the sheep shearing contests in which many sheep breeders participated. An exhibition by the Abington Boys' Sheep club was highly enjoyed. The Cushman cup was awarded by Mr. Cushman to the boy who presented the best individual exhibit. The morning programme was brought to a close with a luncheon at noon time. The afternoon programme was devoted to talks on sheep breeding, raising and marketing. Foremost among the group of speakers present were J. N. Hartzell of the National Livestock and Meat board of Chicago, who came to Pomfret to address the gathering, W. B. Connell of State College, Pennsylvania and DeWitt Wing, editor of "Rural New Yorker". A prize flock of sheep from Mr. Cushman's barns was released and the gathering thrilled as a group of shepherd dogs under the direction of Sam Stoddard, carefully rounded the bleating lambs back into flock formation and safely escorted them to their pens.

The "Hunt Team" the highest prized blood of the Cushman stables shown a few weeks ago in Madison Square garden at the horse show were exhibited by Mr. Cushman. The crowd was delighted at the showing and praised the host for his hospitality.

Between the programme numbers a unique entertainment was had as the highland melodies of old Scotland rang out from the bagpipes played by a Kilties band. This year's programme far surpassed the exhibitions held at the beautiful Eastlands in former years and the success of the meeting is due entirely to the efforts of Mr. Cushman.

Another successful undertaking on the Putnam high school social calendar was held Friday evening when the dramatic club of the class of 1931 presented two comedy dramas, "Miss Molly" and "Rooms to Let" to a capacity audience. The roles were well assumed by the student players and both plays were enjoyed by the patrons. Miss Marjorie McGillicuddy and Miss Belinda Snow, sophomore teachers coached the plays. John J. Kelly and Harry E. Wheaton, business managers of the enterprise, intimated that the work of the class was a huge financial success and proceeds will be used to defray expenses of next year's social event, the Junior promenade.

A dangerous brush fire that swept over several acres of land in the Country club district on Saturday was the result of a week's dry spell. A four stroke alarm brought the members of the No. 1 hose company of the central fire station to the burning area south of the city to combat the sweeping flames. Deputy Chief Alphonse Dumas directed the combination fireman and volunteer forces, battling for nearly four hours before the fire was finally stamped out.

Several aliens made application at superior court offices on Saturday and were favored with the first and second naturalization papers. The session of naturalization was conducted by Miss Marjorie C. Bradford, assistant clerk of courts. The names of several Putnam men and women are entered upon the trial list of naturalization hearings to be held Monday in Willimantic. Applicants for final citizenship papers together with their witnesses will leave tomorrow morning for the thread city, Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin will preside at the hearing.

"Mother, the Greatest Gift of God" was a phrase quoted by every clergyman at services in every church in the city this morning in the observance of the day set aside to unfold honor to these venerable women. Masses at St. Mary's church this morning celebrated by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor and Rev. Ernest J. Bellerose, assistant, were done in honor of all mothers and sermons preached in all of the Protestant churches were woven about the most beautiful creature in the world—a mother.

Banks of flowers and garlands of carnations, both white and crimson bedecked altars and adorned sanctuaries of the city churches for the Mother's day services this morning. Light hearted lads and lasses on their way to church proudly clung to the arms of an equally proud woman between them, while here and there a white carnation, the emblem of sorrow on this day of days, was seen affixed to the outer garments of those boys and girls, who could pay but a silent tribute to the memory of a mother.

A break in the fire alarm system, caused when two wires made a contact, was responsible for the mysterious one stroke alarm of Friday evening, a few minutes after twelve o'clock. Supt. of Fire Alarm C. T. Thayer endeavored to locate the origin of the mysterious stroke, but his efforts proved futile.

Capacity houses at three showings of the first talking motion picture ever screened in this city greeted the management at the Bradley theatre today. Early tonight crowds stormed the Bradley theatre almost a half hour before the doors were opened.

A three day retreat for the Italian element of St. Mary's parish was opened at all the masses today. A Franciscan missionary priest, a veteran of the World war preached the sermons this morning and will direct the services of the short mission.

Mrs. Lillian Selig of Providence street died early this morning at the Day Kimball hospital following a prolonged period of illness. Mrs Selig was a native of Webster but had lived in Putnam for many years and was widely known here. She was the widow of Henry Selig, Putnam plumbing contractor, who died about three years ago. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Charles Lamon of this city and by two grandchildren.

Putnam police last evening were assisting the police of Webster in an attempt to apprehend four young highwaymen who robbed a Dudley resident of $28 early Saturday evening and escaped in a Connecticut registered car. Police were handicapped in their venture since only a slight description was furnished the authorities by the fleeced victim.

Extensive preparations are being made by the boys' work committee of the Putnam Rotary club and the combined faculties of Putnam schools and St. Mary's parochial school for the celebration of Loyalty day on Wednesday. The day will be marked by a gigantic juvenile undertaking, a parade of horrors, the first seen in Putnam in many years. Every child in the city is asked to cooperate by being present and bringing with him any article used by him in play.

Gilbert F. Perry of Worcester spent the week end at the home of his parents in this city.

WEDDING.

Cassells- Kristek.

Miss Helen Kristek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emerick Kristek of North Grosvenordale became the bride of Robert Cassells, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cassells, also of North Grosvenordale at the Methodist Episcopal church Saturday evening. Tall urns filled with mixed spring flowers adorned the chancel of the church. The Rev. William Geissler officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white satin combined with tulle and trimmed with duchesse lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The couple were attended by Miss Pauline Kristek, as maid of honor, Miss Viola Krestek as bridesmaid, Wilfred Lindberson and David Swanson as best man.

The church organist, Reynold Peterson, played a short recital preceding the processional. Following the ceremony a reception was tendered the couple at Webster Lake hotel. Mr and Mrs. Cassells left last evening for a wedding trip into northern New England.

Mrs. Mabel Capshaw of Manchester spent the week end with her mother, Mrs. Fred Duerr.

Miss Etta Babcock of East Greenwich was a recent guest of her cousin, Mrs. Abbie Clarke.

Mrs. Emma Robinson of Windham was a caller on Mrs. Fred Race Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Race entertained their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Duerr, at dinner, Thursday.

JEWETT CITY

SUNDAY NIGHT'S STORM AFFECTS LIGHTS BRIEFLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 12—Mother's day weather was ideal until 6.30 p. m. when a thunder shower coming up quickly from the west, furnished the usual Sunday downpour. Early in the disturbance a sharp discharge kicked out the big circuit breakers at the power station, resulting in a few minutes of darkness.

FUNERAL

Miss Lucienne Despres

Funeral services for Miss Lucienne Despres were held at St. Mary's church Saturday morning, Rev. Nicholas Caron was celebrant of the solemn requiem mass. Rev. John D. Carey of Voluntown was deacon and Rev. John J. McCabe, pastor of the church, was sub-deacon. Members of Court Rouleau, No. 136, Franco-American Foresters, sent a delegation to the funeral and the chaplain carried out the ritual of the order at the home on Carely avenue. The floral pieces were beautiful. At the church the funeral march was played by Mrs. Noel Garand. Ephrem Sylvester sang at the offertory, Jesu, Salvatore Mundi. The waiting hymn, Au-Ceil, Au Revoir, was sung by Mrs. Agles Sarazen. The bearers were Henry and Lionel Sylvester, Archie and Reo Despres, Dollard Prouty and Charles Maynard. The deputation from the Franco-American Foresters included Yvonne and Cecile Sylvester, Antoinette Poulin, Aurove Cadieux, Eva Brisson, Grecia Mecteau. Father Caron read the committal service at the grave in St. Mary's cemetery, Lisbon. Relatives and friends were present from Meriden, Norwich, Baltic and Taftville. Hourigan Bros. were the funeral directors in charge.

Frost on Memorial Day

The recent two unseasonably cold nights recalled a farming incident in 1883. The late Moses Morse, was not a man who believed in too early planting. That spring he bought a quantity of a new and rare early potatoes. Planting early, he had on May 30 a field, over an acre in extent, of potatoes nearly ready to blossom. That night there came a killing frost. His entire promising crop was ruined.

ACTION IS NEEDED.

From the wide difference of opinion which has been displayed between the house and the senate thus far during the special session of congress there is no telling what is going to happen to the reapportionment and census legislation so much desired at this session.

The country feels, and congress cannot fail to recognize it, that reapportionment has been delayed too long. Under the constitutional provisions it should have been carried out years ago. If the defiance of that requirement is permitted to go on, there is no telling when it will be done.

Differences in the last congress held up the bill when it got to the senate. The Fenn bill has been re-introduced, and in the senate there is a measure along similar lines, but carrying some modifications. This has been put forth in the belief that it will overcome some of the opposition that has been manifested toward the house bill. If, however, it is impossible to get congress to the point of acting upon the legislation at this session, little time is going to be allowed for the preparations that are necessary.

In the house, the next census would be started in May of next year. According to the senate plan it would be started in November of this year. On this, as well as on other points, there ought to be no such puerile tactics used as have been and are being employed. It is time that the two houses should get together and recognize the need of this legislation.

If there are states which are going to lose representation, they should understand the injustice of claiming representation to which they are not entitled, and at the same time appreciate the fact that other states are actually entitled to more than they are receiving.

It is a discredit that reapportionment has not been accomplished on the basis of the last census, and the situation grows worse when there appears to be a disposition to put every possible obstacle in the way of a constitutional requirement for years to come.

OLD IRONSIDES.

When the suggestion was offered that the restoration of Old Ironsides should be accomplished by funds contributed by the public, there was little thought that any such time would be required to get the necessary money. It was looked upon as an opportunity for rendering a patriotic service in which everyone would be eager to participate. The famous old craft has long been pointed to with pride, as an example of what could be expected from the American navy. Its record is a glorious one, and there is good reason for seeking to preserve it.

Many dollars have gone towards the restoration of the Constitution on other occasions. Because of that there is now an opportunity for further preservation, and while conditions now call for extensive work, it is none the less desirable.

It was a fine response that was made by the school children of the country through their small contributions, but the amount obtained in that manner had fallen far short of requirements. From other sources much still has been obtained, but we are told that, in spite of the appeals made during the last two years, there is still lacking about $200,000 in order to complete the job.

There isn't any question but what this will be raised, but the surprise rests in the fact that it is taking so much time to gather in the shekels. We pride ourselves on our patriotism, we point with great satisfaction to the defenders of the country during the early days, and we cannot say too much about the service which the Constitution rendered during those early days.

It is indeed unusual that we should have that frigate intact today, but having it, we should be more than anxious to participate in its preservation, not solely as a ship that can be seen as in a glass case, but one that can, when the repairs have been completed, be sailed from port to port and exhibited to the people of this country, in whose behalf it played such a conspicuous and vital part. It ought to require but a short time to raise the remaining $200,000.

GARBAGE DISPOSAL.

New Jersey has tried for a long time, through reasonable appeals, to get New York to refrain from the practice of dumping its garbage at sea, only to have it come floating back onto the New Jersey beaches and shores. It doesn't like the idea of having the big city establish dumping grounds in that manner. There have been suggestions to the effect that New York's garbage and refuse be loaded on cars and sent over to New Jersey to fill up some of its swamp land, with the idea of creating manufacturing sights, but that does not involve the shore line.

While Jersey has succeeded in causing much talk about this situation, it has not been able to secure the relief that it has sought. Its latest move is to go to the supreme court for permission to bring suit against the city of New York, in order to obtain the prevention it seeks, and this move is going to be watched with interest.

New Jersey isn't the only sufferer from this floating garbage. There are Long Island beaches which have experienced similar results, and as might be expected, they do not like it.

It is a big problem in New York to take care of its garbage. Much of it has to be handled, and the idea of carrying it to sea and dumping it is the easiest way out of a difficult situation. All would be well if that which is dumped, would go to the bottom and remain there. There seems to be no immediate likelihood that such dumping will cause a troublesome shoal. But there is too much of it which refuses to sink, and when the wind is in the right direction, it means a continuous stream of garbage rolling up on the beaches for a distance of 50 miles.

We cannot imagine that New York would be in any different frame of mind from New Jersey, if the latter was creating as big a nuisance for New York shores. There were the days when New York maintained incinerators for garbage disposal. They likewise raised an objection, chiefly from New York, and it was not long before they were abandoned. That they might be maintained at some other point successfully is a possibility.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT.

Reference was made a few days ago by the Connecticut chamber of commerce, to the fact that there was a gain of 37 industries in 1928 over the number in the state the year before. At the same time attention was called to the fact that this was more than double the gain during 1927.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that the city of Toledo has been making a similar survey with the result that that city alone reports a gain of 44 industries in the past year, representing thus far a capital investment of $7,000,000, and an addition of 2300 to the payrolls of that city.

In addition to that, many long established industries have expanded and swelled the industrial growth of that city. Toledo has thus added seven more industries than the whole state of Connecticut has gained during the past year, and yet this has been a manufacturing state much longer than Ohio.

Toledo has good reason for placing much value on its industrial development. That it is alive to its possibility is amply indicated. It is not only able to set forth its particular advantages, but it is able to put them to use. It is growing by encouraging those industries which it has to expand, by getting new ones started, and by attracting those which see a better chance in that locality. In recognition of the industrial gain each year, it gives a dinner to the heads of all the new factories, those in their infancy, those not yet at capacity production and those fully developed. Toledo apparently puts due stress upon keeping and encouraging industry as well as getting it.

OUR EXPENSIVE PESTS.

While peace is a desirable thing, it is impossible to sit idly by and witness the destruction of crops by various pests at the rate of $2,000,000,000 a year.

According to the research bureau of the department of agriculture insect pests are responsible for the destruction of 10 per cent. of the crops every year. That means a huge loss without any compensation and should place sufficient emphasis upon the need of combatting such destroyers to make a better showing.

There is too often the disposition to let the other fellow do the fighting. It is easy for one fellow to maintain that such pests really do no harm in his small area, but he overlooks the fact that when he neglects to do his part in stamping them out he tolerates a breeding place or a refuge for those pests which are bound to prey upon the crops of his neighbors, where they do great damage.

There is hardly a time when a move is made for the fighting of a new pest but what it is applauded. Yet, in spite of the damage done and threatened by a pest, there are always many who object to the measures that are necessary to fight it. It may temporarily bother them in the handling of crops but it would be small compared to the harm that would result from unrestricted shipping over a wide territory.

Fighting pests must be carried on thoroughly, promptly and generally. It is not a job for Tom to do alone while Dick and Harry sit by and watch or hinder. Many hands make light work and when there is effective cooperation, the best results can be expected from the struggle. Even under the best efforts at control or eradication, there will continue to be too many of such pests. Like the weeds they are a constant problem.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A baked potato should be eaten the minute it is done.

If parsley is washed with hot water it will be easier to chop.

Wait until the roast browns well before adding any water.

Baked apples stuffed with chopped dates and nuts are delicious for dessert for luncheon.

A sharp knife is essential to the carver, no matter how tender the roast.

It pays to put winter clothes away clean. A grease spot on woolen clothing makes a tasty meal for a moth.

If the buttonhook has been mislaid, shoes may be easily buttoned with a closed safety-pin.

Rub a chicken well inside with a lemon cut in halves before putting it on to cook. This will make the meat white, tender and juicy.

A teaspoon of fine tapioca scattered over the lower crust of a fruit pie will prevent juices running out.

To prevent gowns slipping from wooden coat-hangers, cover the hangers with velvet.

Overcooking destroys the color in vegetables.

To prevent the plaster from chipping when driving a nail, heat the nail and it will go through smoothly.

Pear juice left over from canned pears is an excellent beverage for the year-old child.

Steaming is a good way to cook vegetables, as it reduces the loss of vitamines and minerals and keeps the vegetables whole. Several vegetables may be steamed at the same time.

Very young chickens may be dipped in thin batter and fried in deep fat.

To keep linoleum in good condition, rub it with linseed oil once or twice a year, during the spring and fall housecleaning.

KITCHEN SINK

What is the proper height of a kitchen sink? This depends upon the height of the individual woman. A table of the proper height of working surfaces according to the height of the individual woman has been compiled. This provides that a woman 4 feet 10 inches tall should have working surfaces 27 inches high, one 4 feet 11 inches 27 and 1-2 inches, etc. The height of the working surface is increased half an inch for each additional inch in the worker's height.

CHINA WON'T NICK

A piece of rubber tubing slipped over the sing faucets prevents glass and china becoming nicked when being washed.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Omit spices from the child's diet. They have no food value and irritate the lining of his stomach.

Cold feet are caused by poor circulation. Foot and ankle exercises will stimulate the circulation, also walking. A three or four mile walk a day will correct the trouble.

If you use your eyes constantly, you should practice an eye rest several times during the morning and afternoon. Go to the window and look out toward the horizon for a minute or two.

Bunions are the result of great pressure and friction on the joint, caused by short shoes or stockings. The joint should be relieved of all pressure. If possible, a loose slipper should be worn to allow the toes to spread, then take a piece of adhesive plaster and bandage the great toe, bringing it into its natural position.

PLANNING THE LINEN CLOSET

To the fastidious housekeeper a well ordered linen closet is to be viewed with as much pride as her garment closet. If room and space permit, it is a far more convenient way of keeping one's linen than in any chest or drawer. The ideal closet should have at the bottom two deep, cedar-lined drawers for blankets and quilts. Lacking those, one may slip in a small cedar-lined chest, which will serve the same purpose.

Above the drawers or chest should be shelves which will hold the various piles of household linen, placed acording to their use. Here also is an ideal spot to indulge one's decorative whims and fancies, providing, of course, they are consistent with the practical, for color and the little accessories will enhance the charm of the neat piles of linen. Quilted pads of flowered material or sprigged calicoes may cover the shelves and are easily made at home. Matching covers and holders which fold around the piles of clean linen may be made in various sizes for the general linen. Broad, flat boxes, which come in nests of three, are ideal for keeping one's treasured pieces from dust and general soil.

ODOR OF FISH OR ONIONS

When fish or onions have been cooked, the taste and odor can be removed easily from the vessel by scouring with powder and vinegar. Add a little vinegar to the hot suds used when washing dishes after a fish dinner. It is claimed, says Christian Science Monitor, that if a little vinegar is kept boiling on the stove when onions are being boiled there will be no disagreeable odors through the house.

TEAKETTLE

It is easy to burn one's fingers when refilling a steaming teakeettle. Place a small funnel in the spout and pour in the water through this without raising the lid, and you are perfectly safe.

POLISHING

Use but little wax and let the polishing machine or vacuum cleaner attachment do plenty of polishing—as a little wax and lots of buffing produces a better result than lots of wax and little buffing.

DICTATES OF FASHION

A blue-green chiffon afternoon frock has a large circular cape cut like a bolero in front and fitting the shoulders like a raglan coat.

Oddly intriguing are square wooden beads in natural color, with rondels of color between. Others are painted in gay colors.

A huge hat is made of horsehair, in navy blue, and trimmed with a binding of narrow blue velevet, with velvet ribbon around the crown ending in loops on either side.

Sleeves grow more complicated and increase their number in the long-sleeved category. A few gathers appear at the top of sleeves once in a while now.

This season's heavy investment in chiffon for day and evening dresses has had a most apparent influence on lingerie fashion. Glove silk is shown in a chiffon weight and a decorous flesh color.

Unique in the pleated tier skirt, lingerie touches at collar and cuffs, and shirring at the waist are imports from this couturier shown for daytime wear, developed in crepes, preferably printed.

A delightful afternoon frock is made of soft navy blue lace over the same color. It is a material that is extremely becoming to many women, as it has a tendency to make the skin very fair and bring out other hidden points of beauty.

A bathing suit which is sure to be a favorite upon southern beaches has smart little shorts and a top of contrasting color that is cut in a deep U in the back. Bias folds of the material form the trimming and end in smart little bows which are stitched down.

Reminiscent of other days, yet extremely modern, is a frock of flowered silk, which has much strong blue in the pattern. The dress is made with a square neck, and has a very long, full skirt, which is draped at the sides old panniers.

NEW SILKS

Many of the new silks strongly feature brown, orange and cream as their color combination. Another silk, which is used in matching scarf and envelope bag, has a brown background and small motifs of cream and black scattered closely over the surface.

SMART SWEATER SUIT

A decidedly smart little sweater suit for either town or country wear consists of a bright blue pleated skirt, with sweater and cardigan to match. The cardigan has a narrow band of gray krimmer around the neck and down the two fronts, which adds immensely to the becomingness of the costume.

MANY COLLARS

Changing one's neckline changes one's appearance so very much that it is of real interest this spring for women to note that a single type of frock can have as many as 12 different collars. Russian, Prince of Wales, revised scarfs, sailor, bowknot, kerchief, Peter Pan, sports shirt and batteau are some of the more popular collars.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A handful of borax in the washboiler will whiten the clothes.

A light bluing in the rinse water after laundering white silk underwear will keep them a snowy white and never give them a chance to yellow.

When washing a dark dress in a cleaning fluid, baste around the edge of any particular stain, using white thread. In this way all soiled parts will be given attention which otherwise might be difficult to detect when wet.

The insides of leather shoes frequently stain milady's white silk stockings. These stains may be removed by dipping the stained parts in a solution of one-half ounce of oxalic acid and one pint of water. Rinse thoroughly after the stains are gone, as the acid might burn the material if left in it.

WHEN USING GLASS BAKING DISHES

Do not handle glass dishes with a wet or damp cloth.

Handle dishes carefully and avoid hitting them against each other.

Never cool a hot dish quickly over a flame.

Never cool a hot dish quickly.

When the baked food is done, remove from the oven and place on the stove for several minutes before serving or storing in the pantry.

Never place a hot dish on a wet or cold table, as it is liable to crack.

To wash cold glass dishes soak in cold or slightly warmed water, never in boiling or iced water.

FLATTERY LINES

Animated hemlines are flattering to the legs and should be worn by every woman whose legs are not models of beauty. Even one wide pleat helps a little, a circular skirt is better, the pleated all-around skirt is best of all. This means more money for pressing. But it is worth it for those with legs too thin, too fat or to muscular. The straight definite hemline of a coat emphasizes the defects in leg contours. An inch or two of soft lively skirt below the coat is better.

RUGS

A strip of oilcloth sewn along the underside of each end of the small rug will prevent its slipping on the hardwood floors and thus eliminate accidents.

CRACKERS

Crackers that have lost their freshness and flavor should be spread out to the rays of the sun. When they have thoroughly baked and dried in the bright sunshine, they will taste like fresh crackers.

NEW USE FOR COPPER

Truly astonishing is the new jewelry that is made of copper in the modernistic manner. Necklaces, which end in curious bowknots, are matched by shoe buckles, while other designs show angular pendants, which are repeated in the buckles as well.

CONCERNING WOMEN

More than 8,500,000 women are gainfully employed in the United States.

Young women in Japan are rapidly taking the place of men as elevator operators, as well as in many other positions conencted with business and industrial advancement.

The Saskatchewan Egg and Poultry Products, Ltd., doing a gross annual business of approximately $600,000, is controlled by women.

Miss Anna A. Tulley of Baltimore is one of the 30 new lawyers admitted recently to the practice of law in Maryland by the court of appeals.

To show that she is married, the Tonkinese bride of Indo-China wears a large and ponderous bonnet which surmounts her forehead and dangles down in front.

BIRD'S BATH

A few drops of rose or cologne water in birdie's bathtub will keep him from picking his feathers and skin after his wetting.

CORNED BEEF

Corned Beef will be improved if boiled in water containing one onion, a bit of ginger, a few cloves and one bay leaf.

RECIPES

Almond Apples: Small tart apples, 6; blanched almonds, 60; French dressing, 1 cup; horseradish dressing, 1 cup; lettuce leaves, 6. Serves six portions.

Peel and core apples. Cover with French dressing and let stand two hours. Drain. Blanch almonds by dipping them into boiling water about three minutes. Drain and slip off brown skins. Stick 10 almonds into the sides of each apple. Fill centers with horseradish dressing and serve on lettuce.

Chocolate Sandwich: Make a hot fudge by cooking together two cups of granulated sugar, one-half a cup of cream, two tablespoons of cocoa and a pinch of salt. Fold in one-half a cup of marshmallow whip and spread while hot on very thin slices of hot buttered toast. Serve warm. The combination is very pleasant with an iced drink.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Water Board Contest

Mr. Editor: We are on the eve of another city election and are trying to select men worthy of representing all the people. The republicans have a candidate who has given his unselfish attention to serve the community in matters pertaining to the water board, and who is again interested enough to serve in that capacity.

Mr. Mitchell should not be blamed for the happenings of last summer any more than the two members of his party who would not agree to act with him, nor any more than the powers who like to say "You do this," or "You do that."

It takes a he man to have the courage to stand by his guns, take his bumps, and come up smiling. The rank and file are, and should be, with Mr. Mitchell.

A TAXPAYER.

Norwich, May 12, 1929.

Attention Republicans

Mr. Editor: Dame Rumor has it that there is to be a contest in the caucus tonight between Mr. Mitchell and Major Hagberg. If reports are true Mr. Mitchell is looking for democratic support in the caucus and it is to be expected that there will be democrats who will come to that caucus for the sole purpose of voting for him because he is the man who by his vote has succeeded in having the two democrats, Mr. Callahan and Mr. Leahy, hold office during the past year. And why should he not look to the democrats for support?

The republican party went into power by the will of the people to have full control of the administratio—but the people's will was thwarted by the actions of Mr. Mitchell. He has a colossal nerve to show his face in a republican caucus to say nothing of being a candidate for anything on the republican ticket. He should be seeking preference in a democratic caucus as they are the ones who are holding office through his action.

There has been an honest effort by the republican party to give the city a good clean administration but it has been soiled by one defect in the party—and that is Mr. Mitchell's actions on the water board. Ex-Mayor Lerou has said that Mr. Mitchell did not know much about politics and needed an adviser and that he was going to advise him.

It would have been more fortunate for Mr. Mitchell if he had had a better adviser. That kind of advice was very satisfactory to the democrats.

Republicans, do not forget who has stood by the administration. Do not forget to come to the caucus and vote for Major Hagberg—a man with a war record that is a credit to any community and an experience in the water department equaled by none in the city of Norwich.

Will you vote for a man of the calibre of Major Hagberg whose record is beyond reproach in every particular or will you vote for a man of the type of Mr. Mitchell whose actions have done everything to disrupt his party and who has failed to prove true to the principles of the party which elected him?

The town committee should take good care and watch closely to see that none of Mr. Mitchell's democratic friends vote for him in the caucus as it can be expected an effort will be made by them to vote in this republican caucus.

CLEAN REPUBLICANISM.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 12—(AP)—Old-time musical comedy fans will recall the song about the chap who had "an elephant on his hands." It was very popular once and ran something like this:

The elephant ate all night,
The elephant at all day——

And along in early May the Bystander was inclined to wonder whether President Hoover had not developed a feeling of sympathetic understanding for that elephant owner.

He had congress on his hands. The best guess at that time was that he still would have it on his hands about mid-August.

Pity the President

If you change the language of the elephant song a bit you'll get the idea. Make it read:

The senate talked all night,
The senate talked all day——

By way of giving point to that, look back to the day when Senators Watson and Heflin clashed over the latter's resolution arising out of the Brockton, Mass., attacks on Heflin.

Watson computed the senate proceedings on farm relief up to that time as taking up 32 1-2 pages of the Congressional Record, while Heflin had taken up 33 1-2 pages.

Heflin promptly corrected that little discrepancy. He talked three hours more that same day and 3 1-2 pages more the following day. And that was after his resolution had been voted down by a smashing score that did not seem to disturb him in the least.

On the contrary, it furnished new ammunition for his subsequent remarks on the subject.

Even staunch administration senators had grown pessimistic about prospects for early adjournment. It is much to be doubted that Speaker Nick Longworth would have cared to repeat May 1 the cheery remarks he made to the house April 15 about closing up shop on the special session within a month's time.

The diplomats already were getting worried about their vacations in cooler climates than Washington in summer. They cannot well leave town while congress is in session.

No Vacations

The dean of the corps, Sir Esme Howard, who is steeped in Washington experience, had no doubts.

After canvassing the adjournment subject with friends in the senate and house, he let it be known privately that his Brittanic majesty's embassy would take no Bar Harbor vacation this year, but would stick on the job in Washington.

His inquiries had made it clear that the mid-August date for adjournment had a lot of backers among senate and house estimaters of the probabilities.

There was considerable to support that view. By May 1 the farm bill had passed the house and still was dragging along on an indefinite schedule in the senate.

It was admittedly the easiest to complete of the four jobs assigned to the special session by President Hoover.

The other three, tariff, reapportionment and national origins suspension or repeal, would be tougher, going by all signs and portents.

Attention!

Vote for Mitchell at the caucus tonight for Water Commissioner if you want a candidate who will not be dictated to by the machine.

YOUR HEALTH

"Quick Cures" for Venereal Disease False

By H. D. Willard, M. D.
Tacoma, Washington

One of the earliest conceptions of disease was that it was a punishment from the gods of sins committed by the people. This was particularly true of epidemics, and it was the custom to attempt propitiating the gods by sacrifice or to drive away the devils of diseases by making loud noises.

One of our great problems today is the control and elimination of venereal diseases. It is probable that the public has no conception of the wide spread prevalence of these diseases in all classes of society. It is a good sign for the health of the future that we are becoming more interested in these problems of social hygiene, and the prevention and cure of venereal diseases.

One obstacle to proper health education, and a very serious crime against public health today, is false advertising. This applies to the advertising of so-called cures for many different diseases, but more especially to the quick cures for venereal diseases. To advertise a medical cure for rupture may do more great harm except to lead to disappointment on the part of the individual who is the victim, but to advertise a remedy for the quick cure of venereal diseases which masks and does not cure, leads to calamity and should be a crime punishable by imprisonment.

The public should know that syphilis is a disease that requires at least three years of intensive treatment to effect a cure, that the virus which causes it may remain latent in the internal organs of the body for many years without producing symptoms, and then become manifest by the development of insanities and other signs of degeneracy.

Gonorrhea is a disease that is recorded in very ancient history. In the Old Testament time, even, it was recognized, and persons having it were isolated and placed under quarantine. Due to our failure to educate the people properly, we have come to regard this disease too lightly. It is of all diseases the greatest cause of sterility, while syphilis is the greatest cause of the inheritance of physical and moral degeneracy.

The failure to recognize the consequences of an imperfect cure of these diseases has lead the untold suffering and invalidism on the part of the innocent as well as those who are guilty.

Stories That Recall Others

Breaking Out

Little David, while playing with his smaller sister May, incidentally noticed she had a new tooth coming through. Both youngsters at the time had the measles and evidently had heard much about "breaking out."
